Until Dunlop's invention of the pneumatic tyre, travel by road was apt to be a highly uncomfortable experience. No wonder a bicycle in those days was nicknamed the 'bone-shaker'. Today's Dunlop tyres—the last word in safe, pleasurable motoring—embody the accumulated experience of tyre-making since the world's first pneumatic tyre.

Another Dunlop invention, Dunlopillo latex foam cushioning, now makes possible a great advance in travelling comfort. The foam structure gives continuous ventilation, keeping the cushioning cool during use. Sit relaxed on magic Dunlopillo—and watch the miles fly past.

PHYSIOGRAPHY

GEOGRAPHICALLY the mass of land today called India consists of the territories contained in the Union of India, the Portuguese possessions of Goa, Daman, Diu and the French possessions of Mahe, Karikal, Pondicherry and Yanam.

The Union of India (also referred to as the Republic of India) consists of the following 29 States. The names in brackets are of the capitals of the States:

Andhra (Kurnool)*, Assam (Shillong), Bihar (Patna), Bombay (Bombay), Madhya Pradesh, formerly called C.P. and Berar (Nagpur), Madras (Madras), Orissa (Cuttack), Punjab (Chandigarh), Uttar Pradesh, formerly called United Provinces (Lucknow), West Bengal (Calcutta), Hyderabad (Hyderabad), Jammu and Kashmir (Srinagar), Madhya Bharat (Gwalior), Mysore (Bangalore), Patiala and East Punjab States Union (Patiala), Rajasthan (Jaipur), Saurashtra (Rajkot), Travancore-Cochin (Trivandrum), Vindhya Pradesh (Rewa), Ajmer (Ajmer), Bilaspur (Simla), Bhopal (Bhopal), Coorg (Mercur), Delhi (Delhi), Himachal Pradesh (Simla), Kutch (Bhuj), Manipur (Imphal), Tripura (Agartala), Andaman and Nicobar Islands (Port Blair).

Some of these States have what is called a summer capital. The names of the summer capitals are given in brackets:

Bihar (Ranchi), Bombay (Poona), Madhya Pradesh (Pachmarhi), Madras (Ootacamund), Punjab (Simla), Uttar Pradesh (Naini Tal), West Bengal (Darjeeling), Jammu and Kashmir (Gulmarg), Madhya Bharat (Indore).

It may be stated here that the movement to the summer capital is not always as complete as it used to be.

India is about 1,700 miles from east to west, and about 2,000 miles from north to south. Its land frontier is about 7,100 miles long, and the sea frontier about 4,100 miles. The total land area is 1,269,610 sq. miles. The total population is 356,879,394† which is a little less than one-sixth of the population of the whole world.

In shape India is like a triangle with its base resting on the Himalaya Mountains in the north and its apex running far into the ocean in the south. At the southern extremity the triangle tapers with a pear-shaped curve to a point called Cape Comorin.

India lies entirely to the north of the equator. From south to north including Kashmir, it stretches from 8° north latitude to 37° north latitude, with the Tropic of Cancer cutting it roughly into two halves. West to east it stretches from about 68° 20' east longitude to 97° east longitude.

Broadly speaking India is shut off from the mainland of Asia by the Himalaya Mountains, the highest mountain range in the world. Going from west to east along the country's land frontier are Pakistan, Chinese Turkestan, Tibet, China, Burma and Pakistan. In the south, the country is surrounded on all sides by water—the Arabian Sea in the west, the Indian Ocean in the south and the Bay of Bengal in the east.

India is so vast and diversified that expressions like 'average rainfall,' 'average temperature' have no meaning. The average annual rainfall in the Thar desert is 4 inches, while that in Cherrapunji is 425. Similarly places in Kashmir have a minimum temperature of 49° F. while places in Rajasthan have recorded a maximum temperature of 120° F. So one can only speak of local averages rather than of national averages.

Compared with the size of the country, the coast-line is short, as there are few bays or inlets. Hence there are also very few harbours. The fact is the west coast is rocky and the sea is deep near the coast, while in the east the sea is extremely shallow so that big ocean-going ships have to weigh anchor at some distance from the shore. The only so-called natural harbours are Bombay and Goa, while Madras, Vishakapatnam and Port Okha are examples of purely artificial harbours built by human enterprise.

The principal ports in India are (going from west to east along the coast), Bedi Bunder, Port Okha, Porbandar, Surat, Bombay, Marugao, Mangalore, Kozhikode (Calicut), Cochin, Alleppey, Quilon, Tuticorin, Dhanushkodi, Nagapattinam, Karikal, Cuddalore, Pondicherry, Madras, Masulipatnam, Kakinada, Vishakapatnam and Calcutta. Of these, Karikal and Pondicherry belong to France, Marugao belongs to Portugal, while the rest are in the Republic of India. It may also be mentioned that the new harbour at Kandla in Kutch is now in use.

MOUNTAIN WALL

India can be divided into three natural regions—1. the mountain wall, 2. the Plain of Hindustan, and 3. the Indian Plateau.

Let us take the mountain wall first. From the Pamir Knot in the far north two mountain ranges radiate one in the south-east and easterly direction called the Himalayas, and the other in a south-western direction reaching almost down to the sea, called the Sulaiman Range in the north and the Kirthar Range in the south. In the east the mountain wall between India and Burma is called by different names in different places. In the north, for instance, it is known as the Patkoi Hills, further south as the Naga Hills. In Assam it is called Jaintia, Khasi and Garo. Southward are the Lushai Hills, then lastly there are the Arakan Yoma which finally reach the sea at Cape Negrais and continue in the Andaman and Nicobar Islands.

Of the various ranges which constitute the mountain wall of India the Himalayas are the most note-worthy. Extending like a scimitar for a distance of 1,250 miles along the northern frontiers of the country they form the loftiest mountain range in the whole world, and contain many of the highest mountain peaks, Mount Everest 29,002 ft., Mount Godwin Austen 28,250 ft., and Kanchenjunga 28,140 ft.

There are no easy ways in and out through the mountain wall which shuts off India from the rest of Asia, but there are a few difficult passes. In the very north are the Zojila Pass and the Shipki Pass which lead out of Kashmir and Punjab respectively. Then from Shipki right down to Darjeeling there is no route across the mountain wall. Across the Burma frontier again there are a few routes but they are of little use for purposes of communication.

The following is a more detailed description of the mountain region.

In the east on the border of Burma the mountain wall is much lower. Here it can more accurately be described as a range of hills rather than of mountains. This region is wet, forested and very thinly populated. The region round about Cherrapunji in Assam has the highest rainfall in the world.

Then from Darjeeling to Kashmir are the Himalayas proper, over 1,500 miles in length and 150 to 300 miles in breadth. The Himalayas are thus not a mountain chain in the proper sense of the word. They can be described as a series of parallel but converging ranges intersected by valleys and big plateaus. On the whole, the slopes of the mountains facing India are very steep, while those facing north are much more gentle. We say, on the whole, because though the eastern Himalayas (in West Bengal and Bihar) rise abruptly from the plains, in the west (western Uttar Pradesh and the Punjab) the rise from the plains is a little more gradual. Hence the Himalayas themselves can be further sub-divided into three parallel zones, the Great Himalayas with an average elevation of 20,000 ft., always covered with snow; the Lesser Himalayas, the middle range, with an average elevation of 15,000 feet; and finally the Outer Himalayas lying between the Lesser Himalayas and the plains with an average elevation of about 3,500 feet. The last are a sort of foot-hills to the Great Himalayas, and are usually described as forming the sub-Himalayan region, a region which extends from eastern Bihar to the Punjab all along the Plain of Hindustan.

In the north the altitude of the range is much lower: there are few peaks which exceed a height of 20,000 feet. The Punjab Himalayas are comparatively dry, and the snow-line is much higher than elsewhere. The northern slopes are bare while the southern slopes are forested.

Two of the longitudinal valleys which separate the mountain ranges are worth a note. They are the Vale of Kashmir and the valley of Khatmandu in Nepal. Both the valleys are fertile, extensive and from a tourist's point of view a dream of beauty.

Thus it is clear the whole region possesses great variety in climate and a range of vegetation stretching from the tropics to the poles.

The north mountain wall has a tremendous influence on the physiography of the country. On the one hand it keeps out the bitterly cold winds which blow from Central Asia and Tibet during the winter, and on the other it intercepts the moisture laden winds which blow from the sea in the south so that the northern plains of the country have rain during the monsoon. Second, the melting snow and rain falling on the mountains go to form the chief source for the water of the rivers which flow from the Himalayas. Hence the rivers of Hindustan never go completely dry in the summer.

PLAIN OF HINDUSTAN

Geologically, the Ganges plain can be considered as the fore-deep of the mountains to the north of it. This fore-deep extends thousands of feet below the sea-level, though since its formation it has been filled in by deposit. In the east this deposit consists of alluvial material from the mountains, in the west it consists of material blown by the wind. All through the deposit is fine grained made up chiefly of muds and sands.

The Plain of Hindustan extends from the Bay of Bengal in the east to the Pakistan frontier in the west; that is to say, it is about 1,500 miles long and from 150 to 200 miles broad. Throughout this vast tract of land not a hill can be seen. The slope from the mountains to the sea is so gradual that about 100 miles from the mouth of the River Ganges the surface is no more than 500 feet above sea-level.

The Plain of Hindustan is probably the most important part of the country. For one thing, it contains some of the richest soil in the world. Second, it is on the Plain of Hindustan that the whole drama of race conflict and race assimilation was played out, a drama which finally shaped the political and cultural destiny of both India and its neighbour Pakistan.

Going into more detail the Plain of Hindustan is formed by the basins of three distinct river systems. In the far west are the Beas and Sutlej, tributaries of the Indus draining into the Arabian Sea. Further east is the River Ganges with its tributaries the Jamuna, Gogra, Rapti and Gandak which flows south-eastwards into the Bay of Bengal. The capital of the Indian Republic Delhi stands on the water-shed between the Indus and the Ganges river basins. The third of the three river systems, the Brahmaputra rises beyond the Himalayas, turns east and enters India at its eastern extremity and joins the Ganges before reaching the Bay of Bengal. The Brahmaputra has no important tributaries.

On the Himalayas these rivers are rushing, roaring torrents, cutting their way through steep and rocky gorges. But when they reach the vast plains they broaden out and wander slowly till they get to the sea. The land is so flat that the rivers sometimes leave their old beds and cut out new channels flooding the surrounding area.

The rivers of Hindustan are notable in three respects: 1. They give a constant supply of water, 2. The land through which they flow is broad, flat and fertile and eminently suitable for irrigation, 3. Because water flows perennially they are navigable through the greater part of the year.

As we go from west to east in the plain rainfall increases and so do the fertility of the soil and the density of population.

The whole plain can be sub-divided according to climate into a number of natural regions. There are first the plains of the north-west, comprising Punjab State, a dry area depending on the irrigation canals of the rivers Beas and Sutlej for its water. Second, there is the valley of the Upper Ganges covering the major part of Uttar Pradesh a comparatively dry region which depends for its cultivation on the irrigation canals of the Ganges and the Jamuna. Third, we have the valley of the middle Ganges embracing the State of Bihar, which is an intermediate zone, with both wet and dry cultivation. As we go further east we have the lower valley of the Ganges, which includes the whole of West Bengal, a wet region with considerable rainfall growing rice and jute.

INDIAN PLATEAU

The third of the natural regions into which the country is divided is called the Indian Plateau because it comprises a three-sided table-land covering the whole of the country in the south except for two narrow coastal strips in the east and the west. The Indian Plateau is marked off from the Plain of Hindustan by a confused mass of hill ranges running with a general direction of east to west. Three of these ranges have been distinguished by the names of Vindhya, Satpura and Ajanta respectively. They stand from 1,500 feet to over 4,000 feet high and though pierced by road and railway at the present time were not easy to cross in the old days and thus formed a barrier of hill and jungle between the northern and the southern portions of the country.

The Indian Plateau is higher in the west and the south than in the east and north. Along the western and eastern edge of the plateau run the Western and Eastern Ghats. They start southward, from the extremities of the Vindhya mountain system and run along the western and eastern coasts of the country and unite to form a sort of upheaved angle towards their southern extremity. The Western Ghats run through the State of Bombay and ascend to an average height of about 3,000 feet while some of the peaks are anything between 5,000 feet and 9,000 feet high. The Eastern Ghats stretch down the State of Madras and have an average elevation of 1,500 feet. The inner triangular plateau which the Western and Eastern Ghats form far in the south is seamed with little ranges of hills exceeding 4,000 feet in height the best known among which are the Nilgiris. It is on the Nilgiris that Ootacamund the famous summer capital of Madras State stands.

Drainage Systems.—There are three systems of drainage in the Indian Plateau—one towards the north, the second towards the west and the third towards the east. The drainage from the northern or Vindhya edge of the plateau falls into the Ganges. Two rivers Narmada and Tapi carry the rainfall of the southern slopes of the Vindhya and Satpura mountains respectively in almost parallel lines into the Arabian Sea. Further south, as we have already stated, the plateau is much higher in the west than the east. So the drainage has to make its way across the whole breadth of the plateau eastwards until it falls into the Bay of Bengal. The most important rivers are the Mahanadi, the Godavari, the Krishna and the Cauvery. These rivers differ from the rivers of the Plain of Hindustan in three ways; 1. They are fed only by the monsoon rains and therefore do not yield a constant supply of water, 2. Their valleys are less suitable for irrigation, 3. And finally, they are not navigable for certain seasons in the year when parts of the river dry up.

From a geological point of view the Indian Plateau consists mainly of very old crystalline rocks—much older than the Himalayan fold mountains. On some of the edges of the plateau in the north-east for instance, are areas of sedimentary rocks from which the country obtains most of its coal. About nine-tenths of the coal resources of India lie in Jharia in Bihar and Ranigunj in West Bengal, though coal-bearing beds are also found in the valley of the Godavari and the northern slopes of the Vindhya. The north-west of the plateau is covered by vast stretches of lava called the Deccan lavas. This region is one of the largest areas of lava in the world, covering as it does an area of 250,000 square miles with a total thickness of several thousand feet. In spite of the great extent of the lavas there are few or no signs of volcano. In the rest of the Plateau valuable minerals occur here and there among old crystalline rocks. Gold is obtained in Kolar, manganese in Vishakhapatnam, Mysore and Madhya Pradesh, copper and iron in Bihar and Orissa, mica in Andhra and the south-east. The point about diamonds is of some interest. They occur in sand-stones or conglomerate in Panna in Vindhya Pradesh or Kurnool in Andhra, though no diamond bearing igneous rocks are found.

Natural Regions.—From the point of view of climate and vegetation the Indian Plateau can be divided into ten natural regions. There are first of all the coastal regions round the plateau. In the north covering part of the State of Bombay is the Gujarat region, moderately dry and hilly in places. Further south is the west coast region covering part of Bombay and part of Madras, narrow and wet. In the east is the Carnatic or Tamil region comprising part of Madras, moderately wet but wider than in the west. In the north is what is called the Northern Circars region covering part of Andhra and part of Orissa, also moderately wet. Then there are the dry regions lying to the north of the Vindhya mountains sloping downwards to the plains of the Ganges. There are the Thar or Great Indian Desert, the Rajasthan uplands dry and hilly, and the Central Indian Plateau comprising part of Madhya Pradesh. Finally there is a third group of regions which can be distinguished, all lying in the Indian Peninsula proper. These are first the southern part of the plateau covering the whole of Mysore and parts of Madras and Bombay, dry, somewhat barren and thinly populated; second, the Deccan lavas region in the north-west, containing parts of Bombay, Hyderabad and Madhya Pradesh dry but with fertile black soil suitable for cotton and moderately thickly populated; and lastly, the north-eastern Plateau covering parts of Bihar, Madhya Pradesh and Orissa. This last mentioned region has moderate rainfall, is thinly populated, but thickly forested. The inhabitants are mainly concentrated in two river valleys.

Ceylon is the only important island lying off the coast of India to which it is joined by a line of sand flats collectively called Adam's Bridge. But Ceylon is politically separate from the sub-continent. Two groups of very small islands in the Bay of Bengal, the Andamans and the Nicobars, and one group in the Arabian Sea the Laccadives are part of the Republic of India. So is the quasi-island of Kutch off the Kathiawar Peninsula in western India. Kutch is a dry, rocky, treeless country.

VEGETATION

India is thickly populated and so over a greater part of the country the natural vegetation has been removed. The country has no distinctive botanical features peculiar to itself. Where the rain-fall is more than 80 inches a year there are ever green forests on the hills. The wood from these forests is hard but the forests have not yet been commercially exploited. These ever-green forests are chiefly found on the slopes of the Western Ghats, the wetter eastern parts of the Himalayas up to a level of 6,000 feet, and in Assam.

Where the rain-fall is less than 80 inches but more than 40 we have what are called the monsoon forests, so-called because the trees in these forests lose their leaves in the dry season. The monsoon forests are very valuable, because they contain two of the most useful kinds of tree, the teak and the sal. The teak is found chiefly in the western parts of the country while the sal is obtained in the lower slopes of the Himalayas and the north-east of the Plateau. Where the rainfall is less than 40 inches, in the drier parts of the country we find small thorny trees, sometimes so small that they are more like bushes than like trees. In the driest parts where the land is desert or semi-desert even bushes cannot grow. There we find plants with thick fleshy stems and long roots. As we go up the mountains too the vegetation changes. In the higher reaches of the mountains, above 5,000 feet in the south, and 3,000 feet in the north the forests are similar to those found in temperate lands. Some of the trees have broad leaves and are like the oak while others are tall and have needle-shaped leaves like the pine.

On the highest parts of the mountains it is too cold and too dry for trees to grow and so we find only small bushes and short grass.

Along the sea-coasts and in the great river deltas where the land is flat and muddy grows a kind of tree called mangrove. These trees are most frequent in the deltas of the River Ganges where they are called Sundarbans.

There is not much grass land in India though in the hills in the monsoon grass patches can be seen.

The main cultivated plants include rice, wheat, pulses and grains. Among the important seeds grown are castor, sesamum and ground-nut. The chief fruit trees include mango, coconut, arcanut and certain citrus fruit. Apples, peaches, pears, apricots and walnuts are confined chiefly to the Himalayan valleys. There are tea plantations over large areas on the mountains in the north-east and south, while coffee, cardamom, pepper and rubber are extensively grown in the south. In some of the damper regions the cinchona is successfully cultivated.

ANIMALS

Just as natural vegetation has disappeared over the greater part of the land so have a great many wild animals. The lion, for instance, was not uncommon within historical times in the north. Today it is confined wholly, to the Gir forest in Junagadh in Saurashtra.

The most famous among the wild animals which survive are the tiger and the elephant. The leopard or panther is more common than the tiger and equally destructive of life and property. The cheetah or the hunting leopard is found only in the Deccan and is generally trained for hunting the antelope. Other wild Indian animals of the cat family are the marbled cat and the jungle cat.

In the open country-side wolves are plentiful and usually prey on sheep. The Indian fox is comparatively scarce but the jackal is very common. The wild dog is found in the denser jungles and generally hunts in packs. Among other dogs are the pariah common in the south, and the greyhound used for hunting.

The black bear is common wherever rocky hills and forests occur. It lives on ants, honey and fruit and may often prove dangerous. The Himalayan bear which is found only in the north, stays in the mountains during the summer but comes lower down during the winter.

The rhinoceros found in the country are of three different types, two have a single horn and one has double. The rhinoceros is commonest in the Brahmaputra valley and in the Sundarbans. With the rhinoceros might be mentioned the crocodile which can be very dangerous specially in the rivers of the north. The wild hog is also well-known in certain parts of the country and is very destructive of crops.

In the remote parts of the deserts of Kutch is found the wild ass but its contacts with man are few. Many wild varieties of sheep and goat are met with in the mountain ranges of the north.

The antelope proper is more widely distributed. On the coasts of Gujarat and Orissa, for instance, a herd of does accompanied by a single buck is a common sight. The gazelle can also be found almost everywhere. The sambar is confined to hill forests, while the spotted deer is considered to be the most beautiful animal of the Indian jungle.

In the Western Ghats, and in the hill jungles of Assam and Madhya Pradesh is found the bison. It is a fierce animal and almost as dangerous to hunt as the tiger. Akin to the bison is the wild buffalo very common in Assam.

The rat and the mouse are a perpetual nuisance. The bandicoots some of which can be as long as 2 feet burrow under stores and godowns and are often deadly to plants, fruit or grain.

The reptiles abound in garden and jungle and even intrude into dwelling places specially during the rains. Thousands of people die every year in the country-side of snake-bite. The most dreaded of the reptiles is the cobra. There is another variety called Russell's viper whose bite is equally fatal. Generally speaking the salt-water snakes are dangerous while the fresh-water ones are harmless. The bigger variety scorpion which abounds in parts of Madras is a domestic terror.

Of all the wild animals in the country the elephant is the most interesting as well as the most useful. It generally lives in the wilder parts of the monsoon forests and being an intelligent animal can be trained to do heavy work such as dragging great logs of wood, or arranging them in neat piles. The elephant is also excellent as a transport animal as it can push its way through the thickest jungle where roads cannot be built.

Domestic Animals.—So much for the wild animals. Among the domestic animals the most useful are the oxen. It is estimated that there are about 145 million cattle in India. Milk is not a staple article of food and the oxen are chiefly used for ploughing or drawing carts. The bullocks are more valuable than the cows though in certain parts like Uttar Pradesh dairy-farming is an important industry. One handicap is that in most areas fodder has to be specially grown for the cattle.

There are 50 million buffaloes in the country. The buffalo is stronger than the bullock and is chiefly used for ploughing. The she-buffalo is the typical dairy animal.

There are 34 million sheep in the country. But they are a very poor specimen and do not give good wool or meat. Sheep are most numerous in Madras and live chiefly on waste land which is not good enough for cattle. Goats (50 million) are found everywhere because it does not take much to keep them alive. They can feed on the poorest grass or shrub and so find enough to eat even in the driest parts of the country.

There are 3-236 million horses, ponies and donkeys, most of which are used as draught animals. Mules, donkeys and camels are also used for purposes of transport: mules and donkeys on the hilly parts, and camels in the sandy desert. The total number of live-stock in the country is 284.429 millions.

The birds of India though not as gorgeous as those of some other tropical lands deserve mention. The parrot is easily the most beautiful of the Indian birds. The peacock is another beautiful bird, while the maina like the parrot lives happily in a cage and talks well. Of the vulture there are four varieties which include the common scavenger. There are many types of eagle too and some of the falcons can be trained for hawking. A bird much sought after for its plumage is the kingfisher and among the birds which are hunted for their flesh are pigeons, ducks, partridges, plover, quail and snipe. The jungle fowl, however, is not considered good for eating.

There are many beautiful butterflies in India, while among the more useful insects are the bee, the silk-worm, the coccus lacca, that is, the insect which gives lac. Certain varieties of Indian moth and ant are very destructive. Locust invasions are not frequent but when they appear they leave complete destruction behind them. Mosquitoes abound everywhere.

In India fish is eaten fresh as methods of fish preservation are either primitive or not practised. Among the edible Indian fishes are the carp family and the cat fishes. But the most delicious is the hilsa which is also a rich food. A fish which is found in all hill streams is the mahseer.

BASIC FACTS ABOUT INDIA*

Some basic facts may be shown more prominently as follows. For more details see under individual sections:

Land area: 1,269,640 sq. miles; population (without Jammu and Kashmir and Part B Tribal Areas of Assam): 356,879,394; birth-rate, death-rate, infant mortality rate for 1950: 21.8, 16, 127.1; Literacy (1951): 16.6.

National income (1948-49): Rs. 8,710 crores; average per capita income for agriculture: Rs. 500; average per capita income for mining, manufacturing, hand trades: Rs. 800; for commerce, transport and communications: Rs. 1,600; for other services: Rs. 1,100.

Area of India (1949-50): 811 million acres; total cropped area: 302 million acres; total irrigated area: 49 million acres.

Production of rice (in million tons for 1951-52): 20.77; of jawar: 5.51; of bajra: 2.15; of maize: 1.96; of ragi: 1.17; of small millets: 1.81; of wheat: 5.77; of barley: 2.14; of gram: 3.16; of sugar cane (in terms of raw sugar): 5.90; of potato: 1.60.

Production of tobacco (in lakh tons for 1951-52): 2.25; of sesamum: 4.41; of ground nut: 30.37; of rape and mustard: 9.00; of linseed: 3.09; of castor seed: 1.04; of jute: 46.78; of cotton: 31.34.

No. of oxen and buffaloes (in millions for 1950-51): 196; of sheep and goats: 88.59; of horses, ponies, mules, donkeys, camels, pigs: 7.89; of poultry: 70.

Amount of milk produced (1950-51): 21.42 million tons; amount of fish produced (1948): 130.20 million maunds.

Amount of cotton yarn produced (1952): 1,448.40 million pounds; of cloth (1952): 4,603.2 million yards; of steel (1952): 1.103 million tons; of coal (1952): 36 millions tons; of cement: 3.54 million tons.

Government of India's estimated revenue for 1953-54: Rs. 439.26 crores; expenditure: Rs. 438.81 crores; defence expenditure: Rs. 199.81 crores (45.5 per cent).

No. of universities (1953): 30; no. of colleges for general education (1950-51): 504; of colleges for special education: 99; of professional colleges: 213; of secondary schools: 20,981; of primary schools: 210,112; of pre-primary schools: 305; of vocational and technical schools: 2,162; of special education schools: 47,542; of research institutions: 20; of unrecognized institutions: 8,485.

No. of students at arts and science colleges: 3,04,324; at professional colleges: 54,716; at secondary schools: 5,225,454; at primary schools: 18,352,383; at pre-primary schools: 25,144; at vocational and technical schools: 164,904; at unrecognized schools: 406,338.

Total no. of students at all institutions (1950-51): 25,826,365.

Total no. of workers (1950-51): about 65,00,000; of workers employed in factories under the Factories Act of 1948: 24,68,280; no. of trade unions on register (1950-51): 4,277; membership of unions submitting returns (1950-51): 20,22,434.

Labour force was roughly divided as follows: factories: 29,50,000; railways: 14,00,000; plantations: 12,00,000; Mines: 5,00,000; Central Public Works: 2,00,000; Posts and Telegraphs: 2,00,000; major ports: 50,000.

Total mileage of all railways (Oct. 1952): 34,331. Kutchra roads (1950-51): 1,60,000 miles; surfaced roads: 90,200; total no. of motor vehicles: 310,145; of bullock carts: 9,630,975; navigable water-ways (1951-52): 5,200 miles; no. of major ports: 5; no. of aerodromes (1951-52): 75; no. of air routes: 50; air route mileage: 25,000; no. of post offices (1950): 29,671; no. of telegraph offices: 7,772; no. of telephone exchanges (1951): 582; no. of telephones: 1,40,793.

Total electric power production (Jan. 1952): 5,842 million kwh.

No. of broadcasting stations (Oct. 1952): 21; no. of radio sets: 6,77,403; total no. of community sets: 6,000; in industrial areas: 250.

No. of dailies (April 1952): 596; weeklies: 2,226; other periodicals: 3,940; total circulation of dailies: 20,00,000.

Total foreign trade (1952-53): Rs. 1,233.73 lakhs; imports: Rs. 653.11 lakhs; exports: Rs. 575.62 lakhs.

Total no. of displaced persons: 74.80 lakhs; total expenditure on rehabilitation since 1947: Rs. 145.28 crores.

NATIONAL FLAG AND ANTHEM

The National Flag is a horizontal tri-colour of deep saffron, white, and dark green all of equal breadth and in that order from top to bottom. There is a wheel on both sides in the centre of navy blue colour with twenty-four spokes. The wheel is the same size as the centre strip. It is an exact reproduction of the wheel on the capital of the Asoka pillar at Sarnath near Banares. The saffron is said to stand for courage, white for truth and peace, green for faith and chivalry (All-India Congress Committee, 1931); the wheel is the symbol of India's ancient culture (Mr. Jawaharlal Nehru). The flag was adopted by a resolution of the Constituent Assembly on July 22, 1947.

The National Anthem is Janaganamana; Vande Mataram also enjoys an equal status. It was adopted by the Constituent Assembly on Jan. 24, 1950. Janaganamana was composed by Rabindranath Tagore and published in his paper, Tattvabodhini Patrika of which Tagore himself was the editor in January, 1912. The poet rendered it into English in 1919 under the title The Morning Song of India. It was first sung at a Congress session on December 27, 1911.

* It is possible more up-to-date figures are given under Miscellaneous at the end of the book.

Vande Mataram occurs in the novel Ananda Math by Bankim Chandra Chatterjee published in 1882. It was set to music by Rabindranath Tagore and was first sung at the Congress session of 1896.

Janaganamana was preferred because Vande Mataram did not lend itself to harmonization.

There are rules and regulations about the use of the national flag.

No other flag or emblem should be placed above the national flag or to its right. It should not be dipped to any person or any thing. It should not be carried flat or horizontally but always aloft and free. In a procession it should be carried in front of the procession.

Normally it should be flown on important government buildings.

The use of the flag is unrestricted on certain special occasions specified as such, e.g. Independence Day, Mahatma Gandhi's birthday, Republic Day and during the national week.

WARRANT OF PRECEDENCE

(December 1952).

1. President of India.
2. Prime Minister of India.
3. Governors, Maharajpramukh of Rajasthan and Rajpramukhs within their respective charges.
- 3A. Vice-President of India.
4. Ex-President and ex-Governors-General of India.
- 4A. Lieut.-Governors within their respective charges.
5. Rulers of Indian States with a salute of 17 guns and above within their States.
6. Ambassadors accredited to India. High Commissioners of Commonwealth, Government in India.
7. Chief Justice of India. Speaker of Parliament.
8. Governors, Maharajpramukh of Rajasthan and Rajpramukhs outside their respective charges.
9. Cabinet Ministers of the Union of India.
- 9A. Lieut.-Governors outside their respective charges.
10. Rulers of Indian States with a salute of 17 guns or over outside their States.
11. Chief Ministers of Part A and Part B States in their respective States.
12. Rulers of Indian States with a salute of 15 guns or 13 guns.
13. Ministers Plenipotentiary and Envoys Extraordinary.
14. Ministers of State for the Union of India. Members of the Planning Commission.
- 14A. Chief Commissioners of Part C States having Councils of Ministers within their respective charges.
- 14B. Chief Ministers of Part C States within their respective States.
- 14C. Judges of the Supreme Court of India.
15. Ambassadors of India and visiting Ambassadors of India. Foreign Ambassadors visiting India. Visiting High Commissioners for India and High Commissioners of other Commonwealth countries visiting India.
16. Charge d'Affaires and acting High Commissioners a pied and ad interim.

17. Chiefs of Staff and Commanders-in-Chief, provided they hold the rank of a full General or an equivalent rank.
18. Chief Ministers of Part A States outside their States. Chief Ministers of Part B States outside their charges. Deputy Ministers of the Union of India. Attorney General of India. Comptroller and Auditor General of India. Chief Justices of high courts. Chairmen of legislative councils in Parts A and B States. Speakers of legislative assemblies in Parts A and B States.
20. Chiefs of Staff and Commander-in-Chief, provided they hold the rank of a Lieut.-General or an equivalent rank.
21. Rulers of Indian States with a salute of 11 or 9 guns.
22. Ministers of Parts A and B States.
23. Chairman of the Union Public Service Commission. Chief Election Commissioner. Piusne judges of high courts.
25. Deputy Ministers in Part A States.
26. Members of Parliament.
27. Officers of the rank of a full General or an equivalent rank. Solicitor-General of India. Secretary to the President. Secretaries to the Government of India and Principal Private Secretary to the Prime Minister. Commissioner for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes. Rehabilitation Adviser. Officiating Chief of Staff and Commanders-in-Chief holding the rank of a Major-General or an equivalent rank. Chief Commissioners of Part C States having Councils of Ministers outside their respective charges. Visiting Ministers Plenipotentiary of India and foreign Ministers Plenipotentiary visiting India. Chairman of the Railway Board. Financial Commissioner for the Railways.
- 27A. Chief Ministers of Part C States outside their respective States.
- 27B. Speakers of Part C States within and outside their States.
- 27C. Ministers of Part C States within and outside their States.
28. Members of the Railway Board. Ministers of foreign and Commonwealth missions other than Ministers Plenipotentiary. Officers of the rank of a Lieut.-General or an equivalent rank. Chief Commissioners of Andaman and Nicobar Islands, Kutch, Tripura and Manipur within their respective charges. Additional Secretaries to the Government of India. President of the Indian Tariff Board. Chairman of the Central Electricity Commission. Chairman of the Central Water-power, Irrigation and Navigation Commission. Vice-Chairman of the Indian Council of Agricultural Research. Financial Adviser to the Ministry of Finance (Defence). Chairman of the Central Board of Revenue. P.S.Os. of Armed Forces of the rank of a Major-General or an equivalent rank.*
30. Chairman of the Public Service Commission of a State. Chief Secretaries to the Governments of Part A States.

POPULATION*

THE more important figures are as follows: Total population (excluding Jammu and the Part B tribal areas of Assam): 356,879,394; Males: 183,333,874; Females: 173,545,520.

Population of Jammu and Kashmir: 4.41 millions (estimate for March 1, 1951); Population of Part B Tribal Areas of Assam: 0.56 millions (unverified local estimate).

Indians overseas: 4,229,096.

Increase over 1941: 42,113,014 or a mean decennial growth rate of 12.5 or percentage increase of 13.4 per cent.

Highest population: Uttar Pradesh (63,215,742); Lowest population (30,971); Average density: 312 per square mile. Highest density: Delhi (over 3,000); Lowest density: Andaman and Nicobar (10).

Only two States registered a decline in the mean decennial rate. Punjab, (0.5), Andaman and Nicobar Islands (8.6).

The lowest rate of increase was for PEPSU (2.6).

The highest rates of increase were: Delhi (62.1), Coorg (30.5).

In the following States the rate of increase was below 10: Bihar, Orissa, Madhya Pradesh, Bhopal, Vindhya Pradesh, Himachal Pradesh and PEPSU.

Registered birth-rate (1941-50): 27.2; Probable birth-rate (1941-50): 40; Registered death-rate (1941-50): 19.4; Probable death-rate (1941-50): 27; Natural increase rate (1941-50): 13; Infant mortality rate (1941-50): 127.1; Life expectancy 32 years and 5 months; Life expectancy at the age 10 years: 39.

Literacy for India for 1951: 16.6; Punjab, 16.5; Bihar, 12.2; Hyderabad, 9; Orissa, 15.8; M.P., 13.5; M.B., 10.8; PEPSU, 12; Rajasthan 8.1, U.P., 10.8.

Number of females to every 1,000 males: 947.

The number of females exceeds the number of males in the following States. Kutch (1,070), Madras (1,000), Manipur (1,030), Orissa (1,022), Travancore-Cochin (1,008).

In the following States the number of females is less than 900 for every 1,000 males: Assam, Coorg, PEPSU, Punjab, West Bengal.

In the following States they are the smallest: Andaman and Nicobars (625), Delhi (768).

Largest State: Madhya Pradesh (130,272 square miles); Smallest State: Bilaspur (to be merged with Himachal Pradesh) (453 square miles); Smallest but one: Delhi (578 square miles).

Total urban population: 62 millions (17.3 per cent.); Total rural: 295 millions (82.7 per cent.); Increase in urban population over 1941: 3.6 per cent. Highest urbanization: Delhi (83 per cent).

Number of cities with a population of one lakh and over: 75.

Percentage of population dependent on agriculture: 70.

States in which non-agricultural population exceeds agricultural: Ajmer, Andaman and Nicobars, Delhi, Kutch, Saurashtra.

If the population is divided into classes according to livelihood the percentage of each class would be as follows:—

Peasant proprietors, 47; Tenants, 9; Landless labourers, 13; Landlord or rentier, one; Industry or other non-agricultural production, 10; Commerce, 6; Transport, 2; Services and miscellaneous professions, 12.

CENSUS OPERATIONS

The last census was taken at the beginning of 1951 (Feb. 9 to Mar. 1, 1951).

For the first time the census embraced the whole of India including the former Indian States, but excluding Jammu and Kashmir and the tribal areas of Assam. Jammu and Kashmir was omitted because of special conditions and the tribal areas of Assam because they had never been enumerated before.

One vital difference between the 1951 census and all previous census is that caste and community distinctions do not figure as before except to the extent necessary for the purpose of Article 338 of the Constitution which provides safeguards to Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes and Anglo-Indians, and of Article 340 which provides for the appointment of a Backward Classes Commission. The emphasis is laid on the economic aspects of the situation, such as the principal and subsidiary means of livelihood of the person, whether employer, employee or independent worker and so on.

The census questionnaire covered such items as (1) Total population; (2) Sex; (3) Age; (4) Marital Status; (5) Place of Birth; (6) Citizenship or Nationality; (7) Mother tongue; (8) Educational characteristics; (9) Fertility data; (10) Economic characteristics; (11) Urban and Rural population; and (12) Households (including relationship to Household Head).

In addition to the International list of 12 topics, the questionnaire asked three questions, of which the most important related to displaced persons.

Two main and two subsidiary questions in the census questionnaire related to "economic status" and "means of livelihood". These questions were: Are you a self-supporting person or a non-earning dependent or an earning dependent? If you are a self-supporting person, are you an employer or an employee or an independent worker or none of these? What is the occupation or source of income which forms your principal means of livelihood? Have you a secondary means of livelihood? If so, what is it?

The manner of recording agricultural livelihood, was different from that of non-agricultural livelihood. Instructions were given to classify agriculturists under four heads, viz., (1) persons who cultivated land owned by themselves, (2) persons who cultivated land owned by another, (3) persons who were employed as labourers by another person who cultivated land and (4) persons who received rent in cash or kind in respect of land cultivated by another person.

These are general questions which were asked all over the country. There were also questions confined to particular States. For instance questions about unemployment were asked in the following twelve States:—U.P., Bombay, Punjab, Saurashtra, PEPSU, Mysore, Hyderabad, Delhi, Bilaspur, Himachal Pradesh, Kutch, and Vindhya Pradesh. Questions about previous occupation were asked in the 2 States of Madhya Bharat and Bhopal; about area of land owned and cultivated by each household in Orissa; about cultivation of land for which rent is paid in West Bengal; about land owned and rented by indigenous persons in the 3 States of Assam, Tripura and Manipur; about infirmities (incidence of diseases) in the 4 States of Madras, Coorg, Rajasthan and Ajmer; about fertility in the 2 States of Bihar and Madhya Pradesh. And about the duration of marriage and size of family in the State of Travancore-Cochin.

All useful data collected during the census operations will be recorded in a national register. Relevant parts of this register will be kept in every tahsil or sub-division or ward as a permanent and confidential record of the inhabitants. It is also proposed to bring out a census handbook for every district which the State Governments have been requested to publish. The State Governments have also been requested to include abstracts from these in school textbooks so that students could learn more about their region than they do at present.

GROWTH OF POPULATION

Year.	Population (in millions).	Increase (in millions).	Percentage Increase.
1951 ..	356.88	42.11	+ 13.4
1941 ..	314.77	39.25	+ 14.3
1931 ..	275.52	27.34	+ 11.0
1921 ..	248.18	-0.87	- 0.3
1911 ..	219.05	13.55	+ 5.8
1901 ..	235.50

During the twenty years (1931-51), the number added to the population was three times as many as during the ten years (1921-31) and twice as many as during the thirty years (1901-31).

† Add Chandernagore: Total: 49,909; Males: 28,220; Females: 21,689.

†† Figures for Part B Tribal areas are not included.

For populations of districts see under each State.

FUTURE GROWTH

Calculations have been made about this from 1951 to 1981.

The estimate based on the assumption that the mean decennial rate of growth will be the same as that of the average of 1921-50 will be the lower limit, and the estimate based on the assumption that the mean decennial rate of growth will be the same as during the last decade will be the upper limit.

The figures given below are in millions:

	lower limit	upper limit
1951	361.3	361.3
1961	407.7	411.9
1971	458.5	469.7
1981	527.6	535.5

Making allowance for mortality and maternity rates, the trends may be estimated as follows: The figures are in crores: 1951—36; 1961—41; 1971—46; 1981—52.

There can be a four-fold classification of towns—cities (population of one lakh and over), major towns (population 20,000 to one lakh), minor towns (population 5,000 to 20,000), townships (under 5,000).

The average number of villagers per village is 529.8.

The percentage of rural population living in small villages (under 500) is 26.5; in medium-sized villages, (500-2,000) is 48.8; in large villages (2,000-5,000) is 19.4; in very large villages (over 5,000) is 5.8.

A house is a building in which people live. A household is a group of people who live together and take their food from a common kitchen.

There are 112 households in every 100 houses in a typical Indian village, and 124 households in every 100 houses of a typical Indian town.

In every 100 households in a village there are 491 persons, in every hundred households in the town the number is 471.

In every 100 houses in a village 550 people live, in every 100 houses of a town 584.

Out of 491 people in every 100 rural households 252 are males and 239 are females. Out of 471 people in every 100 urban households 248 are males and 223 are females.

We can have a four-fold classification of households—small household (3 persons or less), medium (4, 5 or 6), large (7, 8 or 9), very large (10 or more).

The number of different types in 100 households in a typical village and a typical town will be as follows:

	Village	Town
Small	33	38
Medium	44	41
Large	17	16
Very large	6	5

The pattern of household relationship in 100 households with 487 persons in them will be as follows:

	Number
Heads of households	100
Wives of heads	71
Sons of heads	108
Daughters of heads	81
Male relatives other than sons	49
Female relatives other than daughters	72
Persons unrelated to heads	7
Total	487

LIVELIHOOD PATTERNS*

Out of a total population of 3,566 lakhs, 1,014 lakhs (28.3 per cent) are self-supporting; 2,113 lakhs (60.1 per cent) are non-earning dependents, and 379 (10.6 per cent) earning dependents.

Out of a total agricultural population of 2,490 lakhs, 710 lakhs are self-supporting; 1,470 lakhs are non-earning dependents, and 310 lakhs earning dependents.

Out of a total non-agricultural population of 1,076 lakhs, 334 lakhs are self-supporting; 673 lakhs are non-earning dependents; and 69 lakhs earning dependents.

The following table gives a comprehensive picture of self-supporting and dependent people and the percentage

Under Agriculture Class I is owner-cultivator, Class II tenant-cultivator, Class III cultivating owner, Class IV agricultural rentier.

Class V are persons engaged in non-agricultural production, Class VI persons in commerce, Class VII transport, Class VIII miscellaneous income recipients (non-agricultural rentiers, pensioners, etc.)

The second column shows self-supporting persons; the third non-earning dependents; the fourth earning dependents; the fifth total dependents; the sixth percentage to general population including dependents.

The figures are in lakhs.

Category	2	3	4	5	6
Class I	457	1,001	+ 215	1,673	46.9
Class II	88	189	+ 39	316	8.8

General Population ..	1,044	2,143	+ 379	3,566	100.0

The following figures show the number of dependents supported by 100 persons in each of the eight categories. The first figure in brackets shows the number of non-earning dependents and the second figure the number of earning dependents:

Class I—266 (219.47); Class II—250 (215.44); Class III—201 (166.35); Class IV—231 (206.25); All Agricultural classes—251 (207.44).

Class V—211 (185.26); Class VI—261 (246.15); Class VII—230 (218.12); Class VIII—216 (197.19); All non-agricultural classes—222 (201.21).

General Population—242 (205.37).

BROAD CONCLUSIONS

The broad conclusion of this survey is that the average self-supporting person uses his income to support himself and at least two others.

Roughly one among three self-supporting persons also provides, in addition, partial support for one earning dependent.

During the twenty years following 1931 population grew faster than cultivation. But the relative weight of dependence on agriculture for gainful employment has not declined in the country as a whole. It is probable that it has increased slightly. Such increase is observable in Uttar Pradesh, Bihar, Orissa, Assam, Madras, Hyderabad, Rajasthan, Punjab. It has probably diminished in Bombay, West Bengal and Mysore. In Madhya Pradesh dependence on agriculture has not changed.

Thus on the whole, there has been a general increase of non-earning dependency. The increase in absolute numbers of non-earning dependents has exceeded the entire increase of rural population in India as well as in each of the five zones out of six.

The percentage of non-earning dependents to the general population has also increased in every State except Bombay, West Bengal and the Punjab.

The increases in the percentages are not accompanied by any material change in sex ratio or age structure. They must, therefore, be regarded as a rough index of the growth of unemployment in different parts of the country.

There has been a general increase throughout the country in the number of cultivators and cultivating labourers working on the same area (say 100 acres) of uncultivated land.

The increases are relatively small in the following States:

Assam (46 to 48), Bihar (50 to 52), U.P. (49 to 51), Madras (34 to 36), Orissa (29 to 32).

Larger increases are observable in the following States:

Punjab (23 to 26), Bombay (17 to 23), Madhya Pradesh (26 to 33), Travancore-Cochin (11 to 57).

Among the major States for which figures are available Mysore alone shows a fall (32 to 26).

Material changes have occurred in the percentage of cultivating labourers to all workers in land (i.e. cultivating labourers and cultivators including their unpaid family helpers).

There is only one major State where this percentage has increased—Travancore-Cochin (84 to 47). The percentage has remained practically unchanged in Bihar (27-26), Mysore (13-14), Hyderabad (31) and Punjab (11-12).

* For detailed tables see pages 18 to 20.

In other States the percentage has fallen: U.P. (18 to 9), Orissa (30 to 19), West Bengal (40 to 28), Madras (38 to 35), Bombay (43 to 18), Madhya Pradesh (43 to 32), Rajasthan (11 to 4).

The fall is the natural result of increase in the number of cultivators and members of their families occupying the same area of cultivated land. The cultivators' need for employing labourers diminishes, as also their capacity to pay for their services.

Other reasons for the fall may be that labourers were unwilling to acknowledge as labourers to guard against the accrual of occupancy rights in land.

There were also many people who partook of the characteristics of both cultivator and cultivating labourer and whose classification was open to doubt.

It is also possible that because of legislation and the general social climate a conversion has taken place of many persons from the status of cultivating labourer to that of cultivator. Such conversions probably account for an important part of the fall observed in Bombay, Madhya Pradesh, Uttar Pradesh Rajasthan and possibly elsewhere.

Among cultivators the relative proportion of cultivator owners has increased to some extent.

Agricultural rentiers formed only a small proportion of the people in 1931, and this proportion has become still smaller in 1951.

SELF-SUPPORTING PERSONS

There are 1,044 lakhs of self-supporting persons in the country or 29.3 per cent of the population.

The table in the next column shows the rural-urban and sex-wise break-up.

Rural-Urban	Number (in lakhs)	Percentage
Rural males ..	706	47.1
Urban males ..	166	49.8
Rural females ..	151	10.4
Urban females ..	21	7.4
Total ..	1,044	29.3

Out of 1,044 lakhs of self-supporting persons 710 lakhs or 68.1 per cent are agriculturists, and 334 lakhs or 31.9 per cent are non-agriculturists.

The rural-urban and the sex-wise break-up of agricultural and non-agricultural self-supporting classes is as follows (the number is in lakhs):

Rural-Urban break-up										Agriculturists		Non-agriculturists
										Number	Percentage	Number	Percentage
Rural males	566	80.2	140	19.8
Urban males	19	11.4	147	88.6
Rural females	121	80.2	30	19.8
Urban females	4	19.7	17	80.8
Total	710	68.1	334	31.9

The self-supporting agriculturists can be divided into four classes. The number in the second column in the table below is in lakhs. The number in the third column is the percentage of all agriculturists, the number in the last is percentage of all self-supporting persons.

Category	Number	Percentage of agriculturists	Percentage of all self-supporting persons
Cultivators of land wholly or mainly owned ..	457	64.4	43.8
Cultivators of land wholly or mainly un-owned ..	88	12.3	8.4
Cultivating labourers ..	149	21.0	14.3
Non-cultivating owners of land and other rent receivers ..	16	2.3	1.6
Total ..	710	100.0	68.1

Another way of describing Classes I and II is as owner-cultivators and tenant-cultivators. Thus the number of owner-cultivators is 457 lakhs and the number of tenant-cultivators is 88 lakhs.

The total number of cultivators can thus be put down as 545 lakhs.

The 334 lakhs self-supporting non-agriculturists can also be divided into four sections. The number in the second column is in lakhs, the number in the third shows the percentage of all self-supporting non-agriculturists, the fourth the percentage of all self-supporting persons.

Categories	Number	Percentage of self-supporting non-agriculturists	Percentage of all self-supporting persons
Employers ..	11	3.3	1.1
Self-employed other than employers ..	165	49.4	15.7
Employees ..	148	44.3	14.2
Non-agricultural miscellaneous income-receivers ..	10	3.0	0.9
Total ..	334	100.0	31.9

The employees are a clear minority. Self-employed persons are more numerous than employers and employees combined.

If we deduct rentiers from both agriculturists and non-agriculturists we get the following classification of income-earners. The number in the following table is in lakhs.

Nature of income	Cultivation	Industries and Services	Total
Net profits ..	545	176	721
Wages and salaries ..	149	148	297
Total ..	694	324	1,018

Earners of profits are much more than twice as numerous as earners of wages and salaries.

PERSONS IN INDUSTRY

The 324 lakhs self-supporting persons engaged in industries and services other than cultivation may be divided as follows :

Categories	Number (in lakhs)	Percentage
Primary industries other than mining and quarrying (0) ..	24.0	7.4
Mining and quarrying (1) ..	5.7	1.8
Processing and manufacture (food stuffs, textiles, leather) (2) ..	55.1	17.0
Processing and manufacture (metals, chemicals) (3) ..	12.4	3.8
Processing and manufacture not elsewhere specified (4) ..	24.3	7.5
Construction and utilities (5) ..	15.9	4.9
Commerce (6) ..	59.0	18.2
Transport, storage and communications (7) ..	19.0	5.9
Health, education and public administration (8) ..	22.9	10.2
Services not elsewhere specified (9) ..	75.4	23.3

The number engaged in some of the sub-divisions of the above main divisions are as follows (the figure is in lakhs) :

Plantations—10.6; Stock-raising—6.3; Fishing—4.2; Forestry (wood cutting, collection of forest produce not elsewhere specified)—2.5; Rearing of small animals and insects—27 (in thousands).

Figures for men engaged in mining are given in thousands except for coal-mining, and mining of stone clay and sand which are in lakhs.

Coal-mining—3.1; Mining of stone, clay, sand—1.2.

Iron ore—9; metals other than iron—57; petroleum—3; mica—13; salt, salt petre—22; non-metallic minerals—11. Total for this group—135.

The figures for persons engaged in various industries given below are in lakhs

Divisions 2, 3, 4

Milling of cereals, pulses, hand pounding of rice, dehussing, grinding of food grains—4.0; Vegetable oil and dairy products—2.7; Sugar—1.4; Beverages (breweries, distilleries, toddy drawers, aerated waters)—1.6; Tobacco (preparation of raw leaf, makers of bdis, cigarettes, etc., snuff)—3.6; Other food industries—1.8; All food industries (except cultivators, housewives, hotel workers)—15.

Cotton textiles—28; wearing apparel (except footwear)—6.5; Other textiles (jute, wool, silk, hemp, flax, rayon, rope, twine, etc.)—7.1; Leather (leather products, footwear)—5.8.

Manufacture of transport equipment—2.2; Machinery (other than electrical) including engineering workshops—1.2; Basic manufacture of iron and steel—1.1; Manufacture of metal products otherwise unclassified—6.2.

Manufacture of wood and wood products (carpenters, turners, etc.)—10.4; Manufacture of non-metallic mineral products (potters, makers of earthenware porcelain, crockery, glass bangles, etc.)—4.5.

Division 5

Total for construction and utilities (15.9).

The total number engaged in commerce is 59 lakhs.

They fall into three groups: Retail trade (51.1); Wholesale trade (4.6); Money-lending, banking, insurance, real estate (3.3).

Among men in retail trade: Selling food stuffs (22.5); Selling fuel (1.9); Selling textiles and leather goods (5.6).

Division 7

Total for Transport, Storage and Communications (19.0); Transport by road (8.9); By railway (5.7); By water (2.2); By air (13 thousand).

Division 8

Total for Health, Education and Public Administration (22.9); Medical and health services (3.8).

Total for educational services and research (7.4); of these stationed in towns (3.7); in villages (3.7).

These were divided as follows*: Professors, lecturers, teachers, research workers, employed in universities, colleges, research institutions (99,256); other professors, lecturers, teachers (549,544).

Total for public administration (21.6). These may be divided as follows (see next column) :

Employees of Central Government (5.03); Total employees of State Governments (14.26).

These may be sub-divided as General administration (8.09); Police (other than village watchmen) (3.80); Village establishments including village watchmen (2.37); Employees of local bodies (2.24).

Division 9

Services not elsewhere specified (75.4). Of these nothing is known of 37.3 except that they are self-supporting.

The following para gives the details about the rest of the 38.1 lakh persons (the number is in thousands) :

Domestic service (1,121); Laundries and laundry services (565); Barbers and beauty shops (511); Religious, charitable and welfare services (369); Legal and business services (230); Recreation services (214); Hotels, restaurants and eating houses (458); Arts, letters and journalism (39).

DEPENDENTS

Out of 3,566 lakhs 2,143 or 60.1 per cent have been classified as non-earning dependents.

The table below shows the rural-urban and the sex-wise break-up of non-earning dependents :

Rural-Urban	Number (in lakhs)	Percentage
Rural males ..	674	15.0
Urban males ..	152	45.6
Rural females ..	1,065	73.5
Urban females ..	252	88.1
	2,143	60.1

There are 379 lakhs or 10.6 per cent earning dependents in the country. They are dependents in the sense that left to themselves they cannot support themselves.

The table below shows the rural-urban and sex-wise break-up of earning dependents.

Rural-Urban	Number (in lakhs)	Percentage
Rural males ..	119	7.9
Urban males ..	15	4.6
Rural females ..	232	16.0
Urban females ..	13	4.5

VITAL STATISTICS

The following table shows the number of births and deaths registered in each of the three decades. The figures in the first two columns are in lakhs. The figures in the last two columns give the mean decennial registered rates.

Year	Registered births	Registered deaths	Birth-rate	Death-rate
1921-30	669	502	33.7	25.3
1941-50	680	486	27.2	19.4

Many births and deaths go unregistered. Making allowance for this it is calculated that the birth-rate should be around 40, and the death-rate around 27.

This would give a natural increase rate of 13 per thousand per annum during the last decade.

On the same basis the birth-rates for the various zones will be as follows:

Central India (44); West India (42); north-west India (41 or 42); north India (38 or 39); east India (38 or 39); south India (36 or 37).

The death-rates would be as follows:

Central India (34); north India (27 or 28); east India (26, 27 or 28); west India (26); north-west India (24, 25 or 26); south India (21 or 22).

The following table shows the birth and mortality rates for the sub-continent from 1921 to 1946 and for India alone for 1947, 1948, 1949 and 1950

The overwhelming majority of deaths are caused by such typical tropical diseases as small-pox, typhoid, dysenteries, cholera and malaria. Tuberculosis is also a big killer. Malnutrition and nutritional diseases are very common. This is no surprise considering the general poverty of the people.

The figures below are for the larger cities like Calcutta, Bombay or Madras because they are generally more accurate than figures for the smaller towns or rural areas. Here is a table which shows the specific death-rates per thousand for Calcutta, Bombay and Madras for 1949.

	Calcutta	Bombay	Madras
Tuberculosis	120	113	69
Dysentery and Diarrhoea ..	156	79	301
Typhoid ..	58	53	10
Cholera ..	84	0.0	19

There has been some reduction in the general rate of mortality due to specific diseases over the last three decades:

Year	Cholera	Small-pox	Plague

Turning to infant mortality figures in the larger towns we find that there has been on the whole some improvement as the following table shows:

SEX RATIO

In India as whole the total number of males is 183 millions, and of females 173 millions.

The sex ratio has varied as follows: 1921—956; 1931—951; 1941—946; 1951—947.

It may be mentioned here that in the world as a whole the sex ratio is probably 962.

In the country as a whole the sex ratio as mentioned above is female to male 947 to 1,000. The lowest is 893 in the north-west, the highest is 999 in south India where practical equality of the sexes exists.

In general the sex ratio is smaller in towns than in villages. For the country as a whole the sex ratio in villages is 966, while that in towns is 860.

The sex ratio in villages is lowest in north-west India (895). In the villages of south India females outnumber males (1,004).

The urban sex ratio is lowest in east India (719). It is highest in south India (977).

The difference between the rural sex ratio and the urban sex ratio is very large in east India (258). It is smallest in south India (27).

In the country as a whole there are 235 lakhs of people living in cities. Of those 132 lakhs are males and 103 are females.

The sex ratio for all cities is 787. It is lowest for east India (841) and highest for the south (940).

The sex ratio for the ten largest cities is as follows:

Greater Calcutta, 602; Greater Bombay, 596; Madras, 921; Delhi, 750; Hyderabad, 989; Ahmedabad, 764; Bangalore, 883; Kanpur, 690; Poona, 833; Lucknow, 783.

Males and females are not born in equal numbers. They do not die in equal numbers. Hence the difference in the numbers of males and females.

For example, the average sex ratio at birth during the decade 1941-50 was as follows in the following States:

Madras, 948; M.P., 939; Bombay, 935; U.P., 857.

The sex ratio of infants who died within one year of birth during 1941-50 was as follows:

Madras, 870; M.P., 844; Bombay, 806; U.P., 790.

The sex ratio among infants at the 1951 census was as follows:

Madras, 1006; M.P., 946; Bombay, 980; U.P., 941.

MATERNITY PATTERN

Out of every 10,000 persons in India 5,133 are males and 4,867 are females.

Among them 2,521 males (19.1 per cent) and 1,886 females (38.5 per cent) are unmarried. Together the unmarried people are about 11.1 per cent of the population.

To put it the other way round, among men 45.8 per cent are married and 5.0 per cent are widowers, and among women 48.4 per cent are married and 12.8 per cent widows.

The number of divorced persons in India is 141,786 or 0.1 per cent.

The proportion of unmarried persons is highest in south India (48.2 per cent) and lowest in central India (41.1 per cent).

The 1951 census counted 28,33,000 married males and 61,18,000 married females, 66,000 widowers, 134,000 widows all between the ages of 5 and 14.

The approximate number of marriages contracted in contravention of the law would be 91,50,000.

But there is evidence that the child marriage rate is diminishing. The percentage of married females under 15 was 9.6. This dropped to 7.4 in 1951.

The percentage of unmarried women above 15 is 6.4.

Facts concerning marital status in villages and towns separately is as follows:

In the villages, out of 10,000 persons 2,338 are married males and 2,407 are married females.

In the towns the corresponding figures are 2,429 and 2,105.

There is a fall in the proportion of widowers and also of widows. The former fell from 5.6 per cent in 1931 to 5.0 per cent in 1951. The latter fell from 16.1 per cent in 1931 to 12.8 per cent in 1951.

For maternity only married women in the age-group 15 to 44 are to be taken into account.

We have to base our findings on investigations carried out in Travancore-Cochin State during the 1951 census.

On an average a mother in Travancore-Cochin who lives to complete her child-bearing period gives birth to more than 6 children but not more than 7.

Out of this the number actually alive on census day was 4.6. Among the children born alive 2 had died preceding their mothers.

Thus in Travancore-Cochin the child birth index is 6.6, child survival index 4.6, child loss index 2.0.

These indices vary as follows:

Age group	Child birth index	Child survival index	Child loss index
Under 20	1.2	1.0	0.2
20-24	1.8	1.4	0.4
25-29	2.9	2.3	0.6
30-34	4.2	3.2	1.0
35-39	5.3	4.0	1.3
40-45	6.2	4.6	1.6
Over 45	6.6	4.6	2.0
Average	4.3	3.2	1.1

The child birth indices of mothers divided into groups was as follows:

Agricultural landholders' and tenants' families	4.5
Agricultural labourers' families	4.1
Non-agricultural families	4.2
Rural	4.3

Mothers can be divided into two groups: those who commenced child-bearing during the ages 15 to 19 (Maternity Type A), and those who commenced child-bearing during the ages 20 to 24 (Type B).

Their child birth indices are as follows:

	Type A	Type B
Under 20	1.2	-
20-24	2.0	1.3
25-29	3.6	2.3
30-34	4.8	3.7
35-39	6.0	4.9
40-44	6.8	5.8
Over 45	7.3	6.1

Investigations of a different sort have given the following results:

The total number of births which occur in the course of one year among about 1,000 persons is 40. Among these 40 births, 8 births are first births, 16 births are either first births or second births; 23 births are either first, second or third births; and 17 out of 40 are either fourth births or births of a higher order.

We may speak of births occurring to mothers who have already given birth to three or more children as 'improvident maternity'—except in the exceptional circumstance where all previously born children are dead. We may refer to the percentage of such maternities to all births as the Incidence of Improvident Maternity.

The following figures show the incidence for a number of countries. In most countries this incidence is falling, while in India there is no evidence of any decrease:

India—42.8; U.S.A.—19.2; U.K.—14.3; France—19.7; Japan—33.9.

EMIGRATION LAWS

Emigration out of India is governed by the Indian Emigration Act (VII of 1922) and the Rules made thereunder, as amended in 1938 and 1940.

"Emigration" means departure by sea out of India of a person under an agreement to work for hire. Emigration is not lawful except from Ports which have been notified as "Emigration" Ports. Emigration for unskilled work is not lawful to any country at present, and the very departure for engaging in unskilled work to Ceylon, Burma, Malaya and Singapore is prohibited, unless exemption is granted by general or special orders of the Central Government.

Emigration for skilled work is permissible on compliance with prescribed formalities.

The functions under the Act are performed by the Central Government through the Controller-General of Emigration and Joint Secretary to the Government of India in the Ministry of External Affairs, New Delhi, with the assistance of the Protectors of Emigrants at the Emigration Ports and the Controller of Emigration, Madras, who supervises the activities of the Protectors of Emigrants in the Madras State.

Following Ports are at present Emigration Ports under the Act. Each Port has a Protector of Emigrants.

1. Bombay (Protector of Emigrants Exchange Building, Sprott Road, Ballard Estate, Bombay).
2. Okha (Port Officer).
3. Porbander (Port Officer).
4. Bedi (Port Officer).
5. Madras (Protector of Emigrants: Kilpauk, Madras 10).
6. Nagapattinam (Protector of Emigrants).
7. Dhanushkodi (Protector of Emigrants), (Mandapam Camp).
8. Tuticorin (Protector of Emigrants).
9. Gopalpur (The District Officer).
10. Calcutta (Protector of Emigrants: 7, Hare Street, Calcutta).

ENTRY ON QUOTA

The following countries admit Indians on quota basis: Canada, U.S.A., Thailand and Indonesia.

Canada. Under an Agreement entered in 1951 between the Government of India and the Government of Canada, the latter agreed to receive 150 Indian nationals every year for permanent residence. Selection is entirely by the Government of Canada. The main criteria is that the immigrant should be likely to assimilate in the local population. Educational qualifications, property qualifications, etc. are considered. Priority is also given according to the nearness of relationship between the intending immigrant and his sponsors in Canada, also the capacity of the sponsors to support him financially. Chronological order of applications is also taken into consideration.

U.S.A. United States of America has fixed an annual quota of 100 Indian immigrants. 25 per cent of this quota is reserved for Indians born or residing outside India. The selection of immigrants is made by the U.S. Government. The main considerations on which selection is made are: (a) the immigrant must be a genuine East Indian, (b) must be free from contagious diseases or moral turpitude, (c) must not subscribe to anarchist or subversive theories, (d) must not be a practising polygamist, (e) must be literate in some modern language, and (f) must be in possession of sufficient funds to avoid likelihood of becoming public liability.

Thailand. The quota fixed by Thailand is 200 per annum. The selection is made by the Thai Government.

Indonesia. Indonesia fixed a quota of 1,000 immigrants in 1952 to a group of four countries, viz., India, Pakistan, Ceylon and Burma. It is, however, entirely at the discretion of the Indonesian Government to permit Indians to settle in Indonesia.

FREER MIGRATION

In some of the countries, though Indians are not admitted for the specific purpose of settlement, they can enter and reside on completion of formalities and conditions prescribed under the respective immigration and other laws of those countries. Mauritius, British East African territories of Kenya, Uganda, Tanganyika, Zanzibar, Northern Rhodesia, Nyasaland, Belgian Congo, Ruanda-Urundi, Nigeria, Ethiopia, Aden, Bahrain, Iraq, Muscat, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Seychelles, Malaya, Fiji, Japan, the United Kingdom, British West Indies, British Guiana, and British North Borneo are among such countries.

The main requirements of some of the countries are indicated below:

Mauritius. An intending immigrant should be able to deposit Rs. 1,000 on entry into the Colony.

British East Africa. A person intending to engage on his own account in trade, business, agriculture, mining, and manufacture in these territories must have at his disposition prescribed capital and must obtain a certificate from the prescribed authority in the territory concerned permitting him or her to engage in a particular profession, trade or calling in that territory. Professionals like doctors, dentists, lawyers, are not required to have any prescribed capital, but should possess sufficient capital or assured income to enable them to give effect to their intention.

Northern Rhodesia. The main requirement is a knowledge of the English language. Persons intending to enter for business and trade must also have sufficient capital. There is scope for Indians wishing to settle there as doctors, lawyers, technicians, etc.

Malaya. Before the New Immigration Ordinance which was to come into force on August 1, 1953, Indians were free to enter provided they were not likely to become destitute. Under the new immigration laws, entry permits for permanent residence will not normally be granted to fresh immigrants wishing to enter Malaya for employment or for pursuing a profession unless the applicant is a skilled artisan or his entry is considered to be in the economic interest of Malaya or Singapore, or he holds a contract of employment with a well-established business concern on terms and conditions of service of a prescribed standard, or unless he holds special qualifications to be able to pursue his profession without prejudice to the interests of persons already resident in Malaya.

British West Indies. Indians are admitted in exceptional cases, where they possess special skills that are in short supply there or who may bring capital for investment.

Belgian Congo. Entry Permits may be granted to those who can deposit a certain sum and satisfy the authorities regarding good conduct, etc.

Ethiopia. There is no particular restrictions for immigration into Ethiopia, but the Ethiopian Government's permission is required in every case.

United Kingdom. Indians are free to settle in the United Kingdom.

Switzerland. Indian nationals can go to and reside in Switzerland, subject to the laws and rules in force in that country.

BAN ON ENTRY

Fresh Indian immigration is either banned or is not permitted as a matter of policy into the following countries:—South Africa, Southern Rhodesia, Australia, New Zealand, Ceylon, Philippines, most of the European and South American countries and Burma.

South Africa. Immigration of Indians into the Union of South Africa is banned.

Southern Rhodesia. Southern Rhodesia treats Indians as prohibited immigrants, but admits wives and dependant children of the persons already there.

New Zealand. There is a ban on the entry of fresh Indians, but as a special case the New Zealand Government permits the entry of the children of permanent residents into New Zealand for permanent residence subject to certain conditions.

Australia. Asians, including Indians, are not allowed to immigrate into Australia for permanent settlement. Indians are, however, permitted to start wholesale export-import business provided the minimum annual turn-over is £A500; but without any citizenship or other rights. Indians already settled there can, however, take their wives and minor children subject to certain conditions.

BURMA

Burma was a province of India till 1937 April when it was given a separate constitution. In 1931 the Indian population was reported to be over one million. Consequent upon the Japanese occupation of Burma in 1942, about 4 lakhs of Indians left Burma for India. After the liberation of Burma many did not return to that country in view of the changed conditions in Burma and the difficulty of obtaining employment there. The present population of Indians in Burma is estimated to be about 7 lakhs.

Indians are mainly agricultural, dock and casual labourers and small-scale businessmen. Some Indians are engaged in wholesale importing business and as rice merchants.

With the introduction of the Burmaisation policy, no foreigner is now allowed to buy any property, nor can any property be transferred to any foreigner. Non-nationals in Government service are being replaced by nationals.

A large number of Indian land-owners in Burma will be adversely affected by the 'Land Nationalization' Scheme.

Under the Union of Burma Citizenship Act, 1948, an alien can become a Burma citizen by naturalisation, if he had resided continuously in the Union for not less than five years before the application and also fulfils other prescribed conditions.

As foreigners in the country, Indians as such have no franchise. Those Indians who have become Burmese citizens are entitled to all privileges including franchise that other Burmese are entitled to.

Rupees forty a month can be remitted to dependants in India by Money Order. Large sums for maintenance of families and other specific purposes can be remitted on the strength of certificates from the District Magistrate concerned in India. On leaving Burma for good, all assets can be transferred to India.

MALAYA

Malaya is divided into two administrative units, the Federation of Malaya and the Colony of Singapore.

Of the total Indian population of about 7 lakhs, about 70 per cent are labourers in rubber and tin estates, and the rest are either clerks or employed in business, trade and other professions, like law and medicine.

Indians do not suffer from any special disabilities.

Indians are eligible for citizenship of the Federation of Malaya, if they fulfil the prescribed conditions. Under the new citizenship code for the Federation, which came into force on September 15, 1952, Federal citizenship is automatic for citizens of the U.K. and Colonies. Most of the Indians in Malaya are qualified or entitled to become citizens of the U.K. and Colonies under the British Nationality Act, 1948.

In Singapore there is no citizenship law and the British Nationality Act applies.

The Federation of Malaya's Legislature is nominated and there are no elections to it. In a Legislative Council of 75 seats, Indians have 5 seats. In the Federal Executive Council of 20, there is one Indian member.

The Colony of Singapore is under a Governor; Strength of Executive Council 12, Indian Members 1; Strength of Legislative Council 25, Indians 3.

There are no restrictions on Indians in the matter of remittances to India.

CANADA

Indian residents of Canada are largely comprised of labourers employed in lumbering and trucking. There are a few lumber mill owners, and some are working as clerks in various establishments. The Indian community is mostly concentrated in British Columbia where there are 1,937 Indians out of a total of 2,148 Indians in the whole of Canada. The Indian community is called the "East Indian Community".

There are no disabilities on Indians in the matter of owning property, engaging in trade or profession, entering Government service or residence in any locality. The period for qualification for citizenship is 5 years. In 1952, one Indian was elected to a Municipal Council.

Indians can remit to India any amount earned in Canada.

BRITISH GUIANA, WEST INDIES

Indians form the bulk of sugar plantation labour in British Guiana and Trinidad. A good number of them work also on cocoa plantations. They are the backbone of the countries' agriculture, and grow rice and vegetables. There are also a number of prominent Indian merchants, doctors and teachers.

In British Guiana, Indians constitute the largest single racial group. (46 per cent of the total population.) In Trinidad Indians are about 38 per cent of the total population.

Very few Indians have been employed in Government service. A vast majority of Indians are illiterate. In Jamaica, a large number of dairies are owned by Indians.

There is no discrimination against Indians in British Guiana or Trinidad, and they enjoy the same citizenship rights as other nationals of these territories.

In Trinidad the Executive Council has 5 elected members and the Legislative Council 18 elected members. There is one Indian in the Executive Council and 6 Indians in the Legislative Council.

In the Executive Council of British Guiana there are 6 elected members, of whom 3 are Indians. The Legislative Council consists of 24 elected members, 8 of whom are Indians.

In Jamaica where Indians form only 1.7 per cent of the total population there is one Indian member in the Lower House comprising 32 elected members.

Money can be freely sent to India from the British West Indies.

MAURITIUS

Indians in Mauritius form about 65 per cent of the total population of the Colony. The Indian population is mainly composed of descendants of "indentured" labourers from Madras, U.P. and Bihar, but there is a sprinkling of traders from Bombay. Indians have settled there for generations and are now termed "Indo-Mauritians". A large proportion of them are farm-labourers on sugar plantations. The rest are engaged in commerce and trade or are doctors, lawyers, government servants.

Indians are mostly illiterate, and on the whole their economic and social conditions are not as satisfactory as in some other Colonies.

There is no colour bar against Indians, nor do they suffer from any political disability.

There are 3 Indians on the Executive Council which consists of 10 members including the President (the Governor) and 3 ex-officio members. In a Legislative Council of 35 consisting of the President (the Governor), 3 ex-officio, 12 nominated and 19 elected members, 13 are Indians. Fresh elections to the Legislative Council were due in August-September, 1953.

There are no restrictions on remittances to India.

EAST AFRICA

British East Africa consists of the four territories of Kenya, Uganda, Tanganyika and Zanzibar.

The majority of the Indians in these territories are engaged in commercial undertakings. Artisans, technicians, Government servants, doctors, lawyers, make up most of the balance.

Indians in East Africa—numbering about 2 lakhs—are mostly concentrated in urban centres. In Kenya and Tanganyika they constitute about 59 per cent of the total non-native population of each territory; in Uganda they form the single largest community among the non-Africans, being about 82 per cent of the non-African population. Their general economic condition is on the whole very satisfactory. Many of them are quite well-to-do.

In Uganda some Indians have big factories, e.g., sugar, sisal and ginning. About 90 per cent of the total trade of Uganda passes through Indian hands.

Indians (and also other non-Europeans) are not allowed to own or lease land in the Kenya Highlands for agricultural and industrial purposes. Anti-Asiatic regulations prevent the purchase or occupation of certain residential sites in Nairobi and Mombasa (in Kenya) by Indians.

Indians are, in practice, discriminated against in the matter of appointments under the Government; they are generally excluded from appointments to higher posts and are denied military training. An Indian (or other non-European) gets less pay than a European for the same work.

In Kenya, grants for social services, e.g., education, are more favourable to Europeans than to Indians. Indians are also known to be subject to social disability, such as exclusion from European hotels, restaurants, etc.

Indian residents in these territories are entitled to acquire the citizenship of the U.K. and Colonies under the British Nationality Act. Normally one year's continuous stay or birth in the territory is necessary.

In Tanganyika, Uganda and Zanzibar there is no elective system for filling up seats in the Legislative Councils. In Kenya, the population is divided into race electorates for the election of members to the Legislative Council; the Indian electoral roll is further subdivided as between Indian Muslims and other Indians. Out of six seats two are for Indian Muslims and four for other Indians.

Indians also enjoy municipal franchise in these territories.

The representation of Indians on the Legislative and Executive Councils is shown below:

Country	Executive Council		Legislative Council
	Total	Indians	Total	Indians
Kenya	12	1	54 (28 non-officials).	8 (6 elected unofficial— 2 Muslims and 4 other Indians—and 2 nomi- nated officials).
Uganda	14	2	32 (16 non-officials).	4 (nominated non-officials).
Tanganyika	13	1	20 (14 non-officials).	3 (nominated non-officials).
Zanzibar	9	—	17 (8 non-officials).	2 (nominated non-officials).

Since 1st January, 1948, Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika have been included in a sort of loose union designated East African High Commission with a common legislature and a common administrative service for certain specific purposes. The legislature of the East African High Commission consists of 7 ex-officio members, 3 nominated official members (1 from each territory) and 13 non-official members. The 13 non-official members consist of: one elected by the non-official members of the Legislative Council of each territory, one European, one Indian and one African member appointed by the Governor of each territory (in Kenya the European and Indian members are elected by the European and Indian members respectively of the Kenya Legislative Council) and one Arab member (appointed by the High Commission).

There are no restrictions on remittances to India.

SOUTH AFRICA

Persons of Indian origin in South Africa are mostly labourers, traders, small farmers, factory workers, and in small numbers professionals (doctors, lawyers).

Racial discrimination against Indians exists in South Africa in every walk of life and in the worst possible form. Persons of Indian origin are practically excluded from parliamentary, provincial and municipal franchise as well as from public services except in menial and subordinate posts.

"Apartheid" or racial segregation is the declared policy of the South African Government. In accordance with this policy Indians are subject to a number of restrictions as regards immigration, inter-provincial migration, residence, trade, industry, professional and other occupations. Racial segregation is also enforced in schools, post offices, railways, public transport, hotels, and public utility undertakings.

The outstanding piece of anti-Asiatic legislation is the Group Areas Act, 1950. By this Act, the entire population of the Union has been divided into three main groups, White, Native and Coloured. Persons of Indian origin are included in the Coloured group. The Government will establish by proclamation "group areas" for exclusive occupation or ownership or both, of any of the groups. The various racial communities will have to live and occupy premises for trade and professions only in areas allotted to them. Indians and other non-Europeans will thus not be able to continue to hold properties in an area declared for the European group. The Union Government has already started taking active steps for the proclamation of group areas in a number of important cities in the Union. When the Act is fully implemented, persons of Indian origin will have to move into the areas exclusively reserved for them and this will disrupt their trade and business and involve immense losses running to millions of pounds.

Asians have been declared prohibited immigrants since 1913, but the right of entry into the Union of wives and children of Indians domiciled in South Africa was provided for in the Reciprocity Resolution passed at the Imperial Conference of 1918 and later in the Cape Town Agreement of 1927. The Union Government have now announced their decision to ban the entry into South Africa of the wives and children of persons of Indian origin domiciled in the Union.

The aim of the present South African Government in regard to Indians is their ultimate repatriation to India.

Practically all Indians domiciled in South Africa are South African citizens by law, but they are denied some of the most important rights of citizenship.

No Indian, who is not already a South African citizen, is allowed to acquire South African citizenship.

Indians have no franchise rights in the Provinces of Natal and Transvaal. In the Cape Province they enjoy limited franchise rights as for Cape Coloureds.

Indians are not eligible to a place in the Executive Council or Legislature, whether provincial or central.

There is no special limit to remittances by Indians to India.

The question of the treatment of the people of Indian origin in South Africa was placed before the General Assembly of the United Nations in 1946. In that year the U.N. General Assembly passed a resolution expressing the opinion that "the treatment of Indians should be in conformity with the international obligations under the agreements concluded between the two governments and the relevant provisions of the Charter." Resolutions have been passed in subsequent sessions of the U.N. General Assembly in this respect, but the Union Government have paid little attention to these resolutions. In the Resolutions adopted in 1950 and afterwards the Union Government was also called upon to suspend the implementation of the Group Areas Act pending the conclusion of negotiations between the Governments of India, Pakistan and South Africa. But the Government of South Africa has proceeded with the implementation of this Act despite these Resolutions.

The General Assembly, by its latest Resolution, set up a Good Offices Commission to assist the three Government concerned in their negotiations on this question. But the South African Government refused to recognise the Commission.

SOUTHERN RHODESIA

Indians in Southern Rhodesia are mostly traders. Immigration of Indians into Southern Rhodesia has been prohibited since 1920, and only wives and children under 16 of domiciled Indian residents are admitted.

Although there are no discriminatory laws as such against Indians, in practice and in the interpretation of laws discrimination against them exists, particularly in the social sphere. Indians are not eligible for appointments to the Fixed Establishment of the Civil Services, and are not admitted into the Armed Forces. Indians are required to obtain special permits in order to purchase, possess or sell arms and ammunition whereas Europeans can do so on ordinary permits.

There is a common roll for all races with common qualifications. Of about 50,000 voters in the territory, between 400 and 500 are Indians.

Southern Rhodesia is a quasi-Dominion and has a cabinet of seven Ministers headed by a Prime Minister. There are no Indians in the Cabinet. The country has an elected Legislative Council consisting of 30 members, all of whom are Europeans. Because of the small number of Indian voters, no Indian has been elected to the Legislative Council so far.

There is no limit to remittances to sterling area countries.

CEYLON

Out of a total of 957,839 persons of Indian origin in Ceylon, about 781,000 (labourers, subordinate staff, etc.) are in the tea, rubber and coconut estates. The balance of 176,839 is made up of merchants, shop assistants, land proprietors, and professional men such as doctors, accountants, lawyers and their families.

There is no restriction on Indians' acquiring property in Ceylon, but non-Ceylonese are not allotted Crown Land. Trade in certain commodities and with certain countries like Japan and Germany is exclusively reserved for Ceylonese enterprise. Certain rights like fishing rights and the ownership of industries like public transport (omnibuses) are restricted to Ceylonese. Government service is restricted to Ceylonese except that foreigners are appointed on a contract basis when no qualified or suitable Ceylonese is available. Consequently Indians who have not acquired Ceylon citizenship have severe handicaps. Indians are also denied certain privileges such as National Insurance and unemployment relief.

The rights of Indians to citizenship are governed by two Acts enacted in 1948 after a discussion between the Indian and Ceylonese Prime Ministers*. These Acts are the Ceylon Citizenship Act and the Indian and Pakistani Residents (Citizenship) Act, which provide that the Indian residents in Ceylon would be entitled to obtain the citizenship of Ceylon by registration subject to the following conditions: (a) an applicant must be resident in Ceylon when the laws came into force and must have been residing in Ceylon since January 1, 1936 if a bachelor and since January 1, 1939 if a married man, (b) he must have adequate means of livelihood, (c) he should be in a position to comply with the laws and customs of Ceylon, and (d) the application for registration was filed and submitted to the Controller of Registration before August 5, 1951.

Consequent on an adverse Privy Council judgement, an amendment to the Indian and Pakistani Residents (Citizenship) Act was made by the Government in November, 1952, providing that the wife and each minor child of an applicant for citizenship should have been continuously resident in Ceylon from January 1, 1939, or the first anniversary of the marriage, or birth, as the case may be, whichever was later, subject to certain exemptions. This has proved a hardship to many persons.

Great difficulty has also been encountered by applicants in proving ordinary residence in Ceylon during 1936-47 mainly due to lapse of time, lack of documents and the illiteracy of the majority of applicants and consequent inability to provide legal proof of the required residential qualifications.

Franchise to the legislature is limited to Ceylonese citizens. Indians, even those who were voters till 1949, were disfranchised after the enactment of the Ceylon Parliamentary Election (Amendment) Act of 1949, if they had not acquired Ceylon citizenship.

Indians at present enjoy franchise for local bodies but a bill has been introduced in Parliament restricting such franchise only to Ceylon citizens.

The Parliament of Ceylon consists of the House of Representatives (Lower House) and the Senate (Upper House). The strength of the House of Representatives is 101, 95 elected and 6 nominated members. None of the elected representatives could be a non-Ceylonese, and consequently there is no Indian member in Parliament. There is no Indian appointed by the Governor-General for either House of Parliament, but one person, a Ceylonese by citizenship, has been nominated to the House of Representatives to represent Indian interests.

Remittances from Ceylon are governed by the Exchange Control Regulations in force which are altered from time to time in accordance with the financial situation in Ceylon. Under the existing Exchange Control Regulations remittances up to a maximum of one-third of proved income in Ceylon may be sent to India. All non-Ceylonese holding valid residence permits can obtain Exchange Control Cards from the Post Offices for a monthly remittance of Rs. 30 for purposes of maintenance.

Fiji

Indians have played an important part in the development of the economic resources of the Fiji Islands. Indian residents are the descendants of the indentured immigrants from India who started coming into the Colony in 1879. The Indian population is about 47 per cent of the whole population of the island. The majority of the Indians are independent farmers, agricultural labourers, skilled and semi-skilled workers; the rest being teachers, clerks, store-keepers, doctors, lawyers. Sugar-cane production and road transport are Indian monopolies.

There is no colour bar in Fiji and Indians suffer from no 'political disabilities'. There is also no racial discrimination against Indians with regard to appointment to the civil services. However, under the present Government regulations, Indians cannot own land which is marked as 'Native Land Reserve' or 'Crown Land, without the approval of Government; but there are no restrictions on their acquiring freehold land.

Indians in Fiji have franchise both in respect of Legislature and Local Town Council but the franchise is on a communal basis.

The Legislative Council consists of 31 members—16 officials and 15 non-officials. In the non-official group Europeans, Indians and Fijians have equal representation with 5 members for each group. Of the 5 Indian members 3 are elected on a communal franchise and 2 are nominated. The Executive Council consists of 4 officials (excluding the Governor) and 3 non-official members. One of the non-official members is an Indian elected from among the Indian members on the Legislative Council.

There are no restrictions on the remittance of money outside Fiji.

AUSTRALIA, NEW ZEALAND

The majority of persons of Indian origin settled in Australia are engaged in retail trade or agricultural operations.

Indians domiciled in Australia do not suffer from any disability and have all citizenship rights. In accordance with the White Australia Policy, fresh Indians are, however, not admitted for permanent settlement.

The Commonwealth franchise was granted to Indians domiciled in Australia in 1925.

The great bulk of Indians in New Zealand are engaged in the sale of fruits and groceries. Domiciled Indians are not generally subject to any disability or discrimination.

Indians have always enjoyed the right to vote both in Municipal and Parliamentary elections.

Indians can remit a limited amount to India for maintenance of wives and children. Up to April 1952, the limit was £55 for wife and £5 for each child (subject to maximum of 4 children) per quarter, but since then a 50 per cent cut has been imposed.

* An agreement between India and Ceylon on the status of Indian residents in Ceylon was expected to be signed in February.

A TOURIST'S GUIDE*

THE following hints meant for foreign tourists may be useful:

1. Every foreign tourist entering India should be in possession of a valid passport issued by his Government.

He should also obtain before leaving his country a visa from the Indian representative abroad (or the British representative in countries where there are no Indian representatives). Commonwealth citizens are exempt from the visa requirement, provided their passports are valid for travel to India. Persons of non-Indian origin domiciled in South Africa are, however, required to obtain entry permits.

Transit visas are required even when a person holds a through ticket unless he does not wish to leave the airport or the ship. He can, however, leave the airport or ship by obtaining a landing permit.

The maximum period of stay on a tourist visa is 3 months, and on a transit visa 15 days.

For short visits not exceeding 2 weeks to Pakistan, Ceylon or Nepal return visas can be obtained from the Government.

Visas for India are, unless otherwise specified, valid for a single journey only.

2. All non-Commonwealth tourists arriving in India are required to get themselves registered at the port of arrival and obtain certificates of registration. They will be registered as "tourists" and will not be required to report their movements to the police or registration authorities during their stay in India.

3. The Government of India have placed no health restrictions on persons entering India by sea or air, except in regard to yellow fever.

However, all persons are advised, in their own interest, to be protected against small-pox and cholera according to international requirements.

4. All baggage is open to customs examination. The duty payable on most articles varies from 25 per cent to 75 per cent according to the article.

Personal effects are allowed to enter free. Also alcoholic liquor up to one quart, provided the tourist can procure a permit on arrival by producing his Tourist Introduction Card.

5. Tourists are allowed to bring into India any amount of Indian or foreign currency notes or coins except in the cases specified below.

Bank of England notes up to £10 per head; Straits dollar notes up to $45 per head; Australian notes up to A£4 per head; Egyptian notes £20; Indian notes from Burma Rs. 100; Indian coins from Pakistan Rs. 5 in value; Indian coins from Afghanistan Re. 1 in value. There is no limit on the amount of Travellers' Cheques.

The official rates of exchange are as follows: £1 equal to Rs. 13-33; U.S. $1 equal to Rs. 4-76. The actual buying and selling rates, however, differ slightly from these rates.

Foreign currency notes declared to the customs can be exchanged at any authorized dealer or money-changer.

6. Tourists are advised to arrange for clearing their baggage by one of the recognized travel agencies.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

INDIA, that is Bharat, is a sovereign democratic Republic. It is a union of 29 States, which are divided into four classes called Part A States, Part B States, Part C States and Part D States.

The Part A States are: Andhra, Assam, Bihar, Bombay, Madhya Pradesh, Madras, Orissa, Punjab, Uttar Pradesh, West Bengal.

The Part B States are: Hyderabad, Jammu and Kashmir, Madhya Bharat, Mysore, Patiala and East Punjab States Union, Rajasthan, Saurashtra, Travancore-Cochin.

The Part C States are: Ajmer, Bhopal, Bilaspur*, Coorg, Delhi, Himachal Pradesh, Kutch, Manipur, Tripura and Vindhya Pradesh.

There is only one Part D State: Andaman and Nicobar Islands.

The constitution of India is federal in nature.

The distribution of power between the Centre and the local administrations follows the accepted principle that subjects which for convenience and efficiency ought to be administered on an all-India basis are vested in the Union Government, while others (of the nation-building sort) which can be conveniently administered on a local basis are vested in the State Governments.

Thus, defence, foreign affairs, transport and communications, currency and coinage, banking, customs and export duties, and the administration of justice at the higher level are all Central subjects, while State powers include those over police, public health, education, agriculture, forests and so on.

There is a third group of subjects that fall betwixt and between such as economic and social planning, social security and insurance, labour welfare, price control and vital statistics. On these subjects both the Centre and the State can freely legislate, it being understood that whenever there is conflict between Union and State legislation the Union laws prevail.

Three detailed lists of subjects are drawn up, the Union List, the State List and the Concurrent List, and the residuary power rests with the Union. That is to say, if at any time, a subject which does not figure in any of the three lists, comes up for consideration the power of dealing with it lies with the Union Government.

Thus the constitution of India is a quasi-federation in which the Centre is the dominating partner. The Union Government controls the State governments in certain matters. The Union has also the power to confer additional powers on the States.

Provision is made for removing differences between the various States by empowering the President to establish an Inter-State Council.

It may be pointed out here that while the relations between the Centre and each of the States are substantially the same, the Centre has a higher responsibility for the affairs of some States than in others. Thus while in regard to a State like Bombay the Centre can intervene only in case of grave emergency, in regard to a State like Madhya Bharat the Centre has the right to issue directives on day to day administration for a period of ten years.

FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS

In the Indian Union the rights of Indian citizenship are given to 1. One who is born in India, 2. Either of whose parents were born in India, and 3. Who has been a resident of India for five years. Provision is also made for persons who are affected by the partition of the sub-continent.

Certain fundamental rights are guaranteed to every citizen for the first time. All citizens are equal before the law and no discrimination is made on grounds of religion, sex, caste, etc. All citizens have equal opportunities.

Freedom of speech and expression is guaranteed, and the right to hold meetings (without arms), to form unions and associations, to move freely in India and to reside in any part, to acquire property and to practise any profession are also assured under the Constitution.

Life and personal liberty are protected under the law, and there will not be punishment for the same offence more than once. Preventive detention is also forbidden except in certain cases.

Children under the age of 14 will not be allowed to be employed in factories and forced labour like begar is prohibited.

India is a secular State and as such there is freedom of conscience. Citizens are allowed to profess, practise and propagate any religion; and the State will not ordinarily interfere in religious questions. The minorities are assured of cultural and educational rights.

The State can acquire compulsorily property for public purposes, but compensation must be paid to the owner of the property concerned. But property may also be acquired without compensation in certain cases.

All titles, except military or academic, are also abolished.

Untouchability is abolished.

These fundamental rights can be enforced by the Supreme Court which has the authority to issue prerogative writs such as habeas corpus, certiorari, prohibition, etc.

In respect to the Defence Forces, however, Parliament has power to legislate on these fundamental rights.

It must also be pointed out that some of these fundamental rights can be suspended in case of emergency, and the remedies available for their enforcement may also be suspended by an order of the President.

There are also certain Directive Principles in accordance with which the State has to direct its policy. These principles are of a recommendatory character and cannot be enforced in a court of law. However the State is expected to look upon them as a kind of touch-stone for its policy and action.

These principles include organization of village panchayats, provision for just and humane conditions of work, maternity relief, a uniform civil code for the citizens, provision for compulsory and free education of children and separation of judiciary from executive.

UNION EXECUTIVE

The executive head of the Indian Union is the President. He is elected by the elected members of the Houses of Parliament and the Legislative Assemblies of all the States. His term of office is five years, and he is eligible for re-election. Only a person who is a citizen of India and has completed the age of thirty-five years is qualified to contest the election.

He is the Supreme Commander of the Armed Forces.

He has the power to grant pardons or remission of punishment.

The President is entitled to the use of an official residence without payment of rent, and a salary of Rs. 10,000 per month and allowances. Provision has also been made by an Act of Parliament for a pension of Rs. 15,000 per annum.

The President has the power of summoning, proroguing and dissolving Parliament. At the commencement of each session he addresses both Houses of Parliament assembled together. He has the right of sending messages to Parliament and sending back a Bill presented to him for his consent. This power however can be used by him only once.

The President has legislative powers under certain circumstances. When neither of the Houses of Parliament is in session and the President is satisfied that circumstances exist which make immediate action necessary he may promulgate an ordinance. Such ordinance must be put before both the Houses of Parliament and will cease to operate at the expiration of six weeks from the reassembly of Parliament. The President can also declare emergency if he is satisfied that the security of India or any part thereof is threatened either by war or internal disturbances when the legislature is in session. Such a proclamation would give additional powers to the Union executive and the Legislature.

The judges of the Supreme Court and the High Courts, the Attorney-General of India and the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India are all appointed by the President. The heads of the various States, i.e., Governors and Rajpramukhs are also appointed by the President. He has the power of appointing ambassadors abroad and receiving diplomatic representatives of foreign States.

The President places a number of annual reports before Parliament: the Annual Financial Statement, the report of the Auditor-General of India relating to the accounts of the Government of India, the recommendations of the Finance Commission, the annual report of the Union Public Services Commission and the report of the Special Officer for Minorities.

All executive action of the Government of India is taken in the name of the President and it is the duty of the Prime Minister to communicate to the President all decisions of the Council of Ministers.

Provision is made for the impeachment of the President, by Parliament, for violation of the Constitution. If such a resolution is passed by a majority of not less than two-thirds of the total membership, such a resolution has the effect of removing the President from office.

In the exercise of his functions, the President has the aid and advice of a Council of Ministers, with the Prime Minister at the head of it. The President appoints the Prime Minister and other Ministers are appointed on the advice of the Prime Minister.

The Council of Ministers is collectively responsible to the House of the People. Every Minister must be a member of either House of Parliament, and he is required to take an oath of office and secrecy.

The salaries and allowances of Ministers are determined by Parliament.

There is a Vice-President of India, who is ex-officio Chairman of the Council of States. The Vice-President acts as President during a casual vacancy in the office of the President. He is elected by the members of both Houses of Parliament and his term of office is five years.

UNION PARLIAMENT

The Parliament consists of the President and two Houses to be known as the Council of States and the House of the People. It must meet at least twice a year. The maximum strength of the two Houses is to be 250 and 500 respectively.

The Council of States is elected by the members of the Legislative Assemblies of the States, while the House of the People is elected directly by the voters in the country.

The elections to the House of the People are based on adult suffrage and joint electorates. There is no reservation of seats for any group except Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes.

* A proposal to merge Bilaspur into Himachal Pradesh is under consideration.

The Council of States is a permanent body with one-third of its members retiring every second year. The Chairman of the Council of States is the Vice-President of the Union.

The House of the People has a duration of five years, ordinarily. There is a Speaker and a Deputy Speaker of the House both of whom are elected by its members.

All these posts carry a salary and allowances.

Under certain circumstances, the members can be disqualified and their seats declared vacant.

Money Bills can be introduced only in the House of the People. The Council of States can only return a bill with its recommendations to the House of the People within a period of fourteen days of its receipt. Bills passed by Parliament are submitted to the President for his assent. Only on such assent being given does the Bill become law.

The language used in Parliament is either Hindi or English.

The distribution of seats in the Council of States is as follows:—Andhra, 12; Assam, 6; Bihar, 21; Bombay, 17; Madhya Pradesh, 12; Madras, 18; Orissa, 9; Punjab, 8; Uttar Pradesh, 31; West Bengal, 14; Hyderabad, 11; Jammu and Kashmir, 4; Madhya Bharat, 6; Mysore, 6; Patiala and East Punjab States Union, 3; Rajasthan, 9; Saurashtra, 4; Travancore-Cochin, 6; Ajmer and Coorg, 1; Bhopal, 1; Bilaspur and Himachal Pradesh, 1; Delhi, 1; Kutch, 1; Manipur and Tripura, 1; Vindhya Pradesh, 4.

Twelve members are nominated by the President, from among persons who are known for their eminence in literature, science or art, or for their record of social service.

The allocation of seats in the House of the People is as follows:—

Andhra, 28; Assam, 12; Bihar, 55; Bombay, 45; Madhya Pradesh, 29; Madras, 46; Orissa, 20; Punjab, 18; Uttar Pradesh, 86; West Bengal, 34; Hyderabad, 25; Jammu and Kashmir, 6; Madhya Bharat, 11; Mysore, 12; Patiala and East Punjab States Union, 5; Rajasthan, 20; Saurashtra, 20; Travancore-Cochin, 12; Ajmer, 2; Bhopal, 2; Bilaspur, 1; Coorg, 1; Delhi, 4; Himachal Pradesh, 3; Kutch, 2; Manipur, 2; Tripura, 2; Vindhya Pradesh, 6; Andaman and Nicobar Islands, 1.

The Supreme Court of India consists of a Chief Justice of India and not more than seven other Judges. The appointments are made by the President. The salary of the Chief Justice is Rs. 5,000 per month and of the other Judges Rs. 4,000 per month.

For purposes of constitutional law the Supreme Court has exclusive original jurisdiction in any dispute (a) between the Government of India and one or more States, (b) between the Government of India and one or more States on one side and one or more other States on the other, (c) between two or more States only in so far as the dispute involves any question on which the existence of a legal right depends.

The Supreme Court has also jurisdiction both appellate and original in matters which involve a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the constitution.

An Attorney-General for legal advice and a Comptroller and Auditor-General of India for audit and accounts are appointed by the President. The Attorney-General has the right to appear in all courts in India.

STATES

There are three types of States from a constitutional point of view. (1) Ten States, that have a Governor as the executive head. They are Andhra, Assam, Bihar, Bombay, Madhya Pradesh, Madras, Orissa, Punjab, Uttar Pradesh and West Bengal. (2) Seven, which have a Rajpramukh at the head. They are Hyderabad, Madhya Bharat, Mysore, Patiala and East Punjab States Union, Rajasthan, Saurashtra and Travancore-Cochin. (3) Ten States, which have a Chief Commissioner or a Lieutenant-Governor at the head and controlled by the Union Government. They are, Ajmer, Bhopal, Bilaspur, Coorg, Delhi, Himachal Pradesh, Kutch, Manipur, Tripura, and Vindhya Pradesh.

Of the third type of State those which have a Lieutenant-Governor are Himachal Pradesh and Vindhya Pradesh.

Bilaspur is, in fact, administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of Himachal Pradesh.

Andamans and Nicobar Islands are administered by the President through a Chief Commissioner.

Kashmir is technically a Part B State but is in fact in a class by itself. It is internally autonomous and has even extra-territorial jurisdiction. It is a part of India only in the matter of the three subjects for which it has acceded—defence, foreign affairs and communications. Hereditary monarchy has also ceased. The head of the State is really a President: he is called Sadar-i-Riyasat.

The Governor of a State is appointed by the President. And a Rajpramukh is appointed or recognized by the President. Executive power is vested in the Governor who is appointed for a term of five years, ordinarily. Only a citizen of India and one who has completed 35 years of age, is eligible for such an appointment.

The Governor, like the President has power to grant pardon, etc. He will have a Council of Ministers to aid and advise him. The Governor also appoints an Advocate-General for the State.

Seven States (Bihar, Bombay, Madras, Mysore, Punjab, Uttar Pradesh, West Bengal) have two Houses of Legislature, the others, only one. The two Houses are called the Legislative Assembly and the Legislative Council. The former has a duration of five years, while the latter is a permanent body with one-third of the members retiring every second year. The minimum strength of the Council is 40, and the maximum one-fourth of the State Assembly.

It may be added here that three Part C States have only electoral colleges and not Legislatures. They are Kutch, Manipur and Tripura.

The Legislature must meet at least twice a year. While the Assembly consists of members who are directly elected from territorial constituencies, the Council consists of members nominated by the Governor, elected by the Assembly and of representatives of local bodies and special interests.

The total number of seats in the Legislative Assemblies and the Legislative Councils are as follows:—

Name of State	Total number of Seats in the Assembly	Total number of Seats in the Council
Andhra	140	—
Assam	108	—
Bihar	330	72
Bombay	315	72
Madhya Pradesh	232	—
Madras	230	45
Orissa	140	—
Punjab	128	40
Uttar Pradesh	430	72
West Bengal	238	51
Hyderabad	175	—
Madhya Bharat	99	—
Mysore	104	40
Patiala & East Punjab States Union	60	—
Rajasthan	160	—
Saurashtra	60	—
Travancore-Cochin	108	—
Ajmer	30	—
Bhopal	30	—
Coorg	24	—
Delhi	48	—
Himachal Pradesh	36	—
Vindhya Pradesh	60	—

Jammu and Kashmir has only a Constituent Assembly yet.

The right of summoning, proroguing and dissolving the Legislature is vested in the Governor, who addresses the legislature at the commencement of each session.

Like the Parliament there is a Speaker, a Deputy Speaker, a Chairman and a Deputy Chairman for the Legislative Assembly and the Legislative Council respectively. These officers of the legislatures are entitled to salary and allowances.

The language in the legislature can be either Hindi or English or any other language allowed by the Speaker.

The State Legislatures cannot discuss the conduct of any Judge of the Supreme Court or of a High Court in the discharge of his duties.

As the Governor is a part of the legislature, he has certain legislative powers. He can promulgate ordinances during the recess of the legislature; such ordinances must be placed before the legislature and cease to operate at the expiration of six weeks from the reassembly of the legislature.

The salary of the Governor is Rs. 5,500 per month and he is also entitled to certain allowances.

If the Government of the State cannot be carried on in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution, and the Governor or the Rajpramukh makes a report to that effect to the President, the President may by proclamation assume to himself all or any of the functions of the Government of the State. He may also declare that the powers of the State legislatures shall be exercised by Parliament, and may suspend any provision of the constitution relating to the State.

However, he cannot assume to himself, or suspend any of the provisions of the Constitution relating to High Courts.

There is a High Court for each State.

The administration of the States in group two, e.g. Hyderabad, is carried on in accordance with the provisions laid down with reference to the States in group one. Instead of a Governor, these States have a Rajpramukh. Also, for a period of ten years from the commencement of the constitution these States will be under the general supervision of the Government of India.

The constitution of Part C States is governed by the Government of Part C States Act (Act XLIX of 1951). By this Act all States except Bilaspur, Kutch, Manipur and Tripura have a legislature called the Legislative Assembly. Provisions as regards duration, sessions and officers, etc. of the Assemblies, are similar to those laid down for Part A States. The extent of the legislative power is specifically mentioned in Section 21.

There will be a Council of Ministers in each State to aid and advise the Chief Commissioner. In case the Chief Commissioner disagrees with the Council, he may refer the matter to the President and act according to his directions. The Chief Commissioner and the Council of Ministers will be under the general control of and comply with such particular directions, as may from time to time be given by the President.

Special provision is made for the State of Delhi.

Provision is also made to meet any situation created by the failure of the constitutional machinery in the Part C States.

For the States of Kutch, Manipur and Tripura there are Councils of Advisers set up by the President to assist the Chief Commissioners.

For Vindhya Pradesh and Himachal Pradesh there are Lieutenant-Governors, whose salaries are fixed at Rs. 3,000 per month.

As regards Andaman and Nicobar Islands, the President makes rules and regulations for the peace and good government of the State, and appoints a Chief Commissioner for administration. The President has the power of making regulations which have the effect of amending or repealing an Act of Parliament.

FINANCE

The financial relations between the Union and the States are as follows:—There is a Consolidated Fund of India and a Consolidated Fund of each State, and all money received is credited to the public account of India or the public account of the State as the case may be. Provision is also made for the establishment of a 'Contingency Fund of India' and a 'Contingency Fund of the State.'

Certain duties and taxes are levied and collected by the Government of India, such as duties in respect of succession to property, terminal taxes, taxes on railway fares and freights, etc. But the net proceeds are assigned to the States, in accordance with such principles of distribution as formulated by Parliament. Certain other taxes, like income-tax are levied and collected by the Government of India, but are distributed between the Union and the States.

These matters are now fixed in accordance with the recommendations of the Finance Commission.

No moneys can be appropriated out of the Consolidated Fund of India or of a State except in accordance with an Appropriation Act by the appropriate legislature.

The property of the Union is exempt from the taxes imposed by a State, and the property and income of State are exempt from Union taxation.

The privy purse sums of the Rulers are a charge on the Consolidated Fund of India, and these sums are to be exempt from taxes on income.

There is a Public Service Commission for the Union and also for most of the States. Two or more States may agree to have only one Commission for the group. Appointment of members of the Commission are made by the President or the Governor or Rajpramukh as the case may be. The Commission conducts examinations for appointments to the services of the Union or the State. The Union Commission submits an annual report to the President.

ELECTIONS

All elections are directed and controlled by an Election Commission. Elections to the House of the People and the Legislative Assemblies of the States are on the basis of adult suffrage. Seats are reserved in the House of the People for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes.

The President may nominate not more than two members of the Anglo-Indian community to the House of the People if he thinks that the community is not adequately represented. Similar power is given to the Governor or the Rajpramukh of a State.

The claims of the Schedule Castes and the Scheduled Tribes are to be considered in making appointments to services, and for two years after the commencement of the Constitution the Anglo-Indians were to have the same proportion in the services as they had immediately before 15th August 1947. This reservation is to be progressively reduced by 10 per cent every two years in such a way that it is to cease completely ten years after the commencement of the Constitution.

In fact all reservation including reservation of seats for Scheduled and Tribal classes are to cease ten years after the commencement of the Constitution.

A special officer for the Scheduled Castes and the Schedule Tribes has been appointed.

OFFICIAL LANGUAGE

Hindi in the Devanagari script is the official language of the Union and the form of numerals is the international form of the Indian numerals.

The English language, however, will continue to be the official language for a period of not more than fifteen years from the commencement of the Constitution.

The official language of the Union, i.e., English will be used for communication between the Union and a State or between one State and another. However, if two States agree Hindi may be used instead of English between them.

All proceedings in the Supreme Court and High Courts, the texts of Bills and Acts passed by the legislatures and ordinances promulgated by the appropriate authorities are to be in the English language, until Parliament by law provides otherwise.

By previous consent of the President proceedings in a High Court may be conducted in Hindi or any recognised State language but judgments, decrees or orders passed by the court must be in English.

It is the duty of the Union Government to promote and spread the Hindi language. The vocabulary for the development of the language is to be drawn primarily from Sanskrit.

The States have been given the liberty of adopting any one or more languages used in their territory or Hindi as the official language of the State.

The following languages are recognised by the Constitution: (1) Assamese, (2) Bengali, (3) Gujarati, (4) Hindi, (5) Kannada, (6) Kashmiri, (7) Malayalam, (8) Marathi, (9) Oriya, (10) Punjabi, (11) Sanskrit, (12) Tamil, (13) Telugu, (14) Urdu.

A commission is to be appointed by the President, at the expiration of five years from the commencement of the Constitution, to make recommendations to him, as regards the progressive use of the Hindi language for official purposes of the Union, and other allied matters.

EMERGENCY PROVISIONS

If the President is satisfied that a grave emergency exists, and the security of India or any part thereof is threatened either by war or internal disturbance, he may make a declaration to that effect. Such proclamation must be approved by both the Houses of Parliament, before the expiration of two months, otherwise it ceases to operate at the end of that period. As a result of this proclamation the Parliament will be authorised to legislate on items included in the State list and the President, to issue directions either to the Governor or the Rajpramukh as the case may be. Parliament can validate such a proclamation for a period of three years which is the maximum.

A request for a declaration of emergency may also come from a State authority.

This, however, would not be applicable to the functions of the High Courts. Somewhat similar provision is also made for financial emergency.

AMENDMENT OF THE CONSTITUTION

For purposes of amendment the items are divided into three classes with a different procedure for each class.

For amendment of the provision with respect to the Supreme Court and the High Courts, the distribution of legislative powers between the Centre and the States, the representation of the States in Parliament, etc., the amendment must be passed by both the Houses of Parliament by a majority of the total membership of the House and by a majority of two-thirds of the members present and voting, and must further be ratified by the legislatures of not less than one-half of the States.

In other cases no reference to the State legislatures is necessary. Parliament by itself can amend the Constitution in the manner mentioned above. In some cases amendments can be effected even by a bare majority such as is required for the passing of any ordinary law. The amendments contemplated in Articles 4, 169 and 240 fall within this class.

RE-ALLOCATION OF SEATS

The Census of 1952 made changes in the composition of the legislatures inevitable. Accordingly a Delimitation Commission was set up and certain orders made. The composition of the legislatures as laid down in these orders is given below. They will come into force at the next general election.

The distribution of seats in the House of the People will be as follows. The second column gives the member reserved for the Scheduled Castes and the third column the number reserved for the Scheduled Tribes:

48. Estate duty in respect of agricultural land.

49. Taxes on lands and buildings.

50. Taxes on mineral rights subject to any limitations imposed by Parliament by law relating to mineral development.

*A resolution empowering the Centre to legislate on certain items in the State List with a view to separating the admixture of non-evacuee interest in evacuee property has been passed by Parliament.

These rights relate to Entries 18 and 30 in the State List and comprise rights in or over land, transfer and alienation of agricultural land, money-lending, and money-lenders and relief of agricultural indebtedness.

Such separation of non-evacuee interest in evacuee property, would allow more accurate definition of the "dimensions" of evacuee property. Admixture existed in cases where evacuee property was mortgaged to a non-evacuee and vice versa and where only a part-share of a number of co-sharers was declared evacuee property.

Since evacuee property was scattered all over the country, individual investments by States under Entries 18 and 30 would result in a lack of uniformity.

51. Duties of excise on the following goods manufactured or produced in the State and countervailing duties at the same or lower rates on similar goods manufactured or produced elsewhere in India :—

- (a) alcoholic liquors for human consumption;
- (b) opium, Indian hemp and other narcotic drugs and narcotics;

but not including medicinal and toilet preparations containing alcohol or any substance included in sub-paragraph (b) of this entry.

52. Taxes on the entry of goods into a local area for consumption, use or sale therein.

53. Taxes on the consumption or sale of electricity.

54. Taxes on the sale or purchase of goods other than newspapers.

55. Taxes on advertisements other than advertisements published in the newspapers.

56. Taxes on goods and passengers carried by road or on inland waterways.

57. Taxes on vehicles, whether mechanically propelled or not, suitable for use on roads including tramcars subject to the provisions of entry 35 of List III.

58. Taxes on animals and boats.

59. Tolls.

60. Taxes on professions, trades, callings and employments.

61. Capitation taxes.

62. Taxes on luxuries, including taxes on entertainments, amusements, betting and gambling.

63. Rates of stamp duty in respect of documents other than those specified in the provisions of List I with regard to rates of stamp duty.

64. Offences against laws with respect to any of the matters in this List.

65. Jurisdiction and powers of all courts, except the Supreme Court, with respect to any of the matters in this List.

66. Fees in respect of any of the matters in this List, but not including fees taken in any court.

34. Price control.

35. Mechanically propelled vehicles including the principles on which taxes on such vehicles are to be levied.

36. Factories.

37. Boilers.

38. Electricity.

39. Newspapers, books and printing presses.

40. Archaeological sites and remains other than those declared by Parliament by law to be of national importance.

41. Custody, management and disposal of property (including agricultural land) declared by law to be evacuee property.

42. Principles on which compensation for property acquired or requisitioned for the purposes of the Union or of a State or for any other public purpose is to be determined, and the form and the manner in which such compensation is to be given.

43. Recovery in a State of claims in respect of taxes and other public demands, including arrears of land-revenue and sums recoverable as such arrears, arising outside that State.

44. Stamp duties other than duties or fees collected by means of judicial stamps, but not including rates of stamp duty.

FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS

The following is the full text of the Fundamental Rights and the Directive Principles Articles of the Constitution, showing the numbers of the Articles :

GENERAL

12. In this Part, unless the context otherwise requires, "the State" includes the Government and Parliament of India and the Government and the Legislature of each of the States and all local or other authorities within the territory of India or under the control of the Government of India.

13. (1) All laws in force in the territory of India immediately before the commencement of this Constitution, in so far as they are inconsistent with the provisions of this Part, shall, to the extent of such inconsistency, be void.

(2) The State shall not make any law which takes away or abridges the rights conferred by this Part and any law made in contravention of this clause shall, to the extent of the contravention, be void.

(3) In this article, unless the context otherwise requires—

(a) "law" includes any Ordinance, order, bye-law, rule, regulation, notification, custom or usage having in the territory of India the force of law;

(b) "laws in force" includes laws passed or made by a Legislature or other competent authority in the territory of India before the commencement of this Constitution and not previously repealed, notwithstanding that any such law or any part thereof may not be then in operation either at all or in particular areas.

RIGHT TO EQUALITY

14. The State shall not deny to any person equality before the law or the equal protection of the laws within the territory of India.

15. (1) The State shall not discriminate against any citizen on grounds only of religion, race, caste, sex, place of birth or any of them.

(2) No citizen shall, on grounds only of religion, race, caste, sex, place of birth or any of them, be subject to any disability, liability, restriction or condition with regard to—

(a) access to shops, public restaurants, hotels and places of public entertainment; or

(b) the use of wells, tanks, bathing ghats, roads and places of public resort maintained wholly or partly out of State funds or dedicated to the use of the general public.

(3) Nothing in this article shall prevent the State from making any special provision for women and children.

(4) Nothing in this article or in clause (2) of article 29 shall prevent the State from making any special provision for the advancement of any socially and educationally backward classes of citizens or for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes.

16. (1) There shall be equality of opportunity for all citizens in matters relating to employment or appointment to any office under the State.

(2) No citizen shall, on grounds only of religion, race, caste, sex, descent, place of birth, residence or any of them, be ineligible for, or discriminated against in respect of, any employment or office under the State.

(3) Nothing in this article shall prevent Parliament from making any law prescribing, in regard to a class or classes of employment or appointment to an office under any State specified in the First Schedule or any local or other authority within its territory, any requirement as to residence within that State prior to such employment or appointment.

(4) Nothing in this article shall prevent the State from making any provision for the reservation of appointments or posts in favour of any backward class of citizens which, in the opinion of the State, is not adequately represented in the services under the State.

(5) Nothing in this article shall affect the operation of any law which provides that the incumbent of an office in connection with the affairs of any religious or denominational institution or any member of the governing body thereof shall be a person professing a particular religion or belonging to a particular denomination.

17. "Untouchability" is abolished and its practice in any form is forbidden. The enforcement of any disability arising out of "Untouchability" shall be an offence punishable in accordance with law.

18. (1) No title, not being a military or academic distinction, shall be conferred by the State.

(2) No citizen of India shall accept any title from any foreign State.

(3) No person who is not a citizen of India shall, while he holds any office of profit or trust under the State, accept without the consent of the President any title from any foreign State.

(4) No person, holding any office of profit or trust under the State shall, without the consent of the President, accept any present, emolument, or office of any kind from or under any foreign State.

RIGHT TO FREEDOM

19. (1) All citizens shall have the right—

- (a) to freedom of speech and expression;
- (b) to assemble peaceably and without arms;
- (c) to form associations or unions;
- (d) to move freely throughout the territory of India;
- (e) to reside and settle in any part of the territory of India;
- (f) to acquire, hold and dispose of property;
- (g) to practise any profession, or to carry on any occupation, trade or business.

(2) Nothing in sub-clause (a) of clause (1) shall affect the operation of any existing law or prevent the State from making any law in so far as such law imposes reasonable restrictions on the exercise of the right conferred by the said sub-clause in the interest of the security of the State, friendly relations with foreign States, public order, decency or morality, including in particular, any existing or other law relating to contempt of court, defamation or incitement to an offence.

(3) Nothing in sub-clause (b) of the said clause shall affect the operation of any existing law in so far as it imposes, or prevent the State from making any law imposing, in the interests of public order, reasonable restrictions on the exercise of the right conferred by the said sub-clause.

(4) Nothing in sub-clause (c) of the said clause shall affect the operation of any existing law in so far as it imposes, or prevent the State from making any law imposing, in the interests of public order or morality, reasonable restrictions on the exercise of the right conferred by the said sub-clause.

(5) Nothing in sub-clauses (d), (e) and (f) of the said clause shall affect the operation of any existing law in so far as it imposes, or prevent the State from making any law imposing, reasonable restrictions on the exercise of any of the rights conferred by the said sub-clauses either in the interests of the general public or for the protection of the interests of any Scheduled Tribe.

(6) Nothing in sub-clause (g) of the said clause shall affect the operation of any existing law in so far as it imposes, or prevent the State from making any law imposing, in the interests of the general public, reasonable restrictions on the exercise of the right conferred by the said sub-clause, and, in particular, nothing in the said sub-clause shall affect the operation of any existing law in so far as it relates to, or prevents the State from making any law relating to—

- (i) the professional or technical qualifications necessary for practising any profession or carrying on any occupation, trade or business, or
- (ii) the carrying on by the State, or by a corporation owned or controlled by the State, of any trade, business, industry or service, whether to the exclusion, complete or partial, of citizens or otherwise.

No law in force in the territory of India immediately before the commencement of the constitution which is consistent with the provisions of article 19 as amended shall be deemed to be void, or ever to have become void, on the ground that, being a law which takes away or abridges the right conferred by sub-clause (a) of clause (1) of the said article, its operation was not saved by sub-clause (2) of that article as originally enacted.

Explanation—In this clause the expression "law in force" has the same meaning as in clause (1) of article 13 of the constitution.

20. (1) No person shall be convicted of any offence except for violation of a law in force at the time of the commission of the act charged as an offence, nor be subjected to a penalty greater than that which might have been inflicted under the law in force at the time of the commission of the offence.

(2) No person shall be prosecuted and punished for the same offence more than once.

(3) No person accused of any offence shall be compelled to be a witness against himself.

21. No person shall be deprived of his life or personal liberty except according to procedure established by law.

22. (1) No person who is arrested shall be detained in custody without being informed, as soon as may be, of the grounds for such arrest nor shall he be denied the right to consult, and to be defended by, a legal practitioner of his choice.

(2) Every person who is arrested and detained in custody shall be produced before the nearest magistrate within a period of twenty-four hours of such arrest excluding the time necessary for the journey from the place of arrest to the court of the magistrate and no such person shall be detained in custody beyond the said period without the authority of a magistrate.

(3) Nothing in clauses (1) and (2) shall apply—

(a) to any person who for the time being is an enemy alien; or

(b) to any person who is arrested or detained under any law providing for preventive detention.

(4) No law providing for preventive detention shall authorise the detention of a person for a longer period than three months unless—

(a) an Advisory Board consisting of persons who are, or have been, or are qualified to be appointed as, Judges of a High Court has reported before the expiration of the said period of three months that there is in its opinion sufficient cause for such detention;

Provided that nothing in this sub-clause shall authorise the detention of any person beyond the maximum period prescribed by any law made by Parliament under sub-clause (b) of clause (7); or

(b) such person is detained in accordance with the provisions of any law made by Parliament under sub-clauses (a) and (b) of clause (7).

(5) When any person is detained in pursuance of an order made under any law providing for preventive detention, the authority making the order shall, as soon as may be, communicate to such person the grounds on which the order has been made and shall afford him the earliest opportunity of making a representation against the order.

(6) Nothing in clause (5) shall require the authority making any such order as is referred to in that clause to disclose facts which such authority considers to be against the public interest to disclose.

(7) Parliament may by law prescribe—

(a) the circumstances under which, and the class or classes of cases in which, a person may be detained for a period longer than three months under any law providing for preventive detention without obtaining the opinion of an Advisory Board in accordance with the provisions of sub-clause (a) of clause (4);

(b) the maximum period for which any person may in any class or classes of cases be detained under any law providing for preventive detention; and

(c) the procedure to be followed by an Advisory Board in an inquiry under sub-clause (a) of clause (4).

RIGHT AGAINST EXPLOITATION

23. (1) Traffic in human beings and begar and other similar forms of forced labour are prohibited and any contravention of this provision shall be an offence punishable in accordance with law.

(2) Nothing in this article shall prevent the State from imposing compulsory service for public purposes, and in imposing such service the State shall not make any discrimination on grounds only of religion, race, caste or class or any of them.

24. No child below the age of fourteen years shall be employed to work in any factory or mine or engaged in any other hazardous employment.

RIGHT TO FREEDOM OF RELIGION

25. (1) Subject to public order, morality and health and to the other provisions of this Part, all persons are equally entitled to freedom of conscience and the right freely to profess, practise and propagate religion.

(2) Nothing in this article shall affect the operation of any existing law or prevent the State from making any law—

(a) regulating or restricting any economic, financial, political or other secular activity which may be associated with religious practice;

- (b) providing for social welfare and reform or the throwing open of Hindu religious institutions of a public character to all classes and sections of Hindus.

Explanation I.—The wearing and carrying of kirpans shall be deemed to be included in the profession of the Sikh religion.

Explanation II.—In sub-clause (b) of clause (2), the reference to Hindus shall be construed as including a reference to persons professing the Sikh, Jaina or Buddhist religion, and the reference to Hindu religious institutions shall be construed accordingly.

26. Subject to public order, morality and health, every religious denomination or any section thereof shall have the right—

- (a) to establish and maintain institutions for religious and charitable purposes;
- (b) to manage its own affairs in matters of religion;
- (c) to own and acquire movable and immovable property; and
- (d) to administer such property in accordance with law.

27. No person shall be compelled to pay any taxes, the proceeds of which are specifically appropriated in payment of expenses for the promotion or maintenance of any particular religion or religious denomination.

28. (1) No religious instruction shall be provided in any educational institution wholly maintained out of State funds.

(2) Nothing in clause (1) shall apply to an educational institution which is administered by the State but has been established under any endowment or trust which requires that religious instruction shall be imparted in such institution.

(3) No person attending any educational institution recognised by the State or receiving aid out of State funds shall be required to take part in any religious instruction that may be imparted in such institution or to attend any religious worship that may be conducted in such institution or in any premises attached thereto unless such person or, if such person is a minor, his guardian has given his consent thereto.

CULTURAL AND EDUCATIONAL RIGHTS

29. (1) Any section of the citizens residing in the territory of India or any part thereof having a distinct language, script or culture of its own shall have the right to conserve the same.

(2) No citizen shall be denied admission into any educational institution maintained by the State or receiving aid out of State funds on grounds only of religion, race, caste, language or any of them.

30. (1) All minorities, whether based on religion or language, shall have the right to establish and administer educational institutions of their choice.

(2) The State shall not, in granting aid to educational institutions, discriminate against any educational institution on the ground that it is under the management of a minority, whether based on religion or language.

RIGHT TO PROPERTY

31. (1) No person shall be deprived of his property save by authority of law.

(2) No property, movable or immovable, including any interest in, or in any company owning, any commercial or industrial undertaking, shall be taken possession of or acquired for public purposes under any law authorising the taking of such possession or such acquisition, unless the law provides for compensation for the property taken possession of or acquired and either fixes the amount of the compensation, or specifies the principles on which, and the manner in which, the compensation is to be determined and given.

(3) No such law as is referred to in clause (2) made by the Legislature of a State shall have effect unless such law, having been reserved for the consideration of the President, has received his assent.

(4) If any Bill pending at the commencement of this Constitution in the Legislature of a State has, after it has been passed by such Legislature, been reserved for the consideration of the President and has received his assent, then, notwithstanding anything in this Constitution, the law so assented to shall not be called in question in any court on the ground that it contravenes the provisions of clause (2).

(5) Nothing in clause (2) shall affect—

- (a) the provision of any existing law other than a law to which the provisions of clause (6) apply, or
- (b) the provisions of any law which the State may hereafter make—
 - (i) for the purpose of imposing or levying any tax or penalty, or
 - (ii) for the promotion of public health or the prevention of danger to life or property, or
 - (iii) in pursuance of any agreement entered into between the Government of the Dominion of India or the Government of India and the Government of any other country, or otherwise, with respect to property declared by law to be evacuee property.

(6) Any law of the State enacted not more than eighteen months before the commencement of this Constitution may within three months from such commencement be submitted to the President for his certification; and thereupon, if the President by public notification so certifies, it shall not be called in question in any court on the ground that it contravenes the provisions of clause (2) of this article or has contravened the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 299 of the Government of India Act, 1935.

31A. (1) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this Part, no law providing for the acquisition by the State of any estate or of any rights therein or for the extinguishment or modification of any such rights shall be deemed to be void on the ground that it is inconsistent with, or takes away or abridges any of the rights conferred by, any provisions of this Part.

Provided that where such law is a law made by the legislature of a State, the provisions of this article shall not apply thereto unless such law, having been reserved for the consideration of the President, has received his assent.

(2) In this article—

- (a) The expression 'estate' shall, in relation to any local area, have the same meaning as that expression or its local equivalent has in the existing law relating to land tenures in force in that area, and shall also include any Jagir, Inam or muafi or other similar grant;
- (b) the expression 'rights' in relation to an estate, shall include any rights vesting in proprietor, sub-proprietor, under-proprietor, tenure-holder or other intermediary and any rights or privileges in respect of land revenue.

31B. Without prejudice to the generality of the provisions contained in article 31A, none of the Acts and Regulations specified in the Ninth Schedule nor any of the provisions thereof shall be deemed to be void, or ever to have become void, on the ground that such Act, Regulation or provision is inconsistent with, or takes away or abridges any of the rights conferred by any provisions of this Part, and notwithstanding any judgement, decree or order of any court or tribunal to the contrary, each of the said Acts and Regulations shall, subject to the power of any competent Legislature to repeal or amend it, continue in force.

RIGHT TO CONSTITUTIONAL REMEDIES

32. (1) The right to move the Supreme Court by appropriate proceedings for the enforcement of the rights conferred by this Part is guaranteed.

(2) The Supreme Court shall have power to issue directions or orders or writs, including writs in the nature of habeas corpus, mandamus, prohibition, quo warrant and certiorari, whichever may be appropriate, for the enforcement of any of the rights conferred by this Part.

(3) Without prejudice to the powers conferred on the Supreme Court by clauses (1) and (2), Parliament may by law empower any other court to exercise within the local limits of its jurisdiction all or any of the powers exercisable by the Supreme Court under clause (2).

(4) The right guaranteed by this article shall not be suspended except as otherwise provided for by this Constitution.

33. Parliament may by law determine to what extent any of the rights conferred by this Part shall, in their application to the members of the Armed Forces or the Forces charged with the maintenance of public order, be restricted or abrogated so as to ensure the proper discharge of their duties and the maintenance of discipline among them.

34. Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this Part, Parliament may by law indemnify any person in the service of the Union or of a State or any other person in respect of any act done by him in connection with the maintenance or restoration of order in any area within the territory of India where martial law was in force or validate any sentence passed, punishment inflicted, forfeiture ordered or other act done under martial law in such area.

35. Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution—

(a) Parliament shall have, and the Legislature of a State shall not have, power to make laws—

(i) with respect to any of the matters which under clause (3) of article 16, clause (3) of article 32, article 33 and article 34 may be provided for by law made by Parliament; and

(ii) for prescribing punishment for those acts which are declared to be offences under this Part;

and Parliament shall, as soon as may be after the commencement of this Constitution, make laws for prescribing punishment for the acts referred to in sub-clause (ii);

(b) any law in force immediately before the commencement of this Constitution in the territory of India with respect to any of the matters referred to in sub-clause (i) of clause (a) or providing for punishment for any act referred to in sub-clause (ii) of that clause shall, subject to the terms thereof and to any adaptations and modifications that may be made therein under article 372, continue in force until altered or repealed or amended by Parliament.

Explanation.—In this article, the expression "law in force" has the same meaning as in article 372.

DIRECTIVE PRINCIPLES OF STATE POLICY

36. In this Part, unless the context otherwise requires, "the State" has the same meaning as in Part III.

37. The provisions contained in this Part shall not be enforceable by any court, but the principles therein laid down are nevertheless fundamental in the governance of the country and it shall be the duty of the State to apply these principles in making laws.

38. The State shall strive to promote the welfare of the people by securing and protecting as effectively as it may a social order in which justice, social, economic and political, shall inform all the institutions of the national life.

39. The State shall, in particular, direct its policy towards securing—

- (a) that the citizens, men and women equally, have the right to an adequate means of livelihood;
- (b) that the ownership and control of the material resources of the community are so distributed as best to subserve the common good;
- (c) that the operation of the economic system does not result in the concentration of wealth and means of production to the common detriment;
- (d) that there is equal pay for equal work for both men and women;
- (e) that the health and strength of workers, men and women, and the tender age of children are not abused and that citizens are not forced by economic necessity to enter avocations unsuited to their age or strength;
- (f) that childhood and youth are protected against exploitation and against moral and material abandonment.

40. The State shall take steps to organise village panchayats and endow them with such powers and authority as may be necessary to enable them to function as units of self-government.

41. The State shall, within the limits of its economic capacity and development, make effective provision for securing the right to work, to education and to public assistance in cases of unemployment, old age, sickness and disablement, and in other cases of undeserved want.

42. The State shall make provision for securing just and humane conditions of work and for maternity relief.

43. The State shall endeavour to secure, by suitable legislation or economic organisation or in any other way, to all workers, agricultural, industrial or otherwise, work, a living wage, conditions of work ensuring a decent standard of life and full enjoyment of leisure and social and cultural opportunities and, in particular, the State shall endeavour to promote cottage industries on an individual or co-operative basis in rural areas.

44. The State shall endeavour to secure for the citizens a uniform civil code throughout the territory of India.

45. The State shall endeavour to provide, within a period of ten years from the commencement of this Constitution, for free and compulsory education for all children until they complete the age of fourteen years.

46. The State shall promote with special care the educational and economic interests of the weaker sections of the people, and, in particular, of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes, and shall protect them from social injustice and all forms of exploitation.

47. The State shall regard the raising of the level of nutrition and the standard of living of its people and the improvement of public health as among its primary duties and, in particular, the State shall endeavour to bring about prohibition of the consumption except for medicinal purposes of intoxicating drinks and of drugs which are injurious to health.

48. The State shall endeavour to organise agriculture and animal husbandry on modern and scientific lines and shall, in particular, take steps for preserving and improving the breeds, and prohibiting the slaughter, of cows and calves and other milch and draught cattle.

49. It shall be the obligation of the State to protect every monument or place or object of artistic or historic interest, declared by Parliament by law to be of national importance, from spoliation, disfigurement, destruction, removal, disposal or export, as the case may be.

50. The State shall take steps to separate the judiciary from the executive in the public services of the State.

51. The State shall endeavour to—

- (a) promote international peace and security;
- (b) maintain just and honourable relations between nations;
- (c) foster respect for international law and treaty obligations in the dealings of organised peoples with one another, and
- (d) encourage settlement of international disputes by arbitration.

PUBLIC SERVICES

THE Constitution provides for the setting up of a Public Service Commission for the Union and for each State. Two or three States may join together to have a Common Public Service Commission.

The chairman and members of the Union Public Services Commission and of joint Commissions are appointed by the President of the Union, while the chairman and members of a State Commission are appointed by the Governor or Rajpramukh as the case may be.

A member of the Union Commission holds office for six years or till he is 65 years. A member of a State Commission also holds office for six years but retires earlier on attaining the age of 60. Broadly speaking, a member of a Commission is eligible for appointment only on the same Commission or some other Commission subject to certain conditions. He is not eligible for appointment to any other Government post. The Chairman of the Union Public Service Commission is not eligible for any Government appointment whatever. A member of a Commission can be removed only by the President on the advice of the Supreme Court.

The Union and State Commissions conduct examinations for recruitment to Government service. The Commissions also advise the Governments on the service conditions of the employees. There is a moral obligation for a Government to consult the Commission on such questions, and if there are any rules which specifically exempt Government from such consultation these rules should be approved by the legislature.

An annual report of the Commission which also includes a list of cases in which Government did not accept the advice of the Commission has to be placed before the appropriate legislature.

ALL INDIA SERVICES

The following All-India services now exist:

Indian Administrative Service, Indian Foreign Service, Indian Police Service, Indian Audit and Accounts Service, Military Accounts Service, Indian Railways Accounts Service, Indian Customs and Excise Service, Income-tax Officers (Class I), Grade II Service, Transportation and Commercial Departments of the Superior Revenue Establishments of State Railways, Establishment Department of State Railways, Indian Postal Service, Survey of India, Indian Forest Service, Central Engineering Service, Indian Railway Service of Engineers, Superior Telegraph Engineering and Wireless Branches of Posts and Telegraphs.

There is also a Central Secretariat Service which includes all posts in the Central Secretariat from an Assistant up to an Under-Secretary. There are four grades. Starting from the bottom they are: Assistant, Assistant Superintendent, Superintendent, Under-Secretary. The last two are selection posts filled by promotion, and the first two partly by promotion from the lower rank and partly by direct recruitment on the basis of a competitive examination held by the Union Public Services Commission.

There are some services to which recruitment is made by selection. These services include:

Zoological Survey (Class I), Archaeological Survey (Class I), Apprentices for Training in Ordnance Factories, Cantonment Executive Officers' Service, District Medical Officers for State Railways.

The pay scales of some of the more important All-India services are given below:

Indian Administrative Service.

APPLEBY REPORT

Mr. Paul H. Appleby, consultant in public administration to the Ford Foundation was invited by the Government of India to study the Indian administrative system and make recommendations for their improvement. He made a five-month study. His report was presented to Parliament on May 12, 1953.

His main conclusion is that the administrative system is cumbersome in manner, requiring too many inter-hierarchical conferences and utilizing paper in an unnecessarily burdensome way.

Mr. Appleby recommends the establishment of an institute of public administration for India to provide a national, informal focussing of attention on public administration as a profession of many facets and elements.

An institute of public administration will provide for stimulation through association, through the medium of professional journal, and through the making of studies and the development of a literature recording and expanding administrative learning.

In association with the institute, the Government should develop academic graduate programmes in public administration and establish special avenues for annual entry into public service of some young persons so trained.

Other recommendations made by Mr. Appleby are:

(1) The establishment directly, under an appropriate Minister, with strong Government backing, an organization and management office or public administration office.

(2) The making of further and more specialized studies by a team of outside experts, as sequels to this report, and as desirable that a new organization and management office would be equipped for them.

(3) Consolidating administrative responsibility for the carrying on of the Community Projects, elevating it in status, and providing for more flexibility and discretion in its management.

(4) In general, in all developmental and social action fields, consolidating responsibility by simplifying and reducing inter-Ministerial involvements and reviews.

(5) Filling in the administrative hierarchy by making hierarchies have a more truly pyramidal form with more executives at most levels, and by increasing the number of levels and narrowing the present excessively wide gaps between all but the low levels.

(6) Eliminating fixed "cadre" limitations and making recruitment depend wholly upon frequent and flexible determinations of needs.

(7) The establishment of extensive and sustained personal development programmes designed to maximize the potentialities of all persons working for the Government.

(8) Authorization for revenue staff recruitment as rapidly as suitable persons can be secured and trained without numerical limitation, until tax collection is wholly current and the gap between assessments and collections is nominal.

(9) Concerted activity with the States to bring land assessment and tax rates up to a sound current standard, to impose an agricultural income-tax and limitations on land rents and to improve administration of tax collection in the States so as to bring the gap between tax intentions and tax actualities to nominal proportions.

(10) The establishment as a sequel to heightened responsibility, of agencies charged with action, of adequate methods of checking on action during and after the fact.

Fiscal Practice

Administration in considerable part determines what a tax law means, and all fiscal policy is enormously dependent on the views and capacities of the administrative personnel concerned.

Administrative delay in assessing income-taxes consistently results in very substantial losses of revenue. It seems possible that 15 per cent of some important kinds of taxes that should be paid under existing law, fail to reach the State and Centre treasuries.

Parliamentary and legislative unwillingness to appropriate for enough personnel is one factor in this, but some of the aspects of the problem are within reach of administrators.

Budgetary practice is on the whole well developed, although staffs available for the process are inadequate. The organization of budget information which is technically known as "budgetary classification" could be improved by simultaneous uses of some additional classification schemes.

Attention will have to be given to the fact that much of what the Government 'spends' is not spent in the conventional sense; in these instances the Government is performing functions of credit and capital formation that in most other economies are more largely carried on privately.

One should like to see the thinking behind the "expenditures met from capital disbursement of loans and advances" carried further and given more extensive organization.

A total balance sheet of assets and liabilities for the Government, in successive years, suitably organized, would be an interesting and enlightening document.

Financial control of expenditures seems to be too specific and detailed and too slow. Certainly, it is not subject to any valid criticism for not providing close scrutiny before the fact, or the limited scrutiny possible in general auditing after the fact.

Personnel

Mr. Appleby says that in both the Centre and the States, prevailing structures, except in a few fields, such as defence, revenue collection, internal order and external affairs, provide chiefly for "co-ordination" rather than for administration.

Within the Centre and within the States there is an enormous amount of co-ordination before the fact of action, a consequent lack of discretion and specific responsibility on the part of those presumed to act, and a general inclination not to make decisions.

Personnel administration has too much feudalistic heritage, too much academic and 'intellectuality' orientation too little administrative, action and human-relations orientation, and is too defensive of the 'rights' of existing personnel. These characteristics are reflected in greater or less degree in recruitment policies and methods, in assignment methods, in the attention and lack of attention given to developing the potentialities of personnel, and in the arrangements in which personnel administration is considered and personnel themselves are 'classified.'

The criteria by which personnel are selected by the Public Service Commissions are not up-to-date, and the examining and appraising techniques are far from modern.

Mr. Appleby suggests the removal of the Community Projects from the direction of the Planning Commission. His reasons are that a commission is never a good form for large-scale and rapid-action administration; that administrative responsibility reduces the objectivity and disinterest essential to broad planning, giving the planners a vested interest in one type of operations and so reducing their dynamic character; and finally that persons denominated as planners recruited and associated as planners tend in the first instance to lack and in the second instance to lose the special qualities essential to large and rapid-action administration.

He recommends that the administration of the projects should be headed by a single person of strength, stature and special zeal for this kind of programme. Within his organization, the administration should have its own financial control and evaluation units.

On the whole the Government of India should be among the dozen or so most advanced Governments in the world.

It was also one of the dozen or so Governments in which honesty has been carried to its highest levels.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE

THE writs which for generations ran over the length and breadth of the country in the name of the British Sovereign, now run in the name of the President of the Republic of India. Nevertheless, all the existing laws continue to operate in India as before subject to adaptation and modification made therein. Article 372 of the Constitution provides inter alia that, subject to the other provisions of the Constitution, all the laws in force in the territory of India immediately before the commencement of the Constitution shall continue in force therein until altered, repealed or amended by a competent Legislature or other competent authority.

For the purpose of bringing the provisions of any law in force in the territory of India into accord with the provisions of the Constitution, it is further provided that the President may by order make such adaptations and modifications of such law as may be necessary or expedient.

Article 13 of the Constitution provides that all laws in force in the territory of India immediately before the commencement of the Constitution, in so far as they are inconsistent with the provisions of the Constitution relating to Fundamental Rights (Part III) shall to the extent of such inconsistency be void.

The State is also debarred from making any law which takes away or abridges the Fundamental Rights conferred by this Part, and any law made in contravention shall be void to the extent of such contravention (Art. 13 (2)).

Article 14 ensures to all persons equality before the law by providing that the State shall not deny to any person equality before the law or the equal protection of the laws within the territory of India.

The continuity of the existing laws and legal procedure is further ensured by Article 375 under which all courts of civil, criminal and revenue jurisdiction and all authorities and officers continue to exercise their respective functions subject to the provisions of the Constitution.

The indigenous law of India is personal and divisible with reference to the two great classes of the population, Hindu and Muslim. Both systems claim divine origin and are inextricably interwoven with religion, and each exists in combination with a law based on custom. The rules of the Shastras and the Koran have, however, been in some cases altered and relaxed. Instances can be found in the Bengal Sati Regulation Act of 1829, the Indian Slavery Act, 1843, the Caste Disabilities Removal Act of 1850, the Hindu Widows' Remarriage Act, 1856, and some other Acts and Codes.

During recent years indeed there has been a determined demand on the part of social reformers, and various women's organisations in India for an amendment of the Hindu Law so as to bring it into line with progressive social opinion, in consonance with the spirit of the times.

The Draft Hindu Code that was before the Indian Parliament aimed at abolishing the archaic principles of the ancient system of law, the removal of sex and caste disabilities, and generally simplifying, secularising, and modernising the law governing all Hindus, including Lingayats, Buddhists, Jains and Sikhs. But the Code has lapsed on account of the dissolution of the provisional Parliament.

In the meanwhile, an opposite tendency has been observable among the Muslims, who by recent legislation have sought to revert to the law of the Shariat, discountenancing the application of Hindu Law and custom to the sections of the Muslim community who as converts from Hinduism had retained Hindu Law in matters of inheritance and succession.

Apart from this, the entire legal system which has hitherto prevailed in the country is in course of time bound to undergo a profound transformation by reason of the withdrawal of British rule and the partition of India. A demand for a uniform civil code for all Indians is made by some people.

A demand is also made for the simplification of the procedure and law for the administration of justice and the Government of India are thinking of introducing a legislative measure to achieve this end.

The Indian Penal Code has from time to time been amended. The rules of Civil Procedure have been embodied in the Code of Civil Procedure. The Code of Civil Procedure was remodelled in 1908 and the Code of Criminal Procedure in 1898. These Codes as amended from time to time are now in force.

The years between 1870 and 1885 saw a great deal of legislative activity in British India, and important branches of the law, like Evidence, Contract, Transfer of Property, Trusts, Negotiable Instruments, etc., were codified in the form of Acts of the Indian Legislature applicable to the whole of British India. These, amended from time to time and supplemented by rules derived from English decisions, constitute the bulk of the law administered in India today.

SUPREME COURT

Art. 124 of the Constitution provides for the establishment of a Supreme Court of India consisting of a Chief Justice of India, and, until Parliament by law prescribes a larger number, of not more than seven judges. Every judge of the Supreme Court shall be appointed by the President and shall hold office until he attains the age of sixty-five years. In the course of appointment of a Judge the Chief Justice shall always be consulted. Only a citizen of India who has been for at least 5 years a Judge of a High Court, or for 10 years an advocate of a High Court, or in the opinion of the President a distinguished jurist, is qualified to be appointed Judge of the Supreme Court.

A Judge of the Supreme Court is not liable to be removed from his office except by an order of the President passed after an address by each House of Parliament, supported by a majority of the total membership of that House, and by a majority of not less than two-thirds of the members of that House present and voting, has been presented to the President in the same session for such removal, on the ground of proved misbehaviour or incapacity. No person who has held office as a Judge of the Supreme Court shall plead or act in any court or before any authority within the territory of India.

The Supreme Court is a court of record with all the powers of such a court including the power to punish for contempt. The seat of the Court is to be in Delhi or such other place as the Chief Justice with the approval of the President may from time to time appoint.

The Supreme Court has exclusive original jurisdiction in any dispute (a) between the Government of India and one or more States; (b) between Government of India and one or more States on the one side and one or more other States, on the other; (c) between two or more States, if and in so far as the dispute involves any question (whether of law or fact) on which the existence or extent of a legal right depends (Article 131).

The Appellate jurisdiction of the Supreme Court extends over all appeals from any judgment, decree or final order of a High Court, in civil, criminal or other proceedings, if the High Court certifies that the case involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Constitution. If the High Court refuses such a certificate the Supreme Court may grant special leave to appeal in a proper case (Art. 132). An appeal shall also lie to the Supreme Court from a High Court in civil matters, when the amount or value of the subject matter in dispute is not less than Rs. 20,000 or the High Court certifies the case to be a fit one for appeal to the Supreme Court (Art. 133).

In criminal matters under Art. 134 an appeal lies to the Supreme Court from any judgment, final order or sentence of a High Court, if the High Court has (a) on appeal reversed an order of acquittal of an accused person and sentenced him to death; or (b) has withdrawn for trial before itself any case from a subordinate court and has in such trial convicted the accused person and sentenced him to death; or (c) the High Court has certified that the case is a fit one for appeal.

For purposes of appeals to the Supreme Court, the Judicial Commissioners' Courts are to be considered as High Courts.

Under Art. 136 discretion is given to the Supreme Court to grant special leave to appeal from any judgment, decree, sentence or order, in any matter passed by any Court or Tribunal in the territory of India.

The jurisdiction and powers of the Federal Court under the existing law are also exercisable by the Supreme Court (Art. 135) including the advisory power to give its opinion on questions of law or fact referred to it by the President (Art. 143).

The law declared by the Supreme Court shall be binding on all courts in the territory of India.

Parliament has the power to legislate on the constitution, organisation, jurisdiction and powers of the Supreme Court.

Article 32 of the Constitution guarantees the right to move the Supreme Court by appropriate proceedings for the enforcement of Fundamental Rights; and for the enforcement of such rights the Supreme Court has power to issue directions or orders or writs, including writs in the nature of Habeas Corpus, mandamus, prohibition, quo warrant and Certiorari whichever may be appropriate.

Power is given to Parliament to enlarge the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court by appropriate legislation (Art. 138).

The jurisdiction of the Judicial Committee of His Britannic Majesty's Privy Council over appeals from India in all matters is now abolished.

The royal prerogative to grant pardons, reprieves, respites or remissions of punishments now resides in the President (Art. 72).

Under Art. 348, all proceedings in the Supreme Court and in every High Court in India and the authoritative text of all Bills and Acts of Parliament and the State Legislatures and of all Ordinances promulgated by the President or Governors or Rajpramukhs of States, and of all orders, rules and regulations issued under the Constitution or any law shall be in the English language. If this language is to be replaced by any other language, Parliament must legislate to that effect.

HIGH COURTS

Every High Court is a court of record and has all powers of such court including the power to commit for contempt of itself.

Every Judge of a High Court is appointed by the President after consultation with the Chief Justice of India, the Governor of the State and the Chief Justice of the particular High Court; and he holds office until he attains the age of sixty years.

A person is not qualified to be appointed a Judge of a High Court unless he is a citizen of India and has either held judicial office or practised as an advocate for 10 years in any of the States.

A High Court judge is not liable to be removed from his office except in the manner provided in Art. 124 (4) for the removal of a judge of the Supreme Court of India.

No person who has held office of a Judge of a High Court can plead or act in any court or before any authority in the territory of India.

The Chief Justice of a High Court may with the previous consent of the President, request a retired High Court Judge to sit and act as the Judge of the High Court of that State.

Power is given to the President in consultation with the Chief Justice of India to transfer a judge from one High Court to any other High Court in India (Art. 222).

Article 225 preserves the jurisdiction and powers of the High Courts as they existed immediately before the commencement of the Constitution. Restrictions on the exercise of the original jurisdiction in revenue matters are removed.

Art. 226 gives to every High Court in India power throughout its jurisdiction to issue to any person or authority including Government directions, orders, writs, including writs in the nature of Habens Corpus, mandamus, prohibition, quo warrant and Certiorari for the enforcement of Fundamental Rights and for any other purpose. (Art. 226).

The High Courts have powers of superintendence over all subordinate Courts within their respective jurisdiction.

Legislation affecting constitution and organisation of the High Courts can be passed by Parliament alone.

LOWER COURTS

The Code of Criminal Procedure provides for the constitution of inferior criminal courts styled courts of session and courts of magistrates.

Every State, outside the towns of Madras, Bombay and Calcutta, is divided into sessions divisions consisting of one or more districts, and every sessions division has a court of session and a sessions judge, with assistants if need be. These stationary sessions courts are like the English Assizes, and are competent to try all accused persons duly committed, and to inflict any punishment authorised by law, but sentences of death are subject to confirmation by the highest court of criminal appeal in the State.

Magistrates' courts are of three classes with descending powers. Provision is made and largely utilised in the towns, for the appointment of honorary magistrates. In the towns of Madras, Bombay and Calcutta Presidency Magistrates deal with magisterial cases and benches of Justices of the Peace or Honorary Magistrates dispose of the less important cases.

In Bombay Honorary Magistrates or Justices of the Peace do not try cases.

Article 50 of the Constitution lays down that the States shall take steps to separate the judiciary from the executive in the public service of the States.

The State of Bombay is the first state that has introduced the separation of the judiciary from the executive in public services, by a statute. The Act came into force on July 1, 1953.

In three other states i.e. Hyderabad, Madras and Bihar there is partial separation. It is not effected by any statute but by rules made by the Government in that behalf.

The constitution and jurisdiction of the inferior civil courts varies. Broadly speaking one district and sessions judge is appointed for each district. As District Judge he presides in its principal civil court of original jurisdiction. His functions as Sessions Judge have already been described.

For these posts members of the Indian Civil Service were mainly selected though some appointments were made from the Provincial Service.

Next come the Subordinate Judges and Munsiffs, the extent of whose original jurisdiction varies in different parts of the country.

There are in addition a number of Courts of Small Causes, with jurisdiction to try money suits up to Rs. 500. In the towns of Madras, Bombay and Calcutta where the Chartered High Courts have original jurisdiction, Small Causes Courts dispose of money suits up to Rs. 2,000.

In Bombay and Madras there are also City Civil Courts. The City Civil Court in Bombay has a pecuniary jurisdiction of Rs. 25,000.

As Insolvency Courts the Chartered High Courts of Calcutta, Bombay and Madras have jurisdiction in the Presidency towns. In the mofussil similar powers were conferred on the District Courts by the Provincial Insolvency Act of 1920.

There are Coroners only for the Presidency Towns of Calcutta and Bombay. Elsewhere their duties are discharged by the ordinary staff of magistrates and police officers unaided by jurors.

SPECIAL COURTS

Labour Courts are established in the State of Bombay under the Bombay Industrial Relations Act, 1946.

A labour Court consist of a single judge.

There are at present Labour Courts in Bombay, Ahmedabad, Jalgaon and Sholapur. They decide upon disputes regarding (a) propriety or legality of an order passed by an employer (b) the application and interpretation of standing orders. (c) They also decide disputes referred to them by Government for arbitration. Legality or otherwise of strikes or lock-outs or closure etc is also decided by them.

An appeal against the judgment of the Labour Courts lies to the Industrial Court. This court has also original jurisdiction regarding matters referred to it by the Government or by representative Unions. It decides upon questions of law referred to it by Wage Boards and references regarding interpretation of the Act and the Rules. It has power of superintendence over Labour Courts.

The Bombay Industrial Relations Act 1946 applies at present to the following industries: Textile, Cotton, Woollen, Silk, Textile Processing, Hosiery, Transport by tram and omnibus in Greater Bombay, Electricity, Sugar and Banking (in the case of banks having branches in Bombay State only).

Labour Courts and Industrial Courts now exist in most States.

The Industrial Disputes Act was passed by the Central Legislature in 1947 for the investigation and settlement of industrial disputes.

Industrial Tribunals were established under this Act. If the conciliation bodies set up under this Act fail to bring about a settlement, the matter is referred to the Industrial Tribunals.

Neither party to a dispute is entitled to be represented by a legal practitioner except with the consent of the other party and by leave of the Tribunal.

Industrial Tribunals are not permanent Courts. Whenever a matter is referred to the Government regarding an industrial dispute the Government appoints one or more persons as Industrial Tribunal to adjudicate upon the dispute.

In the State of Bombay the members and the President of the Industrial Court are the ones chosen for appointment as Industrial Tribunals.

The Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act was passed in 1950. It has constituted a new Court, the Labour Appellate Tribunal of India. It is an appellate Court over the Industrial Tribunals and Industrial Courts. The judgments given by the Appellate Tribunal have helped to establish uniformity in labour matters.

Juvenile offenders are tried by the Juvenile Courts. In places where there are no juvenile courts the offenders are tried either by the High Court, or the Court of Session or a salaried Presidency Magistrate or a salaried Magistrate of the First Class.

Legal practitioners are not entitled to appear in any case or proceeding before a Juvenile Court. However the Court may grant permission in exceptional cases.

Probation officers are appointed by the State Government for helping the Court in the discharge of its functions. The powers and duties of such officers are laid down in the rules. Their main duty is to investigate the history of the juvenile offender and offer help to the Court. An appeal against the judgment of a Juvenile Court lies to the Chief Presidency Magistrate in Greater Bombay, and in other places to the Court of Session. If a case is decided by a Presidency Magistrate or a Court of Session the appeal lies to the High Court.

Panchayat Courts (called Nyaya Panchayat) are in existence in many States. In Bombay for instance each Court consists of five members. The members of the Panchayat Court are elected by the Village Panchayat. Sections 30-44 of the Act lay down rules about the suits that may be tried and the suits that may not be tried by the Court. A Nyaya Panchayat cannot alter or revise its decision. An appeal against a decision of the Nyaya Panchayat lies to the District Judge.

LEGAL OFFICIALS

The Government of India have their own law colleague in the Law Minister of the Union Cabinet. All Government measures are drafted in his department after their substance is decided upon by the administrative departments concerned.

Outside the Cabinet the principal law officers of the Government of India are the Attorney-General and Solicitor-General appointed by the President. At Bombay and Calcutta the Government of India have their own solicitors.

Each of the State Governments has its own Advocate-General.

Article 76 of the Constitution of India says that for the post of Attorney-Generalship the President shall appoint a person qualified to be appointed a Judge of the Supreme Court. It shall be the duty of the Attorney-General to give advice to the Govt. of India upon such legal matters and to perform such other duties of a legal character as may be referred or assigned to him by the President, and to discharge the functions conferred upon him by the Constitution. In the performance of his duties the Attorney-General shall have right of audience in all Courts in the territory of India. The Attorney-General has a right to take part in the proceedings of Parliament and address it.

Under Article 165 the Governor of each State is authorised to appoint a person qualified to be appointed a Judge of a High Court to be Advocate-General for the State.

The Advocate-General is appointed by the Governor. He has to give advice to the Government of the State upon such legal matters and to perform such other duties of a legal character as may be referred to or assigned to him. He holds office during the pleasure of the Governor. He appears in the Court on behalf of the Government. He is the leader of the Bar and the President of the Bar Council. He is also authorised to take part in the proceedings of the State legislature, if his advice is sought.

In addition to the Advocate-General there is also a Government Pleader in many States. He usually belongs to the Appellate Side of the High Court while the Advocate-General belongs to the Original Side. The Government Pleader is assisted by an Assistant Government Pleader and they look after criminal work.

The State Governments have their own law officers, in addition to the Advocate-General and the Government Pleader. The law officer is designated Remembrancer of Legal Affairs. He also works as Secretary to the Legal Department. He is never a practising lawyer, but a Government servant. Usually one of the District Judges is appointed Remembrancer of Legal Affairs.

The Legal Remembrancer drafts Government Bills and gives advice to Government Departments on all legal matters.

Sheriffs are attached to the High Courts of Bombay, Calcutta and Madras.

They are entrusted with the work of preparing jury lists, serving summons and other legal processes. The Sheriff in Bombay is the ex-officio Chairman of the Bombay State Permanent Famine Relief Committee. He can also convene public meetings on behalf of the citizens.

The detailed work of the office is entrusted to the Deputy Sheriff who is an officer of the High Court.

These are Official Assignees in three States—Bombay, W. Bengal and Madras. The appointment is made by the Chief Justice of the High Court concerned.

The duties of the Official Assignee are two-fold, viz, realisation and distribution of the insolvent's estate, and the control of the property of the insolvent and his conduct generally.

A party aggrieved by the decision of the official Assignee may appeal to the Insolvency Judge of the High Court.

In addition to the Official Assignee, a Deputy Official Assignee may also be appointed. Another officer of the court is the Insolvency Registrar who may be vested with the powers mentioned in section 6 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act.

There are two classes of legal practitioners, practising in the Supreme Court. They are Senior Advocates, and other Advocates (popularly known as Junior Advocates). No person can appear as an Advocate in any case unless he is instructed by an Agent.

All Advocates of the Supreme Court are entitled to practise in High Courts. In Bombay and Calcutta an Advocate can appear on the original side only when instructed by an Attorney. An Advocate of a High Court is entitled to practise in the High Court concerned and in all the courts subordinate to it. An Attorney-at-Law if enrolled as an Advocate can also practise in the High Court, except on the original side. He, however, can plead in insolvency and chamber matters.

Pleaders are entitled to practise in the District for which they hold sanads.

In addition to these classes, there are Mukhtars in the States of Assam, Bihar, Orissa, Uttar Pradesh, West Bengal, Madhya Bharat and Rajasthan. In Assam there is one more class of legal practitioners known as Revenue Agents.

The Government of India appointed a Committee called The All-India Bar Committee, under the chairmanship of Justice S. R. Das, Judge, Supreme Court, India. It recommended the unification of Indian Bar. To achieve this it proposed that there should be no further recruitment of non-graduate pleaders or Mukhtars or Revenue Agents.

As regards the dual system in Bombay and Calcutta, the Committee favoured its retention. It however recommended the abolition of the dual system in the Supreme Court of India.

Formerly official Law Reports were published only in six series—Bombay, Allahabad, Calcutta, Madras and Nagpur. Three more series, Cuttack, Mysore and Rajasthan, have been added recently.

These reports contain cases decided by the High Courts and the Supreme Court of India.

In addition to these series a Supreme Court Reporter is also published. It contains important decisions of the Supreme Court of India.

Besides these official reports there are a number of private agencies that also bring out reports of the decisions of the Supreme Court and the High Courts. Reports are also published of important cases determined by Labour Courts, Industrial Courts and Labour Appellate Tribunals.

DEFENCE FORCES

THE present day Army of India traces its origin to the guards enrolled for the protection of the East India Company.

The partition of India in 1947 was an important landmark in the history of the Armed Forces of India. The Armed Forces were divided between the two countries on a communal-cum-optional basis which worked out to an approximate proportion of one-third to Pakistan and two-thirds to the Union of India.

British troops, including the Royal Air Force, were completely withdrawn from India on February 28, 1948.

The nationalisation of the Defence Forces started soon after the partition. General K. M. Cariappa, became the first Indian Commander-in-Chief on January 15, 1949. In the Indian Air Force today only about a dozen British officers and some technicians are employed on a contract basis.

In the Navy, the progress towards nationalisation has been slower since the requisite number of Indian officers with experience did not exist. The policy in regard to the Navy is also the same and only such British officers as those whose services are absolutely essential are retained.

The order of precedence of India's Defence Services has been re-arranged as Army, Navy and Air Force. With the inauguration of the new Constitution on January 26, 1950, the use of the prefix 'Royal', wherever it occurred, in the designation of Service, regiment, corps or unit of the Armed Forces was discontinued. Similarly, the expression 'His Majesty's Indian Ship' was also dropped.

DEFENCE ORGANISATION

At the top is the Defence Committee of the Cabinet, which is for all practical purposes the Government so far as the Defence Services are concerned. This Committee consists of the Prime Minister as chairman and the Ministers for Defence, Finance and Transport. Matters of policy are decided by this Committee.

Then there is the Defence Minister's Committee consisting of the Defence Minister, the three Chiefs of Staff, the Financial Adviser and the Defence Secretary. It deals with the more important inter-Services problems. The decisions of this Committee are final and binding on all.

A Defence Science Organisation was set up in August 1948 under Dr. D. S. Kothari, Scientific Adviser to the Ministry of Defence. This Organisation consists of a (1) Defence Science Policy Board, (2) Defence Science Advisory Committee and (3) Personnel Research Panel.

A Defence Science Service has been instituted which includes all civilian scientists engaged in research, development or teaching in any of the three Services or in the Ministry of Defence.

There is an Institute of Armament Studies at Kirkee to train technical staff officers and to undertake a comprehensive scientific study of the principles of armament and performance of weapons and equipment.

The Defence Science Organisation has a laboratory situated in the National Physical Laboratory (Delhi) where research in Defence Science is carried on by a number of scientists. A well-equipped technical library is attached to it.

For conducting research in problems connected with the Navy suitable laboratories have been opened in Bombay and Cochin.

A Psychological Research Wing was formed in July 1949 under Dr. Sohan Lal, Chief Psychologist, the main function of which is to conduct research in the assessment of human personality so that the right type of officers may be selected for the Defence Forces.

TRAINING INSTITUTIONS

The important training institutions common to the three Services are given below:

National Defence Academy: The permanent location of the Academy will be at Khadakvasla near Poona where it will start functioning in January 1955. The establishment at Khadakvasla will consist of the Joint Services Wing (the National Defence Academy proper) and the Military Wing. At present the Defence Academy is located in the Indian Military Academy at Dehra Dun, where training at the Joint Services Wing started on January 4, 1949. At the J. S. W. Army, Navy and Air Force cadets receive two years' basic training whereas Naval Cadets (Supply and Executive Branches) receive three years' training. After the transfer to Khadakvasla the cadets of all the three Services will undergo a three-year course of which the first two years will be devoted to a common basic training and the third to specialized training in the three respective services. Thereafter the Naval and Air Force cadets will proceed to their Services Establishments for advanced training, while the Army cadets will join the Military Wing for a further one-year course.

Commandant, National Defence Academy: Maj.-Gen. B. Habibullah.

Defence Services Staff College: This is located at Wellington, in the Nilgiri Hills in south India. One hundred officers drawn from all the three Services including six officers from the U.S.A. and Commonwealth countries are trained every year. The object of the training is to prepare officers to hold second grade or equivalent staff appointments or higher staff or command appointments.

School of Foreign Languages: This is located in New Delhi and was started on February 1, 1949. The object is to impart instruction in certain foreign languages to officers of the Armed Forces. Other Ministries also take advantage of this school, and a large number of civilian officers and non-gazetted staff attend courses.

College of Military Engineering: This is located at Kirkee, near Poona. Officers of the Corps of Engineers, the Corps of Signals and the Corps of Electrical and Mechanical Engineers are trained to a degree standard in Civil, Telecommunication and Electrical and Mechanical Engineering respectively. The status of the institution is that of a college.

Armed Forces Medical College: This is located in Poona and trains junior and senior medical officers. Other ranks also receive training to qualify as laboratory assistants, radiographers, sanitary assistants, blood transfusion orderlies and dispensers. The institution provides the Armed Forces with all the biological and chemical reagents for the diagnosis of diseases and also with blood transfusion material and equipment. There is a thousand-bed hospital and the following departments among others: Virus Research Unit; Department of Anti-biotics; Department of Chemistry and Entomology. Selected civilian doctors are offered facilities at the institution for advanced training in various branches of the medical science.

INDIAN ARMY

The Army Headquarters is divided into the following main branches which are again further sub-divided into directorates :—

General Staff Branch;
Adjutant-General's Branch;
Quartermaster-General's Branch;
Master-General of Ordnance Branch;
Engineer-in-Chief's Branch;
Military Secretary's Branch.

Under the Army Headquarters, the Army is organised into Commands, each Command under a General Officer Commanding-in-Chief of the rank of Lieutenant-General. The Commands are divided into Areas, each under the command of a G.O.C. of the rank of Major-General, and the Areas in their turn are sub-divided into Sub-Areas under the command of a Brigadier. These are static formations.

The Commands are three in number—the Eastern Command, the Southern Command and the Western Command.

The Army is divided into a number of arms. They are: Armoured Corps; Regiment of Artillery; Corps of Engineers and Ordnance; Army Ordnance Corps; Corps of Electrical and Mechanical Engineers; Infantry; Army Service Corps; Army Educational Corps; Army Corps of Clerks (Army Service Corps); Staff Duties and Remounts, Veterinary and Farms Corps.

(c) Infantry Battalion	900
(i) Rifle Company	140
(ii) Platoon	40
(iii) Section	10

TERRITORIAL ARMY

The T. A. Act 1948, was passed by Parliament in September 1948 and the Army was inaugurated in October 1949 when recruitment was thrown open.

The Territorial Army consists of all arms of service, i.e., the Armoured Corps, the Corps of Artillery including Anti-aircraft and Coastal Defence units, the Corps of Engineers including Port and Railway units, the Corps of Signals, Infantry, the Army Service Corps, the Army Medical Corps and the Corps of Electrical and Mechanical Engineers. The units raised are of two types, i.e., Provincial units recruited from rural areas who undergo annual training of two to three months' duration at a stretch, and Urban units recruited from large towns where Territorial Army units have been raised. They undergo training on the weekly drill system, i.e., in the evenings, Sundays and holidays with a small camp of not less than four consecutive days.

All able-bodied persons from the unskilled labourer to highly qualified technicians provided they are citizens of India, are eligible for recruitment. The age limits are 18 and 35 years relaxable in case of ex-service (Army, Navy and Air Force) personnel and civilians possessing technical qualifications.

The country has been divided into eight zones for purposes of recruitment which is done on a zonal basis, i.e., only residents of the zone are recruited in the units which are raised from that zone.

The role of the Territorial Army is as follows :—

- To relieve Regular Army of static duties and support the civil power if required.
- To provide coast defence and Anti-aircraft units.
- To provide field formations and units for the Regular Army if and when required.

When embodied, called out or under training, the Territorial Army personnel receive the same pay and allowances as are admissible to the corresponding ranks of the Regular Army.

In order to provide an incentive to the Junior Commissioned Officers and men for hard and meritorious work, 2½ per cent of the actual vacancies available at the Military Wing of the National Defence Academy will in future be reserved for the personnel of the Territorial Army. On successful completion of the course at the N.D.A. they will be granted Regular commissions in the Army.

No officer or enrolled person is required to perform military service beyond the limits of India save under a general or special order of the Central Government.

NATIONAL CADET CORPS

The Corps came into being in 1948. The aim of the Corps is (1) to develop character, comradeship, the ideal of service and capacity for leadership in young men and women; (2) to stimulate interest in the defence of the country, and (3) to build up a reserve of potential officers to enable the Armed Forces to expand rapidly in a national emergency. The Organisation is thus mainly of an educational, and nation-building character. Officers and cadets have no liability whatsoever for active military service. In this way it is different from The Territorial Army which is designed to serve as a second line of defence. However, a close link is maintained between the Territorial Army and the NCC since the latter may be called upon to provide man power for the former in an emergency.

The NCC consists of three divisions: (1) Junior Division, (2) Senior Division, and (3) Girls' Division.

The strength of the Corps at present is as follows :—

	Officers	Cadets	Total
Junior Division	1,572	51,810	52,382
Senior Division	816	25,508	26,324
Girls' Division	14	420	434

The expenditure on the Corps is shared between the Central and State Governments. The Central Government meets the cost of the Directorate controlling the staff and the permanent regular staff of the units and also provides the arms, ammunition and equipment for the NCC units. The State Governments meet the rest of the expenditure for the raising and maintenance of units including the provision of clothing.

Student cadets of all the three divisions are given 60 to 80 periods of training in Service subjects every year with 10 to 15 days in camps under the supervision of regular Service personnel. The training year corresponds to the academic year of Universities and schools.

Social service work forms an important part of the curriculum of the cadets. Each unit of a Senior Division of the NCC is affiliated to a regular Army, Navy, and Air Force unit which provides the required personnel and helps to train the NCC personnel by organising training cadres.

The strength of each Army, Navy and Air Wing Units (Senior and Junior Division and Girls' Division) is as follows :—

(a) Senior Division Army Units (Infantry)	NCC Officers	NCC Cadets
(i) 4 Coy Bn NCC	15	625
(ii) 3 Coy Bn NCC	12	470
(iii) 2 Coy Bn NCC	8	315
(iv) Independent Coy NCC	8	154
(b) Senior Division Technical Unit (all arms except Armed Corps unit)	2	60
(c) Senior Division Armoured Corps Unit	3	60
(d) Senior Division Naval Wing Unit	2	60
(e) Senior Division Air Wing Unit	2	80
(f) Junior Division Troop (Army, Navy, Air Wing)	1	33
" Public School	1	30
(g) Girls' Division Troop	3	90
" (one Sub-Troop)	1	80

INDIAN NAVY

On 15th August 1947, when India attained independence, the following ships were allocated to India: Sloop: BUTLER, JUMNA, KISTNA, CAUVERY. Frigates: TIE, KUKRI. Minesweepers: ORISSA, DECCAN, BIHAR, KUMAON, KHYBER, BOHLEHAND, CAR-NATIC, RAJPUTANA, KONKAN, BOMBAY, BENGAL, MADRAS. Corvette: ASSAM. Survey Vessel: INVESTIGATOR. Trawlers: NABIK, CALOUTTA, COCHIN, AMRITSAR. In addition, India got four harbour defence motor launches and all existing landing craft.

Today the Indian Navy consists of:

Cruiser (flagship): DELHI.

* No one was appointed at the time of writing.

11th Destroyer Squadron: RAJPUT (Capt. D11), RANJIT, GODAVARI, GOMATI and GANGA.

12th Frigate Squadron: JUMNA (Capt. F12), CAUVERY, KISTNA.

31st Minesweeping Squadron: BOMBAY (M/S 31), KONKAN, MADRAS, RAJPUTANA, BENGAL.

Survey ships: INVESTIGATOR, ROHIL-KHAND.

Landing Ship Tank: MAGAR.

Ocean-going tug: HATHI.

There are also seaward defence motor-launches and landing craft.

On 15th January 1949 Naval Headquarters was reorganised into five main branches each under a Principal Staff Officer styled as follows:—

Deputy Commander-in-Chief and Chief of Staff; Chief of Personnel; Chief of Administration; Chief of Material, Chief of Naval Aviation.

In August 1950 it was decided to set up a Secretariat in Naval Headquarters modelled on the Secretariat of the British Admiralty. The Head of the Secretariat is the Naval Secretary.

On 4th April 1949 a new appointment designated Commodore Indian Naval Squadron (short title COMINS) was created. COMINS was responsible for the operations, administration and training of Indian Naval ships in commission. This appointment was subsequently raised to the status of Rear-Admiral Commanding Indian Naval Squadron (short title RACINS).

FORMATION OF FLEET

Some important events in the formation of the fleet are as follows: I.N.S. DELHI (7,000 cruiser of the Leander class) was acquired from the U.K. on September 15, 1948; RAJPUT, RANJIT, BANA (three destroyers from the U.K.) were acquired in March 1949; 11th Destroyer Squadron formed under the command of a Captain of Destroyers; 12th Frigate Squadron formed under Captain of Frigates; the Navy dropped the word 'Royal' and became Indian Navy, and the White Ensign was replaced by the Indian Naval Ensign on January 26, 1950; Supreme Commander-in-Chief presented President's Colour to the Navy, May 1951; three 'Hunt' class destroyers acquired from the U.K. and re-named GODAVARI, GOMATI and GANGA, early 1953; the Navy's first air station INS GARUDA commissioned at Cochin, May 1953.

Since the Fleet was formed, IN ships visited Burma, Malaya, Siam, Indonesia, Australia and New Zealand in the east, Iran, Iraq, Arabia, East Africa and other countries in the Middle East and the Mediterranean. DELHI, RANJIT and TIR participated in the Coronation Naval Review in June 1953. Routine combined training exercises were also carried out by IN ships with those of the Royal Navy and the Commonwealth Navies and the Indian and Royal Air Forces.

TRAINING

The training of ratings in the Indian Navy is now carried out in shore establishments at Cochin, Vishakapatnam, Jamnagar and Lonavla under the overall supervision of the Commodore-in-Charge, Cochin who, in addition to his other duties, carries out the function of the Commodore Superintendent Training Establishments.

Cadets for the Indian Navy now receive their general education along with the cadets for the Army and the Air Force in the Joint Services Wing of the National Defence Academy at Dehra Dun and on completion of this initial training proceed to United Kingdom for higher naval training. In future, however, the entire naval training is expected to be done in India.

There is now a naval staff course at the Defence Services Staff College at Wellington (Nilgiris) under a Chief Naval Instructor. This course was inaugurated in August 1950.

ESTABLISHMENTS

INS VENDURUTHY (Cochin) contains schools of Seamanship, Gunnery, Signals, Torpedo and Anti-submarine, Supply and Secretariat, Cookery, New Entry Training.

INS CIRCARS (Vishakapatnam) contains Boys Training Establishment.

INS ANGRE, the base establishment at Bombay controls Naval Dockyard, I.N. Pay Office, Radar Training Establishment, Regulating School, Shipwright Training School, IN School of Physical Training and Naval Barracks.

INS SHIVAJI (at Lonavla) contains the Mechanical Training Establishment.

INS VALSURA (at Jamnagar) contains the Electrical School.

INS HADMA is the combined operations establishment near Bombay.

With the setting up of a shore-based Fleet Requirement Unit of INS GARUDA (Cochin) air training for I.N. personnel will now be imparted at that place.

INS ASVINI at Bombay is the first Naval Hospital.

The Naval Dockyard at Bombay is to be expanded. Work on this began early in 1953.

It is decided to set up a hydrographic office in India. The purpose of this is the production and printing of charts for marine survey. Also one of the I.N. minesweepers has been temporarily converted for carrying out marine survey duties on the Indian coast.

INDIAN AIR FORCE

The IAF is in the main divided into two major formations namely, Operational Command and Training Command under the control of Air Headquarters in New Delhi.

The Operational Command controls all flying units—fighter, bomber, reconnaissance and air-transport squadrons. The Training Command has under its control ground training schools for both officers and airmen. There are also certain units which come directly under the administrative and functional control of Air HQ, such as Record office, Air Force Academies, Central Accounts office.

The two Commands exercise their control through their Wings and Stations located in various parts of the country. Under each Wing and Station come various squadrons and units.

Air HQ is divided into three main Branches—Air Branch which deals with operations, training, policy and plans, signals and intelligence; Personnel and Organisation Branch; and Technical and Equipment Services Branch. Each is under a Branch P.S.O. who in turn has several Directorates under him.

The types of aircraft used by the IAF are as follows:—

Training Aircraft: Tiger Moth, Percival Prentice, HT 2, Harvard, Spitfire.

Fighter Aircraft: Spitfire, Tempest, Vampire.

Transport Aircraft: Dakota, Devon.

Bomber: Liberator.

Reconnaissance: Spitfire, Auster, Harvard.

The following are the major training institutions:—

No. 1 Air Force Academy, at Begumpet (Hyderabad) trains pilots.

No. 2 Air Force Academy, Jodhpur, is the nursery of pilots, navigators and air-signallers of the IAF.

No. 3 Air Force Academy at Coimbatore trains officers of ground duty branches.

Technical Training College, Jalahalli (near Bangalore), imparts training to the Engineering Officers of the Service.

Flying Instructors School, Ambala.

No. 1 Ground Training School, Jalahalli, for non-technical airmen trainees.

No. 2 Ground Training School, Tambaram (Madras) for technical tradesmen (airmen).

No. 3 Ground Training School, Jalahalli for airmen trainees of higher signals trades.

JETS

India has ordered 71 jet-fighters of the Ouragan class from France. By the end of 1953 thirty-nine of these had been delivered, and the rest were to be delivered shortly afterwards.

The Ouragan class jet-fighter is a single-seater monoplane capable of attaining a speed of 600 miles an hour at sea-level and reaching a height of 8,000 feet a minute.

The jet-fighter has been described as a well-designed military aircraft for defence and air-strikes and for ground-attack-cum-interceptor because of its innumerable operational characteristics.

Some of the features of the monoplane are: manoeuvrability, fast rate of ascent, fire-power endurance, operating ceiling and speed.

Equipped with cannon and carrying rockets and bombs under its wings, the Ouragan has a pressurised cabin, permitting the pilot to operate at high altitudes.

Its bullet-proof fixed screen and the armour force and aft provide additional protection to the pilot when engaged in air battle. The aircraft has ejector seats and a sliding jettisonable canopy which form the life-saving devices in emergency.

GALLANTRY AWARDS

Three new gallantry awards were instituted by the President of the Indian Republic after independence for gallantry in combat with the enemy. They are designated the Param Vir Chakra, the Maha Vir Chakra and the Vir Chakra. They came into force with effect on August 15, 1947.

The Param Vir Chakra is awarded for most conspicuous bravery, or some daring or pre-eminent act of valour, or self-sacrifice, in the presence of the enemy, whether on land, at sea, or in the air. It ranks first among all awards.

The Maha Vir Chakra is awarded for acts of gallantry in the presence of the enemy whether on land, at sea, or in the air.

The Vir Chakra is awarded for acts of gallantry in the presence of the enemy, whether on land, at sea, or in the air.

All members of the Armed Forces including members of the Nursing Services and civilians working with the Armed Forces are eligible for the above three gallantry awards.

A fourth gallantry decoration named the Ashoka Chakra in three grades, Class one, Class two and Class three, was instituted for acts of gallantry other than in face of the enemy. This also came into force with effect on August 15, 1947.

Class I of the Chakra is awarded for most conspicuous bravery, or some daring or pre-eminent valour or self-sacrifice. Class II of the Chakra is awarded for conspicuous gallantry and Class III, for gallantry.

Members of Armed Forces and civilians alike are eligible for this award.

If any recipient of a Chakra again performs such an act of bravery as would have made him or her eligible to receive the Chakra, such further act of bravery is recorded by a Bar attached to the riband by which the Chakra is suspended, and for every such additional act of bravery, an additional Bar is added, and any such Bar or Bars is also awarded posthumously. For every Bar awarded a replica of the "Indra's Vajra" in miniature is added to the riband when worn alone.

Every recipient of any of these decorations who is junior in rank to a Sub-Lieutenant in the Navy, a Second-Lieutenant in the Army, or a Pilot Officer in the Air Force, is entitled from the date of the act by which the decoration has been gained to a special pension, and each additional Bar conferred carries with it additional pension, for life.

A system of Mention-in-Despatches was also instituted on August 15, 1947 to recognise distinguished and meritorious service in operational areas and acts of gallantry which are not of a sufficiently high order to warrant the grant of gallantry awards. The terms of eligibility for Mention-in-Despatches are the same as for gallantry awards. Names may be included posthumously and there is no objection to a person's name being mentioned in more than one despatch.

The inter-se order of priority of the new gallantry decorations will be Param Vir Chakra, Ashoka Chakra Class I, Maha Vir Chakra, Ashoka Chakra Class II, Vir Chakra, Ashoka Chakra Class III, followed by Campaign Medals, e.g. General Service Medal, 1947, and Commemorative Medals, e.g. Independence Medal. State Medals and Commonwealth awards come last.

The rates of monetary allowance admissible are as below :—

- (a) (i) Param Vir Chakra.—Rs. 50 p.m.
(Rs. 70 p.m. in the case of J.C.Os. who have previously been awarded an award of the second Order of gallantry, such as the I.O.M.).
- (ii) Each Bar to PVC.—Rs. 20 p.m.
- (b) (i) Maha Vir Chakra.—Rs. 30 p.m.
(Rs. 50 p.m. in the case of J.C.Os. who have been previously awarded a gallantry award of the 3rd order such as the M.C.).
- (ii) Each Bar to M.V.C.—Rs. 10 p.m.
- (c) (i) Vir Chakra.—Rs. 20 p.m.
- (ii) Each Bar to Vr.C.—Rs. 8 p.m.

On the death of such a recipient of the Chakra the pension is continued to his widow until her death or remarriage.

The following are the details of Republican India's awards won by members of the Armed Forces :—

INDIAN SOLDIERS', SAILORS' AND AIRMEN'S BOARDS

These Boards are probably the most important and valuable non-official institutions connected with the Armed Forces. The nucleus of their funds was the residue of the Imperial Indian War Relief Fund which was handed in at the end of 1922. The face value of the securities constituting the fund amounted on 31st March 1953 to Rs. 11,97,700, bearing an annual interest of Rs. 35,031.

The Board has its seat at New Delhi and co-ordinates the activities of State Boards which exist in each State. Under the control of these State Boards there exists throughout the country a network of District Boards reinforced in some cases by Tehsil or Taluka Committee and other kindred bodies. These Boards are established in all districts from which recruits have been obtained in sufficient numbers. The President of the Board is the Collector or the Deputy Commissioner. Each Board has a paid Secretary, usually an ex-I.C.O. or ex-J.C.O. At present there are 176 District Boards.

The following are the objects and duties of the District Soldiers', Sailors', and Airmen's Boards :—

- (a) Constantly to endeavour to promote and maintain a feeling of good-will between the civilian and military classes ;
- (b) To give all possible assistance to the President of the Board in his capacity as head of the district in all administrative matters connected with the ex-Serviceman or his family ;
- (c) To demonstrate the benefit of and so promote the desire for mutual co-operation between ex-Servicemen and civilian officials ;
- (d) To represent and explain to the local authorities all matters of particular moment to ex-Servicemen that require the attention of the local administration ;
- (e) Generally to watch over the welfare of the ex-servicemen and their families, and the interests of serving personnel absent from home, with their units.

The Indian Soldiers', Sailors' and Airmen's Board Fund is now used primarily for payment of special pensions to blinded ex-Servicemen, and to meet the expenditure on miscellaneous items such as bank charges, audit fees, etc., in connection with the administration of the fund. The surplus interest on investments is being utilised towards the maintenance of the District Soldiers', Sailors' and Airmen's Boards.

There are other Central funds which are not under the control of the Indian Soldiers' Sailors' and Airmen's Boards. They are :

Armed Forces Benevolent Fund, Flag Day Fund (1952-53 : Rs. 7 lakhs), Armed Forces Reconstruction Fund, the Army Central Welfare Fund, the Indian Navy Benevolent Association Fund, the Indian Navy Amenities Fund, the Indian Air Force Benevolent Association Fund, the Indian Air Force Central Welfare Fund, St. Dunstan's India Fund.

EDUCATION

SINCE August 15, Education at the Centre has been constituted into a separate Ministry of Education, the present Minister for Education being Maulana Abul Kalam Azad. The State Governments are fully autonomous in regard to educational matters except in respect of educational development programme for which they receive grants-in-aid from the Central Government. Such programme has to be approved by the Central Government who have to examine whether it is in accord with the All-India approved educational policy.

The Ministry has offices in London, Washington, Nairobi and Bonn.

In the States the Secretary, Department of Education, is the permanent head of the Department and the Director of Public Instruction (in some States he is called the Director of Education) acts as an expert Adviser to the Minister in charge of Education. The Director controls the inspecting staff and the teaching staff of the Government Institutions. In some States (Coorg, Kutch, Bilaspur) the functions of Director are discharged by the Educational Officer, in others (Bhopal, Manipur, Tripura) by the Education Secretary.

The authority of Government in controlling the system of public instruction is in part shared with and in part delegated to Universities, and Boards of Secondary and Intermediate Education as regards secondary education and to local bodies as regards elementary education in some States.

Certain forms of Technical Education are under the technical departments concerned and come within the purview of the Minister in Charge of those Departments.

Institutions under private management are controlled by Government and by local bodies by "recognition" and by the payment of grants-in-aid, with the assistance of the inspecting staffs employed by Government and by local bodies.

The following States have Boards of Intermediate Education and Secondary Education: Ajmer, Vindhya Pradesh, Bhopal (same Board for all three), Uttar Pradesh, Madhya Bharat.

The following States have Boards of Secondary Education: Bihar, Bombay, Madhya Pradesh, Madras, Uttar Pradesh, West Bengal, Hyderabad, Madhya Bharat, Delhi, Ajmer, Vindhya Pradesh, Bhopal (same Board for last four).

The system of education is what is called the Basic Education system, centred on the teaching of a craft.

Secondary education was the subject of an enquiry by a Commission and the report was published in August 1953.

The key reports and resolutions on which primary and secondary education systems are planned are:

Resolution of the Central Advisory Board of Education, 1935, Dec.; Wood-Abbot Report; Zakir Hussain Committee Report (Wardha Scheme or Basic Education Scheme); Reports of the Central Advisory Board (14): (1) Kher Committee Reports on Basic Education; (2) Adult Education; (3) The Physical Welfare of School-children; (4) School Buildings; (5) Social Service; (6) The Recruitment, Training and Conditions of Service of Teachers in Primary, Middle and High Schools; (7) The Recruitment of Education Officers; (8) Technical (including Commercial and Art) Education; (9) Text-books; (10) Examinations; (11) Educational Administration; (12) Agricultural Education; (13) Religious Education; (14) Selection of Pupils for Higher Education and lastly Report on Post-war Educational Development in India (Sargent Report).

University education has had a report published on it (see University Commission Report, 1949). There is now a University Grants Commission.

Literacy campaign is now called Social Education. In 1950-51, about 540,000 adults were made literate.

In technical education the latest development is the setting up of an Indian Institute of Technology at Kharagpur.

For 1952-53 India received 409 foreign scholarships or fellowships.

UNIVERSITY COMMISSION REPORT

The Indian University Education Commission was appointed by a resolution of the Government of India dated 4th November 1948. It started on its work in December 1948 and presented its report in August 1949.

The following were the members of the Commission: Dr. S. Radhakrishnan (Chairman); Dr. Tara Chand; Sir James Duff (Vice-Chancellor, Durham University); Dr. Zakir Hussain; Dr. Arthur E. Morgan (Former President, Antioch College, U.S.A.); Dr. A. Lakshmanaswami Mudaliar; Dr. Meghnad Saha; Dr. K. Narayan Bahl; Dr. John J. Tigert (formerly Commissioner of Education, U.S.A.); Nirnala Kumar Sidhanta (Secretary).

The report is signed by all the members. In general, the Commission is opposed to the multiplication of Universities on a regional basis; it favours the establishment of rural universities; it recommends the setting up of a University Grants Commission. It emphasizes the importance of religious instruction and recommends the use of the regional language as the medium of instruction at the University stage except at the Central Universities like Benares and Delhi where the medium of instruction should be the Federal language.

The following are among the more important recommendations in detail:

There should be four classes of teachers: Professors, Readers, Lecturers and Instructors. The scales of salaries for University teachers should be:—

Professors	Rs. 900-50-1,350
Readers	600-30-900
Lecturers	300-25-600
Instructors or Fellows	250
Research Fellows	250-25-500

The scales of salaries for affiliated colleges with no Post-graduate classes should be:—

Lecturers	Rs. 200-15-320-20-400
Senior posts	400-25-600 (two in each college)
Principals	600-40-800

For colleges which have Post-graduate classes, the grades should be:—

Lecturers	Rs. 200-15-320-20-400-25-500
Senior posts	500-25-800 (two in each college)
Principals	800-40-1,000.

The standard of admission to the university courses should correspond to that of the present intermediate examination, i.e. after the completion of 12 years of study at a school and an intermediate college.

In each State a large number of well equipped and well-staffed intermediate colleges (with classes IX to XII or VI to XII) should be established.

To avoid overcrowding at universities and colleges, the maximum number in the Arts and Science faculties of a teaching university should be fixed at 3,000 and in an affiliated college at 1,500.

The number of working days should be substantially increased to ensure a minimum of 180 in the year, exclusive of examination days : with three terms, each of about 11 weeks' duration.

All educational institutions should start work with a few minutes for silent meditation.

In the first year of the Degree course lives of the great religious leaders like Gautama the Buddha, Confucius, Zoroaster, Socrates, Jesus, Sankara, Ramanuja, Madhava, Mohammad, Kabir, Nanak, Gandhi should be taught. In the second year some selections of a universalist character from the scriptures of the world should be studied. In the third year, the central problems of the philosophy of religion should be considered.

MEDIUM OF INSTRUCTION

International technical and scientific terminology should be adopted, the borrowed words properly assimilated, their pronunciation adapted to the phonetic system of the Indian language and their spelling fixed in accordance with the sound symbols of Indian scripts.

Pupils at the Higher Secondary and University stages should be made conversant with three languages, the Regional language, the Federal language and English (the last one in order to acquire the ability to read books in English).

Higher education should be imparted through the instrumentality of the regional language with the option to use the Federal language.

For the Federal language one script, Devanagari should be employed and some of its defects removed. A Board consisting of scientists and linguists should be appointed to prepare a scientific vocabulary of words which will be common to all Indian languages and also to arrange for the preparation of books in different sciences to be rendered into all Indian languages.

Provincial Governments should be required to take steps to introduce the teaching of the Federal language in all classes of Higher Secondary Schools, in Degree Colleges, and in Universities.

English should be studied in High Schools and in the Universities in order that Indians may keep in touch with the living stream of evergrowing knowledge.

EXAMINATIONS

A battery of psychological and achievement tests should be developed for use with higher secondary school students for the final test at the end of twelve years of schooling. This will, together with other relevant information, serve the purpose of an admission examination to the first degree course at the university. The American Council on Education Co-operative Psychological and General Achievement Tests would serve as a model from which to build a satisfactory basis of selection of Indian students.

A set of objective progress tests for guidance and for evaluating class-room progress should also be developed immediately.

For purposes of admission to college and university, the tests should be accompanied with much additional information and interviews with students when conditions make this possible.

A university degree should not be required for Government administrative services. Special state examinations for recruitment to the various services should be organised and should be open to whosoever cares to take them.

Credit should be given for classwork. It will be conducive to efficiency both in teaching and learning.

One-third of the marks allotted to each subject should be reserved for work done during the course of instruction and that this should be adopted forthwith at the teaching universities for the B.A. and B.Sc., M.A. and M.Sc. examinations. The affiliating universities should also take immediate steps to evolve a method of more or less uniform marking for this internal award at the affiliated colleges.

A candidate should get 70 per cent or more marks to secure a first class, 55 to 69 per cent for a second, and at least 40 per cent for a third. The students should be arranged in alphabetical order in each of the three classes.

Viva Voce examinations should be employed only for post-graduate and professional degrees.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

All students, both men and women, should be required to take, at no cost to themselves, a thorough physical examination at admission and periodically thereafter, at least once a year.

All universities, with or without medical colleges, must have hospitals and dispensaries for student service.

A nutritious meal should be furnished at noon at reasonable cost.

All students should be required to be vaccinated against smallpox, and inoculated against cholera, typhoid and plague.

A post-graduate degree course leading to a doctorate should be set up at one university in each State where Directors of Physical Education may be trained.

Each university and college remote from a university centre should have a Director of Physical Education with the status, pay and training comparable to heads of other departments.

Two years of physical education should be required for all students, men and women, except those who are physically unfit or who are in the National Cadet Corps.

The Centre should take over from the States the responsibility for the administration of the National Cadet Corps.

There should be manoeuvres in the summer in which Army and Air Units work together. Naval Units should take cruises in the summer.

CONSTITUTION

University education should be placed on the concurrent list.

The concern of the Central Government with the universities should be with regard to finance and the co-ordination of facilities in special subjects.

For allocating grants to universities a Central Grants Commission should be established. There should be no university of the purely affiliating type. Government colleges should be gradually transformed into constituent colleges of the university.

The number of colleges affiliated to a university should be limited.

The aim of an affiliated college should be to develop into a unitary university and later into a federative one.

The Vice-Chancellor should be a whole-time officer.

A Grants Allocation Committee should be constituted for States with universities of the teaching and affiliating type.

The State should recognise its responsibility for the financing of higher education.

The aid to private colleges should be for buildings and equipment as also for the recurring expenditure, the latter to be on a uniform basis, say half of the present teachers' salaries and a third of other approved expenditure.

The Government should contribute an additional annual amount of about ten crores for the development of university education during the next quinquennium.

The All-India character of the Banares and Delhi Universities should be maintained in all Colleges.

As a Central University Delhi should offer facilities for work to students from all over India.

The medium of instruction in the Banares and Delhi Universities should be the Federal language and that during the six years which will elapse before students from other areas can master the Federal language, instruction should be given both in the Federal language and in English.

In regard to co-education, the Commission's recommendation is that in the secondary stages there should be separation and in the basic and collegiate stages co-education.

The Commission has also recommended that where the mother tongue is not the same as the Federal language, the Federal language is to be studied from the first form. If the mother tongue and the Federal language are identical, students would be required to take any other Indian classical or modern language. If Hindi happens to be the mother-tongue of a student, the student would be required to study some other Indian language.

There must be no attempt at hasty displacement of English as a medium of instruction for academic standards. Indian languages have to grow and must become proper media for communication. To displace English by a State or the Federal language may result in deterioration of standards. Therefore, while State Governments should make their languages more potent as early as possible no time-limit should be prescribed. Languages will have to grow and there cannot be a time-limit. During the transition English will remain.

The Commission is of the opinion that English should be taught from the third form (three years before matric) for those who desire to enter the University.

In the inter-State border areas where the regional language may be different from that of the mother tongue of a student the medium of instruction must be the mother-tongue up to a particular stage and students would be asked to study the Federal language as well.

SECONDARY EDUCATION COMMISSION

This Commission was appointed by a Government of India resolution dated Sept. 23, 1952 and started its work on Oct. 6, 1952. It presented the report on Aug. 29, 1953.

The Commission consisted of the following: Dr. A. Lakshmanaswami Mudaliar (Chairman), Principal John Christie (of Jesus College, Oxford), Dr. Kenneth Rast Williams (Associate Director, Southern Regional Education Board, Atlanta, U.S.A.), Mrs. Hansa Mehta (Vice-Chancellor, Baroda University), J. A. Taraporevala (Director of Technical Education, Government of Bombay), Dr. K. L. Shrimall (Principal, Vidya Bhavan Teachers' Training College, Udaipur), M. T. Vyas (Principal, New Era School, Bombay), K. G. Salydain (Jt. Secy. to the Government of India, Ministry of Education), Principal A. N. Basu (Central Institute of Education, Delhi; member-secretary).

In individual States the Government selected a person, who was co-opted as a member during the Commission's work in that State.

RECOMMENDATIONS

The secondary stage should comprise a period of seven years. The second half should be a higher secondary stage of four years' duration with the first year of the Intermediate included in it.

Multi-purpose schools should be established wherever possible. There should be special facilities for agricultural education in rural schools. Technical schools should be started in large numbers near enough to industries.

Public schools should continue to exist and after the next five years should be self-supporting. There should be some free studentships given by Government in these schools.

The mother-tongue or the regional language should generally be the medium of instruction throughout the secondary stage subject to the provision that for linguistic minorities special facilities should be made available.

During the middle school stage every child should be taught at least two languages. English and Hindi should be introduced at the end of the junior basic stage subject to the principle that no two languages should be introduced in the same year. At the higher secondary stage at least two languages should be studied, one of these being the mother-tongue or the regional language.

At the middle school the curriculum should include: languages, social studies, general science, mathematics, art and music, craft, physical education.

At the higher secondary stage there should be diversified courses but with a common core: languages, general science, social studies, craft. The diversified courses should include: humanities, sciences, technical subjects, commercial subjects, agricultural subjects, fine arts and home sciences. The diversified curriculum should begin in the second year of the higher stage.

An independent Text-Book Committee should be constituted. This Committee should lay down criteria for the type of paper, illustration, printing and format of the book.

Single text-books should not be prescribed for any subject but a reasonable number leaving the choice to the schools. In the case of languages, however, definite text-books should be prescribed. Frequent changes in text-books should be discouraged.

The Activity Method and Project Method should be assimilated in school practice.

All public libraries should have a special section for children and adolescents.

To promote discipline there should be personal contact between teachers and pupil; self-government in the form of house system and student-councils which will draw up a code of conduct and enforce it should be introduced in all schools.

Religious instruction may be given only on a voluntary basis outside the regular school hours. It should be confined to the children of the particular faith and given with the consent of the parents and the management.

Every teacher should devote some time to extra-curricular activities.

The N.C.C. should be brought under the Central Government. Training in First Aid, St. John's Ambulance and Junior Red Cross work should be encouraged.

The services of Guidance Officers and Career Masters should be made available.

A properly organized school medical service should be built up.

The school should assist in the maintenance of the sanitation of the area.

All teachers below the age of 40 should participate in the physical activities of the students.

The number of external examinations should be reduced, and the element of subjectivity in the essay-type tests should be minimized by introducing objective tests and by changing the type of question.

In the final assessment of the pupils due credit should be given to the internal tests and the school records of the pupils.

The system of symbolic rather than numerical marking should be adopted.

There should be only one public examination at the completion of the secondary school course.

The certificate should contain besides the result of the public examination, the results of the school tests in subjects not included in the public examination as well as the gist of the school records.

The system of compartmental examinations should be introduced at the final public examination.

ORGANIZATION

There should be Selection Committees for recruiting staff. The probation for a trained teacher should be one year. Teachers in high schools should be graduates with a degree in education.

The system of triple benefit schemes pension-cum provident fund-cum insurance should be introduced for teachers. Arbitration Boards or Committees should be established to consider the grievances or of matters relating to suspension, dismissal, etc. The age of retirement may extend to 60 with the approval of the Director of Education.

The children of teachers should have free education. The teachers should be given free medical attention and treatment. The practice of private tuition by teachers should be abolished.

There should be only two types of training institutions, for holders of B.S.C. (two years) and for graduates (one year to start with, later for two years). The first type should be under the control of a Board and the second attached to a university.

At these institutions teachers should be trained in at least one extra-curricular activity. The training college should conduct research in various aspects of pedagogy.

No fees should be charged in training schools. The student teachers should be given a stipend. The teachers already in service should get the same salary as they were getting.

To meet the shortage of women teachers special part-time training course should be provided.

There should be a Board of Secondary Education in every State with the Director as Chairman to lay down general policies. A Sub-Committee of the Board should deal with the conduct of examinations. There should be State Advisory Bodies on the model of the Central Advisory Board to advise the Department of Education.

Special Inspectors should be appointed to inspect the teaching of special subjects like Domestic Science, Art, Music.

In order to evaluate the academic side of the activities of a school there should be a panel of experts with the Inspector to go round.

The Managing Boards of schools should be registered. The head-master should be an ex-officio member. Every management should draw up definite rules of service for teachers.

For proper running every management should be required to provide an endowment, and the income accruing from this should be shown among the receipts. The scales of fees fixed should be approved by the Department of Education. All accounts of the school should be subject to audit by the Department.

The number of sections in each class should be limited, and before any increase in the number is made the prior approval of the Department should be obtained.

There should be rules to prevent undue competition among schools.

Managements should obtain the prior approval of the Department before opening a school.

In designing buildings there should be allowed an area of not less than 10 sq. ft. per student in the class rooms. The optimum number of boys in a class should be 30, and the number should not in any case exceed 40. The optimum number in the whole school should be 500, while the maximum should not exceed 750.

Co-operative stores should be established in all schools so that books, stationery, etc. may be made available to students at cost price.

As a rule the total number of working days should not be less than 200, the working hours per week should be at least 35 periods of about 45 minutes each. The school should work regularly for six days in the week, one of the days being a half day on which students and teachers meet informally and work on various extra-curricular and social projects.

School holidays need not be identical with public holidays. Normally during the year there should be a summer vacation of two months, and two breaks of ten to fifteen days at suitable periods during the year.

A Board of Vocational Education should be constituted at the Centre.

A cess called industrial education cess should be levied to promote vocational education. A certain proportion of the net revenue of certain nationalized industries (railways, e.g.) should be set aside for the same purpose. Surplus funds from religious and charitable endowments should be diverted to educational purposes.

The Centre should assume a certain amount of direct responsibility for the contemplated reorganization and give financial aid.

ALL-INDIA COUNCIL FOR TECHNICAL EDUCATION

THE All-India Council for Technical Education was constituted in 1946 with representatives of the various interests connected with technical education and training, to advise the Government on the development of technical education above the high school stage with the late Nalini Ranjan Sarker as the Chairman.

The Council does not, however, have any executive, administrative or controlling power.

By sending out questionnaires to various institutions, Universities and State Governments, the Council first made an exhaustive survey of technical education facilities in the country.

The result of this survey was published in the form of a hand-book, which is now under revision.

While the post-war plans formulated by the various State Governments specially devoted themselves to the development of Government institutions, the Council took up the question of improving and strengthening non-Government institutions as well. Thus the Co-ordinating Committee of the Council at its very first meeting appointed Visiting Committees to visit 15 selected institutions throughout the country and report on the lines along which improvement and development were necessary.

The scheme, known as the All-India Council for Technical Education Scheme for strengthening and improvement of existing non-Government institutions, has resulted in the raising of standards in those institutions, apart from providing additional equipment and facilities for an increased number of students.

The Scheme was approved by the Government and put into operation in 1947-48.

The following aggregate expenditure were approved for this purpose :

1. Non-recurring grants for construction of buildings	Rs. 54.96 Lakhs.
2. Non-recurring grants for purchase of equipment	Rs. 107.26 Lakhs.
Total	Rs. 162.22 Lakhs.
3. Ultimate recurring grants	Rs. 25.45 Lakhs.
4. Interest-free loan grants	Rs. 37.67 Lakhs.
Grand Total	Rs. 225.34 Lakhs.

The building programme under the Scheme is almost complete, and a substantial part of the equipment programme has also been gone through.

The Planning Commission has made a provision of Rs. 3.55 crores for carrying out an all-round development of technical education and research in the country in the following courses :

1. Post-graduate courses. Advanced work and research.
2. Under-graduate courses (Degree and Diploma) full time :
 - (a) Basic engineering and technological subjects.
 - (b) Special subjects—Printing technology, Silk technology, Woollen Textile technology, etc.
 - (c) Architecture and Town Planning.

3. Part-time courses.
4. Teachers' Training.
5. Loans for construction of Hostels.

The Barker Committee appointed to consider the development of higher technical institutions in India suggested the establishment of four Higher Technical Institutions on Regional Basis. The All-India Council for Technical Education recommended that two of these should be set up during the quinquennium 1946-51, but there was some delay in implementation.

However the first institution, viz. the Eastern Higher Technical Institute designated the Indian Institute of Technology, Kharagpur was formally declared open by the Central Minister for Education in August 1950. The foundation stone of the main college building was laid in March 1952 by the Prime Minister.

The Council appointed a Technical Man-power Committee in 1951 under the Chairmanship of Mr. G. L. Mehta to assess the country's requirements for technical man-power over the next five years.

The Council has also given a lead on the question of salary scales for teachers of various grades in the technological institutions.

At the first meeting of the Council it was decided to set up four Regional Committees, one for each region—the Eastern, the Western, the Southern and the Northern.

Government has already set up two offices, one in Calcutta and the other in Bombay with Regional Officers to do the preliminary work in regard to the setting up of Committees in the Eastern and the Western Regions.

The Regional Committees have been formed and are charged with the function of examining the question of improvement of the existing under-graduate institutions in consultation with the State Governments and preparing a plan about how the required development could be brought about.

The Regional Committees are also to foster close liaison between technical institutions and the industry to their mutual advantage.

The Council hopes to secure paid, well-supervised practical training facilities for a majority of graduates and diplomates in engineering and technology.

As regards the laying down of standards, the Council at its first meeting held in 1946, constituted six Boards of Studies in Engineering and Metallurgy, Chemical Engineering and Chemical Technology, Textile Technology, Architecture, Applied Arts, Commerce and Business Administration.

To these Boards were assigned the task of examining the existing regulations and syllabuses for technical training and to draw up all-India schemes for the award of diplomas and certificates by the Council. Directives were also given to the Board by the Council regarding the standards for the national diploma and the national certificate courses and also generally with regard to the nature of the courses.

At the instance of the Council, a Joint Committee of the Inter-University Board and the Council has been set up to review the standards of education in the Universities and this Committee, after taking into account the courses drawn-up by the Boards of Studies of the Council as also by the various Universities, has formulated a scheme of training in engineering and technology.

According to the scheme formulated by the Co-ordinating Committee, the All-India Council has a number of responsibilities such as the co-ordination and ensuring of standards in various technical institutions, recognition of technical institutions, conducting or recognising examinations for the purpose of conferment of awards, making arrangements for teaching of technical and allied subjects and for research in these subjects.

PUBLIC HEALTH

PUBLIC health is a State subject.

The Central Ministry of Public Health administers quarantine in ports, controls quality of imported drugs, and promotes research. It also gives advice, collects information and acts as a co-ordinating and liaison agency. The department which deals with public health under the Central Government is called Directorate-General of Health Services.

The main facts (based on Government report) are given below:

About 8,80,000 persons are engaged in medical and health services in the country as a whole. Out of this 2,80,000 live in towns and 1,50,000 live in villages. These may be divided as follows*:

Registered medical practitioners (91,030); Vaid, hakims and those not registered (96,147); Compounders (38,407); Nurses (31,517); Midwives (23,938); Vaccinators (5,928); Dentists (3,283); Others engaged in hospitals and private establishments rendering medical or health services but not including scavengers or sanitary staff (72,970).

Number of hospitals, 8,601 (1951); no. of beds, 1,13,557 (1951); no. of nursing homes, 500 (1952); no. of medical colleges (including 3 dental colleges, 3 nursing, one pharmacy), 34 (1952); no. of colleges for indigenous systems, 50 (1952); no. of special institutions (e.g., radiological) conducted by private agencies, 195; no. of maternity and child welfare centres (urban) 684, (rural) 418 (1947); no. of trained visitors (urban) 231, (rural) 136 (1947); no. of trained midwives (urban) 922, (rural) 255 (1947); no. of trained dais (urban) 1,264, (rural) 1,387 (1947).

The position in relation to health services (1947) in urban areas is as follows:—

Number of medical health officers, whole-time, 164, part-time, 23; no. of medical licentiates, whole-time, 137, part-time, 6; no. of sanitary and health inspectors, 1,194; no. of vaccinators (male) 809, female 55; no. of inspectors of vaccination, 60; no. of school medical officers, 60; other health staff, 1,294.

The position in relation to health services in 1947 in rural areas was as follows:

Number of medical health officers, whole-time, 132, part-time, 4; no. of medical licentiates, whole-time, 194, part-time, 2; epidemic staff, 832; no. of sanitary and health inspectors, 1,367; no. of vaccinators, male, 4,081, female, 73; no. of school medical officers, 29; other health staff, 1,466.

VITAL STATISTICS

In 1947 as many as 1,066,269 persons died of malaria (996,176 in rural areas). About 20 lakh persons suffer from tuberculosis and about 5 lakhs die annually. During 1947 as many as 371,045 died of respiratory diseases and 47,639 of pulmonary tuberculosis in Part A

States and the Part C States of Ajmer Coorg and Delhi.

Plague.—States which may be said to have a serious plague problem are U.P., Bihar and Madhya Pradesh. The number of deaths from plague in some States are as follows:—

State	1946	1947	1948	1949	1950
U.P. ..	18,206	51,455	13,722	Not available.	Not available.

M.P.	2,902	2,560	3,475	5,568
Madras	150	Not available.
Punjab	1,905	211	241	..

Cholera.—The total number of deaths from cholera are as follows: 1940—86,133; 1941—228,141; 1942—218,489; 1943—459,829; 1944—294,191; 1945—278,309; 1946—162,870; 1949—74,826.

Leprosy.—States in which leprosy is most prevalent are Assam, Bihar, Hyderabad, Madhya Pradesh, Madras, Orissa, West Bengal, Travancore-Cochin. It is estimated that there are about 12 lakh lepers in the country, about three-fourths of the cases being of the mild type and non-infective.

Malaria.—It is estimated that there are at least 100 million people suffering from malaria at any time in the country, and that out of 8 million deaths in a year at least 2 million are caused directly or indirectly by malaria. The number of deaths for 1947 was 1,066,269. Out of these 996,176 were in the rural areas.

The number of persons, treated in hospitals and dispensaries and (in brackets) of those who died in hospital are given below. The year for which the figures are quoted is 1948:

Animal parasites—287,926 (49); Beri beri—84,689 (41); Cholera—47,659 (6,172); Digestive diseases—3,270,402 (1,338); Diarrhoea—1,574,068 (2,914); Dysentery—1,220,814 (2,639); Dyspepsia—165,998 (20); Ear diseases—

2,802,372 (47); Eye diseases—4,105,411 (84); Gonorrhoea—248,222 (42); Injuries—2,614,952 (6,773); Labour (abnormal)—40,531 (1,808); Labour (normal)—210,652 (604); Liver abscess—17,470 (274); Liver diseases (other than abscess)—221,208 (1,184); Malaria—8,005,038 (1,823); Nervous diseases—1,090,822 (1,855); Respiratory diseases (except pneumonia and lung tuberculosis)—3,812,759 (1,741); Rheumatic fever and rheumatism—299,027 (50); Skin diseases—2,059,882 (221); Small-pox—5,638 (388); Syphilis—232,315 (301); Tuberculosis of the lung—200,960 (4,048); Tuberculosis, other than of lung—79,917 (1,020); Ulcers—3,113,410 (678).

INSTITUTIONS

A Central Council of Health has been constituted with the Union Health Minister as chairman and State Health Ministers as members. The Deputy Director-General of Health Services is the Secretary.

The All-India Council of Post-graduate Medical Education prescribes standards for post-graduate medical education.

The body in charge of research is the Indian Council of Medical Research. The following institutes and laboratories may be mentioned:

Malaria Institute of India (New Delhi); All-India Institute of Hygiene and Public Health (Calcutta); Cancer Research Centre (Tata

* Exclusive of five districts in Bihar (Monghyr, Bhagalpur, Saharsa, Purnea, Santhal Pargana). Also see under "Population".

Memorial Hospital (Bombay); Tuberculosis Institute (Delhi University); Central Drugs Research Institute (Lucknow); Virus Research Centre (Poona); Rabies Research Centre (Kasaali); Central Institute for Research in Indigenous Medicine (Jamnagar).

The chest Institute of Delhi University may also be mentioned here.

The laboratories are: B.C.G. Vaccine Laboratory (Gulindy, Madras); Central Drugs Laboratory (Calcutta); Serologist Laboratory (Calcutta); Central Research Institute (Kasaali).

There are four main medical depots—one each at Bombay, Calcutta, Karnal and Madras. The depots at Bombay and Madras have factories attached to them.

Among important Acts in force are Vaccination Act, Drugs Act of 1940, Drugs Rules of 1945. Then there are the Indian Medical Council Act, the Nursing Act of 1947, the Dentist Act, the Pharmacy Act.

The following medical bodies are in existence: The Indian Medical Council, the Nursing Council, the Dental Council, the Pharmacy Council.

CONTROL OF DISEASES

Steps are being taken to control a number of diseases that are rampant.

For malaria, there are four control schemes in Terai (U.P.), Jaipur Hill Tracts (Orissa), Malnad (Mysore), Ernad (Madras). The cost of each scheme is shared by the Central Government, the State Government, the WHO and the UNICEF. The Malaria Institute is also engaged in malaria control work with the assistance of the Indo-American Fund (Point Four Programme). The Technical Assistance Authority has offered DDT, vehicles and spraying equipment.

A number of bodies are fighting to control leprosy—Mission to Lepers, Hind Kushia Nivaran Sangh (formerly Indian Council of the British Empire Leprosy Relief Association), Gandhi Memorial Leprosy Foundation, Kasturba Gandhi Trust, Maharogi Sewa Mandal.

The Mission runs 50 leper homes with about 10,000 inmates and gets a grant from State Governments.

The Sangh has as its president the President of the Indian Republic. It carries on research work at the School of Tropical Medicine at Calcutta, conducts courses in post-graduate training in leprosy, undertakes surveys.

The mainstay in the treatment of leprosy has been injections of chaulmoogra (hydnocarpus) oil or its preparations. Recently encouraging results have been reported by the use of certain sulphone drugs such as "Promine" and "Diasone".

The Sir Profulla Chandra Research Laboratory and the connected Bengal Chemical and Pharmaceutical Works Ltd., Calcutta, have commenced production of an anti-leprosy drug called "Novotrone". Both the mother sulphone (Diamino-Diphenyl-Sulphone) called "Novophone" and a soluble derivative called "Novotrone", which is of the same composition of the well known compound Sulphatone prepared by Burroughs Wellcome & Co., London are being manufactured.

The only sure method of preventing contact with infective cases is the isolation of cases in leprosy hospitals, sanatoria, or colonies. There are in all about 129 colonies, homes, asylums and hospitals for the treatment of leprosy patients and the number of beds provided is estimated at 17,000.

Treatment in out-patient leprosy clinics is also available in various parts of India. The number of such clinics is approximately 1,000 and the total number of cases taking treatment therein is roughly 60,000 per year.

As for tuberculosis, about 100 anti-T.B. teams are working in the country. By the end of July 1953 about 16 million persons were tested and five and a half million persons were vaccinated with B.C.G. The serum is now manufactured at Gulindy in Madras. There are three centres at Delhi, Patna and Trivandrum for studying the incidence and spread of the disease, while at Delhi University there is a T.B. Institute.

The maternal and child mortality as already indicated is high—the maternity death rate is about 20 and infant mortality about 130.

In all States welfare activities are in progress. There are posts of maternity and child welfare officers in Madras, West Bengal, Orissa, Assam, Delhi, U.P., Punjab, Madhya Pradesh and Hyderabad. The Government of India has an officer in the Directorate-General of Health Services who gives special attention to maternity and child welfare problems. In Bihar work is done by the Bihar Maternity and Child Welfare Society and in Bombay the Bombay Mothers and Children's Welfare Society. There is a model demonstration centre at Najafgarh near Delhi.

Non-official bodies engaged in welfare work are the Association of Medical Aid to Women by Women, and the Indian Red Cross which has a special bureau. The Bureau administers the funds of the Victoria Memorial Scholarships which amount to six and a half lakhs. The income is expended as grants-in-aids to training schemes for rural midwives.

DEFECTIVES

The last census of handicapped persons (blind, deaf, crippled, mentally retarded, etc.), took place in 1931. These put the number of blind at about 600,000 and the number of deaf and hard-of-hearing at 200,000.

It is estimated that today the total number of blind is about 1,800,000 and the deaf about 600,000.

There is a Training Centre for the Adult Blind at Dehra Dun to impart vocational training. There is also a common Braille code for Indian languages known as Bharati Braille. A central Braille Printing Press has been established at Dehra Dun. It has already published several Braille books in Hindi.

There is a journal called Deepavali, devoted to the welfare of the blind. Its opposite number for the deaf is called The Deaf in India. For training deaf and dumb children the Lady Noyce School for the Deaf and Dumb in New Delhi has been provincialized. The Children's Aid Society Home at New Delhi which has also been provincialized takes care of neglected and destitute children.

The number of mental cases is about one million, mental defectives one and a half million, of psycho-neurotics about three million.

At present there are 32 mental hospitals with accommodation for about 10,500 patients. One of these in Madras is reserved for criminal lunatics only.

The Mysore Government Mental Hospital at Bangalore and the Hospital for Mental Diseases at Ranchi are the ones which are best equipped.

The following is a list of mental hospitals in India:

Mental Hospital, Tezpur; Inter-Provincial Mental Hospital, Kanke, Ranchi; Indian Mental Hospital, Kanke, Ranchi; N. M. Mental Hospital, Thana (Bombay); Mental Hospital, Ratnagiri (Bombay); Central Mental Hospital, Yeravda; Mental Hospital, Ahmedabad; Mental Hospital, Dharwar; Mental Hospital, Baroda; Mental Hospital, Nagpur; Government Mental Hospital, Madras; Government Mental Hospital, Waltair; Government Mental Hospital, Kozhikode; Punjab Mental Hospital, Amritsar; Mental Hospital, Agra; Mental Hospital, Bareilly; Mental Hospital, Banaras; Mental Hospital, Mankunda, Calcutta; Lambini Park Mental Hospital, P.O. SHORE COMMITTEE'S PLAN

The key report for public health is the one submitted by the Health Survey and Development Committee appointed by the Government of India in October, 1943 under the chairmanship of Sir Joseph Shore. The Committee was to make a survey of existing health conditions in the sub-continent and to formulate plans for future health development.

In putting forward its recommendations the Committee kept in view a scheme, which when fully developed, should provide each individual in the country with adequate medical care, curative and preventive, irrespective of his ability to pay for such services.

The scheme visualized by the Committee is as follows:

The district health organisation will have as its smallest unit of administration a primary unit which will normally serve a population of 10,000 to 20,000. About 15 to 20 such primary units will together constitute a secondary unit and a varying number of the latter (3 to 5) will form the district health unit, the designation suggested by the Committee for the district health organisation.

At each of the headquarters of the district, secondary and primary health units will be established. A Health Centre from which will radiate the different forms of health activity into the territory covered by each type of unit. The provision made for medical relief and preventive health work at each of these Health Centres will increase in scope and efficiency from the primary unit to the district health unit.

The District Health Centre will possess general and special hospitals with a total bed strength of about 2,500 and all the consultant and laboratory services required for the diagnosis and treatment of disease on up-to-date lines. The Secondary Health Centre will have a hospital with 650 beds and the primary unit headquarters a 75-bed hospital.

A system of ambulances and telephone connections between these three types of hospitals will help to promote the fullest utilisation of the higher types of service available at the larger institutions by the people living in the remoter parts of the district.

These hospitals will also take an active part in the preventive health campaign. They will be linked with the field health organisations in respect of such services as those for tuberculosis, for mothers and children or for venereal diseases.

The Committee made it plain that no health development plan could produce adequate results unless sufficient measures were taken for the provision of a healthy environment for community life, such as safe water-supply, hygienic houses, a satisfactory system of conservancy and proper supervision over the production, distribution and sale of food intended for public consumption. Specific recommendations were put forward in respect of these.

In order to secure the active support of the people, the establishment of a Health Committee in every village was recommended.

FIVE-YEAR PLAN

Total allotment—Rs. 99.5 crores.

It is proposed that the country should have one doctor for every 2,000 persons, one nurse for 500, one midwife for 4,000.

The schemes envisaged: provision of water supply and drainage, control of malaria, care of health of the rural population through health and mobile units, health services for women and children, training of more doctors and nurses, research in indigenous systems of medicine, setting up of one factory for the manufacture of anti-biotics, and two for the manufacture of D.D.T.

Allotment for 125 malaria control teams—Rs. 15 crores.

Research in indigenous medicine—Rs. 37.5 lakhs.

SOCIAL WORK IN INDIA

THE period under foreign rule witnessed a destruction of the older social structure in India. In the newer structure that emerged a number of reforms and institutions were introduced by bodies like the Brahmo Samaj, the Prarthana Samaj, the Ramkrishna Mission and the Arya Samaj. Though these organisations were in the nature of religious orders, they took it as a part of their faith to serve the needy and the suffering. The Arya Samaj and the Ramkrishna Mission sponsored social reforms, established orphanages, widows' homes, free dispensaries and relief centres in periods of emergency.

During this period pioneering work in many neglected fields of service, e.g. founding homes, leper asylums and institutions for the maimed and the handicapped, was undertaken by Christian missionaries in the country.

By 1920 Mahatma Gandhi's contribution began to gain recognition throughout the country. He provided for a number of constructive social welfare programmes through organisations like the Harijan Sewak Sangh, All India Village Industries Association, Charkha Sangh, the Hindustani Talimi Sangh, Goseva Sangh, and the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust, etc.

The late '30s saw the formation of the first popular Ministries in eleven provinces in India. During the same period professional social work began to be recognised with the starting of the Sir Dorabji Tata Graduate School of Social Work in the year 1936.

The new profession generally covers the following fields of social work: Community Welfare Services; Family, Child and Youth Welfare Service; Public Welfare Administration; Social Security Services; Services for the mal-adjusted and handicapped groups; Social Defence and Correctional Administration; Services for Emergency Relief and Rehabilitation; Social Legislation and Social Action; Social Research; Training in Social Work.

The attitude of the Indian Government towards State responsibility for social welfare is reflected in Part IV of the Constitution which lays down the "Directive Principles of State Policy", as follows:—

"The State shall strive to promote the welfare of the people by securing and protecting as effectively as it may, a social order in which justice, social, economic, and political, shall inform all the institutions of the national life."

SOCIAL LEGISLATION

Social legislation on an all-India scale dates back to 1843 when the first law abolishing slavery was passed. The earlier laws sought to reform the evil social practices existing at the time, practices such as Sati, infanticide, and child marriage. Later, social legislation began to assume a more positive and constructive role. Laws for better working conditions in factories, laws providing maternity benefits, for the abolition of traffic in women and children, and laws for the protection and care of destitute and delinquent children have all received attention in the first half of this century.

The post-independence years have seen an unprecedented increase in social legislation. Among the laws framed by the Government have been the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, the Factories Act (revised), the Coal Mines Provident Fund and Bonus Scheme Act, the Minimum Wages Act, the Employees' State Insurance Act of 1948; the Plantation Labour Act, 1951; the Mines Act and the Provident Fund Act, 1952. The Hindu Code Bill seeks to deal with the questions of marriage, divorce, inheritance by women, etc.

In India, the Central Government does not have a special Ministry or department for social welfare. The Ministries of Health, Education, Labour and Agriculture undertake several important social services.

A Planning Commission was set up in March 1950 by the Government of India and was entrusted with the over-all assessment of resources and planning for economic and social welfare. Chapter XXXVI of the Planning Commission's Report outlines an approach to matters of social welfare in India.

There is no system of giving cash relief in India that corresponds to the programmes of Public Assistance of various countries.

The Employees' State Insurance Act when fully implemented will benefit three million industrial workers in the country in the matter of injury, ill-health, etc.

The Employees Provident Fund Bill was passed early in 1952. This measure covers 1.6 million industrial workers.

Matters regarding health services have been covered in detail by the Bhore Committee Report, those concerning Labour are dealt with under a separate section in this book.

The question of traffic in women and children has received the attention of the Government but in the absence of adequate legislation and rehabilitation services, an abolitionist policy has not been enforced on a country-wide basis. Some of the larger cities have programmes dealing with prostitution to private agencies. Those co-operating with the Government in this work are given government grants-in-aid. The work of the Vigilance Association of Madras and Bombay is an example of the co-operative effort of Government and voluntary agencies.

Minimum standards for conditions in prisons are not laid down for the country as a whole. However, in 1952, an All Indian Conference of the Inspectors-General of Prisons was convened in Bombay under the Chairmanship of Dr. W. C. Reekless, a U.N. Expert on Criminology and Correctional administration. The Conference has made several important recommendations in regard to the revision of the Jail Manuals. In this connection, certain important recommendations have also been made by the Planning Commission.

The Ministry of Education of the Central Government has recently sought to formulate a co-ordinated programme to tackle juvenile delinquency. The plan is to include Juvenile Courts, Remand Homes, Schools and a probation and parole system. A Children's Act to be applied to centrally administered part C States is on the anvil.

An All India Society for the Prevention and Treatment of Crime was established in 1950 with Lucknow as its headquarters.

The average annual expenditure visualised in the First Five Year Plan under social education is of the order of Rs. 3.02 crores. The All India Adult Education Association is the Central Co-ordinating agency in this field.

Anti-beggary acts have been passed in Madras, Uttar Pradesh, Hyderabad, Travancore-Cochin, West Bengal, Mysore, Madhya Pradesh, and the Punjab. Institutional care for beggars is provided in a few of the States to a very meagre extent.

The Government of India are keenly aware of the special difficulties and problems of the 19 million tribal people in India. In accordance with the Constitution, a Special Officer for Scheduled Castes and Tribes has been appointed by the President. For an interim period of ten years special reservations in the legislature and the services have been made for members of Scheduled Castes and Tribes. An expert committee of the Indian Conference of Social Work published a memorandum in 1952 making several recommendations on Tribal Welfare. The Backward Class Commission appointed in 1953 is to prepare the schedule and a sum of Rs. 28.9 crores has been provided in the Plan for the amelioration of the Scheduled Castes and Tribes.

Rural reconstruction work has been entrusted to the State governments. Notable among these projects is the U.P. Government rural development programme in Etawah and another in Sholapur in Bombay State. A rural Firka Development project is under way in Madras. The Governments of Assam and Bombay have also implemented rural reconstruction schemes.

The Central Government Ministry of Education opened a Rural Janata College near Delhi; this is an experiment in acquainting rural workers with newer techniques and methods of work in consonance with the particular local setting. The Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust has a country-wide network of women and child welfare centres in the rural areas, which comprised over 18 training centres, 57 medical centres and 200 rural welfare centres.

The Social Welfare section of the Planning Commission and the Central Social Welfare Board proposed under the Plan are expected to meet the need for research and furnish information to some extent. A provision of Rs. 50 lakhs has been made in the Plan for research and investigations relating to social, economic and administrative problems of national development amongst the voluntary organisations. The Indian Conference of Social Work seeks to fulfil this need.

The following tables quoted from "An Essay on National Income and Expenditure in India" by Dr. B. Natarajan of Madras, illustrates the budgetary provisions in Part A States in regard to social services:

VOLUNTARY SOCIAL WORK

The groups of voluntary social work in India largely fall under the following heads: State Administrators and officials; Trained or Professional social workers; Missionaries; The Gandhian social workers; and Voluntary social workers belonging to the various private agencies.

Of these the religious believe in the traditional form of charity; the Missionaries in institutionalised social work, the Gandhian in the 14-point constructive programme, and the other voluntary workers in secular service on humanitarian grounds.

The group of professionally trained social workers is small though more compact. This group consists of some 500 alumni and teachers of the four post-graduate schools of social work in India, viz., The Tata Institute of Social Sciences in Bombay, Delhi University School of Social Work, the Faculty of Social Work of the M. S. University of Baroda and the section on Social Sciences in Shri Kashi Vidyapeeth, Banaras. In the last mentioned institute the medium of instruction is Hindi.

The establishment of the Indian Conference of Social Work at a meeting of over 450 social workers assembled in Bombay in November 1947 marks a significant development in the field of social work in India. The Conference undertakes and promotes the study of social problems and endeavours to foster co-operation, collaboration and co-ordination amongst social service agencies in India and abroad.

Other All India social service bodies working are mentioned below:—

There is also a South-East Asia Regional Office of the International Conference of Social Work which has been established in conjunction with the Indian Conference of Social Work in Bombay.

The Government of India have given evidence of their interest in social work by setting up in the Planning Commission a special section for social services. In 1950 the Ministry of Education, Government of India, appointed an All India Social Welfare Advisory Board to give advice on important matters pertaining to social welfare work in the country.

In March 1953 an All India Conference for the improvement of the conditions of the former Criminal Tribes was held in New Delhi; the Central Government announced a grant of Rs. 30 lakhs for this work.

Towards the work of Child Welfare the UNICEF voted a grant of 1,370,000 dollars to India. The total allocation to India amounts to 8½ million dollars.

The Ford Foundation have established 34 training centres for the multi-purpose village level workers.

In the field of training in social work, the Government of India set up a committee for standardisation of courses in social work at the post-graduate level. This was followed up by the Indian Conference of Social Work which appointed a Committee representative of the four post-graduate schools of social work and a few prominent voluntary workers to recommend courses in social work to suit the needs of the country at different levels and different settings.

The following institutions already afford training at the post-graduate level:—

1. The Tata Institute of Social Sciences (105-9, Ghodbunder Road, Andheri, Bombay).
2. The Delhi School of Social Work (3, University Road, Delhi 8).
3. The Faculty of Social Work (The M.S. University of Baroda, Baroda).
4. The Institute of Social Sciences (Shri Kashi Vidyapeeth, Banaras Cantt., U.P.).

GOVERNMENT GRANTS

Grants totalling Rs. 8,60,000 have been approved by the Central Social Welfare Board to 239 institutions all over India as the first instalment of assistance which the Board proposes to provide to voluntary welfare organisations in the country.

Grants have been made for different types of social welfare work, including welfare of women and children, of delinquents and the physically and mentally handicapped and for general welfare activities.

Out of the Rs. 8,60,000 approved by the Board, Rs. 2,08,000 has gone to 60 institutions for the welfare of handicapped and delinquent children, Rs. two lakhs to 57 institutions for the welfare of women, Rs. 58,000 to 47 institutions for the welfare of children and the balance of Rs. 2,94,000 to 75 institutions carrying on general welfare activities.

In making the grants, the Board has emphasised that the assistance is mainly intended for the improvement and expansion of welfare activities. They are being made for programmes extending over a period of one year.

For future years, grants will depend upon applications received on satisfactory reports from institutions which have already received aid.

In considering applications for assistance the Board has been guided by certain general principles, namely:

A. Direct assistance to programmes of welfare should receive maximum attention;

B. Care should be taken to see that all parts of the country are properly served and under-developed areas are brought to a level, as far as possible, with the rest of the country;

C. Grants should normally be made on a matching basis, that is, on condition that the grant sanctioned by the Board will not be available unless the applicant organisation manages to raise a certain percentage from other sources; and

D. In sanctioning grants, the Board should pay due regard to the nature and scope of the programmes, the problems to be tackled, the nature and extent of participants to and beneficiaries of the programme, the extent and sources of existing income and the development potential of the organisation and its programme.

HINDU LAW REFORM

A short note on Hindu Law reform is in order as it concerns the welfare of the women of this country.

As a result of increasing consciousness on the part of Indian women of their social and political status, there has in recent years been a move to revise and codify the somewhat vague and contradictory law governing the Hindu home, especially as it affects marriage, divorce, succession to property, etc.

In 1937 the Indian Legislature enacted the Hindu Women's Rights to Property Act. This Act, for the first time, gave to Hindu widows a right to claim a share in the husband's property and demand partition.

Four years later the Government of India set up a Committee to overhaul and codify the Hindu Law. This Committee, which is known as the Rau Committee, drafted two bills dealing with Hindu intestate succession and Hindu marriage.

When the measures came up for consideration by the two Houses of the Central Legislature, a joint committee of the Houses recommended the revival of the Rau Committee with a view to the codification of the entire Hindu Law. Consequently the Rau Committee was revived early in 1944. During 1944-45, the Committee made a tour of the country and elicited public opinion on the proposals embodied in the two measures and on the codification of the Hindu Law as a whole. They gathered evidence from leading lawyers and representative organisations of various shades of Hindu opinion on a draft Hindu Code prepared by them.

During the last five years, the Central and the Provincial Legislatures passed various Acts, which aimed at improving the condition of Hindu women.

The Hindu Marriage Disabilities Removal Act of 1946, legalises marriages between Hindus belonging to the same Gotra or Pravara.

The Hindu Married Women's Right to separate residence and maintenance Act of 1946 enables a married Hindu woman to claim from her husband separate residence and maintenance on certain grounds.

The Hindu Marriage Validating Act, 1949 removes the caste-barriers from the sphere of marriages and validates even the Pratiloma marriages.

The Child Marriage Restraint (Amendment) Act of 1949 raises the marriage age of girls from 14 to 15 years.

In the State of Bombay, monogamy is made a rule by the Prevention of Hindu Bigamous Marriage Act of 1946, and dissolution of marriages by divorce is allowed under certain conditions by the Bombay Hindu Divorce Act of 1947.

The Madras Legislature passed the Madras Devadasis (Prevention of Dedication) Act in 1947. This Act puts an end to the unhealthy practice of dedicating Hindu women as 'devadasis' to Hindu deities.

Bombay Hindu Women's Right to Property Act (Extension to Agricultural Land) extends the application of the Hindu Women's Right to Property Act, 1938 to agricultural land also. A similar law has been passed in Madras.

Though the Hindu Code Bill has been dropped, the Government of India have introduced in Parliament Bills affecting Hindu Law.

The special Marriage Bill of 1951 seeks to replace the Special Marriage Act of 1872, with a view to removing certain defects in the Act.

The Hindu Marriage and Divorce Bill of 1952 aims at laying down a uniform law regarding marriage and divorce for all Hindus.

The Hindu Minority and Guardianship Bill of 1953 seeks to regularise the law regarding guardianship.

A private member of Parliament has introduced in the House a bill aiming at the abolition of the dowry system.

The Government of Bombay have introduced a Bill in the Legislative Assembly, providing for registration of marriages.

In the state of Madras, there is an Act preventing bigamous marriages and providing for divorce. The Act is called The Madras Hindu (Bigamy Prevention and Divorce) Act.

A bill has also been introduced in the Legislative Assembly of Madhya Pradesh, aiming at preventing bigamous marriages.

THE CO-OPERATIVE MOVEMENT

THERE were 181,189 societies of all types at the end of 1950-51 as against 173,084 societies at the end of 1949-50. In the same period, the membership of primary societies rose from 12.6 million to 13.7 million covering 19.1 per cent of the population. The total working capital of all types of societies showed a sizable increase from Rs. 233.10 crores to Rs. 275.85 crores.

There has been a marked increase in the loans advanced by Primary societies, from Rs. 60.88 crores to Rs. 72.08 crores in Part 'A' States and from Rs. 10.49 crores to Rs. 11.78 crores in Part 'B' States mainly because of the large funds made available by the Reserve Bank. Overdues showed a downward trend from 12.6 per cent at the close of 1948-49 and 12.5 per cent at the end of 1949-50 to 11.7 per cent at the close of 1950-51. Still overdues were heavy in Bhopal (90.5%), Manipur (61%), Vindhya Pradesh (54.7%) and Jammu and Kashmir (45%).

At the apex level the increased demand for funds was met out of increased borrowings from the Reserve Bank, Governments and commercial banks which in all amounted to Rs. 8.34 crores as against Rs. 5.32 crores in the previous year.

The year also saw the establishment of an apex bank in Vindhya Pradesh.

Individual support to co-operative institutions was perceptible in the case of central banks which derived 67 per cent of their deposit from individuals and other sources excluding co-operatives.

A feature of primary agricultural credit societies was the fall in their number and the rise in their membership.

Overdues also showed a rise but were heavier in Bhopal (99.6%), Vindhya Pradesh (58%), West Bengal (57.2%), Jammu and Kashmir (54.5%), and Assam (46.5%).

Out of their total advances of Rs. 20.13 crores, Rs. 16.84 crores were accounted for by societies in Madras and Bombay.

The composition of working capital revealed a high degree of dependence of primaries on central financing agencies, owned funds and deposits representing 42 per cent and 11 per cent of the working capital.

In some cases the rates of interest are as high as 15 per cent (as in Uttar Pradesh and Bihar).

Co-operative Societies in the long-term credit sector are most unevenly distributed among different States. More than one-half of the States, including many Part 'B' and 'C' States have no land mortgage banks at all. And out of a total of 286 primary land mortgage banks for the whole country, as many as 129 are in Madras alone. Again out of Rs. 133 lakhs lent in 1950-51 by central land mortgage banks, 62 per cent was attributable to the Madras Central Land Mortgage Bank alone.

Agricultural non-credit co-operatives had a fairly successful record at the primary level. The composition of the working capital of non-agricultural credit societies which amounted to Rs. 56.78 crores showed a large element of deposits (61.8%). Owned funds were the next largest (30.8%) and loans were only 7.4 per cent.

During 1950-51, 3,187 societies were brought under liquidation, while liquidation proceedings came to a close in respect of 4,215 societies.

On June 30, 1951 as many as 8,819 societies were under liquidation. With liabilities amounting to Rs. 217.68 lakhs and assets amounting to Rs. 211.7 lakhs. The year, however, witnessed an increase in profits of as much as 72 per cent over the previous year.

Commenting on the position, the Reserve Bank of India observes: "The Co-operative movement is not evenly spread nor is it of the same texture and quality everywhere. In some States, there is no State Co-operative Bank at all; in others considerable re-organisation of the apex bank is necessary before it can function efficiently; or again, the central or district banks happen to be weak links in the chain. In almost all cases of undeveloped areas the primary credit structure is not satisfactory.

There are provincial Co-operative Institutes in many States. These are affiliated to the Indian Co-operative Union which in its turn is affiliated to the International Co-operative Alliance.

The Bombay Institute maintains a Co-operative Training College in Poona and regional co-operative schools and arranges training classes. To the Training College are admitted students from all over India under a training scheme of the Reserve Bank.

The movement in each State is administered by the Registrar, who looks to audit and supervision. There is however, a tendency now to delegate powers of audit to federal organizations. Part of supervision is done by Taluka unions.

During the year under review 1952-53 one significant development was a change in Government policy in regard to industrial relations. The new Labour Minister of the Government of India is due to introduce a fresh bill wherein the emphasis will be more on negotiation and agreement between the employers and labour than on awards or decisions by Tribunals.

Allotment under the Five-Year Plan .. Rs. 6.0 crores.

The inauguration of the Employees State Insurance Scheme in Kanpur and Delhi and the Employees' Provident Funds Scheme in selected industries has ushered in a new era for the industrial workers.

Although employment opportunities in the jute and cotton textiles increased during the year, there was a recession in the plantations resulting in large scale retrenchment and closures, particularly in Assam and Bengal.

The Planning Commission devoted considerable thought to policies and programmes for industrial development. Health, education, housing and social welfare for the masses find prominent place in the First Five-Year Plan. The Government of India finalised their scheme of subsidised industrial housing and made generous provision in their budget for the purpose. The most welcome feature of the period under review was the marked improvement in the labour situation and an all round increase in industrial production.

The Central co-ordinating authority in India for questions connected with labour legislation is the Ministry of Labour of the Government of India with the Labour Minister in charge. The administration of matters connected with the English and Indian Merchant Shipping Acts, the Mercantile Marine Department and Indian Seamen is with the Ministry of Transport. In respect of all the Railways, the Labour Minister is responsible for the administration of the Payment of Wages Act, 1936, trade disputes, hours of work for employees not covered by the Factories Act and regulation of employment of children. He is also responsible for regulation of labour and safety in respect of mines and oilfields; trade disputes in industries, businesses or undertakings carried on by the Central Government, and inter-State migration.

Among the more important Acts that govern labour conditions and relations in India are the following: 1. Indian Factories Act, 1948; 2. Indian Mines Act; 3. Payment of Wages Act; 4. Minimum Wages Act; 5. Workmen's Compensation Act; 6. Maternity Benefit Act (States); 7. Indian Trades Union Act; 8. Industrial Disputes Act, Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act; 9. Tea Districts Emigrant Labour Act; 10. Shop Assistants Acts (States); 11. Employees' State Insurance Act, and 12. Industrial Statistics Act.

FACTORIES ACT, 1948

The Act covers all industrial establishments employing 10 or more workers and using power and establishments employing 20 or more workers and not using power. The State Governments have been empowered to apply the provisions of the Act to any premises, irrespective of the number of persons employed, where a manufacturing process is carried on with or without the aid of power, except where the work is done by the worker solely with the aid of his family.

The Act prescribes that every factory should be kept clean and free from effluvia arising from drains, privies, etc., and lays down stipulations regarding sweeping, cleaning, disinfecting, white-washing, ventilation, temperature, drinking water, latrines, etc.

In existing factories 350 cubic feet of space should be provided for every workman. In new factories to be built the space for each workman shall be 500 cubic feet.

Elaborate provision regarding safety such as fencing of machinery, etc., has been laid down. Women and children are prohibited from employment on certain types of machinery.

Washing facilities for the workers, appliances for first-aid, rest shelters, canteens, etc., are prescribed under the Act. In every factory where 500 or more workers are employed the occupier shall employ Welfare Officers.

Weekly hours of work have been fixed at 48 and daily hours at 9. The maximum spread-over allowed is 10½ hours. No worker shall work for more than 5 hours before he has had an interval for rest of at least half an hour. Payment for overtime has been prescribed at double ordinary rate of wages. No woman shall be employed in any factory except between the hours of 6 a.m. and 7 p.m. A weekly day of rest has also been prescribed.

No child who has not completed his fourteenth year shall be required or allowed to work in any factory. A child who has completed his fourteenth year or an adolescent (a person who has not completed his eighteenth year) shall not be allowed to work in a factory unless a certificate of fitness by a certifying surgeon is in the custody of the manager of the factory and he carries while at work a token giving reference to such certificate. No 'child' shall be employed or permitted to work in any factory for more than 4½ hours in a day or between the hours of 7 p.m. and 6 a.m.

Every adult worker who has completed a period of 12 months' continuous service in a factory shall be allowed during the subsequent period of 12 months' leave with wages including dearness allowance for a period calculated at the rate of one day for every 20 days of work performed by him during the previous 12 months, subject to a minimum of 10 days. In the case of children the leave should be at the rate of one day for every 15 days of work subject to a minimum of 14 days.

Where any worker in a factory contracts any disease specified in the schedule appended to the Act, the manager of the factory shall send notice thereof to such authorities, and in such form and within such time, as may be prescribed.

The administration of the Act is left to the State Governments. The Central Government have set up an advisory organisation, namely the Office of the Chief Adviser, Factories.

A Factories Act (Amendment) Bill was introduced in the Council of States by the Labour Minister on September 3, 1953.

According to this Bill the meaning of 12 months' continuous service for eligibility for leave with pay would be 240 days service during a calendar year. Proportionate leave will be granted to those whose service starts after the beginning of the calendar year.

The annual leave with wages will be exclusive of holidays during or immediately before or after the period of leave.

The leave can be carried forward from one calendar year to another provided the maximum does not exceed 30 days in the case of an adult and 40 days in the case of a child.

No prior notice will be necessary when a worker requires leave to cover a period of illness.

The Bill permits six hours' work at a stretch without any interval when the total number of hours to be worked on any day in a shift does not exceed six.

The Bill also permits newspaper printing presses to work their entire night shift of six hours at a stretch.

It allows a worker a maximum of 50 overtime hours in a quarter year which is deemed to have begun on the first day of January, April, July or October.

It enables continuous employment of workers in case some of the subsequent shift workers do not turn up in time.

For the purpose of computing the rate of wages of a person who takes advantage of the concessional sale of foodgrains and other articles the basis will be the maximum ration admissible to a standard family of a specific number of consumption units.

Women and children will be prohibited from working in factories at night.

Women and children will also be prohibited from cleaning, lubricating or adjusting any prime mover of transmission machinery while it is in motion if such work exposes them to risk of injury.

Certain presses including Government presses will come within the purview of the Factories Act.

* For sub-divisions see under "Population".

FACTORY STATISTICS

Under the provisions of the Factories Act, 1948, registered factories submit annual and half yearly returns on employment to the Chief Inspectors of Factories in the various States. All-India figures are compiled by the Labour Bureau and are published in the Indian Labour Gazette.

The number of factories on registers during 1950 and 1951, was 31,869 and 35,343 respectively.

The following table sets out the statistics of the average daily numbers of persons employed in factories during the year 1950.

MINES ACT

With a view to amending and consolidating the law relating to the regulation of labour and safety in mines, the Mines Act, 1952 was passed and brought into force from July 1952. The Act extends to the whole of India except Jammu and Kashmir. The Act restricts the hours of work for adults to 9 per day and 48 per week above ground and 8 per day and 48 per week below ground. Overtime work below ground should be paid for at twice the ordinary rate and above ground at 1½ times the ordinary rate. The Act prohibits the employment of children below 15 years of age. It also prohibits the employment of women in any part of a mine which is below the ground level. Women can be employed above ground only between the hours of 6 a.m. and 7 p.m. Adolescents who have not completed 18 years of age are not allowed to work underground unless they are certified fit to work as adults. Adolescents not certified fit to work as adults should not be allowed to work for more than 4½ hours a day.

Annual leave with wages for a period of 14 days in a year in the case of monthly-paid employees and 7 days in the case of weekly-paid employees and piece workers is granted to the workers. Provisions relating to health and safety are laid down in the Act, besides which the Central Government may direct that the Health and Safety provisions under the Factories Act, 1948 shall apply to all mines and the precincts thereof.

MINING STATISTICS

Figures are published in a Monthly Bulletin which is being issued by the Chief Inspector of Mines. We set out the available figures in the following table :—

PAYMENT OF WAGES ACT

The Act applies only to wages and salaries which average below Rs. 200 per month.

For purposes of the Act 'wages' means all remuneration capable of being expressed in terms of money and includes any bonus or additional remuneration but does not include travelling allowances, employers' contribution to provident funds, gratuities payable on discharge or the value of housing or other services rendered to the worker.

No wage period is to exceed one month and wages are to be paid within a prescribed time not exceeding 10 days from the end of the wage period. All wages are to be paid in coin and, or currency notes. Fines are not to exceed half anna in the rupee. Permissible deductions from wages have also been specified.

The administration of the Act, as far as factories are concerned, has been entrusted to the Inspectors of Factories in the States. In regard to persons employed in mines and in railways the responsibility of administering the Act rests upon the Chief Labour Commissioner (Central).

MINIMUM WAGES ACT, 1948

The Act covers the following industries or types of establishments. Woollen carpet making or shawl weaving; rice, flour or dal mills; tobacco manufactories (including bidi making); plantations; oil mills; employment under any local authority; road construction or building operations; stone breaking or stone crushing; lac manufactories; mica works; public motor transport; tanneries and leather manufactories; and agriculture.* The appropriate Governments can extend the application of the Act to any industry wherein, in their opinion, minimum wages should statutorily be fixed.

The Act requires the Central or State Governments, as the case may be, to fix minimum rates of wages payable to persons employed in the industries mentioned above.

The Act provides for the fixation of minimum time rates, minimum piece rates, guaranteed time rates and overtime rates appropriate to different occupations, or localities and for adults, adolescents, children and apprentices. The minimum rate may consist of a basic rate and a cost of living allowance and/or cash value of concessions or it may be an all-inclusive rate.

The Act authorises the appropriate Governments to appoint Committees and Sub-Committees to hold inquiries and advise them to fix minimum rates of wages in respect of any scheduled employment or for the revision of these rates. They may also appoint an Advisory Board for co-ordinating the work of various Committees and also to advise Government generally in the matter of fixing or revising minimum rates of wages. The Central Government is to set up a Central Advisory Board for advising the Central and State Governments and for co-ordinating the work of State Advisory Boards. The Committees and Sub-Committees as well as the Central and State Advisory Boards are to consist of equal number of representatives of employers and employees, and of independent persons not exceeding a third of the total number of members.

The Central or the State Governments, as the case may be, can fix the number of hours of work per day, provide for a weekly holiday, etc., in regard to any employment in which minimum wages have been fixed under the Act.

* The Act lays down that this should come into force before 1954. Up to December 1, 1953 eight States had not yet fixed minimum wages for agricultural labour. These States are: Bihar (except in Patna District), Uttar Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh, Hyderabad, Mysore, West Bengal Bombay, Madhya Bharat.

Minimum wages have been fixed under the Act in several States. The two Statements showing the wages fixed in respect of various industries in each State are given below :—

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT

Under the Act payment of compensation has been made obligatory on all employers whose employees come within its scope, and injured workmen or the dependents of those killed can obtain compensation in all cases where personal injury has been caused by accident arising out of and in the course of employment and where, except in the case of injury resulting in death, the accident is not directly attributable to the workman having been at the time of the accident under the influence of drink or drugs or to wilful disobedience of rules or orders or wilful disregard of safety devices.

Besides bodily injuries the contracting of certain occupational diseases such as anthrax and mercury, lead and phosphorus poisoning were deemed and treated for the purposes of compensation, as injuries caused by accident, provided however, that the worker concerned was in the service of the same employer for more than six months.

The main provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act as it stands today are as follows:

In all cases persons employed in an administrative or clerical capacity and those whose monthly earnings exceed Rs. 400 (except Railway Servants) are excluded.

As far as seamen are concerned, those employed on ships registered in India are covered. But if accidents take place within the three mile limit of the territorial waters the Act applies even to those employed on ships not registered in India.

Not only workmen employed within the precincts of a factory or a mine but also men engaged in any kind of work incidental to or connected with a factory or any mining operation are entitled to the benefits of the Act.

Any person who is covered by the Employees' State Insurance Act, 1948, and who is entitled to receive disablement or dependent's benefit from the Employees' State Insurance Corporation is not entitled to claim any compensation from the employer under this Act.

The amount of compensation payable depends, in the case of death, on the average monthly wages of the deceased workman and in the case of an injured workman both on the average monthly wages and the extent of disablement. The term 'wages' includes overtime pay and the value of any concessions or benefits in the form of food, clothing, free quarters, etc.

The amounts of compensation payable in the case of an injured workman whose monthly wages are not more than Rs. 10 are Rs. 500 for death, Rs. 700 for permanent total, and half the monthly wages for temporary disablement. For a workman whose monthly wages are between Rs. 50 and Rs. 60, the corresponding figures are Rs. 1,800, Rs. 2,520 and Rs. 15 respectively. The maxima for persons earning over Rs. 300 per month are Rs. 4,500, Rs. 6,300 and Rs. 30 per month respectively. In the case of minors the amounts of compensation for death and for permanent total disablement are at a uniform rate of Rs. 200 and Rs. 1,200 respectively, and half the monthly wage for temporary disablement.

The interests of dependents in cases of fatal accidents have been safeguarded by ensuring that (1) all cases of fatal accidents should be brought to the notice of the Commissioner; (2) in all cases where an employer admits liability the amount of compensation payable is to be promptly deposited with the Commissioner; and (3) in cases where the employer disclaims liability and there are good grounds for believing compensation to be payable, the dependents get the information necessary to enable them to judge if they should make a claim or not.

An employer is permitted to make to any dependent advances on account of compensation not exceeding an aggregate of one hundred rupees.

The Act is administered by Commissioners appointed by State Governments.

Facilities for accident insurance are now being provided by a number of leading insurance companies in the country and the most important of these are the Claims Bureau in Calcutta and Madras.

The Millowners' Mutual Insurance Association, Ltd., Bombay, is an organisation of employers one of whose objects is the mutual insurance of members against liability to pay compensation or damages to workmen employed by them.

MATERNITY BENEFIT ACT

The first Maternity Benefit Act in India was passed by the Government of Bombay in 1929. Since then, Maternity Benefit Acts have also been passed in the States of Madras, old undivided Bengal, Assam, old undivided Punjab, Bihar, Madhya Pradesh and Uttar Pradesh. The Bombay Act was, with certain modifications extended to Ajmer and Delhi. In the year 1948 the West Bengal Legislature passed a separate Act for women employed in tea plantations under the title of the Bengal Maternity Benefit (Tea Estates) Act, 1948. Except for the Assam Maternity Benefit Act which covers women employed in both factories and on plantations and the Bengal Act, all the other Maternity Benefit Acts are applicable to women employed in factories only.

The Mines Maternity Benefit Act was passed in 1941.

The main principles in all Maternity Benefit Legislation are the same: provision for the payment of a cash benefit to women for specified periods before and after childbirth, a compulsory period of rest after delivery and also before delivery if notice is given; but, in the latter case, the period for which an employer has to pay cash benefit is strictly limited. All Acts specify a qualifying period for the earning of the benefit: this varies from six months to a year. Women are prohibited, under penalty, from accepting employment under another employer during periods for which they are in receipt of cash benefit from the employer with whom this liability rests.

In the Central Act for women employed in Mines and in the U.P. Act additional bonuses of Rs. 3 and Rs. 5 respectively are provided for if the services of a qualified midwife are availed of; but, if such assistance is provided for by or in an institution of an employer, this bonus is not to be paid.

In U.P. and Bihar the Acts lay down that factories employing a certain number of women should maintain creches and appoint health visitors for looking after the welfare of the women workers.

The Assam Act has certain provisions which are not met with in the other State Acts and the Central Government's Mines Maternity Benefit Act. One such provision is that no employer shall knowingly employ a woman in any job during the four weeks immediately preceding the day of her delivery save upon such suitable light work as may be recommended by a medical practitioner.

The Act provides for the payment of maternity benefit at weekly rates unlike the daily rates found in the other Act. It provides for payment—(i) on plantations at the rate of Re. 0-11-6 per day in addition to the usual food concessions for a period of 8 weeks; and (ii) in employments other than plantations Rs. 2 per week or the average weekly wage or salary subject to a minimum of Rs. 2 per week.

The Indian Tea Association has, however, recommended payment of maternity benefit at the rate of Rs. 5-4-0 a week for eight weeks. Although maternity benefit legislation does not apply to plantations in South India, the employers' associations have recommended payment of benefit on a voluntary basis at the rate of 12 annas per day for a period of eight weeks.

The qualifying period in the Central and in the U.P. Acts is six months and in the Ajmer Act twelve months. In all the remaining Acts it is nine months. The maximum period for which maternity benefits can be paid is six weeks under the Ajmer Act, seven weeks under the Madras Act, sixty days under the Punjab Act and eight weeks under all the other Acts. The rate of benefit used to be eight annas per day or the average daily wage whichever was less in most Acts but many Acts are now adopting a uniform eight annas a day. The Punjab Act gives average daily earnings or twelve annas per day whichever is greater.

TRADE UNIONS ACT, 1926

This Act was brought into operation with effect from 1st June 1927 and was slightly amended in 1928.

Apart from the necessary provisions for administration and penalties, the Indian Trade Unions Act, 1926, makes provision for three matters: (1) conditions governing the registration of trade unions; (2) the obligations to which a trade union is subject after registration; and (3) the rights and privileges accorded to registered unions. 'Trade Union' has been defined in such a way as to cover both combinations of workers and of employers but not of workers and employers. Persons under the age of 15 are debarred from membership of any registered union.

The administration of the Act is entirely on a State basis and each State Government is required to appoint a Registrar of Trade Unions. Any seven or more members of a union can apply for registration but no union can be registered unless at least fifty per cent of the executive consist of members actually engaged in the unit or group of units which the union proposes to cover.

Any union aggrieved by the refusal of a Registrar to register it or by the cancellation of its registration may prefer an appeal to a judge appointed by the State Government for the purpose; and, in the event of the dismissal of such an appeal, the aggrieved party has the right of a further appeal to the High Court.

The general funds of registered trade unions cannot be spent on objects other than those specified in Section 15 of the Act nor on political objects; but the Act makes provision for the creation of a separate political fund, subscription to which may be collected from such members as voluntarily desire to contribute to it. All registered unions are required to submit annually to the Registrar duly audited statements of accounts in prescribed forms together with changes in officers and the executive and a copy of the rules corrected up to date.

A registered trade union is immune from prosecution for criminal conspiracy in respect of an agreement, unless it is one to commit an offence, made between its members for the furtherance of a trade dispute or for restraint of trade and from any legal difficulties arising therefrom.

INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES ACT

The Act provides for setting up of two types of organisations, namely, (1) Works Committees and (2) Industrial Tribunals for the prevention or settlement of disputes. It makes conciliation compulsory in all disputes in public utility services and optional in other cases.

Section 22 of the Act declares any strike or lock-out in a public utility service to be illegal if it is commenced or declared (i) without giving to the employer or employees, as the case may be, a notice of strike or lock-out in a prescribed manner, within six weeks before striking or declaring a lock-out, or (ii) within 14 days, of giving such notice, or (iii) before the expiry of the date of strike specified in any such notice; or (iv) during the pendency of any conciliation proceedings before a conciliation officer and 7 days after the conclusion of such proceedings, etc. The Act also prohibits certain other strikes and lock-outs and declares them illegal if commenced or declared during the pendency of (i) conciliation proceedings before a Board and 7 days after the conclusion of such proceedings; (ii) proceedings before a Tribunal and 2 months after the conclusion of such proceedings, or (iii) during any period in which a settlement or award is in operation, in respect of any of the matters covered by the settlement or award.

The Industrial Disputes (Amendment) Bill of 1953 passed by both the Houses of Parliament provides for payment of compensation to workmen in the event of their lay-off or retrenchment.

According to this Bill a workman who has been in continuous employment for not less than one year under an employer should not be retrenched till he has been given one month's notice in writing or one month's wages in lieu of such notice and also a gratuity calculated at 15 days' average pay for every completed year of service or any part thereof in excess of six months.

Regarding compensation for workmen laid off whenever a workman whose name appears on the muster rolls and who has completed not less than one year of continuous service under an employer is laid off he should be paid by his employer for all the days during which he is laid off (except for such weekly holidays as may intervene) compensation which should be equal to 50 per cent of the total of basic wages and dearness allowance.

The compensation so paid during a period of 12 months should in no case be more than 45 days.

A laid-off worker who is not re-employed after the stipulated 15-day period will be entitled to further compensation. But the employer has the option to retrench such a worker, the lay-off benefits being taken into account in determining the amount of the retrenchment compensation payable.

A laid-off worker may accept a part-time job without losing his title to compensation, provided he presents himself for work before his original employer for not less than two hours per day.

Any money due from an employer by way of wages and (or) compensation is liable to be recovered in the same manner as arrears of land revenue.

STATISTICS

The following table sets out the number of disputes in some of the years since 1945, the number of persons affected by these disputes and the total time lost in man-days:

All the monthly figures are provisional.

APPELLATE TRIBUNAL ACT, 1950.

The divergent and sometimes conflicting decisions given by the various Tribunals set up in different States under the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 created serious anomalies leading to discontent and bitterness among parties to industrial disputes. To meet this situation the Government of India enacted the Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act, 1950 to enable them to set up a Labour Appellate Tribunal which would hear appeals from awards or decisions of Industrial Tribunals, Industrial Courts, Wage Boards, and other statutory bodies set up by the Central or State Governments to adjudicate on industrial disputes.

The Appellate Tribunal consists of a Chairman and such number of other members as the Government may, from time to time, think fit to appoint. The Chairman is authorised to constitute as many benches of the Appellate Tribunal as he may consider necessary. Each bench is to consist of not less than two members, one of whom is to be appointed as the President. The Appellate Tribunal is empowered to hear appeals from any award or decision of an adjudicating authority if (i) the appeal involves any substantial question of law, or (ii) the award or decision relates to wages, bonus or travelling allowance, employers' contribution to any pension or provident fund, gratuity payable on discharge, classification by grades, retrenchment and any other matter which may be prescribed by rules made under the Act. No appeal, however, can be preferred by any party (i) from any award made by the Industrial Tribunal appointed by the Government of India in June 1949 to decide industrial disputes in banking companies, (ii) from any award or decision of a Tribunal made with the consent of parties, (iii) from any settlement arrived at between the parties in the course of conciliation proceedings, or (iv) from any decision of an arbitrator appointed under any law with the consent of parties to settle the dispute.

The Act provides that all appeals should be preferred within 30 days from the date of publication of the award or decision or, where no provision for the publication of the award has been made, within 30 days from the date of making the award. The decision of the Appellate Tribunal becomes binding on the expiry of 30 days from the date of their pronouncement. The appropriate Government can, however, reject or modify any decision before the expiry of the period of 30 days, if they feel that it would be inexpedient on public grounds to give effect to the whole or any part of the decision. In all such cases the Government concerned should place the decision together with their reason for rejecting or modifying it before the Legislature concerned.

During the period of 30 days allowed for filing the appeal or during the pendency of an appeal no employer shall alter the conditions of service to the prejudice of the workmen concerned nor shall he discharge or punish any such workman without obtaining the written permission of the Appellate Tribunal.

TEA DISTRICTS EMIGRANT LABOUR ACT

The Tea Districts Emigrant Labour Act, 1932, was brought into effect from the 1st October 1933.

State Governments are empowered, subject to the control of the Government of India to impose control over the forwarding of assisted emigrants (chapter III) or over both their recruitment and their forwarding as occasion may dictate (chapters III and IV).

The forwarding of recruits to Assam must be made through the prescribed routes where arrangements for feeding, rest and medical treatment have been made and by authorised forwarding agents. It is made unlawful to assist persons under 16 to migrate unless they are accompanied by their parents or guardians. A married woman who is living with her husband may only be assisted to emigrate with the consent of the husband.

Repatriation.—It is provided that where an employer fails to make all the necessary arrangements for the repatriation of a worker within fifteen days from the date on which a right of repatriation arises to an emigrant labourer, the Controller may direct the employer to despatch such labourer and his family or to pay him such compensation as may be prescribed within such period as the Controller may fix (sections 13 and 15).

Section 3 of the Act makes provision for the appointment of a Controller of Emigrant Labour with some staff and possibly one or more Deputy Controllers for supervising the general administration of the system which the Act seeks to establish. The charges for this establishment are to be met from an annual cess called the Emigrants Labour Cess which is to be levied at such rate not exceeding Rs. 9 per emigrant as the Central Government may determine for each year of levy.

The cess is collected by the Controller by the sale of certificates of emigration. Every assisted emigrant has to be provided by the employing interest on whose behalf he was recruited with such a certificate. All particulars about the emigrant together with a running record of the details of his employment in Assam are given on it. Failure to provide a certificate is punishable with a fine which may extend to Rs. 500. For the year 1949-50 the rate of the cess was fixed at Rs. 3 and the same rate was continued for 1950-51.

The following details taken from the latest available Administration Report of the Controller of Emigrant Labour would be of interest :—

During the year 1950-51, the number of assisted emigrants was 34,100. There were also 8,639 non-assisted emigrants. The per capita cost of recruitment was Rs. 124-14-6 as compared with Rs. 142-3-5 during the previous year.

The number of adults and children living on tea estates in Assam was 508,373 and 512,124 respectively making the total of 1,018,197.

SHOPS AND COMMERCIAL ESTABLISHMENTS ACTS

Subject to certain exceptions the Acts apply to shops, commercial establishments, restaurants and places of amusement in certain selected urban centres. Some employees such as those employed in a confidential capacity and those whose work is of an intermittent character are excluded from the scope of the Acts.

The Bombay, Madhya Pradesh and Assam Acts have fixed daily hours of work at nine. In U.P. and Madras the daily hours are eight while in West Bengal and the Punjab a ten-hour day has been prescribed. Rest intervals, of half an hour are prescribed in the West Bengal, U.P. and the Punjab Acts while an hour's interval has been granted in the Assam, Bombay, U.P. and Madras Acts. Opening and closing hours have also been fixed by the Acts. The Assam and West Bengal Acts, however, prescribe only closing hours. Most of the Acts also fix the maximum overtime work that can be taken from the employees. In some cases slightly different hours of work have been fixed for employees of commercial establishments, restaurants and places of amusement.

Provision has been made in all the Acts for weekly closure of shops and establishments although in some Acts, for example in Bombay and Assam, theatres, hotels, etc. are exempted from this provision. In addition to the weekly holiday, provision for privilege leave of 12 to 15 days in a year has been made in all the Acts. The Assam, West Bengal, Madras and U.P. Acts make further provision for casual leave and sick leave of 10 to 12 days and 12 to 30 days respectively.

All the Acts, except the Bengal Act, have made provision for the regulation of employment of children and young persons. The minimum age for the employment of children in Assam, and Madhya Pradesh is 12 while in Madras and U.P., it is 14. The hours of work for children and young persons are 7 per day in the Punjab, Madras and Madhya Pradesh and 6 in Bombay and U.P. Children are not allowed to work after 7 p.m. in Bombay, Madras and the Punjab and after 9 p.m. in Madhya Pradesh.

The Bombay Act empowers the Government to apply the provisions of the Payment of Wages Act to establishments covered by the Shops and Commercial Establishments Act. In Madras and U.P. the wage period should not exceed one month and in the Punjab it should not exceed a fortnight. The Assam Act fixes the wage period at one month. After they become due wages should be paid within 10 days in Assam and West Bengal, 7 days in U.P. and 5 days in Madras. In the Punjab wages should be paid on demand at the expiry of the wage period. Overtime wages are payable at twice the ordinary rates in Madras, U.P. and the Punjab, at one and a half times in Bombay and Madhya Pradesh and at one and a quarter times the ordinary rate in Bengal. Hotels, restaurants and other eating places in Bombay are, however, required to pay overtime wages at twice the ordinary rate. Fines and deductions are regulated under the Madras and U.P. Acts.

One month's previous notice or one month's wages in lieu of notice before discharge is stipulated in the Acts of U.P., Punjab, Madras and Madhya Pradesh. The Bombay Act provides for only 14 days' notice or pay in lieu thereof. The Madras and Bombay Acts make provisions relating to cleanliness, ventilation, lighting and precautions against fire in establishments covered by the Acts.

The Weekly Holidays Act, 1942 provides for a weekly closure of shops and for the grant of a weekly holiday to employees. The Act has been enforced in Bihar, Ajmer, Coorg and Orissa.

INDUSTRIAL STATISTICS ACT

The Act permits the collection of statistics with regard to any of the following matters : (1) prices of commodities; (2) attendance; (3) living conditions including housing, water-supply and sanitation; (4) indebtedness; (5) rents; (6) wages and earnings; (7) provident and other funds provided for labour; (8) benefits and amenities provided for labour; (9) hours of work; (10) employment and unemployment; and (11) industrial and labour disputes. Penalties are provided for persons refusing to supply information or failing to furnish the required returns. State Governments are empowered to appoint an officer to be the Statistics Authority for the purposes of the collection of any statistics under the Act and that Authority, when once appointed, has the power to call upon employers to furnish the information required. Penalties are also provided for in the Act for improper disclosure of information or returns by persons engaged in the collection of the information or the tabulation of the data.

The Act deals with collection of statistics relating to factories, such as production, etc., and matters dealing with labour welfare. The former provisions have already been implemented by the various States and the Director of Industrial Statistics has undertaken censuses of production. Reports on the censuses for the years 1946, 1947 and 1948 have now been published.

WAGES

No serial statistics of wages and earnings are available in India except for those compiled under the Payment of Wages Act. The returns under the Act, however, relate only to persons in receipt of wages and salaries of Rs. 200 per month.

DEARNESS ALLOWANCE

The scale of the allowance varies not only from centre to centre and industry to industry, but also, except where these matters are adjudicated upon, from unit to unit in the same industry at the same centre.

In coal mines dearness allowance is paid on the basis of a percentage of basic wages. In Bihar and Bengal the dearness allowance is 150 per cent of basic wages for those earning up to Rs. 30 per month.

In the engineering industry in West Bengal dearness allowance is graded according to income and ranges from Rs. 25 per month in the case of those getting basic wages up to Rs. 50 per month to Rs. 50 for those getting more than Rs. 200. In Bombay some concerns pay at a flat rate and others on a graded scale. Several Adjudicators have granted dearness allowance either at the Bombay Millowners' Association scale which was Rs. 58-11-0 in December 1951 or at a percentage, varying from 66½ per cent to 85 per cent, of that scale. In Madras the rate varies from 8 annas to Rs. 1-9-0 per day and in a number of concerns it is paid at a flat rate of Rs. 25 per month. In the tanneries and leather goods industry dearness allowance paid is around Rs. 25 per month in West Bengal and Madras, about Rs. 30 in Bombay and between Rs. 40 and 60 in Kanpur.

The Committee on Fair Wages appointed by the Government of India examined the question of dearness allowance and came to the conclusion that for the lowest categories of employees the target should obviously be compensation to the extent of 100 per cent of the increase in the cost of living, but that in the case of higher categories a lower rate of compensation should apply and that the amount of compensation should be based on salary scales or slabs.

BONUS

As in the case of dearness allowance the practice in regard to the quantum of profit bonus varies from centre to centre and industry to industry. In Bombay City and Ahmedabad the cotton mill workers received for the year 1951 a bonus equivalent to 25 per cent of basic wages earned. In Madras cotton mills the workers received 3 months' basic wages.

No bonus has so far been paid in the jute mill industry in West Bengal. The Industrial Tribunal considered the question but deferred its recommendations in the matter pending the results of an investigation by experts and the Government of India.

The dockyards in West Bengal generally pay an annual bonus amounting to a month's wages. Some of the dockyards in Bombay pay two months' wages as bonus.

The Tata Iron and Steel Co. at Jamshedpur pay a good attendance bonus amounting to 10 to 12 per cent of basic wages and a performance bonus of 10 to 50 per cent of basic wages is also given to workers. To the latter, however, only skilled and semi-skilled workers are entitled. Under the Company's revised Profit Sharing Scheme, the employees are entitled to a share of 27½ per cent of the annual net profit of the company and such share is credited to and/or distributed among the employees of the company in proportion to the basic salaries and wages earned or deemed to be earned by such employees respectively during the year in which such net profits were earned by the Company.

The Board of Conciliation appointed for the coal-mining industry recommended the grant of an annual bonus equal to four months' basic wages, split into two parts. An attendance bonus of two months' basic wages to those fulfilling specified minimum attendance requirements, and a production bonus related to output and basic earnings and subject to their qualifying for it on the basis of a minimum attendance of 66 days per quarter in the case of surface workers and 54 days per quarter in the case of underground workers in the case of collieries in Bihar and West Bengal. Bonus on the above basis is also to be paid, according to the Fact-Finding Committee's recommendations subject to a minimum attendance of 60 and 65 days in a quarter in the case of underground and surface workers respectively in Madhya Pradesh, Hyderabad and Orissa collieries. In Assam, the existing rate of bonus has been raised by fifty per cent so as to raise the amount of bonus earned to a sum equal to four months' wages per year.

From the latest information available it would appear that during the quarter ending March 1952 about 32 per cent of the workers in West Bengal, about 51.9 per cent in Bihar, about 38.2 per cent in Orissa and 52.7 per cent in Vindhya Pradesh qualified for the bonus. The amount disbursed by way of bonus by collieries submitting returns was Rs. 35.15, Rs. 11.22 and Rs. 9.68 lakhs respectively in West Bengal, Bihar and Madhya Pradesh.

During 1949 a bonus of 8½ per cent of their earnings was given to the workers in tea plantations in South India and 6½ per cent of earnings to the workers in coffee and rubber plantations.

Allowing for minor differences in this respect and considering the major industries and the important centres it can be stated that in the jute industry in West Bengal and in the plantations the wages are generally paid weekly. The system of wage payment in the cotton textile industry in Bombay City and Solapur is monthly. A peculiarity of Ahmedabad is that the wages are paid per hapta which varies from 14 to 16 days. The month is the accepted wage period for the railways. In some concerns wages are paid daily to certain types of workers, weekly to others, fortnightly to yet others and monthly generally to the clerical and supervisory staff.

Mining labour is mostly paid on a weekly basis.

HOURS OF WORK

The most important happening in regard to hours of work in factories was the reduction of the weekly hours of work for adults to 48.

Actually, in many industries in this country the hours of work were not in excess of 8 per day. In the coal-mines in Bihar and West Bengal the workers seldom work for more than five to six hours in the day or for more than four to five days in the week. According to a recent investigation the average weekly attendance of a coal-miner was 4.56 days. The cotton textile industry in almost all centres normally works a uniform 8-hour day. A recent development in the cotton textile industry is to work shifts on the basis of what is known as the Relay System. By this system a unit does not stop work during the noon recess and continues working throughout a whole shift, different batches of workers being given rest intervals by turns and the remainder being asked to do double substitute work for the time being.

In all cases where continuous production is necessary such as in electricity generating plants, and certain water pumping stations, cement factories, etc., work is arranged on a system of three shifts—the different shifts changing over every week or fortnight. The change-over is so arranged that every workman gets a rest period of at least twenty-four continuous hours once in one week.

As far as railways are concerned, hours of work in railway workshops are regulated by the Indian Factories Act. Most of the larger running sheds have also recently been classified as factories and work in these large sheds is arranged on the basis of three shifts of 8 hours each. In the smaller sheds where work is of a fairly intermittent character, systems of two shifts of 12 hours each obtain but the work of the individual is so arranged as not to work each operative for more than 8 hours.

The question of hours of work of railway servants was one of the points submitted for adjudication to Mr. Justice Rajadhyaksha of the Bombay High Court who made the following recommendations:

The employment of railway servants under the Hours of Employment Regulations should be classified under anyone of the following heads:

- (i) Intensive.
- (ii) Continuous.

(iii) Essentially Intermittent.

(iv) Excluded.

(i) The statutory limit of weekly hours for persons whose employment is classified as intensive should be fixed at 75 hours a week on the average in a month;

(ii) The statutory maximum limit for the employment of continuous workers should be fixed at 54 hours a week on the average in a month;

(iii) The statutory maximum for staff classified as essentially intermittent should be 75 hours a week; and

(iv) For excluded workers no statutory minimum limit can be prescribed but this should not absolve the Administrations of their responsibility on humanitarian grounds, of seeing that unreasonable conditions are not imposed. The Government of India accepted these recommendations and by an Order dated 15th June 1948 declared them binding for a period of three years.

In the major municipalities the hours of work vary from department to department but are generally 8 to 10 per day. Speaking generally, municipal workers get a weekly holiday. Although those in the conservancy department get only half a day off per week, there is a certain amount of discount among the conservancy staff for not getting a weekly holiday but since they are engaged on essential work most of the municipalities find it difficult to grant such a holiday.

COST OF LIVING

Bombay was the first State in India to compile and publish a price series intended for measuring changes in the cost of living.

Other States in India which compile cost of living index series for working classes are Madras, Madhya Pradesh, Uttar Pradesh, Bihar, Punjab, Orissa, Mysore, Travancore-Cochin and Hyderabad. The Mysore Government compiles figures for Bangalore, Kolar Goldfields and Mysore.

The Government of Madras compiles nine series in all. Madras City, Vishakapatnam*, Eluru*, Bellary, Cuddalore, Coimbatore, Madurai, Tiruchirappalli and Kozhikode with the average prices for the twelve months from July 1935 to June 1936 as base.

In Uttar Pradesh, the series are for low paid Government employees at Lucknow, Banaras, Raebilly, Meerut and Gorakhpur.

The Government of Orissa compiles a cost of living series for its headquarters town of Cuttack and another for Berhampur.

INDEX FIGURES

Owing to the variations in the method of compilation of these indices, they are not strictly comparable, but the table below shows the movement of cost of living index numbers in selected centres for the twelve months of the year 1952:—

The Government of India, in consultation with the State Governments, launched upon an All-India Scheme for the preparation and maintenance of working class cost of living index numbers for selected centres in the country. This scheme was started in the year 1942 and was completed in 1946. Over 27,000 family budgets were collected in some 28 selected centres.

The main object of these investigations was to obtain weights for compiling and maintaining cost of living index numbers on uniform lines.

Accordingly, the Labour Bureau of the Government of India started publishing regularly in the Indian Labour Gazette on base 1944=100 cost of living index numbers for some 17 centres in India and the latest available figures for these centres on base 1944 are given below :—

STANDARD OF LIVING

The Bombay Labour Office carried out two family budget enquiries for working classes in Bombay City, one in 1921-22 and the other in 1932-33 and the results were published in the years 1923 and 1935 respectively. Similar enquiries were also conducted in Ahmedabad and Solapur cities and the results of both these enquiries were published in the year 1928. In Madras, the Director of Industries published in 1938 the results of an inquiry into the family budgets of industrial workers in organized and unorganized industries in Madras City conducted under the direction of the Commissioner of Labour. A number of family budgets were also collected at Kanpur in Uttar Pradesh and at Nagpur and Jabalpur in Madhya Pradesh with the object of compiling cost of living indices.

The statement below contains in a tabular form the main results of these surveys.

Studies of living conditions of plantation workers were conducted in the year 1947 by the Government of India and the results of these surveys have been incorporated in two separate reports. The tabular statement on next page contains details regarding the main findings of these enquiries in the plantations in north-east and south India.

RECRUITMENT

Many of the larger and more progressive concerns have Labour Officers who are directly responsible for all new recruitment.

The evils in connection with recruitment were most marked in the case of casual or substitute labour. The Millowners' Association, Bombay, have dealt with the problem by establishing what is known as the "Badli Control System." Daily casual vacancies are filled only from card holders and whenever there is a permanent vacancy it is filled from these card holders. The evil influence of the jobber is thus eliminated. A recent development in this matter is the 'decasualization' scheme of the Government of Bombay which has been introduced in some of the textile centres.

In the jute mill industry during recent years, many of the mills have established what are known as Labour Bureaux one of whose functions is to recruit labour.

In this connection mention might also be made of the Employment Exchange started by the Northern India Employers' Association in Kanpur. Some progressive cotton mills in the south have also opened special Labour offices through which only recruitment is made.

The Millowners' Association, Bombay conducts special classes for the training of Mill Labour Officers and actively supervises and controls the work done by all such Officers where they have been appointed through the Association. Following the example of the Millowners' Association, Bombay, the University of Calcutta, in co-operation with the Indian Jute Mills Association, has recently inaugurated a special course of social work for giving suitable training to Labour Welfare Officers engaged in jute mills. Among other institutions imparting training for Labour Officers mention may be made of the Tata Institute of Social Sciences, Bombay; Institute of Social Sciences, Banaras; Xavier Labour Relations Institute, Jamshedpur; Department of Labour and Social Welfare, Patna University; J. K. Institute of Sociology and Human Relations, Lucknow University, and the training course conducted by the Madhya Bharat Millowners' Association, Indore.

The Directorate-General of Resettlement and Employment set up by the Government of India organises technical training.

There were 268 training centres in December 1952 and the number of persons undergoing training in these centres was as follows:—

Technical training	8,296
Vocational training	1,790
Apprenticeship training	695
Vocational training	426

ABSENTEEISM

One of the commoner complaints of Indian industrialists has been the high percentage of absenteeism and the large labour turnover in Indian factories, mines, etc. the percentage of absenteeism amounts to about 10 to 15 per cent in factories, and to about 25 to 30 per cent in mines and plantations. It is noteworthy that in factories in which the conditions of work and wages are satisfactory and also where there is a system of granting leave with pay apart from the statutory holidays with pay, the incidence of absenteeism is not so high as is otherwise the case. The available statistical data on absenteeism in certain types of concerns for the years 1948, 1949, 1950, 1951 and the twelve months of 1952 are given in the tabular statement below :—

EMPLOYEES' STATE INSURANCE CORPORATION*

A bill incorporating a health insurance scheme was introduced in November 1947 in the Indian Parliament and was passed as the Employees'

State Insurance Act on 19th April 1948. The following are its main provisions:

The Act applies to all factories including factories belonging to Government other than seasonal factories and covers employees in receipt of wages or salaries up to Rs. 400 per month.

The administration of the Act is entrusted to an autonomous body called the Employees' State Insurance Corporation. A Standing Committee is to act as the executive of the Corporation. There is also to be a Medical Benefit Council to advise the Corporation on matters relating to administration of medical benefit, certification, etc. All these bodies are tripartite in character.

The scheme is contributory but the Central Government is to make an annual grant to the Corporation during the first five years of a sum equivalent to 1/10th of the administrative expenses of the Corporation. The rates of contribution payable in respect of an employee have been fixed as follows:—

Group of employees	Employees' contribution (recoverable from employees)			Employers' contribution			Total contribution (employees' and employers' contribution)
	Rs.	As.	Ps.	Rs.	As.	Ps.	Rs.	As.	Ps.

7. Employees whose average daily wages are Rs. 6-0-0 and above but below Rs. 8-0-0	0	15	0	1	11	0	2	13	0
8. Employees whose average daily wages are Rs. 8-0-0 and above	1	4	0	2	8	0	3	12	0

The insured persons are entitled to the following benefits:

(i) sickness benefit, (ii) maternity benefit, (iii) disablement benefit, (iv) dependents benefit and (v) medical benefit.

The implementation of the scheme throughout the country simultaneously being attended with practical difficulties, a plan of phased application of the scheme in different places was drawn up. Under this plan, it was proposed to introduce the scheme in Kanpur and Delhi in July 1950. The proposal had to be postponed at the last moment owing to objections received from employers in Kanpur that the introduction of the scheme in selected places, without its simultaneous application elsewhere, would place industries in those areas at a competitive disadvantage. To overcome these objections, and to remove a few other lacunae, the Employees' State Insurance Act, 1948, was amended in 1951. Under the amended Act, the employers' contribution will be levied from employers throughout the country in a manner which will make the extra cost on all employers as equitable as possible.

The scheme was inaugurated in Kanpur and Delhi on 24th February 1952.

At the end of 1953 it was in operation in 20 States, covered 1.30 million workers in 1,643 factories, and the contribution to the fund was Rs. 4.47 crores. The number of defaulting employers against whom prosecutions were launched was 17.

ACCIDENTS

The Millowners' Association, Bombay, has done a considerable amount of good work of a pioneering character in connection with Safety-first measures. Working in conjunction with the Safety-first Association of India, the Association drew up a Safety Code for the Cotton Textile Industry and this Code was published and put into operation from August 1946. It is of interest to note that most cotton mills in Ahmedabad had also established safety-first committees by the end of the year 1939.

The Indian Factories Act requires the manager to report all accidents which cause death or bodily injury whereby the person injured is prevented from returning to his work in the factory during the 48 hours next after the occurrence of the accident.

It is the duty of the Inspector of Factories to make an investigation as soon as possible into the causes of and the responsibility for a fatal or serious accident, and to take steps for the prosecution of the person concerned if it is found that the death or serious injury resulted from any infringement of the provisions of the Act or of the rules framed under the Act.

Provision has been made for the training of miners in first-aid. There are also in the mining areas two rescue training centres where training has been given for fighting fires, etc. in coal mines.

The Office of the Chief Adviser, Factories now issues from time to time valuable literature on the subject of industrial safety.

The table below shows the number of accidents in Indian factories and mines in the years 1939 to 1951:—

WELFARE ACTIVITIES

The Reports of the Labour Investigation Committee on labour conditions in 86 industries as also their Main Report as well as the issues of the Indian Labour Year Book published by the Labour Bureau of the Government of India contain detailed and comprehensive information regarding labour welfare undertaken in various States and Industries.

Until recently the Government of India had not undertaken any activities to promote the welfare of industrial labour employed in Central concerns. Recently, however, they have done a great deal in this respect. Welfare Funds have been instituted in coal and mica mines. The Central Government have issued directives to all employing departments to constitute Labour Welfare Funds in all Government undertakings. The Fund is to be utilised for providing indoor and outdoor recreation, reading rooms, etc., to workmen employed in the undertakings. The Fund will be financed partly by Government grants.

Welfare work is now directly undertaken by the Governments of Bombay, U.P., Bihar, Hyderabad, Madhya Bharat, Mysore, Saurashtra and Travancore-Cochin.

HOUSING

In the past the policy of Government as well as of industrial employers was to leave the matter of housing more or less in the hands of private enterprise. The rapid growth in industrial employment made the housing problem serious and the influx of large numbers of workers to urban centres during the war further aggravated the situation.

In April 1948 the Government of India announced as part of their industrial policy a scheme for the construction of a million workers' houses to be completed within a period of ten years but on account of financial stringency much headway could not be made in the furtherance of the scheme.

The Government of India have recently finalised their Subsidised Industrial Housing Scheme. Under the Scheme, houses are to be constructed for industrial workers through the agency of State Governments. Statutory Housing Boards, employers and registered co-operative housing societies of industrial workers. The Central Government would assist financially these agencies both in the form of subsidies and loans. For housing schemes undertaken by State Governments or Housing Boards the subsidy will be to the extent of 50 per cent of the cost of construction and the loan also to the extent of 50 per cent. In the case of other housing schemes the subsidy and loan will be to the extent of 25 per cent and 37½ per cent respectively. The Government of India also allotted during 1952-53 a sum of Rs. 716.625 lakhs for the industrial housing scheme.

The Planning Commission has also proposed a programme of industrial housing the main feature of which is the construction of about 25,000 housing units every year in the principal industrial centres. It has also proposed the creation of National Housing Fund.

The subject of industrial housing has also been engaging the attention of several State Governments in recent years. The Governments of Bihar, Bombay, Madhya Pradesh, Punjab, U.P., Madhya Bharat, Mysore, Travancore-Cochin, have in hand schemes of industrial housing and some of the States, as for instance Bombay, have made substantial progress in regard to the construction of new houses.

As regards housing accommodation provided by employers, the standards vary widely. In the cotton mill industry only a small proportion of the workers are provided with houses. The jute mills in and around Calcutta have provided housing for about a third of their workers but the standards of housing provided leave much to be desired. In the engineering industry only the larger units generally provide housing for their employees. The Tata Iron and Steel Co.

for instance, have provided 11,000 houses at Jamshedpur. The cement industry in India is much ahead of other factory industries in regard to the proportion of workers housed as well as the standards of housing provided.

In the coal mines up to 80 per cent of the workers are housed in dhowrahs free of rent. Under the housing scheme of the Coal Mines Labour Welfare Fund constituted by the Government of India for coal miners over 1,500 houses have been completed. The mining companies in the Kolar Goldfields in Mysore have provided over 12,000 houses for their employees.

In the plantations nearly all the settled labour force have been provided with housing but the scale and standard of houses provided are far from adequate. However, in recent years the industry has become keenly alive to the urgency of the problem and at a Tripartite Conference held in November, 1950, the planting interests have agreed to replace the existing sub-standard houses by stages spread over 12 years. The number of houses provided for plantation labour up to September 1951 was as follows: Assam and Bengal 323,805; Bihar 1,531; Madras 22,804; Orissa 40; U.P. 108; Mysore 2,171; Travancore-Cochin 18,216; Coorg 1,877.

The Government Railways have provided more than 2,00,000 units of residential quarters for their employees. Over 9,000 new quarters were built by the railways during 1949-50.

Several co-operative housing societies have recently been formed in Ahmedabad through the efforts of the Ahmedabad Textile Labour Association.

Out of the 24,056 tenements sanctioned, under the Central Government's subsidized industrial housing scheme 1,570 had been constructed upto the end of Nov. 1953 and 6,888 were under construction.

Under the industrial housing scheme of 1949 2,856 tenements had been constructed and 940 were under construction.

Under the Bihar State Industrial scheme financed by the Centre 703 tenements had been constructed and 316 were under construction.

SHELTERS, CANTEENS

Section 47 of the Factories Act, 1948 makes it obligatory for all factories employing more than 150 workers to provide adequate shelters and a suitable lunch room for the use of workers during periods of rest. Almost all large industrial establishments had provided tiffin rooms and rest shelters for their workmen. Most concerns had also permitted the establishment of tea stalls on the premises but apart from this, little effort had been made to run co-operative canteens on the lines of those which are associated with most of the large factories in the West.

About the middle of the year 1943 the Government of India recommended to all employers, through the Employers' Federation of India and the All-India Organisation of Industrial Employers, the opening up of more canteens for workers.

The Act of 1948 provides for the setting up of canteens in factories that employ more than 60 women.

Except for the Ahmedabad Textile Labour Association, the Railwaymen's Unions, and the Mazdoor Sabha of Kanpur labour unions have not done much by way of labour welfare. This has been due largely to lack of funds. Some of the Railwaymen's Unions have organised co-operative societies, and various kinds of funds for the provision of specific benefits, such as, legal defence, death and retirement benefits, unemployment and sickness benefits and life insurance, etc.

In 1939, the Bombay Government first organised model welfare centres. From 1939 to 1952 the complexion of the Labour Welfare Department has undergone considerable change. In all, there are now 54 centres classified under four classes—'A', 'B', 'C' and 'D'. At Bombay there are 3 'A' class, 13 'C' class and 2 'D' class centres, located in various parts of the city; at Ahmedabad, 1 'A' class and 8 'C' class centres; at Sholapur there are 1 'A' class and 8 'C' class centres; at Jalgaon, Hubli and Dhulia there is 1 'B' class and 1 'C' class centre each. There is one 'B' class centre each at Poona, Baroda, Gadag, Barsi, Virangam, Broach, Surat and Nadiad. 'A' class centres have a full-time nursery school for children; a women's section providing literacy, sewing and embroidery classes and suitable games; outdoor games and gymnasium with all facilities for men; and separate arrangements for water-taps and shower baths for both men and women. Static as well as circulating libraries are attached to these centres; radio sets are provided; monthly cinema shows are arranged; and well-equipped dispensaries are attached. 'B' class centres are intended to be a replica of 'A' class centres but on a very much smaller scale. 'C' class centres provide indoor recreation and educational facilities, static and circulating libraries and dispensaries. 'D' class centres provide only outdoor recreation, such as games and sports.

Welfare centres have also been opened in Bihar (2), in U.P. (33), in West Bengal (18), Mysore (2), Saurashtra (15) and Travancore-Cochin (3).

MEDICAL FACILITIES

Medical facilities provided by employers range from first-aid posts and dispensaries to first-class hospitals. There are some examples, in which first rate medical facilities are provided. The Tata Iron and Steel Co. maintain a large well-equipped hospital with 400 beds, and also 8 outdoor dispensaries. The Delhi Cloth Mills maintain a hospital which is fully equipped with X-ray apparatus and other modern appliances, and which gives free medical aid to both mill workers and their families and free food to indoor patients. The hospital at the Kolar Goldfields is a model of its kind. The Buckingham and Carnate Mills of Madras and the three important groups of employers of the Assam Oil Co. at Digboi have also provided adequate medical facilities. In all railways in India there are medical departments under the control of chief medical and health officers with divisional medical officers seconded by a number of assistants.

Although the Factories Act requires that provision should be made for washing especially in factories where workers come into contact with injurious or obnoxious substances, very little effective provision exists in this regard because most factories only provide water for washing but not soap, soda, towels, etc. As for bathing facilities, extremely few employers provide this amenity. Section 42 of the Factories Act, 1948 provides for the maintenance of such facilities in every factory.

Other types of welfare work done by factories relate to the provision of recreational facilities, amenities for the education of workers and their children, the provision of cost price grain shops, the establishment of co-operative societies, etc.

On railways there are educational facilities for the children of the employees mostly free of charge. Staff Benefit Funds have also been created which give monetary help to the children and widows of the deceased employees.

COAL MINES WELFARE FUND

This Fund was constituted under the Coal Mines Labour Welfare Fund Act of 1947. The principal objects for which this fund is to be utilised are defined in the Act. These are: (1) the improvement of standards of living including housing and nutrition, the amelioration of social conditions and the provision of recreational facilities for the benefit of the labour employed in the coal mining industry; (2) the provision of transport to and from work; (3) the improvement of educational facilities; (4) the provision of improvement of supplies of water; and (5) the improvement of public health and sanitation; the prevention of disease, the provision of medical facilities and the improvement of existing medical facilities. The Act makes provision for the appointment of an Advisory Committee consisting of Government Officers and an equal number of members representing colliery owners and workers employed in the coal mining industry of whom one has to be a woman.

Both the cost of administration of the fund and the salaries and allowances of the officers appointed in connection therewith are to be defrayed from the fund itself.

At present a cess of six annas per ton of coal or coke has been levied for being credited to the welfare fund. The principal activities of the fund which are financed out of this cess may be considered under the following heads:—

- (i) Housing
- (ii) Hospitals
- (iii) Prevention of disease
- (iv) Water supply
- (v) Pit-head baths and creches and others.

The cess is now being apportioned between the Housing Account and the General Welfare Account of the fund in the ratio 2:1. A Coal Mines Labour Housing Board consisting of eight members has been set up. For the collieries in Madhya Bharat a separate Housing Sub-Committee has also been appointed. Certain difficulties have been experienced in rapidly carrying out the programme and the progress made so far has, therefore, been somewhat slow. To speed it up a new scheme has been drawn up by Government. Under this scheme a subsidy of up to 50 per cent of the cost of construction of houses built by colliery owners in accordance with the specifications prescribed by the Coal Mines Labour Welfare Fund will be paid by the Fund.

The fund gives certain grants and subsidies to various other funds such as the Leper Fund.

The regional hospitals and maternity child welfare centres at Katras and Tisra in the Jharia coalfield and Chora and Searosola in the Raniganj coalfield were opened. The central hospital for Jharia coalfield has been opened and the construction of a central hospital for the Raniganj coalfield has started.

For the prevention of disease, grants are being made to the Mines Boards of Health and a scheme for the treatment of tuberculosis has been drawn up. Anti-malaria work is also in full progress.

The construction of pit-head baths and of creches has now been made compulsory.

Mica Mines Labour Welfare Fund.—The Mica Mines Labour Welfare Fund Act, 1946, which was designed to constitute a similar fund for the benefit of mica workers, provides for the levy of an ad valorem duty not exceeding 8½ per cent on all mica exported from India. The Act provides also for the constitution of two Advisory Committees, one for Madras and one for Bihar. In Madras three dispensaries have been started for use by mica miners and five radio sets have been installed in selected mica mining centres.

PENSIONS, GRATUITIES

All monthly and time-rated workmen in the industrial establishments of Government are entitled to pensions on retirement provided that a minimum of ten years' service has been put in. Outside Government concerns, pensions on retirement are almost non-existent although some concerns give small pensions to old employees who have put in long periods of trusted and faithful service but these are mostly ex gratia and cannot be claimed as of right.

All railway employees and the employees of local and public bodies and a few of the larger public companies receive gratuities on retirement. Gratuities are also paid to non-pensionable workers who have put in not less than thirty years' service in Government concerns.

In all cases specified periods of qualifying service have to be put in before gratuities can be earned. The rules of individual administrations vary widely but the most generally accepted principle is half a month's pay for each year of service limited to fifteen months' pay in all. Permanent Government servants who have put in less than ten years' active service are entitled to gratuity if they are compelled to retire on medical certificate.

A few large industrial establishments in India have started Retirement Benefit schemes where an account is opened for every individual worker to which a fortnight's or 15 days' pay is credited every year: interest is allowed and the amount standing to a worker's credit is paid to him on retirement.

The Provident Fund Rules of different State Governments in India are by no means uniform. The Government of Bombay, by a notification dated 20th March 1941, made it compulsory for all Government servants in receipt of a monthly income of Rs. 50 per month who joined Government service before that date or of Rs. 25 per month who joined after that date to subscribe to the Government Provident Fund. Pensionable Government servants can only join the non-contributory section of the Fund.

Compulsory Schemes.—Compulsory contributory schemes are provided for all permanent workmen in the factories owned by certain public bodies such as the Bombay Port Trust; whilst both compulsory and optional non-contributory and contributory schemes obtain for permanent workmen in the factories owned by most municipalities. Most of the larger public utility companies and corporations such as the Tata electricity generating and distributing plants, the Bombay Electric Supply and Tramways Company, Ltd., and the Burmah-Shell Corporation, to mention only a few of many, provide contributory schemes for the benefit of the majority of their workmen. Several others have schemes for their supervisory and clerical establishments but not for their workmen.

The most usual amount of deduction from pay is one-twelfth of the monthly pay but the amount contributed by employers varies from 50 per cent. to 100 per cent. of the amount put in by the employee.

As a result of the recommendations of the Board of Conciliation appointed by the Government of India, workers in coal mines are now entitled to a contributory provident fund.

On 15th November 1951 an Ordinance to provide for compulsory provident funds for employees in Cement, Cigarettes, Engineering, Iron and Steel, Paper and Textile industries was promulgated. Later, the Ordinance was replaced by an Act of Parliament. A provident funds scheme under the Act was prepared and brought into force from October, 1952.

Profit sharing in this country has mostly taken the form of payment of bonuses according to the profit making ability of a concern. The question of bonus has already been dealt with elsewhere.

Under the Factories Act, 1948, the factory employees are entitled to a minimum of 10 days holidays with pay in the year. However the recent tendency for many units particularly in south India, has been to allow holidays with pay in excess of this limit. In many of the recent awards of Adjudicators, leave with pay up to 14 days has been awarded.

LABOUR ADMINISTRATION

Apart from dealing with labour legislation and labour conditions and attempting and bringing about uniformity of standards in the different States the Ministry of Labour of the Government of India has recently undertaken additional responsibilities for the placement of civil and military demobilized personnel, refugees, etc. It has continued active co-operation with organised employers and labour organizations through the Tripartite Labour Conference and Standing Labour Committee.

Apart from the main Secretariat of the Ministry of Labour it has several attached and subordinate officers. The activities of some of these have been described in the relevant sections, such as Employment Exchanges and Resettlement, Miners' Welfare Fund, etc., and notes on some others are briefly given below.

Labour Bureau.—To meet the ever growing needs of Government, industry and labour for accurate and reliable information relating to labour conditions, labour legislation, etc., the Central Government established on 1st October 1946, a Labour Bureau.

Among other things the Bureau edits the Indian Labour Gazette and the Year Book.

Chief Labour Commissioner.—The Central Government, in the Ministry of Labour, have also appointed a Chief Labour Commissioner. This officer is in charge of industrial relations and conciliation, labour welfare, operation of labour laws, and maintenance of information regarding wage rates and conditions of work in Central undertakings. There are a number of deputies working under him known as Regional Commissioners.

Chief Adviser of Factories.—In order to ensure uniformity in the administration of the Indian Factories Act and to improve conditions generally in Indian factories, the Government of India have appointed an officer designated the Chief Adviser of Factories. The Chief Adviser has a number of deputies, including deputies who attend to matters relating to the health of the workers and the sanitation and cleanliness of factories.

INDIA AND THE I. L. O.

India joined this organisation at the very start and since 1922 has been one of the eight leading industrial countries in the world and as such has been allotted a permanent seat on the Governing Body of the Organisation. India also contributes liberally towards the finances of the Organisation. In 1953 India's contribution amounts to U.S. $267,173 which is about 4.13 per cent. of the total contribution of all member States. India's share in the appointments of the office is, however, somewhat inadequate. The number of Indian nationals employed in the Geneva office is 11. The Indian Branch at New Delhi employs a director and three officers with other necessary staff.

India has so far ratified 19 out of the 100 Conventions adopted by the International Labour Organisation but has in addition incorporated into its national legislation the essential features of many other Conventions.

The following is a list of Conventions ratified by India:—

1. Hours of Work (Industry), 1919.
2. Night Work (Women), 1919.
3. Night Work (Young Persons), 1919.
4. Right of Association (Agriculture), 1921.
5. Weekly Rest (Industry), 1921.
6. Minimum Age, 1921.
7. Medical examination of Young Persons (Sea), 1921.
8. Workmen's Compensation (Occupational Diseases), 1925.
9. Equality of Treatment, 1925.
10. Inspection of Emigrants, 1926.
11. Seamen's Articles of Agreement, 1926.
12. Marking of Weight, 1929.
13. Night Work (Women) (Revised), 1934.
14. Underground Work (Women), 1935.
15. Protection Against Accidents (Dockers) Convention, 1929, Revised in 1932.
16. Final Articles Revision Convention, 1946.
17. Labour Inspection, 1947.
18. Night Work (Women) (Revised), 1948.
19. Night Work of Young Persons (Industry) (Revised), 1948.

A Plenary Conference of the representatives of workers, employers and Governments met on August 7, 1942 at New Delhi and decided that a collaborative machinery composed of the representatives of Governments, employers and workers in India should be established forthwith for the consideration of all questions relating to the condition of labour.

Since then tripartite labour machinery has developed in India both in the States and the Centre. The Central Tripartite machinery consists of the Indian Labour Conference, the Standing Labour Committee, the Central Advisory Council, and industrial committees for plantations, cotton, cement, leather and coal industries. The Labour Ministers' Conference is closely associated with this machinery. Matters regarding general labour policy, labour legislation, etc. are discussed at the Indian Labour Conference and the Labour Ministers' Conference. Most of the State Governments have set up State Labour Advisory Boards which are also tripartite in character.

FORESTS

STATE Forests: 1,82,539 sq. miles; Forests owned by corporate bodies: 1,369 sq. miles, Private Forests: 58,196 sq. miles.
Total Forests: 2,42,104 sq. miles; Percentage of Forests to Land: 19.190.

Allotment under Five-Year Plan: Rs. 11.69 crores.

There are seven different types of forest in India: tropical forests, southern sub-tropical and temperate forests, northern sub-tropical forests, northern temperate forests, Alpine forests, special forest types and bamboos.

The general policy of the Government in relation to forests was definitely laid down in 1894 by the classification of the areas under the control of the Department into four broad classes, namely:—

(a) Forests the preservation of which is essential on climatic or physical grounds. These are usually situated in hilly country where the retention of forest growth is of vital importance on account of its influence on the storage of the rainfall and on the prevention of erosion and sudden floods.

(b) Forests which afford a supply of valuable timbers for commercial purposes, such, for example, as the teak forests of the centre and the south, the sal forests of the north, the centre and the north-east and the deodar and pine forests of the north-western Himalayas.

(c) Minor Forests, containing somewhat inferior kinds of timber and managed for the production of wood, fodder, grazing and other produce for local consumption; these forests are of great importance in agricultural districts.

(d) Pasture lands.—These are not "forests" in the generally understood sense of the term but grazing grounds managed by the Forest Department merely as a matter of convenience.

The forest business of the Government of India is carried on in their Departments of Agriculture.

The Inspector-General of Forests is the technical adviser to the Government in forest matters.

Forests are, however, a provincial subject.

For purposes of administration the States are divided into one or more Forest Circles, each in charge of a Conservator of Forests; usually States containing three or more circles also have a Chief Conservator who is the head of the Department for his State. Circles are divided into a number of Forest Divisions, in charge of members of the superior Forest Service. Each Division contains a number of Ranges in charge of Forest Rangers or Deputy Rangers; heavy Divisions are also sometimes divided into Subdivisions. The Ranges are further subdivided into a number of rounds and beats.

The forest staff is trained at the following institutions:

Indian Forest College, Dehra Dun.

Indian Forest Rangers' College, Dehra Dun.

Madras Forest College, Coimbatore.

Bombay and Mysore have their own institutions to train rangers.

Forest education is under the charge of a Director, who is himself under the President, Forest Research Institute, Dehra Dun, where all research work is conducted. This Institute was opened in 1929 November.

Silviculture, which deals with all the production side of forestry, is under the direction of a Silviculturist. Much of the actual research work is, however, decentralised and done by local State silviculturists in the States, but the Central Silviculturist co-ordinates their work, does all the statistical computing and acts as an information bureau on silvicultural matters for the whole of India.

FOREST PRODUCE

Forest produce is divided into two main heads—(1) Major produce, i.e., timber and firewood, and (2) Minor produce, comprising all other products, such as bamboos, canes, leaves, fruits, fibres, grasses, gums, resins, essential oils, medicinal and poisonous plants, fatty oils and fats, dyes, tans and animal and mineral products. All aspects of research on the minor forest produce, such as survey, methods of exploitation and cultivation, are dealt with by the Minor Forest Products Branch, and their chemistry and processing into articles of trade and industrial use by the Chemistry of Forest Products Branch.

The annual outturn of timber and fuel from all sources averages about 306 million cubic feet.

In the Andamans notable developments have taken place. In the past, extraction of timber was done by elephant dragging with the result that only a fringe of the forests could be touched. Attempts were made in employing American methods of mechanical logging, for which machinery was bought and an American expert employed to take charge of the work. The costs of extraction, however, by these means proved too high. Recently the problem has been solved by means of light tramways, the trains of trucks being drawn by elephants which have been superannuated from ordinary work, and it has been found possible in this way to work large, hitherto inaccessible areas of forest very cheaply.

If accurate estimates were available for the country they would show that apart from the jungle population which is directly dependent on the forests and the large numbers of wood-cutters, sawyers, carters, carriers, craftsmen and others working in and near them, employment on an enormous scale is provided to persons engaged in working up the raw products. The census shows nearly a million people and their dependents so employed in the country and nearly a further half million in the States, but these are probably below the actuals, as much forest labour is not whole-time labour, devoting seven or eight months in the year to forest work and the rest to agriculture.

The general practice of the Forest Departments in the Government of India and the various States is to conduct their own sales direct with timber dealers or large consumers though there are notable exceptions. Indian timber marketing in England (especially Andaman timbers) is now done under the direction of a Timber Adviser who is attached to the Office of the High Commissioner for India. Sales of Indian timbers and especially timbers from the Andamans are steadily increasing.

A large number of bulletins and other publications are issued by the Forest Research Institute. Of these a list can be obtained from the Publicity and Liaison Officer, Forest Research Institute, New Forest, Dehra Dun, who maintains close liaison with trade and industry.

The agricultural season is divided into two main sub-divisions the Kharif season of the monsoon and the Rabi season of the cold weather. Each of these seasons has its own distinctive crops.

The ground is generally prepared for cultivation in April and May for kharif crops, and by the end of October or early November for rabi crops, i.e., after the kharif crops have been harvested. Kharif crops are sown in the monsoon, generally after the first shower. The usual time for sowing of rabi crops is the middle of November.

The chief Kharif crops are : rice, jawar, bajra, maize, cotton, sugarcane, sesamum and groundnut. The chief Rabi crops are : wheat, barley, gram, linseed, rape and mustard.

The harvest comes on the market as follows : Kharif crop (Nov. 1), Rabi crop (May 1), Rice (Nov. 1), Wheat (May 1), Sugarcane (Nov. 1), Cotton (Sept. 1), Jute (July 1), Kharif oil-seeds (Nov. 1), Rabi oil-seeds (April 1), Tea (Jan. 1), Coffee (July 1), Sugar (Jan. 1).

SOILS

Four main soil groups can be recognised in the sub-continent, viz., (1) the red soil derived from rocks of the Archaean system which characterizes

Madras, Mysore and the south-east of Bombay and extend through the east of Hyderabad and Madhya Pradesh to Orissa, Chota Nagpur and the south of W. Bengal, (2) the black cotton or regur soils which overlie the Deccan tract and cover the greater part of Bombay, Berar and the western parts of Madhya Pradesh and Hyderabad with extensions into central India and Bundelkand; regur soils also occur in Madras though not so typical as proper regurs; (3) the great alluvial plains, agriculturally the most important tract in the country as well as the most extensively cultivated includes mainly the Indo-Gangetic plain embracing northern Rajasthan, most of the Punjab area, the plains of Uttar Pradesh, most of Bihar and the West Bengal area and half of Assam and (4) vestigations on the nature of soil profiles of the Chautatia Hill in U.P. and of the Kulu Forest in the Punjab area indicate that these soils belong to the brown-earth and podsol groups.

The important question of soil conservation and development is receiving greater attention. A sample soil conservation survey conducted over 80,000 acres of the scarcity tract of Bombay State reveals that over 71 per cent of the land surface has been denuded either partially or severely out of which about 32 per cent is unfit for crop growing.

A basic soil region map of India has been prepared at the Indian Agricultural Research Institute. This will enable each soil region to be used according to its capabilities and treated in accordance with its needs.

Run-off and soil loss studies on black soils of the Deccan derived from basalt have been carried out at the dry farming research station at Sholapur and Bijapur (Bombay) and at Hagari (Madras). The average percentage run-off of total annual rainfall is 18, 22 and 20, and the average soil loss in tons per acre per year, is 44, 8 and 6 at Sholapur, Bijapur and Hagari, respectively, on 1.25 per cent slope. Similar studies are also in progress on the red and laterite soils derived from granite at Nanjanad (Madras), and from old alluvium at Shantiniketan (Visva Bharati Soil Conservation Research Station, West Bengal). At Nanjanad, in one season, the soils loss on 20 per cent slope, was 1 ton per acre under sod and six tons per acre in cultivated fallow. At Shantiniketan, the soil loss is as much as 23 tons in a year in a bare plot on 1.7 per cent slope.

Under the Technical Co-operation Administration Programme a research project on soil fertility and fertilizer use has come into operation at the Indian Agricultural Research Institute. Under this project the twenty major soil regions of India have been grouped into six zones (Poona, Delhi, Kanpur, Nagpur, Colimatore and Sabour) for purposes of soil survey and collection of soil data.

Out of the total cultivated area in the Indian Union of 266.372 million acres about 48.652 million acres are irrigated annually. Of this area 19.8 million acres are irrigated by canals, 12.88 million acres by wells, 8.174 million acres by tanks and 7.78 million acres from other sources. The percentage of irrigated area to total cultivated area is, however, small, being only 18.27 per cent. Protective irrigation works have made agriculture stable instead of precarious in many districts.

About one-quarter of the total irrigation of the country is got from lifting water from wells ranging in depth from a few feet to over fifty feet.

Tank irrigation is common in central and southern India. Large quantities of rain water are stored in lakes (or tanks) during the rainy seasons and distributed during the drier seasons of the year. Often the indirect effect of the tank in maintaining the sub-soil water level is as important as the direct irrigation.

Construction of temporary Bandharas across streams and small rivers after heavy monsoon period is over is also common in parts of Bombay and Madras States for irrigation during the drier Rabi period.

The great bulk of agricultural land in India is deficient in organic matter. In the other agricultural countries of the world, this want is usually met by the return of farmyard manure to the land or by the use of compost made from crop residues and similar waste organic materials. In India, however, cattle dung is largely utilised as village fuel and only about 40 per cent of it is used for manurial purposes.

RICE

Rice crop occupies the largest area in the Indian Union, 75.6 million acres giving an average yield of 632 lb. of rice per acre. The annual consumption of rice in the country is more than the production and there is always a deficit to the extent of 8 to 10 per cent of the total production. In the past, this deficit was usually met by imports from south-east Asian countries especially Burma which alone used to supply about 1.7 million tons of clean rice annually.

* For estimates of production for 1952-53 and for production by State see under "Food".

Rice is a predominantly tropical crop requiring warm temperature and high humidity. It requires 70°-100°F. temperature throughout its growing period and in India, its distribution follows the rainfall line. Where the annual rainfall exceeds 80" rice is predominant; with 30"-80" it is still an important crop, while under 30" it is grown mostly with irrigation. The principal rice growing areas are located in southern and north-eastern India. On area basis, Madras, Bihar, Bengal, Orissa, Madhya Pradesh, Uttar Pradesh, Assam and Bombay are the main rice growing States and they together claim about 95 per cent of the total rice area in India.

The bulk of the rice is winter crop, i.e., sown in June-July and harvested in November-December, but there are rice grown in different seasons the harvest coming in summer, autumn or winter.

The wide range of conditions under which rice is grown in India has given rise to a large number of varieties, differing greatly in quality and maturity period. There are about 4,000 distinct types of rice in India.

As already stated, the average rice yield in India is low, being only about 723 lb. of cleaned rice per acre as compared to 2,350 lb. in Japan. The low yields of India are due to the following causes:—1. Lack of assured and timely irrigation water in all rice areas. 2. The low level of soil fertility and the general absence of fertilizing practices. 3. Use of indifferent seeds and inefficient methods of cultivation and 4. Losses due to the incidence of diseases and pests.

As regards the improved varieties, a large number of high yielding improved varieties totalling about 300 have already been evolved by the various State Agricultural Departments. However, the systematic multiplication and distribution of these varieties still remain to be done on a wider scale.

The manuring of rice is even more important for increasing the acre yields. The results of a large number of manurial experiments indicate that by the application of moderate doses of nitrogenous fertilizers, specially ammonium sulphate and organic manures like compost, oil cake and green manuring, the yields can be raised by about 25 to 30 per cent.

In view of the importance of the crop in India's agricultural economy, the Indian Council of Agricultural Research has been subsidising since 1932, a chain of research stations all over India and has through them organised a co-ordinated scheme of rice research covering the entire rice growing regions of the country.

Considering the importance of rice crop to Indian Agriculture, the Union Government had set up a Central Rice Research Institute at Cuttack in Orissa in 1946. For stepping up the rice yield in the country a scheme of hybridisation between Japonica and Indica rice is being worked at this Institute. The Japonica varieties are high yielding, give a better per cent of rice to paddy, have short, non-lodging straw and respond to intensive manuring while the Indica group germinates quicker, has better tillering capacity and is resistant to drought and diseases.

The seasonal rice crop has different names in different States :

State	Autumn	Winter	Spring

Japanese Method

The Japanese method of cultivation was first tried at Kosbad Agricultural School and Agricultural Research Station, Karjat. By this method, the yield of paddy could be stepped up more than 2-3 times the yield obtained at present under local practice. This method, as more emphasis is laid on higher doses of fertilisers, is only recommended where adequate moisture supply is assured. The main important items of the Japanese method of paddy cultivation are :—Growing seedling on raised seed bed with the help of organic bulky manure and inorganic fertilisers, instead of rabbing (burning seed bed) which is the local practice in Bombay; Using less seed per unit area to get healthy and vigorous seedlings, instead of high seedrate used locally; Grading of seeds and treating with perenox as a precaution against blast disease; Green manuring wherever possible with Nan (Crotolaria Juncea) in fields at higher levels and Dhaincha (Sesbania aculeata) in low lying fields; Application of bulky organic manures like compost or F.Y.M. up to 10 cart loads per acre i.e., 10,000 lbs.; To plant the seedlings straight while transplanting and planting them in lines to facilitate after cultivation; To use only 3-4 seedlings per bunch as they are healthy and vigorous; Application of heavy dose of fertilisers at proper time in instalments, as recommended for the region; Weeding the field two times and interculturaling 3-4 times by a hand-hoe as and when required; Proper precautions against diseases and pests as well as treatment with fungicides and pesticides, as and when required; To tie strings as support to the standing crop to prevent damage by lodging at the advanced stage of crop growth; To take a crop of legume, if possible, in rabi season after harvesting paddy. This enriches the soil and gives some returns.

WHEAT

Wheat is grown widely throughout the north as a winter crop, Uttar Pradesh and the Punjab supplying about two-thirds of the total area, and nearly three-quarters of the total outturn in the country. This crop occupies, on an average, about 10 per cent. of the total cultivated area. The majority of the varieties grown belong to the species Triticum vulgare. Bombay mostly grows durum wheats in which a number of improved strains are evolved and are spreading rapidly. A new improved wheat, called Niphad-4, having the blood of durum, unglare and dicoccum wheat species has been recently evolved with exceedingly good baking quality. Indian wheats are generally white, red and amber coloured and are mostly classed as soft from a commercial point of view. But there are some well-known Macaroni wheats among these.

The crop is generally grown after a summer fallow and except in irrigated tracts, depends largely on the conservation of the soil moisture from the previous monsoon. On irrigated land 2 to 4 waterings are generally given. The crop is generally harvested in February to April and the threshing and winnowing go on up till the end of May.

The total area under wheat is 23.2 million acres and the total area under improved varieties of wheat 8 million acres.

Unfortunately, wheat is subject to a violent fungus disease called "rust", which is a potent factor limiting wheat production in India. The magnitude of the loss to the wheat crop during a season in which rust occurs in epidemic form is very great indeed. For instance during 1946-47, as a result of severe rust attack, the Madhya Pradesh and certain other parts of India lost nearly 2 million tons of wheat worth 80 crores of rupees.

The average yield of maize in India is very poor—only 548 lb. (less than 7 inds.) per acre.

MILLETS

Millets are grown mostly in rain-fed areas, supplying food for the poorer classes and fodder for the cattle. The varieties vary greatly in quality, height and suitability to various climatic and soil conditions. Perhaps the two best known varieties are jowar (Sorghum Vulgare) the great millet, and bajra the bulrush millet (Pennisetum typhoides) which, between them occupy about 50 million acres in the sub-continent.

Besides the major millets called jowar (Sorghum vulgare), bajra or Cumbu (Pennisetum typhoides) and ragi (Echinochloa coracana), there are what are known as the lesser or minor millets, such as, sawan (Panicum crusgalli), Same (Panicum mdure), Varagu (Panicum miluacum), Kodon or Kodra (Paspalum scrobiculatum), Oodalu (Echinochloa frumentacea) and the like, forming almost one sixth of the total acreage under millets.

Generally speaking, the jowars require better land than the bajras and the distribution of the two crops follows the quality of the soil. Both the crops are generally sown in the beginning of the monsoon and so they require to be thoroughly weeded. They are grown mixed with the several pulses especially arhar (Cajanus Cajon pigeon pea) and other crops and are commonly rotated with cotton. The subsidiary crops are harvested as they ripen either before the millet is harvested or afterwards. In some States like Bombay rahi juar is also an important crop.

PULSES

Pulses play a vital role in the Indian diet as they form the primary source of protein for the vegetarian population of the country. Some of them form a source of nutritious fodder, while others make excellent green manure crops. Being leguminous plants they enrich the soil and rightly form an inevitable component in mixed cropping as well as the linch pin in most crop rotation. India is very rich in the varieties of pulses comprising Red gram (Cajanus cajan), Bengal gram (Cicer arietinum), Black gram (Phaseolus mungo), Green gram (P. radiatum), Matki (P. aconitifolius), Horse gram (Dolichos biflorus), Mothbean (Cyathopsis parvaloides), Khessari (Lathyrus sativus), various species of the pisum and such like.

The total area under different pulses in the Indian Union during the years 1949-50 and 1950-51 was 49,833,000 and 45,835,000 acres and the production was 8,129,000 and 7,624,000 tons respectively. Out of this Bengal gram accounts for more than 1/3 of the production, Red gram following it with about 1/4 of production indicating thereby that gram and 'Arhar' are the two major pulse crops of the country.

Types combining resistance to wilt with high yield are available in arhar, keari and gram. A type resistant to virus is also available in wal (field bean) and kulthi (horse gram).

COTTON

Cotton is one of the most important commercial crops in the Indian Union. In 1951-52 owing to 'Grow More Food' campaign and favourable weather conditions in certain areas the estimated area and yield increased to 16.2 million acres and 3.1 million bales, respectively, the average yield being 76 lb.

There is no Indian cotton belt; the States of Bombay, the Punjab, Madhya Pradesh, Madras, Uttar Pradesh, Madhya Bharat, Rajasthan, Saurashtra, PIMP and Hyderabad, all have important cotton tracts producing distinct types. Sowing and harvesting seasons are equally diverse, the former extending from May to December in different parts of the country and the latter from October to May and June. Yields vary greatly, in the best irrigated tracts the normal yield is about 200 lb. of ginned cotton per acre and yields much above this have been recorded, while in the poorest unirrigated tracts 60 lb per acre is a good crop.

SUGARCANE AND SUGAR

The Indian Union after the partition owned as much as 85.90 per cent. of the total cane acreage and sugarcane yield and over 95 per cent of the total white sugar production of the undivided sub-continent.

During 1951-52 crushing season, the peak production of 1.48 million tons of white sugar was obtained, the area under sugarcane was nearly 4.73 million acres and the yield of cane (in terms of gur) was 5.9 million tons. Only about 25 per cent of the total cane produced in the country is crushed in 139 factories which annually function for the manufacture of white sugar while gur manufacture utilises about 65 per cent of cane and rest of the cane is consumed for seed, Khandsari, chewing, etc.

Over 20 million people are engaged in sugarcane cultivation or are otherwise employed in sugar factories, States and Central Governments' Sugarcane Research Stations and in the Development schemes. U.P. and Bihar continue to be major sugarcane and sugar producing States in the Union.

The Indian Central Sugarcane Committee is a central organisation for co-ordinating sugarcane research and development work. It has budget provisions for 1953-54 for Rs. 8.8 lakhs for sugarcane research and Rs. 33.00 lakhs for sugar-cane development schemes. Another provision of Rs. 4 lakhs has been made for the Sugarcane Research Division of the Central Institute of Sugar Technology and Sugarcane Research at Bhadrak, Lucknow.

OILSEEDS

India is one of the principal oilseeds producing countries of the world. Oilseeds crops also find a prominent place in India the major oilseeds (groundnut, rape and mustard, linseed, sesamum and castor) occupying about 28 million acres during 1950-51. In addition to this, about 18 million acres are under the cotton crop which yields about one million tons of cotton seed.

The following are the major oilseeds grown in India:—

Groundnut—India has the largest area under groundnuts in the world. She accounted for 40.6 per cent. of the groundnut production in the world during 1951. In this country, groundnuts accounted for about 42.5 per cent. and 63.8 per cent. of the total area and production, respectively, under oilseeds crops during 1951-52. Madras ranks first, claiming 35.2 per cent. and 49.9 per cent. of the acreage and production, respectively, under groundnut in India and is followed by Bombay and Hyderabad. The area under this crop in India in 1951-52 was 11,755,000 acres and the production was 3,037,000 tons.

Rape & Mustard—Rape and mustard form an important group of crops in the northern parts of the country. The chief producing areas are Uttar Pradesh, Bihar, Punjab and Assam. The area and production of rape and mustard seeds in India during 1951-52 was 5,707,000 acres and 900,000 tons, respectively.

Linseed—The crop grows well under a variety of soil conditions and is raised extensively in India except in the south of the peninsula. Madhya Pradesh, Uttar Pradesh, Bihar and Hyderabad are the chief seed producing areas, accounting for about 80 per cent. of the total area in India. The area and production of linseed in India during 1951-52 were 3,298,000 acres and 309,000 tons, respectively.

Sesamum—Sesamum (Gingelly) or til is grown extensively, almost throughout India. The crop is, however, intensively cultivated in Peninsular India in more than one season in the year. The area and production of sesamum in India during 1951-52 were 5,731,000 acres and 441,000 tons, respectively.

Castor—The castor plant grows well under varied conditions of soil and climate. It is seen to grow almost throughout the length and breadth of India and up to an elevation of 8,000 ft. Both perennial and annual types are recognised. India comes next to Brazil only in world production and trade of castor seed. The area and production of castor seed in India during 1951-52 were 1,423,000 acres and 104,000 tons, respectively. The statistics of area and production of this crop are, however, considered as under estimates, as no regular reporting is done for the areas sown under mixed crops.

India also produces considerable quantities of coconut, cottonseed, niger, safflower and mohwa seed besides a variety of other vegetable oils, both essential and non-essential, which are produced in quantities, but for which she holds almost a world monopoly.

JUTE

Jute is one of the most important cash crops. The fibre is obtained from the bark of two cultivated species of annual plants called Corchorus capularis and Corchorus olitorius.

Jute is grown in the alluvial soils of West Bengal, Bihar, Assam, Orissa, Tripura and U.P. It is a Kharif crop and is sown broadcast during February to May on well prepared seed beds.

The outturn of dry fibre of jute generally varies from 8 to 25 mds with an average of 11 mds. per acre, depending upon soil fertility and other factors.

The table below gives the acreage and yield of the Indian Union since 1948 after the partition:—

Year. (Jute year July to June.)	Acreage.	Jute yield in bales.
1948	834,000	2,056,000
1949	1,163,000	3,089,000
1950	1,454,000	3,301,000
1951	1,951,000	4,878,000
1952	1,834,079	4,694,954

Efforts are also directed to improve the quality of Indian jute and various researches are in progress in the Jute Agriculture Research Institute of the Indian Central Jute Committee.

TOBACCO

The tobacco acreage in India is not uniformly distributed but is concentrated in certain areas which form distinct tobacco growing centres of considerable commercial importance. There are 5 zones of concentrated production, viz.:—

(1) North Bihar and Bengal Area where tobacco is mostly grown for use in hookah (water-pipe); (2) The Charotar (Gujarat) Area; (3) Nipani Area (Belgaum, Satara, Kolhapur, Sangli and Miraj in Bombay State) where bidi tobacco is extensively grown (4) Guntur Area which is the most important Cigarette Leaf (Virginia Tobacco) producing area which runs along the eastern coast; (5) Southern Madras Area comprises mainly of Madura and Coimbatore districts of Madras State where cigar, filler and binder tobacco as well as chewing tobaccos are mostly grown.

The total area under tobacco in the Indian Union in 1950-51 and 1951-52 were 902,000 and 764,000 acres producing 589 and 504 million lb. of dry leaf, respectively.

This excludes the quantity retained for personal consumption by the growers.

MARKETING AND INSPECTION

There is a Central marketing organization called the Directorate of Marketing and Inspection, and a number of State marketing organizations, e.g., in Bombay, Bihar, Hyderabad, Madras, Mysore, Punjab and West Bengal.

The official in charge of the Central Directorate is designated Agricultural Marketing Adviser. The Directorate conducts marketing surveys for a number of commodities and issues reports. About 70 reports have so far been published and among the commodities covered are: rice, wheat, potatoes, gram, barley, grape, bananas, citrus fruit, linseed, ground-nuts, cashewnuts, lac, sugar, coconuts, tobacco, milk, fish, cattle, hides, skins, wool and hair, sheep and goats, eggs, coffee, castor seed, ghee and milk products, arecanuts, rapeseed and mustard, sann hemp and cardamom.

The Agricultural Produce (Grading and Marketing) Act, 1937 aims to provide the consumers with a standardized produce of specified purity and quality under a mark of guarantee. The process of grading and marking is done commercially on a voluntary basis by packers holding a Certificate of Authorization issued by the Agricultural Marketing Adviser. There are now about 550 packers under the various grading schemes.

There are grade specifications for several varieties of rice, fruit, cotton, castor oil, coconut oil, sann hemp, tobacco, ghee, eggs, butter, sugarcane gur.

In 1951 the latest year for which figures are available commodities worth Rs. 20.71 crores were graded.

The marketing of certain commodities is also regulated by law in some States. For instance, in Madhya Pradesh cotton is regulated in Amraoti; in Madras cotton is regulated in Tirupur and Tirunelveli, ground nuts in South Arcot and Coimbatore, tobacco in Guntur, West Godavari and Coimbatore, arecanuts, coconuts, ground nuts, tobacco, turmeric and potatoes elsewhere; in Bombay there are over 50 regulated markets; in Hyderabad about 70; in PEPSU about 40; in the Punjab about 60; in Madhya Bharat Gwalior district has 36; in Mysore coconut, copra, oilseeds and jaggery are regulated at Tiptur, there is also a regulated market at Davangere. There are also regulated markets in Ajmer.

The principle of compulsory grading of agricultural produce for export has been recognized by the Planning Commission. They recommended that grading should be completed over a period of five years beginning with 1951-52.

RESEARCH

The Indian Council of Agricultural Research was created in 1929. The Council is divided into a Governing Body composed of State Ministers of Agriculture, certain members of Parliament and representatives of commercial interests, and an Advisory Board consisting of experts. The Governing Body is in charge of general affairs and of the funds, while the Advisory Board examines scientific projects submitted to the Governing Body.

To afford relief to the Governing Body in the discharge of its executive functions there is a Standing Committee. The Governing Body is also assisted by a Board of Research and a Board of Extension. The latter is concerned with pilot schemes.

The Minister for Food and Agriculture of the Government of India is the president of the Council.

In general the Council co-ordinates research work, suggests programmes of research, gives financial assistance for approved schemes, and undertakes other schemes of its own.

There is now an extension service to make known the results of research work to the cultivator.

The annual grants made to I.C.A.R. fall under two main heads:—(a) An annual Government grant for running the administration. This varies from year to year according to requirements, and is estimated to be Rs. 9,97,800 for 1953-54. (b) Payment of the net proceeds of the cess on agriculture produce. The income from this source is estimated to be Rs. 34,00,000 during 1953-54.

Besides these specific grants are made to I.C.A.R. for undertaking certain schemes from time to time. A sum of Rs. 25,14,000 has been provided for this purpose in the 1953-54 budget. Most of this amount will be spent on schemes included in the First Five-Year Plan.

The cess is a customs duty of one half of one per cent ad valorem on the following: bones, bristles, butter, cereals other than rice and wheat, drugs, fibre for brushes, fish, fruit, ghee, hides (raw), manures, oil cakes, pulses, seeds, skins (raw), spices, tobacco (unmanufactured), vegetables, wheat, wheat flour, wool (raw). This applies to the whole of India except Jammu and Kashmir.

A number of Central Committees have been set up to promote the production and marketing of agricultural commodities:

Indian Central Cotton Committee, Bombay
Indian Central Jute Committee, Calcutta.
Indian Central Tobacco Committee, Madras.
Indian Central Oil-seeds Committee, New Delhi
Indian Central Coconut Committee, Ernakulam (S. India).

Indian Central Sugar-cane Committee, New Delhi.

Indian Central Arccanut Committee, Calcut (S. India).

Indian Central Lac Cess Committee, Ranchi (Bihar).

All India Cattle Show Committee, Karnal (Punjab).

These Committees are financed by the proceeds of a cess levied on the particular commodity. For instance, for the Cotton Committee there is a cess of As. 4 per bale of 400 lb. of cotton; for the Coconut Committee there is a cess of As. 4 per cwt. on copra consumed in Indian mills; for the Lac Committee the cess is As. 14 per md. of export of lac and As. 10 for refuse lac exported; for the Oil-seeds Committee the cess is 1 anna per md. of oil extracted in mills, and annas 2 per md. of oil-seeds.

The Ministry of Food and Agriculture maintains a number of research laboratories:

1. Indian Agricultural Research Institute, Pusa, New Delhi.
2. Central Potato Research Institute, Patna. Laboratory, at Potato Multiplication Sub-division, Bhowall (U.P.). Laboratory, at Potato Breeding Sub-Station, Simla.
3. Central Rice Research Institute, Cuttack.
4. Research Laboratory, Central Palm Gur Training School, Cuddalore (Madras State).
5. Forest Research Institute and College, P.O. New Forest, Dehra Dun.
6. Sugar Cane Breeding Institute, Coimbatore.
7. Indian Veterinary Research Institute, Izatnagar-Mukteswar (U.P.).
8. Indian Dairy Research Institute, Bangalore.
9. Central Vegetable Breeding Station, Kulu, P.O. Naggar, District Kangra (Punjab).
10. Central Marine Fisheries Research Station, Mandapam, P.O., Southern Railway.
11. Central Inland Fisheries Research Station, Manirampur, Pulta P.O., Barrackpur, 24 Parganas.
12. Deep Sea Fishing Station, Bombay.

A number of research institutes, stations and farms are also maintained by the Central Commodity Committees:

- The Indian Central Cotton Committee has:
1. Technological Laboratory, Matunga.
 2. Institute of Plant Industry, Indore.

The Jute Committee has:

1. Jute Agricultural Research Institute, Barrackpore (West Bengal).
2. Technological Research Laboratories, Tollygunge, Calcutta.
3. Economic Research Section, Indian Central Jute Committee, Calcutta.

The Tobacco Committee has:

1. Central Tobacco Research Institute, Rajahmundry.
2. Cigar and Cherooot Tobacco Research Station, Vadasandur.
3. Hookah and Chewing Tobacco Research Station, Pusa, Bihar.
4. Cigarette Tobacco Research Sub-station, Guntur.
5. Wrapper Tobacco Research Station, Dinahatta (West Bengal). (Was to be started in 1953-54.)

The Coconut Committee has:

1. Central Coconut Research Station, Kasaragod.
2. Central Coconut Research Station, Kayangulam.

The Sugar Committee has:

Sugar-cane Sub-Station, Karnal (Punjab).

LAND POLICY

In general agricultural policy is made up of the following:

Grow More Food Campaign, research, land reform, land army (in contemplation).

There are three main systems of land tenure: the ryotwari or peasant proprietary tenure, where the individual owners are responsible for the payment of land revenue; the zamindari or landlord tenure where one or more persons jointly own a large estate and are responsible for the payment of land revenue; the mahalswari or joint village tenure where village communities jointly hold an estate and are jointly and severally responsible for the payment of land revenue.

The ryotwari system prevails largely in Bombay and Madras; the zamindari in West Bengal, Bihar, parts of Assam, Orissa, Madras and Uttar Pradesh; the Mahalswari in Madhya Pradesh, the Punjab and parts of U.P.

The system of intermediaries (zamindars, taluqdars, jagirdars, inamdars, malguzars, and similar special tenure holders) has been abolished in all States wherever they existed.

In Bombay, Saurashtra, Madras, Hyderabad, Himachal Pradesh, Delhi, Punjab, PEPSU, Madhya Pradesh, Uttar Pradesh, there is also legislation which confers security of tenure, fixes rent, puts a limit on the acquisition of land in the future, bans lease of land, vests proprietary rights in occupancy tenants and so on.

In Jammu and Kashmir land reform has been more drastic. A certain ceiling was fixed to the amount of land a man could hold, and the excess over that was distributed without compensation.

The land revenue is assessed differently in different States. In the following States it is a fixed share of the net produce: Madras 50 per cent; Punjab 25 per cent; Uttar Pradesh 40 per cent. In these States it varies from time to time: Bombay, Hyderabad, Mysore, parts of Madhya Pradesh.

Wherever there was permanent settlement (West Bengal, Bihar, parts of Madras, Assam, Orissa and U.P.) it will automatically end with the abolition of zamindari.

One of the problems of Indian agriculture is the small size of the average holding and of fragmentation. The average size of a holding for the whole of India is 5 acres, but this varies from State to State: Hyderabad 12 acres, Bombay 11.7 acres, Punjab 10, U.P. 6, West Bengal 4.5, Madras 4.4. The majority of the holdings will be less than 5 acres, a great majority indeed less than 2.

The movement towards consolidation of holdings is partly voluntary and partly compulsory. Legislation towards this end has been enacted in the following States: Bombay, Delhi, Jammu and Kashmir, PEPSU, Punjab, U.P.

There is, in fact, a general movement towards fixing a maximum and minimum on land holdings. Co-operative farming is also being organized.

Out of about 250 million agricultural population 2 per cent is non-working land-lords, 67 per cent peasant proprietors, 13 per cent tenants and 18 per cent landless labourers. There is tenancy legislation in many States while minimum wages for agricultural workers are fixed in Ajmer, Bilaspur, Delhi, Himachal Pradesh, Kutch, Patna District of Bihar, Punjab.

It may be mentioned here that upto Oct. 5, 1953 the donations of land to the Bhoodan movement totalled 2,127,217 acres. Out of this 35,481 acres were redistributed among 5,576 families.

LAND USE

The topographical factors are as follows (the figures which are in lakh acres are inclusive of Jammu and Kashmir):

Total land area, 8,126; mountains, 873, hills, 1,506, plateau, 2,248, plains, 3,498; unusable area, 3,082, topographically usable area, 5,044.

Land area per capita - 2.25 acres.

The high density sub-regions are as follows:

Sub-regions	Population (lakhs)	Density per sq. mile	Land area (lakhs acres)
Lower Gangetic Plains	700	832	538
Upper Gangetic Plains	389	681	366
Malabar-Konkan	238	638	239
South Madras	307	554	355
North Madras and Orissa Coastal ..	211	461	293
Total 5 sub-regions	1,845	660	1,791

The medium density sub-regions are as follows:

Sub-regions	Population (lakhs)	Density per sq. mile	Land area (lakhs acres)
Trans-Gangetic Plains	259	332	499
South Deccan	315	247	817
North Deccan	239	246	621
Gujarat-Kathiawar	161	226	456
Total	974	1,051	2,393

The low density sub-regions are as follows:

Sub-regions	Population (lakhs)	Density per sq. mile	Land area (lakhs acres)
The Desert	46	61	483
Western Himalayas	90	68	852
Eastern Himalayas	124	118	674
North-West Hills	104	163	409
North Central Hills and Plateau	138	164	537
North-East Plateau	290	192	967
Total	792	129	3,921

The following table shows the indices of land use in the high density, medium density and low density sub-regions :

Indices	High	Medium	Low	* India
Percentage of net area sown to total land area	50	50	19	35
Percentage of net area sown to topographically usable area	62	70	40	56
Double-crop percentage	23	6	12	13
Irrigation percentage	25	11	10	16
Fallow percentage	18	26	22	22
Percentage of forests	11	11	22	15
Percentage unavailable	17	15	16	16
Percentage unused	12	8	27	17

It has been found by sample study of Districts in different parts of the country (with a population of 12 crores) that the area of cultivated land per capita has fallen from 1891 to 1951 in some such proportion as the following (the area is given in cents) :

1891—100 ; 1901—103 ; 1911—109 ; 1921—111 ; 1931—104 ; 1941—94 ; 1951—84.

The same study revealed that double-crop area per capita has also fallen from 1891 to 1951 :

1891—12 ; 1921—13 ; 1951—10.

The irrigated area per capita has fallen :

1891—16 ; 1921—18 ; 1951—14.

FIVE-YEAR PLAN

The Plan seeks to overcome or reduce the existing shortages of food and raw material and transform the village environment and outlook of the rural population.

The outlay is as follows (Rs. in crores) :

Agriculture	184.22
Veterinary, dairying	22.28
Forests	11.60
Co-operation	7.11
Fisheries	4.64
Rural development	10.47
Community Projects	90.00
Local Works	15.00
Programme for Scarcity affected areas	15.00
Total	360.41

The targets to be attained are additional production of 7.6 million tons of foodgrains, 1.26 million bales of cotton, 2.09 million bales of jute, 0.7 million tons of sugar, 0.4 million tons of oilseeds.

The major and minor irrigation works will irrigate 16.7 million acres.

Under the reclamation programme 7.4 million acres are to be brought under the plough by the Central and State Governments at a cost of Rs. 36 crores. About 1.4 million acres will be reclaimed by the Central Tractor Organization, 1.2 million acres by similar organizations in the States. The remaining 4.8 million acres are expected to be developed by the farmer with the assistance of the State.

Improved seeds and fertilizers will be supplied and the use of improved implements encouraged.

Besides schemes drawn up in consultation with the Central Government there are supplementary schemes proposed by the Commission.

The allotments for the latter are as follows (rupees in crores) :

Additional provision for minor irrigation works	30
Construction of tube-wells	6
National extension organization	3
Grow More Food (1952-53)	10
Community Project	90

Under the Plan finance will be made available to the cultivator through the Reserve Bank, as well as by the States through co-operative credit societies.

It is hoped that by the end of the Plan period Rs. 100 crores, Rs. 25 crores, and Rs. 5 crores will be made available as short term, medium term, and long term loans respectively.

About land policy, the Commission thinks that there should be an upper limit to the amount of land held by one person. This will apply to resumption of land for personal cultivation and future acquisition.

Tenants who hold land should be enabled to acquire ownership on payment of compensation. Where such land is cultivated by the owners themselves the test should be efficiency. Farms which are badly managed should be taken over by the State and cultivated through the co-operatives of landless or displaced workers.

Owners of middle-sized and small farms should be encouraged to develop their production on a co-operative basis. If they do not resume land for personal cultivation within a reasonable period the tenants should be allowed to become the owners.

A tenancy should last at least for five years and should be renewable.

Rents should vary between one-fourth and one-fifth of the produce.

There should be co-operative village management under which land and other resources are pooled and utilized in the interests of the community as a whole.

For the same type of work everyone should receive the same remuneration.

Increased facilities for training and experiments in co-operative farming are to be provided at a cost of Rs. 50 lakhs.

A sum of Rs. 2 crores has been provided for settling landless agricultural workers on reclaimed land.

The State should also provide them with house sites, give preference to co-operatives of landless workers in the allotment of reclaimed land, entrust co-operatives of agricultural workers with construction work on behalf of the Public Works and Forest Departments.

* In the tables that follow there is some discrepancy in the estimates made in Delhi (in table on p. 98) and those made in Bombay as shown in the following tables.

(a) Includes 835 thousand acres for which details are not available.

(b) Includes 1,603 thousand acres in respect of Banaskantha district of Bombay for which details are not available.

(c) Difference is due to different method of survey.

(d) Includes 151 thousand acres for which details of classification are not available.

(e) Includes 62 thousand acres for which details of classification are not available.

(f) Includes 986 thousand acres for which details of classification are not available.

(g) Includes 2,500 thousand acres for which details of classification are not available.

 Excludes 'enemy held' portion of the State.

LIVESTOCK

IT is estimated that there were about 291.5 million livestock in 1950-51. Of these the cattle formed about 150 million, the buffaloes about 45 million, sheep and goats about 88.6 million and horses, ponies, mules, donkeys, camels and pigs about 7.9 million. Besides these, there were 70 million poultry.

In the same year Rs. 7.17 crores worth of livestock was imported and Rs. 12.16 crores worth of livestock was exported.

For draught purposes cattle are mainly used everywhere though male buffaloes are important as draught animals in the rice tracts and damper parts of the country. For dairy purposes, the buffalo is important, the milk yield being high and the percentage of butter fat considerably above that in cow's milk.

The best known breeds are the Murrah, Nili and Ravi buffaloes of the Punjab, the Jafferbadi buffaloes of Saurashtra, Mehsana of Gujarat, Nagpuri of central India and the Surti and Pandharpuri, a type of Nagpuri buffaloes of Bombay State. The spread of cultivation has diminished the grazing grounds, insufficient fodder crops are raised and many of the cattle are small, ill-fed and inefficient.

Draught cattle.—Hissar (Punjab); Khorigarh and Powar (U.P.); Nagore (Rajputana); Malvi (M.B.); Gosalao (M.P.); Khillar, Krishna Valley; Dangl (Bom.); Ongole and Kangayam (Madras); Hallikar and Amritmahal (Mysore); Nimar (M.B., M.P. and Bom.).

Milk cattle.—Sindhi and Sahiwal (both of West Pakistan, but small herds of which exist in the country).

Dual-purpose cattle.—Hariana (Punjab); Kankrej (Bom.); Gir (Saurashtra and Bom.); Tharparkar (Kutch).

It has been estimated that the number of sheep in the country is about 39 million and that the total quantity of wool produced is 55 million lb. annually. The yield of wool per sheep varies greatly in different parts of the country. In Punjab, Uttar Pradesh, Rajasthan and Saurashtra, the annual production per sheep is estimated at between 3.1 lb. and 4 lb., while in the rest of the States it does not exceed 1 lb. The average for the whole of the country is in the neighbourhood of 2 lb. per sheep per year.

Poultry-keeping is an important subsidiary industry of the poorer classes. Indigenous poultry of low grade produce on an average 50 small-sized eggs per year. Steps are being taken to improve them by grading up with foreign breeds like Rhode Island Red, White Leghorn and Minorca.

DAIRYING

Intensive steps are being taken by most States to improve the cattle, both from the view-point of draught and milk production and many important schemes have been put in operation.

Despite the large vegetarian population and large number of cattle, the dairy industry is still unorganised. Of 195 million cattle and buffaloes, 70 million or 36 per cent. are milch animals (females over 3 years). Milk yield is, however, low: Cow 413 lb. per year, buffalo 1,101 lb. Though buffaloes form only 30 per cent. of milch animals, due to their comparatively high yield, they account for 54 per cent. of the total milk produced. Buffalo milk has butter fat content 6.5 to 7 per cent as against 4 to 5 per cent. of cow.

Gross production of milk is 21.42 million tons, of which 14.5 million tons are marketed, the rest being used for home consumption or fed to calves. Per capita daily consumption of milk and milk products varies from 16.89 oz. in the Punjab to 2.64 oz. in Orissa; average 5.5 oz.

Most of the States have appointed Dairy Development Officers to organize dairying both on co-operative lines as well as through private enterprise.

The Government of Bombay has established a very large milk colony at Aarey near Bombay where about 15,000 animals are housed under the most modern conditions and milk supplied to Bombay City after pasteurization. Milk supply schemes are operating in various States.

Research in dairying is done at the Indian Dairy Research Institute at Bangalore. This Institute also runs courses in Animal Husbandry and Dairying.

ANIMAL DISEASES

There are nine Veterinary Colleges in India, one each at Gauhati, Patna, Calcutta, Bombay, Mathura, Hyderabad, Madras, Hissar and Jabalpur.

The chief research centre is the Indian Veterinary Research Institute at Mukteswar in Uttar Pradesh and its branch at Izatnagar, near Bareilly. This institute is maintained by the Government of India.

The Indian Veterinary Research Institute also manufactures large quantities of sera and vaccines for the use of the State Department. Serum Institutes have also been opened in various States such as Bombay, Madras, Hyderabad and Uttar Pradesh.

The chief diseases that the Animal Husbandry and Veterinary Departments have to deal with are glanders and surra in equines, and rinderpest, foot and mouth disease, haemorrhagic septicaemia, black quarter and anthrax in ruminants while tuberculosis, Johne's disease and contagious abortion are assuming greater importance than in the past. Glanders and surra are both scheduled diseases under the Glanders and Farcy Act. Glanders is incurable but surra can now be successfully treated with Naganol or Antypol. This disease (surra) also affects camels, cattle and dogs and in recent years its importance as a bovine disease has been more widely recognised.

Of the diseases of ruminants mentioned, all, with the exception of foot and mouth disease, can now be controlled either by means of sera or by vaccines.

Indian poultry are also subject to several contagious diseases. The dreaded "Ranikhet" disease is fairly wide-spread and its ravages have seriously hampered the poultry industry. A chick-passaged vaccine has now been developed at the Indian Veterinary Research Institute and trials conducted in the field have been very encouraging. Fowl pox and fowl cholera vaccines are available for the protection of poultry against those diseases.

FIVE-YEAR PLAN

Total allotment—Rs. 22.28 crores.

Useless cattle should be removed to gosadans. One hundred and sixty of these are to be opened in areas with grazing facilities at a cost of Rs. one crore.

To improve stock 600 centres are to be started under the key village scheme. Breeding will be confined to three or four superior bulls of known pedigree, and inferior bulls will be removed or castrated. Each centre will comprise three or four villages having about 500 cows of over three years of age.

The number of veterinary hospitals will be increased from 2,000 in 1951 to 2,000 in 1956. Steps will also be taken to increase fodder supply.

FOOD

TOTAL foodgrains available in the country (production plus imports) were as follows (figures in million tons):

1948-49: 54, 1949-50: 61; 1950-51: 48.12; 1951-52: 46.42, 1952-53: 46.28.

The total population under rationing in 1952 was 31.25 millions.

The total quantity of foodgrains distributed by Governments in 1952 was 6.69 million tons.

It may be pointed out here that the Nutrition Advisory Committee has recommended 14 oz. of cereals per consumption unit as the requirement for a balanced diet.

The year 1953 opened with a stock of 1.9 million tons with the Central and State Governments.

The provisional target of imports was set at 2.9 million tons.

The estimated production for 1953 is 47.58 million tons.

The total loss to the Central Government on account of subsidies during 1952-53 was Rs. 21.11 crores including a special subsidy of Rs. 3 crores granted to Travancore-Cochin.

The main planks of food policy was bulk imports of food grains, internal procurement and controlled distribution to the more vulnerable sections of the population.

From June 1952 there was a certain degree of relaxation in controls. The main features of this change were: the substitution of statutory rationing by fair price shops, modification in the procurement system, greater freedom in inter-State movement of food grains, liberalization of food austerity regulations.

Coarse grains were completely decontrolled in 1954 January, and foreign wheat in February.

It was expected that wheat would be completely decontrolled in 1954. But control on rice would remain.

But there was no change in the basic policy of maintaining strategic controls.

Population under statutory rationing: 1951-52: 31.2 million, 1952-53: 31.2 million.

Population covered by other types of rationing including Fair Price Shops: 1951-52: 68.2 million, 1952 (Dec.): 97.1 million.

Total imports (till end of 1952): 3.9 million tons.

Cost of imported grains: Rs. 210 crores.

Storage capacity was for 8 lakh tons.

The balance sheet of food grains distributed by Governments during 1952 was as follows:

	(In 000 tons)
	1952	1951
Opening stocks with States ..	1,807	729
Procurement	3,416	3,766
Supplies to States from imports	3,474	4,679

The following States are generally surplus in wheat: Punjab, PEPSU, Vindhya Pradesh.

The following States are generally surplus in rice: Orissa, Madhya Pradesh, Uttar Pradesh, Punjab, Coorg.

The following State is generally surplus in millets: Hyderabad.

From the point of view of food generally the position is roughly as follows:

Surplus States: Madhya Pradesh, Punjab, PEPSU, Orissa, Assam.

Self-sufficient States: U.P., Madhya Bharat.

Deficit States: Bombay, Madras, Mysore, Travancore-Cochin, Saurashtra, Hyderabad, Rajasthan, Himachal Pradesh, Bihar, West Bengal.

The number of tube-wells drilled upto 31st December, 1952 in U.P., Bihar and Punjab was 470, the number drilled in North Gujarat 26.

Under the Indo-U.S. Technical Co-operation Agreement 2,000 tube-wells were to be drilled during 1952-53. These were to be drilled partly departmentally and partly through private agencies.

The Central Tractor Organization had 250 tractors in operation during 1952-53.

It ploughed 2.35 lakh acres of kans infested land in U.P., M.P., M.B. and Bhopal during Jan-June 1952. Also 18,000 acres of jungle land in Naini Tal-Tarai were reclaimed.

POSITION IN 1950-52

The total food production in the country for the years 1950 to 1952 was as follows:

	(In 000 tons)
	1949-50	1950-51	1951-52
Rice	23,170	20,251	20,703

PROCUREMENT SYSTEMS

At the time of writing (Nov. 1953) the following systems of procurement were in operation:

ASSAM: The State has been divided into a number of zones for purposes of procurement. In each zone purchases are made by agents appointed by the Government, and the individual producers and landlords are required to sell to Government all stocks exceeding 200 maunds.

BIHAR: Monopoly procurement of rice and paddy in the three districts of Ranchi, Manbhumi Sadar and Santhal Parganas (excluding Gonda and Sahibganj Division).

BOMBAY: Monopoly procurement of rice throughout the State. In Thana and Kolaba purchases are also made by contracts with rice mills. In a few taluks of these two districts, informal levy has been introduced recently. Wheat, millets and other coarse grains are purchased on a voluntary sale basis.

MADHYA PRADESH: Levy on trade.

MADRAS: A small quantity of rice is procured by means of levy on the cultivators from the main harvest in some surplus districts.

ORISSA: Monopoly procurement of rice through trade agents.

PUNJAB: Rice mills can dispose of rice only under orders of Government. Monopoly procurement of wheat was suspended on April 27, 1953.

UTTAR PRADESH: Only rice is procured from licensed traders for export.

WEST BENGAL: On Oct. 14, 1953 the policy of procurement of rice was abandoned. As a measure of price support, the Government will purchase paddy or rice in areas where the market price goes below a certain level and becomes uneconomic to growers.

HYDERABAD: Procurement of rice and paddy is in operation under the Central Government's Foodgrains (licensing and procurement) Order, 1952 in the predominantly rice growing areas. A limited quantity of jowar is procured from the surplus areas by a scheme of tenders from the trade.

KASHMIR: Levy on cultivators.

MADHYA BHARAT: Monopoly procurement of wheat. System of jowar procurement is the same as in Hyderabad.

MYSORE: Levy on cultivators confined to rice only.

PEPSU: Purchases through a syndicate of foodgrain dealers on behalf of Government from approved muddles.

RAJASTHAN: Levy on quantities moved from one district to another. No procurement of Kharif crops.

SAURASHTRA: Procurement has been abandoned.

TRAVANCORE-COCHIN: Levy on cultivators on a slab basis and related to the productivity of the land.

AJMER: No procurement.

BHOPAL: Graded levy on cultivators through agents appointed by the Government.

BILASPUR: No Procurement.

COORG: Monopoly. Purchases are made through agents appointed by the Government.

DELHI: No Procurement.

HIMACHAL PRADESH: Monopoly of purchase of wheat in Mandi and Sirmur districts only.

KUTCH: Monopoly. In addition every landholder will have to sell to Government a quantity of foodgrains equal in value to the amount of land revenue and taccavi instalments payable for the year.

MANIPUR: Procurement for export through approved traders from the open market.

TRIPURA: Purchases from the open market as also direct from the cultivators.

VINDHYA PRADESH: The traders are liable to sell to Government upto 80 per cent of their purchases.

CENTRAL SUBSIDY (1951-52)

The Central subsidy to the States in lakhs of rupees was as follows: Assam, nil; Bihar, 11; Bombay, 390; M.P., 16; Madras, 123; Orissa, nil; U.P., 435; West Bengal, 174; Hyderabad, 25; Kashmir, nil; M.B., nil; Mysore, 7.5; PEPSU, nil; Rajasthan, nil; Saurashtra, nil; Travancore-Cochin, 307; Ajmer, nil; Andamans, nil; Bhopal, nil; Coorg, nil; Delhi, 221; H.P., Kutch, Manipur, Tripura, V.P., nil.

The total expenditure on food subsidy was Rs. 4,009 lakhs.

ESTIMATES FOR 1952-53

It was estimated that the production of food grains for all India would be 47.58 million tons. The quantity proposed to be imported was 2 lakh tons.

It was estimated that the total production of food grains for individual States (in 000 tons) would be: Assam, 1,501; Bihar, 4,831; Bombay, 3,364; M.P., 4,608; Madras, 6,790; Orissa, 3,185; Punjab, 2,337; U.P., 8,930; West Bengal, 1,054; Hyderabad, 1,666; Kashmir, 392; M.B., 781; Mysore, 456; PEPSU, 724; Rajasthan, 1,948; Saurashtra, 309; Travancore-Cochin, 405; Ajmer, 53; Andamans, 2; Bhopal, 137; Coorg, 42; Delhi, 28; H.P., 134; Kutch, 51; Manipur, 71; Tripura, 137; V.P., 567.

FOOD SHORTAGE

'Food controls' is really a misleading term for what is in reality a gigantic State trading system set up by the Central Government and all State Governments working in co-operation with one another.

The operation of this system during 1949, 1950 and 1951 may be summed up as follows:

On an average 43.9 lakh tons were purchased every year in different States within the country—mostly from farmers directly, in some places from traders. Another 34.8 lakh tons were purchased every year from various foreign countries. These stocks were designed to meet the daily needs of crores of people. The average annual issues made from these stocks to grain shops, ration shops, etc. amounted to 77.1 lakh tons.

The total number of persons who received supplies (on March 31, 1951) numbered 12.66 crores.

The time when undivided India changed over from being a net exporter of foodgrains into a net importer was about 1921.

About 1880 the ordinary outturn of food in British India was 50 million tons and the surplus available for storage, export, etc. was more than five million tons.

The average imports in lakh tons for 1947-52 was 32.7.

The composition of the imports had changed greatly. Before World War II India was importing rice heavily but exporting wheat. After World War II there was very little rice and a great deal of wheat and coarse grains.

The sources from which the imports were coming in had also changed. The average imports from Burma, for instance, were 12.1 lakh tons during 1948-50, which was less than two-fifths of the level reached just before World War II.

The decline in imports cannot be due to a shift in cultivation from food to cash crops, for this shift is hardly significant. From sample survey we find that the proportion of land sown with food crops to the total sown area changed as follows from 1891 to 1951:

1891—80.7 per cent; 1921—77.8 per cent; 1951—77.2 per cent.

Figures for certain specific districts show: the shift was more significant before 1921 than after, it was more significant in south and west India than elsewhere, shifts in other directions also occurred being significant in north and central India.

A graph of the food prices from 1800 to 1950 will go something like this:

For the first fifty years there will be a more or less level course. For the next fifty years it is no longer level, each decade a little higher than the preceding one: the fluctuations tend to be sharper. Then for the last fifty years one big peak marking World War I, then a valley marking the depression, then finally the tallest of all peaks on which we stand today.

The index of food prices (Aug. 1939=100) was somewhat as follows:

1948—374; 1947—389; 1950—410; 1951—410; 1952 Jan.—393; 1952 Dec.—345 (the lowest level reached by food prices after the war ended.)

The prices of certain kharif foodgrains in 1952 Dec. were as follows:

Rice: Gaya Rs. 19; Bilaspur, Rs. 13 as. 4; Contal, Rs. 14; Tikamgarh, Rs. 14 as. 8; Gorakhpur, Rs. 19; Russelkonda, Rs. 10.

Jowar: Akola, Rs. 10; Chandausi, Rs. 11 as. 4; Bharatpur Rs. 10 as. 8.

Malze: Chapra, Rs. 14; Nanpara, Rs. 11 as. 8.

CONSUMPTION

There are no reliable statistics and production and consumption figures are subject to a wide margin.

The National Sample Survey yielded the following results:

The average rural household produced 10.9 maunds of foodgrains every year and ate 26.4 maunds during the year.

The Sample accepted the figure for consumption but rejected as wide of the mark the figure for production.

Though figures for food production are throughout unreliable the following generalizations should be regarded as among the least inaccurate:

The average yield on one acre sown is 6.0 maunds for the country as a whole. The rates in maunds for the respective zones are: south India (8.2), east India (7.3), north India (6.6), north-west India (6.2), central India (4.5) and west India (3.6).

The average rate of consumption per head per annum is 4.5 maunds. The rates in maunds for the respective zones are north-west India (5.0), central India (4.8), north India (4.6), east India (4.6), west India (4.0).

These rates include the grain fed to cattle and grain wasted between field and kitchen.

India's shortage round about 1951 was 34 lakhs—being the difference between 590 lakh tons of consumption and 556 lakh tons of harvested yield.

The shortage is equivalent to foodgrains needed for consumption for 21 days.

Among the zones the shortage is negligible in central India and relatively small in north India and north-west India. The shortage in the other three zones expressed in the number of days of consumption requirement is west India (67 days), south India (34 days), east India (17 days).

The average shortage (21 days' consumption) is small. But the fact is important because free trade cannot function in a market which is genuinely short of foodgrains—however small the shortage.

What needs explanation is why the imports are not larger. The correct level of imports should be 100 lakh tons and not 34 lakh tons. Per capita production has declined by one-fifth from what it was thirty years ago. Assuming that per capita consumption was the same then (4.5 maunds) as now then the shortage should be 0.9 maunds per capita. Actually the 34 lakh maunds imported allows for 0.3 maunds per capita. Hence the correct level of imports should be three times 34 lakh tons—100 lakh tons.

On balance it seems likely that the average level of food consumption, though it is higher than in the thirties has on the whole tended to fall.

HISTORICAL NOTE

About 1880 the ordinary outturn of food in British India was 50 million tons, and the surplus available for shortage, export, etc. was more than five million tons.

The net exports out of undivided India and Burma, the net exports out of undivided India and the net exports out of Burma are given in the following table in lakh tons:

	Out of undivided India and Burma	Out of undivided India	Out of Burma
1890-94 ..	25.5	12.4	13.0
1895-99 ..	21.4	6.2	15.2
1900-04 ..	31.6	10.4	21.2
1905-09 ..	28.4	6.2	22.2

Figures in lakh tons for undivided India without Burma for 1915-1919 are:

Exports 15.9; imports 11.9; net exports 4.0.

During the next five-year period these figures (in lakh tons) undergo a significant change:

	Imports	Exports	Net imports
1920-24 ..	11.4	9.8	1.6
1925-29 ..	15.9	8.3	7.6
1930-34 ..	18.4	5.7	12.7
1935-39 ..	20.7	6.9	13.8

The average level of net exports out of Burma in lakh tons was as follows:

1905-09 ..	23.2
1935-39 ..	30.6

The subsequent figures for net imports in lakh tons are as follows:

1940 9.6; 1941—4.3; 1942 (net exports) —2.9; 1943—3.0; 1944—7.3; 1945—9.3; 1946—25.8; 1947—26.6; 1948—30.5; 1949—28.6, 1950—27.2.

FISHERIES

THE fisheries of India potentially rich as yet yield a mere fraction of what they could were they exploited in a fashion comparable with those of Europe, North America or Japan. The fishing industry, particularly the marine section, has certainly expanded considerably within the last 50 years concurrently with improvement in the methods of transport and increase in demand for fish, cured as well as fresh, from the growing population of the great cities within reach of the seaboard.

The caste system, however, exerts a blighting influence on progress. Fishing and fish trade are universally relegated to 'low' caste men who alike from their want of education, the isolation caused by their work and caste and their extreme conservatism, are among the most ignorant, suspicious and prejudiced of the population extremely averse to changing the methods of their forefathers and almost universally without the financial resources necessary for the adoption of new methods, even when convinced of their value. 'Higher' caste capitalists have hitherto fought shy of associating with the 'low' caste fishermen, and except in large operations on new lines, the capitalists cannot be counted upon to assist in the development of Indian fisheries. As in Japan, it appears that the general conditions of the industry are such that the initiative must necessarily be taken by Government in the uplift and education of the fishing community and in the introduction and testing of new and improved apparatus and methods.

Allotment under the Five-Year Plan : Rs. 4-64 crores.

BOMBAY

Important varieties of sea fish caught along the coastline : Saranga (White Pomfret) ; Halva (Black Pomfret) ; Ghol (Jew fish) ; Dara (Giant Threadfin) ; Ravas (Indian Salmon) ; Kuppas (Tuna) ; Surmai (Seer fish) ; Bol (Mullet) ; Bomboli (Bombay duck) ; Bangda (Mackerel) ; Mushi (Sharks) ; Wam (Eels).

Estimated production : about 1,50,000 tons.

Price per ton of fish at present : Rs. 292. The total value of fish caught in this State : Rs. 4,38,00,000.

The number and names of the more important fishing villages and of the fishing grounds :

Greater Bombay : Lower Colaba, Worli, Danda, Versova ; Thana District : Basseln, Arnala, Dativre, Satpatil, Navapur ; Surat District : Umarsadi, Kolak ; Broach District : Bulsar-Kosamba, Broach ; Amreli District : Madhwar, Kodan, Velan, Okha ; Kolaba District : Kanarja, Versoli, Theronda, Revdanda, Murud, Bharadkhol ; Ratnagiri District : Burondi, Dabhol, Jalgaod, Ratnagiri, Vijaydurg, Jaitapur, Malvan, Deolbag, Vengurla ; Kanara District : Majali, Karwar, Bingli, Chendia, Harwada, Keni.

Surveys carried out by several private and Government vessels in the north of Bombay, have revealed extensive fishing areas off Saurashtra and Okha.

The estimated fishing population : 168,368.

The facilities available for curing, storage and refrigeration, co-operative marketing are :

Several ice factories in the city and also at important fishing centres along the coast.

Annually, some addition to the available cold storage space is being made by extension to the existing plants and establishment of new plants.

A seven ton ice plant and 30 ton cold storage were erected by Government at a cost of Rs. 1,81,000 and handed over to the Satpatil Fishermen's Sarvodaya Co-operative Society for operation. It now owns 40 out of the 130 mechanised craft in the State, all of which carry ice aboard their vessels to preserve fish right from the time it is caught.

The use of insulated road vans for transport of ice fish will shortly be demonstrated to fishermen when a motor truck estimated to cost about Rs. 40,000 arrives from America under the Technical Co-operation Aid Programme. With a mobile refrigerated transport system a further step will have been taken in the direction of preservation of fish.

Marketing facilities A new structure was put up in 1951 by the Bombay Municipality to cater for the City's fish trade. Lifts are being installed for the convenience of shoppers.

A new market was opened during the year at Grant Road, adjoining the original and congested market there at a cost of Rs. 16 lakhs. In the fish section space is provided for 250 squatters. Sufficient space is now available to traders to display their products.

Marketing facilities have also been provided at Majali, Karwar, Ankola, Kumta, Honavar, Gokarn and Bhatkal, in the Kanara district and Kankoli, and Malvan in the Ratnagiri district.

About ten times the quantity of fish at present caught in the entire State will be necessary to meet the consumers' demand.

The quantity available for sale to the public has shown a steady increase which is approximately as follows :—

Year	Tons
1948-49.. ..	29,000
1949-50.. ..	31,627
1950-51.. ..	31,674

Companies that explore the possibilities of deep-sea fishing : Taiyo Fishing Co. Ltd., has been permitted by the Government of India to conduct trawling off Bombay and Saurashtra waters. The firm employs trawl nets for deep-sea fishing. The total quantity of fish landed by the trawler since its operation to date is about 1,800 tons.

West Coast Fisheries (Travancore) Ltd. commenced deep sea fishing operations in Bombay waters in February 1953. It employs trawl nets for deep sea fishing and landed about 94 tons of fish during four voyages. The trawler is now conducting fishing operations off Travancore waters.

GOVERNMENT HELP

Government effort in up-to-date fishing technique, money spent, trawlers gear used, quantity of fish caught : The State Government built the vessel "Tapase", now renamed the "Myala" in 1947, at Rs. 65,000 for catching fish.

Number of power-propelled vessels owned by fishermen : 130.

Two improved type of fishing craft at a total cost of Rs. 54,000 were also built during the same year and allotted to two fishermen's co-operative societies in the State on half subsidy and half loan basis for capture of fish.

So far Government advanced as subsidy Rs. 1,93,127 and as loans for mechanisation of fishing craft : Rs. 4,41,078. Loans to individual fishermen during the past seven years for purchase of boats, nets, and other fishing gear : Rs. 16,00,000. Fishermen now possess more boats and nets with which they are able to catch more fish.

100 marine diesel engines valued approximately at Rs. 11,00,000 were to arrive in Bombay towards the end of 1953 and be made available to groups of fishermen at half cost, the balance being treated as subsidy. These engines are allotted by the American Government under T.C.A. Programme.

Government efforts in educating fishermen :— 10 fisheries schools have been established in important fishing centres, imparting special training in net making, boat repairing, fish preserving, etc. Ratnagiri District : 4, Kanara District 3, Thana District 1 and Surat District 2.

Annual expenditure on these schools : Rs. one lakh.

The Department of Fisheries has also a scheme to train fisher-youths in the operation of power vessels and as navigators. So far 70 apprentices have been trained and 16 are under training.

Two graduates of the fishing community were also sent to U.S.A. by the State Government for two years to receive training in canning, refrigeration and other specialised branches of fisheries.

Several candidates from fishermen's community have also received training aboard the Japanese trawler "Taiyo Maru" at Government expense.

Public Museums, aquaria : The State Government maintains the Taraporevala Aquarium along the Marine Drive. The exhibits include both fresh water and marine forms, found along the coast of the State. The aquarium has facilities for marine biological research.

A fish farm is being established at Khopoli, District Kolaba at an estimated cost of Rs. 1,03,000. A fisheries technological laboratory has been established at Sassoon Dock, for conducting research, on problems relating to ancillary industries like shark liver oil, gelatine, glue, fish meal, etc.

ANCILLARY PRODUCTS

To ensure quick and clean extraction of oil a Sharple's super centrifuge, a fish liver boiler and a steam boiler have been installed. One piece of work the laboratory does is to test samples of shark liver oil from the public for vitamin 'A' content, the number of samples so tested average over 500 a year. A Beckman's spectrophotometer has been imported from the U.S.A. for this purpose.

In 1952-53, the output of neat shark liver oil was 5,070 gallons with an average vitamin 'A' content of 10,000 I.U./Gm. The oil when processed, was capable of yielding 4,68,000 lb. of Oleum-vitaminatum of B.P. standard. Besides this, there is the oil disposed of by the fishermen direct which will be about 2,000 gallons.

The processed products marketed by the department comprise "Sharkovit" with vitamin 'A' and 'D', 1,000 and 100 I.U. per gramme respectively, "Elaamin Liquid", a shark liver oil concentrate with vitamin 'A' and 'D' 20,000 and 2,000 I.U./Gm. respectively.

An encapsulating unit ordered out from the U.S. has been installed at the laboratory for the manufacture of capsules locally.

Another important by-product of fisheries is fish meal. The departmental laboratory is also well-equipped for the manufacture of edible gelatin and fish glue both for adhesive as well as photo-processing work.

The following schemes have been included in the State Government's Five-Year Plan : Study of marine biology and establishment of an aquarium in Bombay ; Establishment of a marine biological station at Ratnagiri ; Establishment of ice and cold storage plants along the coast ; Development of inland fisheries at Khopoli ; Stocking of inland waters with carp fry ; Provision for merged states for inland pisciculture ; Higher technical training for fisher-youths abroad ; Establishment of fisheries schools along the coast ; Provision for merged States for training schemes.

Receipts of the department during the financial year 1951-52, are shown below :—

	Rs.
Fish curing yards	1,84,360
Fisheries Tech. Laboratory ..	2,35,885
Other receipts	17,995
Taraporevala Aquarium	79,914
Total	5,18,154

The State Government's share under the U.S. operational Agreement No. 5 amounts to Rs. 30 lakhs, to be utilised to procure up-to-date equipment to increase existing supplies of fish and to improve the socio-economic condition of fishermen. The equipment to be ordered out is as follows: 100 marine diesel engines, one dredger, one 11-ton ice plant and 80 ton cold storage for fish, one quick-freezing plant and equipment to enlarge the present ice production capacity of the plant at Satpati, and one insulated road van. The State will also receive, for distribution among fishermen, nylon, fish hooks and hemp twine.

The total budget allotment for the department for the year 1953-54 is Rs. 11,43,000.

The designation of the department is: Office of the Director of Fisheries, Bombay.

Fish curing yards were started by Government where good salt is supplied and the process of curing is supervised and controlled by officers of the Fisheries Department. Salt is being issued for fish curing at subsidised rates in the fish curing yards.

Two Ice-cum-cold storage plants are being erected one at Mangalore and another at Calicut. When these are completed the fishermen will be able to save from spoilage at least 25 per cent of their catches and keep them in a fresh condition till they are taken to the market.

Fishermen's co-operative societies formed in many villages buy the fish from the members and market it.

The department have tried deep-sea fishing with trawlers. A secondhand admiralty trawler "TR.8" was purchased and reconditioned in England at a cost of £5,699 and named "Lady Goschen".

A survey of the fishing banks was made in 1927. Only a few tried trawls off Madras were possible during this period. The trawling ground explored is the extensive submarine plateau within the 100 fathoms line which is around of Cape Comorin. The fish landed belonged to some 20 species nearly all of which were bottom feeders. The prime table fish caught: sea bream (letherinus nebulosus) Snappers (Lelljanus dedecacanthus) and L. reivulatus Rock cod (Epinephelus spp) and Spade fish (Ephippus orbi). Arranged according to the quantity and value the species mostly caught are Lethrinus nebulosus over 1/6th of total catch. Epinephelus spp. less than 1/7th, Lutjanus doecarunius 1/9th and (Diageamma punctatum) 1/20th.

The aim of the survey was exploration and no attempt was made to capture large quantities of fish. The fish that were captured during the experiments amounted to 26,061 lb.

Schools have been opened for fisherchildren. Natural Science and Fisheries Science play a large part in their curriculum. The children are taught handicrafts like coil rope making, mat weaving, net making, etc. Books, pencils and stationery articles are given free to these children. They are given all sorts of encouragement. Students are taken out on excursions to places of fishery interest.

Offices of the department and teachers of Fisheries schools have done a great deal to improve the standard of life of the children.

There are a museum and an aquarium belonging to the department. In the Museum, preserved specimens of all important marine and freshwater fishes, various kinds of sharks, aquatic curios like sepi, labyo, sea horse, etc. are all exhibited. The Aquarium has eight large aquaria in which Tropical Aquarium Fishes like Gold Fish, Blak Molliet, Sword Tails, Guppies, Blu Gouramy and Food fishes like Catia, Labeo, Cirrhina, Gourmi, etc. are kept. Most important experimental fish farms are Sunkeula Fish Farm, Praema Fish Farm, Ippur Fish Farm, Mopad Fish Farm, Mettur Fish Farm, Poondi Fish Farm, Thanthipandal Fish Farm, Chetput Fish Farm, Vellore Fort Moat Farm and Chingleput Fort Moat Farm. The ponds in the farms and other ponds belonging to the department are intensively stocked with quick growing fishes every year and the catches are marketed to the Public.

In addition to being an important source of food supply rich in proteins and albumenoides, food fishes play an important part in the manufacture of several bye-products in use in the everyday life. They are fish-oil (body oil and liver oil), shagrin, laliglass, fish glue, fish meal (guano), fin soup, pearl essence, fish manure, etc.

The Government Shark Liver Oil Factory was opened at Kozhikode, which supplies shark liver oil for use in hospitals and for sale to the public.

Schemes under the Five-Year Plan: Intensive seed collection and distribution for development of inland waters; Improvement of indigenous craft and tackle; Mechanisation of inshore craft was undertaken at Adirampatnam in 1948. In the indigenous crafts there is not sufficient room for effective use of the gears for holding the catches and much time and manual labour is being wasted in rowing to and from fishing grounds. Other items are: Provision of quick transport facilities—installation of cold storage and ice plants. The transport vans are at present working at the following routes:—

Sripuru and Ellore, Mettur to other places in Salem District and Bangalore, Tanjore to other markets in the District, Tuticorin to other centres in the District, Mangalore to other centres, Kelambakkam to Madras, Ennore to Madras, Tiruvallavayil to Madras and Tiruvallavanam to Madras.

Revenue from Fisheries: Rs. 23,32,638-6-11.

Latest Budget Allotment for the Department for 1953-54: Rs. 44,34,400.

Government of Fisheries Department, Madras. Designation of the department:

MYSORE

Mysore State has only freshwater fisheries.

Kinds of freshwater fish caught: Murres, Cat fishes, Carps and Eels.

Price level of fresh fish: 10 as., 9 as. and 6 as. per lb. of Murres, Cat fishes and Carps respectively during April 1952 to March 1953.

Number and names of the more important fishing villages and of the fishing grounds: Scattered throughout the courses of all the river drainages of the Cauvery, the Tungabhadra, the Kabbini and the Vedavathi. Many important fishing villages centre round Krishnarajasagar, Hesserghatta, Bethamangala, Ramasagara, Anjanapur, Banner, Gubbi and Sulekere which are the more important reservoirs and irrigation tanks.

The fishing population is divided into five communities: Thigalas, Uppigals, Beethas, Killekyathars and Burude Beethas.

No facilities for curing, storage, refrigeration or co-operative marketing are provided by Government.

60 lakhs, i.e. 82 per cent of the population eat fish. Annual requirement: 4,000 tons.

Present production meets only 2 per cent of the demand.

There is only one Company called the Mysore Fisheries Company engaged in fishing. Capital investment: Rs. 5,000. Quantity of freshwater fish caught annually: 100,000 lb. Methods used: They employ row boats and operate the waters with the aid of gill nets, drag nets and cast nets for fishing.

Only a small experimental fishing unit is operating at Hesserghatta. Government has invested: Rs. 3,000 in large-scale gill net operations using a power driven boat. Production per annum: 12,000 lb.

Fishermen are being encouraged to renew their profession and are gradually extricated from the middlemen. Over 3,000 fishermen were thus rehabilitated.

Experimental fish farms: 3 in each of the areas of Markandeya, Markonahally and Hesserghatta reservoirs. Museums: One at Bangalore and the other at Krishnarajasagar. No aquarium at present. The Mysore Aquarists' Association has begun to agitate for an aquarium in the State.

* Includes Andhra.

There are no ancillary industries like liver oil, gelatin, glue or fish meal.

The present fishery development scheme is included in the Five-Year Plan and is being operated at an annual cost of Rs. 44,000. Revenue from fisheries for 1952-53: Rs. 36,000.

Budget allotment for the department for 1953-54: About Rs. 48,000.

Designation of the department in the State: Fisheries Section, Department of Animal Husbandry Services in Mysore, Bangalore.

ORISSA

Kinds of sea-fish caught: Pomfrets, Mackerel, Sardine and White Bait. Kinds of river fish caught: Labio Rohita, Catla Catla, Cirrhina, Mirgala, Labio kalbasu and other Carps and Cat fishes.

Latest figures of fish cured (Year 1947-48): Quantity: 32,142 maunds 15 seers.

Average price per maund of sea-fish in pre-war years: Between Rs. 5 and Rs. 10. Present price per maund of lower varieties: Between Rs. 10 and Rs. 20. Wholesale price per maund of good fish like Pomfrets: Between Rs. 35 and Rs. 55. Wholesale price per maund of higher varieties of river fish: Between Rs. 65 and Rs. 100. Price of smaller fish: Between Rs. 30 and Rs. 50.

Important marine fishing villages: Patisonapur, Markandi, Gopalpur, Paayagi, Sonapur, Suria, Aryapalli, Kandarapalli, Gajapatnagar, Purnabandha, Damodarapur, Rambha, Channuhant and Arkhakuda.

Important assembly centres in the Chilka lake: Kaluparaghat, Rambha, Balugaon, Gangadharpur, Kuhuri, Chhatrapur and Khalikota.

Important inland fishing centres: Ansupa lake, Russelkonda reservoir and Kausalyaganga.

Number of fish curing yards run by the fishermen's own co-operative stores: 6. Number of ice factories which cater to preservation of fish for transport to Calcutta and elsewhere: 6. Co-operative marketing has developed in the Chilka area. The annual volume of trade ranges between Rs. 25 to Rs. 40 lakhs.

There is considerable demand for fish in the urban markets unlike the interior where it is very much less on account of lack of purchasing power.

The demand is approximately 100 times more than the supply.

There are no deep-sea fishing companies in the State.

The State has not taken up deep-sea fishing. There are no fishermen's schools.

There is a small experimental aquarium attached to the Fisheries Department in Cuttack.

Major experimental farms in the State: Cuttack fish farm; Puri fish farm; Chondwar fish farm; Sonepur; Sambalpur; Balasore; Kausalyaganga; Angul; Bandh.

Shark liver oil industry has developed recently. Annual production: 1951-52—2,575 lb. crude oil; 1952-53—2,240 lb. crude oil.

Research is going on in the manufacture of agar agar and hydrolysed protein.

Schemes under the Five-Year Plan: Reorganisation of the Fishery Department; Development of Inland Fishery; Biological and Technological Investigation of the Chilka Lake Fisheries; Development of Mahanadi Estuary; Development of Marine Fishery; Co-operative Marketing of Chilka Fish.

Income from Fisheries Department ranges between Rs. 1.5 and 2.2 lakhs per annum which does not include rent for water areas.

Budget allotment: 1952-53—Rs. 6,00,000; 1953-54—Rs. 5,83,549.

The department is designated as Department of Fisheries, Orissa, which is under the administrative control of the Director of Industries who is the ex-officio Director of Fisheries.

THE PUNJAB

Kinds of fish caught: Goonch (Bagarins), Bochiwa (Chupisoma Garna), Silund (Silomia silondia), Mulico (Wallagonia attu), Nalakh (Heteropneustes fossilis), Singhar (Mystus aor), Khaga (Rita rita), Kalbons (Labeo calbasu), Rahu (Labeo Rohita), Gid (Labeo dispiostomus), Bhangan (Labeo microphthalmus), Mori (Cirrhina mirgala), Sunni (Cirrhina raba), Thella (Catla Catla), Kharni (Barbus sarana), Mahseer (Barbus putitora), Chliwa (Barilius modestus), Pari (Notopterus chitalier), Saul (Ophicephalus marulins), Daula (Ophicephalus punctatus).

Total quantity of fish caught in 1952: 5,901 maunds. 38 seers 11 chh.

Total value of fish caught in 1952: Rs. 90,440.

Price level: Prices vary from market to market. In some markets prices are fairly high. On the whole prices ranged for Wholesale at Rs. 12 per seer; Retail at Re. 1 per seer.

Approximate strength of fishing population: 15,000.

There are no facilities available for canning, storage and refrigeration but the catches of fishermen are collectively marketed under the supervision of the Departmental staff in the shops of Fish Commission Agents appointed by Government.

The demand for fish in the local market is very low, the population being mostly vegetarian.

After meeting the local demand the fish is exported to Delhi and U.P. where it finds ready market.

There are no sea fisheries. There are no companies engaged in exploring and exploiting the fisheries of the State.

All fish is caught directly under the supervision of the departmental staff. No trawlers are used; only primitive methods of fishing by nets are used.

There is no school in this State for educating the fishermen and their children for improved and up-to-date methods of fishing.

Public museums and experimental farms in the State: Government Fish Farm, Batala (District Gurdaspur).

There are no industries for fish products in this State.

No scheme relating to Fisheries in this State has been included in the Five-Year Plan.

Revenue from Fisheries (1952-53): Approximately, Rs. 1,20,000.

Budget allotment for the department (1953-54): Rs. 1,22,500.

Fisheries Department in the Punjab is attached to the Civil Veterinary Department under the control of the Head of the Department who is designated as Director, Veterinary Services and Warden of Fisheries, Punjab.

UTTAR PRADESH

Kinds of freshwater fish caught:

In plains: (i) Major carps like Labeo Rohita, Labeo Calbasu, Cirrhina, Mirgala, Catla Catla, Labeo Genius, (ii) Small carps, (iii) Munnows (iv) Cat fishes, (v) Mulletts, (vi) Spiny eels, (vii) Feather backs, (viii) Glass fishes.

In hills: (i) Kumaon Mahaseer, (ii) Hill Trout, (iii) Asela, (iv) Khurant, (v) Discognathus, (vi) Oreinus.

The State also imported three exotic varieties of fishes, viz. Mirror Carp and Darjeeling Mahaseer for culture in Uttar Pradesh hills and Gourami for culture in the plains.

Total quantity of freshwater fish caught (1944) 241,301 mds.

Total value of freshwater fish caught in 1952: The Department only auctions the waters stocked and maintains such records. The value realised from such sale during 1952-53 is Rs. 1,40,580.

Price level of the fish during April 1952 to March 1953:

Varieties	Wholesale price per maund		Retail price per seer
	Average maximum	Average minimum	Average maximum	Average minimum
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Rohu	57	44	1.14	1.6
Nain	55	41	1.12	1.2
Bhakur	56	44	1.10	1.4
Calbose	55	40	1.11	1.4
Farhin	39	31	1.4	0.14
Turgan	40	29	1.6	0.14

Approximate strength of the fishing population: Latest figures available are for 1944: about 10,695 families.

Facilities available for curing, storage and refrigeration, co-operative marketing: Generally fresh fish arrive in the markets and curing is rarely resorted to. Gorakhpur, Basti, Kanpur, Lucknow and Dehra Dun are some of the fish markets where there are some arrivals of dried and salted fish.

Active steps are being taken to encourage fishermen to form co-operative societies and to help them as far as possible in the procurement of their requirements. The first society of its kind for co-ordinating all Roak fishermen residing in the stretch of Ganges in Allahabad district is under formation at Allahabad.

Potential demand for fish in the local markets: There is great demand in the local market. A major portion of the fish production in the State is exported by the fish traders to more lucrative markets outside the State such as Calcutta, Delhi, etc. To supplement this the Tank Stocking and Development Scheme as part of Government of India's 'Grow More Food Campaign' was launched in the State in 1944-45.

It has been decided by the Government to restrict the departmental activities to large sheets of waters with no risk of drought and overflooding and easily accessible to the markets and to set aside the small village ponds for private enterprisers.

1,806 acres were stocked and 477 acres were restocked during 1952. Besides, the stocking of 8 big reservoirs, viz. Pahu (1,372 acres), Barwar (2,485 acres) in Jhansi, Kitham (840 acres) in Agra and one Kondar Tal (375 acres) in Gonda was also undertaken. With all this effort the production, it is felt, is insufficient to meet the demand.

Government effort in up-to-date fishing technique, money spent, trawlers, gears used, quantity of fish caught : Gill net of size 2,500 ft. (approximately) by 20 ft. has been prepared out of parachute silk at a total cost of Rs. 2,275. Trial netting in one of the lakes on the hills, viz. Naukuchia Tal has commenced and the netting so far is successful. Special types of oxygen carrier for transport of fry and fingerlings by rail and air have also been constructed.

Government effort in educating fishermen : Such training is imparted in the State at Bananas.

Public museums, aquariums, experimental farms in the State : A small museum exists in the Central Fisheries Research Laboratory, Badshahbagh, Lucknow where all possible fish species available in the State have been displayed. An aquarium room in the Laboratory is also being fitted up.

There are two Government experimental farms in the State—one at Bhowal, District Naini Tal, where two exotic fishes, viz. Mirror Carp and Darjeeling Mahaseer are kept for breeding and the other is at Mirzapur where problems which confront the growth of fishes in land-locked waters are studied.

Schemes under Five-Year Plan : i) Research Fish Farm, Mirzapur ; ii) Revival or permanent posts of Fish Marketing Officer and Fisheries Inspectors of Lucknow Circle ; iii) Replacement of vehicles for Fisheries Section ; iv) Rentals for fry and fingerlings collection ; v) Construction of special transportation tanks for road and air transport of fry and fingerlings to reduce mortality ; vi) Development of Fisheries in Canal Reservoirs.

Revenue from Fisheries during 1952-53 : Rs. 1,46,580.

Latest budget allotment for the Department (1953-54) :

	Rs.
(a) Direction	46,000
(b) Research	1,17,500

WEST BENGAL

Kinds of sea fish caught : Pomphret, Bhetki, Mackrol, Prawn, Tapal, Hilsa, Chanda, Bhola, Bombay Duck, Ribbon, Shark, Rayr, Skate, Eel, Cat fish, Phasa, etc.

Total quantity of sea fish caught in 1952 : 11,321 mds.

Total value of the sea fish caught in 1952 : Rs. 1,97,655.

Price per ton of different kinds of fish in March 1952 :

Varieties	Maximum	Minimum	Average
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Carp	130	45	84.4
Hilsa	92	30	63.4
Bhetki	95	60	90.2
Mullet	90	60	65.2
Bulter	90	15	49.8
Prawn	140	65	92.13
Shrimp	60	10	33.10

Approximate strength of the fishing population : 96,400.

Potential demand for fish in the local market : In West Bengal (27,647 mds.) ; In Calcutta (5,561 mds.).

Extent to which production meets this demand : Seven per cent.

Money spent by Government in connection with fishing (upto 1952-53) :

Non-recurring	Rs. 8,95,861
Recurring	„ 11,36,065

Rs. 20,31,926

Gears used : Haddock trawl, Prawn trawl, Herring trawl, etc., all made of cotton twines.

Quantity of fish caught : 22,347 mds.

There is one experimental fish farm maintained by the State Government.

Ancillary industries like liver oil, gelatin, glue, fish-meal, and their production : One Scheme for production of shark liver oil, fish-meal, processed fish and utilisation of other fish by-products is operated at Contal coast.

Production upto 1952-53 :—

Shark liver oil—21,520 lb. ; Fish-meal—131,070 lb. ; Processed fish—18,711 lb. ; Fresh fish—158,688 lb.

Schemes under Five-Year Plan :

- Pilot Scheme for the development of Beel Fisheries in West Bengal.
- Distribution of capital goods to the needy fishermen at subsidized rates.
- Development of tank fisheries by setting up of nursery units in rural areas of the State.
- Unlonwari Tank Fishery Development Scheme.
- Improvement of tank fisheries in the dry districts of West Bengal.
- Production of shark liver oil, fish-meal, processed fish and utilisation of other fish by-products.
- Maintenance of a central pool of pumps and mudiogs for dewatering and deslitting of water areas for fish farming (since discontinued).
- Conservation of freshwater fish seedlings (carps) by controlling the mortality of spawn at different stages.
- Sea-fishing scheme.

Approximate Revenue from fisheries during 1952-53 : Rs. 2,25,000.

Budget allotment for the Department for 1953-54 :

Expenditure head	Rs. 18,50,000
Loan head	„ 11,40,000
Total	Rs. 29,90,000

The designation of the Fisheries Department : Directorate of Fisheries, West Bengal under the administrative control of Forests & Fisheries Department and Development Department, the latter controlling the sea fishing scheme only.

IRRIGATION

THE area under irrigation in India is about 49 million acres and is the largest irrigated area in any country of the world.

The total capacity of India's canals is over 220,000 cusecs, and the canals are over 60,000 miles in length.

The total capital outlay on irrigation works is over rupees 125 crores.

The total amount of annual flow of water in the Indian Union is 1,356 million acre feet. Of this only 76 million acre feet or 5.6 per cent are at present being used for irrigation purposes.

Allotment under the Plan—Rs. 245 crores.

At present eight multi-purpose schemes, one major irrigation scheme, three power schemes each costing over Rs. 10 crores, and 24 schemes each costing between Rs. two crores and ten crores, and 99 schemes each costing less than Rs. 2 crores, are under actual construction.

The total estimated cost of the 12 major schemes is Rs. 438 crores.

In addition to generation of power the completion of these projects will progressively increase the area under irrigation and improve the food supply as under :—

Year.	Irrigation (1,000 acres).	Additional food million tons (based on present standard of agriculture).
1951-52 ..	847	0.2
1952-53 ..	1,114	0.4
1953-54 ..	1,997	0.7
1954-55 ..	4,315	1.4
1955-56 ..	5,499	1.8
1956-57 ..	6,685	2.2
1957-58 ..	7,502	2.5
1958-59 ..	8,527	2.8
1959-60 ..	9,190	3.1
Ultimately ..	12,949	4.8

The total estimated cost of the projects under construction and of those which have not yet been started is about Rs. 2,000 crores, spread over a number of years. All these works, if and when completed, will add over 45 million acres to India's existing 49 million acres irrigated area.

The following are the new projects under construction. Bhakra-Nangal Project (Punjab), Damodar Valley Project (Bihar and West Bengal), Hirakud Dam Project (Orissa), Tungabhadra Project (Hyderabad, Andhra, Mysore), Gangapur Storage Project (Bombay), Kakrapar Project (Bombay), Godavary Project (Hyderabad), Lower Bhavani Project (Madras), Mayurakshi Reservoir Project (West Bengal) and the Ghatprabha Valley Project (Bombay).

The following schemes have been sanctioned but work on them has not yet started: Kosi Project (Bihar), Gandak Valley Project (Bihar), Koyna Hydro-electric Project (Bombay), Broach Irrigation Project (Bombay), Krishna-Pennar Project (Andhra), Ramapadasagar Project (Andhra), and Pipri Dam and Power Station Project (Uttar Pradesh).

The following are the different measures, which are envisaged and the extent to which, on the first estimates which have been framed, additional production may be secured from each of them.

	Area (Acres).	Additional Production (Tons).
Major Irrigation Projects ..	8,712,000	2,272,000
Minor Irrigation Schemes ..	7,621,000	1,932,000

	Area (Acres).	Additional Production (Tons).
Land Improvement & Reclamation Scheme ..	7,405,000	1,524,000
Manure and Fertilizer Schemes, Seed Distribution Schemes, other Sources	1,474,000

Upto end of March 1953 the sums spent are as follows : Bhakra, Rs. 55 crores ; Damodar, Rs. 46 crores ; Hirakud, Rs. 24 crores.

Classing a year in which the deficiency is 25 per cent. as a dry year and one in which it is 40 per cent. as a year of severe drought the examination of past statistics shows that, over the precarious area, one year in five may be expected to be a dry year and one in ten a year of severe drought. It is largely in order to remove the menace of these years that the great irrigation systems in parts of the country have been constructed.

In the arid tracts where the annual rainfall is less than 15 inches, no cultivation is normally possible without irrigation.

In India today we have a vast network of canals in Uttar Pradesh, the Punjab, the deltaic area of Madras and some parts of Bihar. There are about 118 high dams distributed mainly in Bombay, Madhya Bharat and southern India. It is interesting to note that the number of all storage works mainly earthen works, big or small, exceeds, 35,000 in Madras and 25,000 in Mysore State.

FINANCES

Irrigation works are divided into three classes, viz., productive, unproductive and minor works.

Productive.—A productive work is one, the net revenue of which within ten years from the date of its completion is sufficient to cover its working expenses and the interest charges on its capital cost.

The rate of interest on the capital outlay of works constructed during the different periods have varied. For works sanctioned before 1st April 1919, the rate is 4 per cent, for works sanctioned between the 1st April 1919 and 1st August 1921 it is 5 per cent, and for works sanctioned between 1st August 1921 and 31st March 1937 it is 6 per cent. For works sanctioned after 1st April 1937, i.e. after the introduction of the Government of India Act, 1935, different percentages have been adopted in different parts of India.

In most of the States, the rate is now 4 per cent.

The Government of India have recently fixed 3½ per cent as the rate of the return on capital for determining whether a capital work should be classed as productive. This rate which took effect from April 1, 1940 applies to all projects financed by the Central Government and also for determining the productivity of State works for which loans may be sought from the Centre.

Irrigation works constructed in recent years and those under construction or contemplation are more expensive. To satisfy the productivity test, the Planning Commission has stressed the need for raising the revenue structure by linking the water rate with the nature and quantum of crops grown and by levying betterment charges.

Unproductive works are those which yield a net revenue which is less than the percentage fixed for productive works.

They are constructed primarily with a view to protecting the precarious tracts and to guard against the necessity for periodical expenditure on relief of the population in times of famine. They are financed from the current revenues, generally from the annual grants for famine relief and insurance.

Minor.—These are small works for which, detailed capital or revenue accounts are not maintained. Such works may be productive or unproductive.

The following table shows the financial results of productive and unproductive works upto the end of the year 1946-47 in some States.

In addition capital outlay in the former Indian States exceeds Rupees 90 crores for which details are not available.

CHARGES FOR WATER

Charges for water supplied for irrigation from Government canals, etc., are levied at different rates and in different ways in the various administrations. In most areas water rate is paid separately from land rent according to the area actually irrigated and matured, the rate varying with the crop sown. In some areas, notably in Hyderabad, on minor works in Bombay and wet lands in Madras and southern Orissa, assessment for irrigated crops includes both land rent and water rate.

A different system of assessment is in force in parts of West Bengal, Madhya Pradesh and for long leases and Kharif season leases in Bihar, where a cultivator pays a small rent for a term of years whether he takes water or not.

Perennial block system is in force on major irrigation works in the Deccan.

Water rates are assessed on a seasonal basis for various types of crops.

By far over the greater part of the country water is paid for separately, the area actually irrigated is measured and a rate is charged per acre according to the crop grown.

Water rates on some important crops as assessed in some States are as given under :—

Name of State	Name of Crop
	Sugarcane	Rice	Cotton	Wheat	Maize	Pulses and Millets
	Rs. a. p.	Rs. a. p.	Rs. a. p.	Rs. a. p.	Rs. a. p.	Rs. a. p.

Hyderabad	27 0 0 to 33 0 0	One crop 11 0 0 to 13 0 0 Two crops 17 0 0 to 18 0 0

Taken as a whole, irrigation is offered on extremely easy terms, and the water rates represent only a very small proportion of the extra profit which the cultivator secures from the water he receives.

There are at present (including Ceylon), nine research organisations which carry out research and model experiments on problems confronting engineers in the field of irrigation, canal and river engineering.

The Central Waterpower Irrigation and Navigation Research Station at Khadakvasla is being expanded and will comprise nine sections, viz. (1) River and Canal Hydraulics, (2) Navigation, (3) Soils and Soil Mechanics, (4) Concrete and Materials of Construction, (5) Mathematics, (6) Statistics, (7) Physics, (8) Chemistry and (9) Hydraulic-Machine Testing.

Among the important large scale model experiments in progress at the Station are Hoogly Port, Madras and Cochin Harbours, Hirakud Spillway, Mahanadi River and Kakrapar Weir.

The Bombay Government, however, continues to maintain a separate research station where inter alia the problem of the disposal of untreated sewage of Poona by irrigation methods continues to be examined and developed.

MULTI-PURPOSE PROJECTS

During the period of the Five Year Plan 110 projects will be completed and a start made on five more new projects. All those under construction, investigation and consideration will require Rs. 2,000 crores and would eventually add about 45 million acres of canal fed land and generate an additional 7 million kW of power.

The projects taken up during the period of the Plan will irrigate an additional 8.5 million acres and produce 1.08 million kW extra power. The increase in foodgrains will be about 2.1 million tons annually. On their complete development the irrigated area will increase by 16.9 million acres and power by 1.4 million kW.

The 110 projects are mostly being executed by the State Governments. In addition, there are multi-purpose projects which provide for irrigation, hydro-electric power, flood control, navigation and fish culture.

The most important of these under actual construction include :—

Bhakra-Nangal Project (Punjab).— The principal feature of the project is the construction of a dam about 680 feet high on the river Sutlej near the village of Bhakra about 50 miles upstream of Rupar Town in the Ambala District. The total storage capacity of the reservoir is estimated to be 7.40 million acre feet, of which 5.6 million acre feet will be available for use. The reservoir will extend to about 50 miles above the dam.

The dam will be of the straight gravity type in concrete. The length at the top will be about 1,650 feet.

During the construction of the dam, the waters of the Sutlej will be diverted through two 50-foot diameter tunnels, one on each side. The length of the two tunnels will be about one mile. Pilot headings of these tunnels have since been completed and their enlargement to a full diameter of 50 feet is in progress.

About eight miles downstream of Bhakra Dam site, Nangal Dam on the river Sutlej has been completed except for the installation of gates.

This dam will serve firstly to divert the requisite supplies from the river for the Nangal Hydel Canal, secondly to provide storage to smoothen the fluctuations in supplies due to load variations in Bhakra Power Plant. The Nangal Canal will take off from the left bank of the river Sutlej at Nangal Headworks. It will be a lined canal about 40 miles long with a maximum capacity of about 10,000 cusecs.

The Bhakra Main Line will take off from the tail of this channel at Rupar.

There will be three power houses on the Nangal Canal. The first two power houses, each utilizing a head of 98 feet, are under construction and are situated 12 and 18.6 miles downstream of the Nangal Dam and the third is to be located at Rupar with a fall of about 80 feet into the Sirhind Canal.

The firm power potential of the project works out to 400,000 kW at 100 per cent load factor. This power will be utilised in the States of the Punjab, PEPSU, Himachal Pradesh, Delhi and Rajasthan.

The Project is expected to be completed in 1960. A sum of Rs. 55 crores has been spent up to March 31, 1953.

Work is proceeding satisfactorily at the Bhakra dam site. Partial irrigation has already started. On completion it will irrigate 3.6 million acres in Punjab, Rajasthan and PEPSU.

The increases in foodgrains will be about 1.3 million tons a year, cotton 0.8 million tons, sugarcane 0.5 million tons and pulses and oil seeds 0.1 million tons.

Damodar Valley Project (Bihar and West Bengal).—The Damodar Valley Project which is one of the most important multi-purpose schemes and is to benefit the States of Bihar and West Bengal, has as its main features the construction of (a) Multi-purpose storage dams with hydro-electric plants, (b) two additional hydro-electric plants, at Konar No. II and Bermo respectively, (c) the Steam power plant of 20,000 kW capacity, (d) an irrigation project with a net work of irrigation canals and distribution measuring 1,553 miles, (e) a 90 miles long navigation canal, and (f) a power transmission grid.

The ultimate benefits that will accrue from this scheme include (a) effective flood control of the Damodar River, (b) perennial irrigation of 987,000 acres including 195,000 acres now irrigated in the kharif season, resulting in an additional yield of rice and rabi crop amounting to Rs. 18.65 crores a year, (c) the generating of 240,000 kW of electric power, which will promote the growth of industry, lead to the electrification of railways, etc., and (d) cheap transport facilities through the navigation canal.

The estimated cost of the scheme was Rs. 67.90 crores. The latest estimate is Rs. 83 crores. The construction of some of the dams was started in 1945 and 1949 and the entire project is programmed to be completed by 1954-55.

The first phase of the project as included in the plan comprises (1) the Bokharo thermal station of 150,000 kW capacity, (2) Tilaiya dam with a power station, (3) the Konar dam, (4) the Maithon dam, (5) the Panchet Hill dam, (6) Durgapur barrage and canals, and (7) transmission line system.

The Tilaiya project has been completed and the hydro-power station with two generating sets of 2,000 kW each has also been commissioned. An area of 5,000 acres was irrigated from this dam in 1952. The Konar dam was expected to be ready by July 1953.

The Maithon Dam on the Barakar river, one of the large tributaries of Damodar is one of the two key dams on which flood control and irrigation in the lower Damodar Valley will largely depend. The entire work is scheduled to be completed by June 1954 and the hydro-electric station by March 1955. The development of the Damodar Valley is planned on T.V.A. lines and the Damodar Valley Corporation, set up by the Central Government by an Act, is in charge of the Project.

Gangapur Storage Project (Bombay).—This Project comprises a 12,500 foot earthen dam with a reservoir of 120,500 acre feet capacity on the river Godavari at Gangapur in Nasik District. This will supplement the existing supplies to the Godavari Canals and also provide water supply to Nasik City.

It is also proposed to harness falls below the dam, if possible, for generation of power. The work on the project is in hand and is expected to be completed by 1955-6. The additional area to be brought under irrigation is 37,500 acres and the increase in food production will be 7,500 tons. The estimated cost of the project is Rs. 334 lakhs.

Ghatprabha Valley Project (Bombay).—This Project comprises the construction of two storage dams, one on the Ghatprabha river and the second on the Hiranakeshi, a tributary of the Ghatprabha river. The whole scheme is expected to cost Rs. 30 crores.

It will provide seasonal irrigation to about 100,000 acres of land. It has already started irrigation over the first 15 miles and is expected to be completed by 1955-56.

Godavari Project (Hyderabad).—This is a multipurpose scheme and envisages the construction of four dams, two on the main river Godavari and two on the tributaries, the Kaddam and the Manair. The canals will take off from the lower dam on the Godavari on both the north and south banks.

The total capacity of the reservoirs formed by the dams will be about 3.0 million acre feet. The total area irrigated will be two million acres. In addition hydro-power to the extent of 175,000 kW will be generated at the dam and the drops on the canals. The total cost of the scheme including power development and transmission lines is estimated at Rs. 75 crores.

As a first step in the implementation of this scheme, a part consisting of the dam on the Kaddam tributary and the canal from it, 90 miles long, has been taken up at a cost of Rs. 8.4 crores. This partial scheme will bring under irrigation 227,000 acres. The work is programmed to be completed by 1955.

Hariko Barrage.—At the confluence of the river Sutlej and Beas has been completed the Hariko Barrage except for the installation of gates. Work on the Ferozepore Feeder and the Bakhu canals is in progress.

Hirakud Dam Project (Orissa).—The dam will be nearly three miles in length across the main channel of the river Mahanadi with 17 miles of low dykes on the two sides. The maximum height of the dam will be about 195 feet. The reservoir will have a gross storage capacity of 6.75 million acre feet.

Nearly 1.9 million acres of land will be irrigated and nearly 200,000 kW of firm power will be generated. The ultimate power expected from this project at main dam is 123,000 kW. This will be augmented to 199,500 kW if it is subsequently decided to construct a subsidiary dam and power channel.

With the construction of the Hirakud Dam, it will be possible to afford substantial and adequate measures of flood protection to the delta area at relatively small cost. The regulated releases of water from the Hirakud reservoir will permit appreciable improvement in the navigability of the Mahanadi.

The cost of the Hirakud Dam project including the main transmission lines and grid substations was originally estimated at Rs. 48 crores. But according to the revised estimate of the Advisory Committee the whole project is estimated to cost Rs. 92 crores.

Work on the dams is well under way. Both irrigation and power are expected to be available from the Project in 1955.

Kakrapar Weir and Canals Project (Bombay).—This Project has been taken up by the C.W.I.N.C. on behalf of the Government of Bombay and was inaugurated on November 1, 1949.

The project is proposed to be developed in two stages. The weir about 2,175 feet long and 45 feet high above the deepest river bed was completed in the middle of 1953. Canals which will aggregate 850 miles are intended to irrigate 6 lakh acres of land in the Surat District, increasing food production by 1.6 lakh tons and cotton by 16,000 tons.

The project will cost about Rs. 6½ crores.

It is also proposed to construct a storage dam at Ukai, 16 miles upstream of Kakrapar.

In stage II the height of the dam will be raised for increasing the gross storage capacity to 3.55 million acre feet.

There will be two power houses, one at the dam site and the other at the end of a 16 mile power canal with a total installed capacity of 200,000 kW. The firm power available at 60 per cent load factor will be 133,000 kW. There will be in addition high level canals commanding a gross area of 100,000 acres.

Stage II will cost Rs. 31 crores and is expected to be completed by 1956-57. The scheme will ensure partial flood control of the river.

Lower Bhavani Project (Madras).—This comprises the construction of a dam, 160 feet high and 1,520 feet long with earthen flanks across the river Bhavani, a tributary of the Cavery. The site is about 20 miles from the Mettupalayam railway station. A canal on the right side, 121 miles long, will irrigate about 207,000 acres of cotton, cholam and rice crops in Coimbatore District and it is intended to develop seasonal power of 10,000 kW.

The cost of the scheme is Rs. 9.61 crores. A start on the construction was made in 1948 and it is scheduled to be completed by 1954, but irrigation began in 1953.

Mayurakshi Reservoir Project (West Bengal).—This project comprises the construction of a low masonry dam 117 feet high to store 0.5 million acre feet of water, a weir at Tilpara and a canal system extending over 1,240 square miles on both sides of the river Mayurakshi.

The scheme will bring under irrigation an area of 595,000 acres for kharif and 1,000,000 for rabi crops. In addition 4,000 kW hydro-power will also be generated. The estimated cost of the scheme is Rs. 15.5 crores. The project is under construction and is programmed to be completed by 1954.

Tungabhadra Project (Hyderabad, Andhra, Mysore).—The Tungabhadra Project, work on which was taken up jointly by Madras and Hyderabad, has as its main feature a masonry dam about 160 feet high and 7,942 feet long across the river Tungabhadra, a tributary of the Krishna near Mallapuram in Bellary District. The effective capacity of the reservoir will be 2.68 million acre feet.

The construction of the dam was started in 1945. It has cost Rs. 50 crores. The first waters from it were released for irrigation on June 30, 1953. About 250,000 acres in Andhra and 4,50,000 acres in Hyderabad are irrigated by the two canals one 225 miles long covering Bellary and Kurnool districts and the other 127 miles long on the Hyderabad side.

The dam will help in raising food production by 140,000 tons. The Hydro-electric supply from this project will be 65,000 kW on the Andhra side and 110,000 kW on the Hyderabad side.

NEW WORKS

Broach Irrigation Project (Bombay).—This consists of a dam 166 feet high approximately 48 miles north-east of Broach on the Narmada river. The canal systems on both bank will command an area of 1.8 millions acres.

The scheme is estimated to cost Rs. 10 crores and will take seven years for completion.

Chambal.—For the development of the Chambal river basin, shared by Madhya Bharat, Rajasthan and Uttar Pradesh, three dams—one in Madhya Bharat and two in Rajasthan—and a barrage below Kotah in Rajasthan will have to be built.

Extra development of the basin is expected to cost about Rs. 48 crores and will irrigate 1.2 million acres and generate 100,000 kW.

In the initial stage, the Kotah dam and part of the transmission system have been dropped and the cost reduced to Rs. 36 crores.

Gandak Valley Project (Bihar).—This project envisages the construction of a barrage across the Gandak River at Tribeni Ghat just below the offtake of the existing Tribeni canal and two new canals one on either bank of the river. The area to be brought under irrigation is 2.5 million acres in Bihar, 0.75 million acres in Uttar Pradesh and 0.1 million acres in Nepal. The scheme is estimated to cost Rs. 25 crores.

Kosi Project (Bihar).—The Kosi project envisages the construction of a dam of an unprecedented height of about 785 feet above rock foundations on the Kosi River, a mile upstream of Barakhshetra temple in Nepal, for flood control, power, irrigation, navigation, soil conservation, silt control, fish culture and recreation, etc.

The barrage will be constructed across the Kosi at Chatra in Nepal and the canals one on either bank will take off to irrigate 3.845 million acres, out of which 0.52 million acres will be in Nepal and 3.325 million acres in Bihar. The power station to be installed in the body of the dam will have an installed capacity of 1.8 million kW.

The project has been planned for construction in seven stages. The total scheme is to cost Rs. 177 crores. In the first stage, it is proposed to moderate the intensity of floods and irrigate 27 lakh acres in Nepal and Bihar at a cost of Rs. 68 crores.

Koyna Hydro-electric Project (Bombay).—The Koyna Project contemplates the construction of a dam across the Koyna River at Jalkwadi. The scheme is ultimately capable of generating 580,000 kW of firm power at about 75 per cent load factor. The scheme is estimated to cost Rs. 65 crores.

In the first stage four units of 60,000 kW will be erected at a cost of Rs. 36 crores.

Krishna-Pennar Project (Andhra).—This project is by far the most important scheme in the State of Andhra. It consists of the construction of two reservoirs, one in Kurnool district on the Krishna River near Siddeswaram and the other on the Pennar by a large canal cut about 100 feet deep through the ridge separating the two rivers.

Between the Krishna and the Pennar, large areas would be brought under irrigation in Kurnool and Cuddapah districts. The total area to be irrigated will be 3.2 million acres. Large blocks of firm and seasonal power will also be developed.

The estimated cost of the project is Rs. 120 crores excluding the cost of works required for power generation.

Pipri Dam and Power Station Project (Uttar Pradesh).—This Project is proposed to impound nine million acre feet of water by a 280 feet high dam across the river Rihand, a tributary of the Son, near village Pipri. The power house will have an installed capacity of 240,000 kW and it will also bring under irrigation about four million acres of land.

The estimated cost of the scheme including transmission and transformation, is about Rs. 31.2 crores.

Preliminary investigations have been completed and contract drawings specifications prepared. However, due to financial stringency, work on this scheme has been considerably slowed down.

Ramapadasagar Project (Andhra).—Like the Krishna Pennar is a super project costing about Rs. 129 crores. It envisages the construction of a concrete dam, 480 feet high with the lowest foundation level 190 feet below the river bed.

The project will irrigate 2.7 million acres of 1st and 2nd crop and will improve the existing supply of another 2.11 million acres of land. It will develop 150,000 kW of firm power and provide in addition, navigation facilities from the port of Vishakapatnam to the hinterland of the lake.

The annual food production is expected to be 1.1 million tons. The project will take 10 years for completion.

Ukai.—A tie up with the Koyna is the Ukai dam proposed across the river Tapti in Gujarat. It has an irrigation potential of 529,000 acres in addition to an installed capacity of 300,000 kW.

FIVE-YEAR PLAN

The allotments are as follows :

Irrigation—Rs. 168 crores

Multi-purpose irrigation and power—Rs. 266.

Minor irrigation works—Rs. 77 crores.

By 1956 the projects will irrigate 8.5 million additional acres. The minor irrigation works will irrigate another 11 million acres.

The total irrigated area will increase from 49 million acres to about 68 million acres by 1956.

The addition year by year will be as follows : 1952-53—1,800,000 ; 1953-54—3,555,000 ; 1954-55—5,749,000 ; 1955-56—8,533,000 ; Ultimate—16,942,000.

The targets for additional production are : Foodgrains—7.6 million tons ; cotton—1.28 million bales ; jute—2.09 million bales ; sugar—0.7 million tons ; oilseeds—0.4 million tons.

Major irrigation works will yield 2.01 million tons of foodgrains, minor works 1.78 million tons.

PATENTS AND DESIGNS

THE Law relating to Patents and Designs in India is contained in the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911 (II of 1911) as amended upto date and the Rules issued thereunder

This Law is expected to be revised thoroughly on the basis of the recommendations of the Patent Enquiry Committee. A Bill embodying these recommendations has been prepared by Government and will be placed before Parliament shortly

This Law at present extends to the whole of India except the State of Jammu and Kashmir. With the extension of the Law to the whole of the Indian Union, the pre-existing patent laws, if any, in the "Indian States" have been repealed. The Law does not extend to Pakistan, United Kingdom or any British possession

The Patent Office at Calcutta which was established under the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911 is the only Office for the whole of India except the State of Jammu and Kashmir. The Office is in the charge of the Controller of Patents and Designs. It has no branches or agencies elsewhere

India is not a party to the International Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property. But, arrangements for giving "Priority" patents and registered designs exist between India on the one side and each of the following countries on the other, viz. Australia, Canada, New Zealand, Eire, the United Kingdom, the Union of South Africa, and Pakistan. In the case of Ceylon, priority arrangements exist in respect of patents only and not in respect of designs

PATENTS

The main provisions of the Indian Patents and Designs Act which regulate the granting of patents and patent rights are briefly as follows —

Varieties of Patent.—The Act provides for the granting of four kinds of patents, namely —

- (i) a patent which is dated as of the official date of the application for the patent,
- (ii) a patent of addition, for improvement or modification of an invention for which invention a patent has already been applied for or granted,
- (iii) a secret patent for an invention relating to instruments or munitions of war,
- (iv) a patent claiming "Priority," which is dated as of the official date of the corresponding application for patent first made in a country outside India which has established reciprocal arrangements with India for mutual protection of inventions.

What may be Patented.—The subject-matter of a patent should be a "manner of new manufacture," which may be any process or apparatus for producing, preparing, or making an article, or any article of manufacture. It is essential that the process, apparatus or article of manufacture should suggest an act to be done or an operation to be performed, and that the result must be a vendible product.

Illustrations of patentable inventions are new textile machines, power plants, agricultural implements, domestic appliances, drying and moistening apparatus and processes, and sanitary appliances. New compositions of matter may also be patented if their properties would not be deducible from known properties of their constituent substances. In the field of chemical industry, new processes and apparatuses for manufacturing synthetic products, food stuffs, dyes, soda ash, caustic soda, bleaching powder, toilet preparations and processes for the treatment of oil seeds, by-products and waste materials, would be patentable inventions.

The discovery of a hitherto unknown natural law is not patentable. Similarly, a method of calculation or a new notation for writing music, a new method of curing diseases, natural substances suitable for food, cannot be classed as 'manufactures,' and are, therefore, not patentable.

What are commonly called "patent medicines" are medicines prepared by secret formulae and are not usually protected by the grant of patents. The proprietors of such medicines may in most cases possess trade mark rights in the names by which the medicines are known. "Patent or proprietary medicines" may be registered under the Drugs Act, 1940, which contains provisions for the prohibition of the import, manufacture and sale of mis-branded drugs. Applications for registration of patent or proprietary medicines should be made to the Central Drugs Laboratory, 110, Chittaranjan Avenue, Calcutta

Who may obtain Patent.—Any person in possession of an invention may obtain a patent, irrespective of his nationality. The term "person" includes a company, a firm or a partnership. An application for an ordinary patent (i.e., a patent which would be dated as of the official date of the application) may be made by any person either alone or jointly with others. An application for a patent of addition may be made only by the applicant for the original patent to which it is an addition as long as the application for the original patent is pending, or by the registered proprietor of the original patent if it has been granted. An application for a secret patent should be made by the inventor himself. An application for a patent which claims a 'Priority date' may be made by the person who has made the application on which the claim to priority is based, or by his legal representative, or assignee, either alone or jointly with others

Government Servants.—Subject to any special conditions of service or to any special orders applicable to the persons employed in any particular department, all government servants are at liberty to apply for a patent direct to the Patent Office. Government servants employed in the Defence Services, in the Indian Navy and in the Indian Air Force should not apply for patents except in the manner laid down in the Special Regulations applicable to them. Government servants employed on scientific or technical research should not apply or cause or permit any other person to apply for a patent for an invention made by them, save with the permission of the Government and in accordance with such conditions as the Government may impose. Railway servants are also subject to similar restrictions

PROCEDURE FOR OBTAINING PATENTS

An application for a patent should be drawn up on the prescribed form and forwarded to the Controller of Patents and Designs, the Patent Office, No. 214, Lower Circular Road, Calcutta 17. As a rule, the inventor, or his legal representative or his assignee should be a party to the application. The application should be accompanied by a specification in duplicate, prepared on the appropriate prescribed form, and also the prescribed fee.

Specifications.—The specification which should accompany an application may be either a Provisional Specification or a Complete Specification. A Provisional Specification should describe the nature of the invention. A Complete Specification must particularly describe and ascertain the nature of the invention and the manner of performing it in practice. A Provisional Specification cannot be filed in respect of an application claiming "Priority date." A Complete Specification should, therefore, accompany every such application.

If a Provisional Specification accompanies an application it will be necessary to file the Complete Specification within 9 months from the date of the application. This period of nine months may be extended by one month by paying an additional fee of Rs. 10.

Drawings.—If the invention is capable of illustration by means of drawings, suitable drawings should also be filed in duplicate

Fees.—The fees payable in respect of the filing of an application accompanied by a Provisional Specification is Rs. 10, and in respect of the filing of an application accompanied by a Complete Specification is Rs. 30. The fee payable in respect of filing a Complete Specification following a Provisional Specification is Rs. 20

The fees may be paid in cash at the Patent Office, or may be sent by Postal Order, Money Order or Cheque, made payable to the Controller at Calcutta

Examination.—An application properly filed in the Patent Office is accorded a serial number and date. Every application in respect of which a Complete Specification has been filed is, before it is accepted, examined with a view to ascertaining mainly whether the invention is prima facie a manner of new manufacture or improvement, whether the nature of the invention or the manner of performing it is particularly described, and also whether the statement of claim sufficiently defines the invention

Acceptance.—On the acceptance of an application (other than an application for a secret patent), the specification and drawings in respect of it become open to public inspection. The acceptance is advertised by the Patent Office in the Gazette of India. The specification and drawings are also printed and a limited number of printed specifications are made available for sale. Printed specifications are identified by their serial numbers and are sold by the Manager of Publications, Civil Lines, Delhi, at Re 1 a copy.

Opposition.—The grant of a patent on any application (other than an application for a secret patent) may be opposed by any person within 4 months of the date of advertisement of its acceptance

Some of the grounds on which the grant of a patent may be opposed are—that the invention sought to be patented has been publicly used or made publicly known in any part of India, that the nature of the invention or the manner of performing it is not sufficiently or fairly described in the specification, or that the applicant for patent is not the true inventor but the applicant obtained the invention from the opponent or from a person through whom he claims

Sealing the Patent.—In the absence of any opposition, or in the event of an opposition if the application passes the opposition successfully, the Patent Office would send the applicant a sealing fee demand notice, and on receipt from him of his request for sealing the patent accompanied by a sealing fee of Rs. 30, a patent is sealed on the application and the sealing is notified in the Register of Patents

TERM AND CONTINUANCE

The normal term of a patent other than a patent of addition is 16 years from its date; but in special circumstances the term may be extended for a further period not exceeding 10 years. A patent of addition remains in force as long as the main patent is in force.

The continuance of a patent other than a patent of addition and a secret patent is subject to the payment of certain renewal fees. No renewal fees are payable for the continuance of patents of addition and secret patents.

Effect of Grant.—The grant of a patent under the Act confers upon the patentee the exclusive privilege of making, selling and using the invention throughout India and of authorising others to do so.

After a patent is obtained, the patentee may sell the patent outright, or may grant licences for its exploitation, or may work the patent himself.

Infringement of Patents.—If, during the continuance of a patent, any person makes, sells, or uses the invention protected by the patent without obtaining a licence from the patentee, or counterfeits or imitates it, the patentee may institute a suit for infringement against such person. The defendant in an infringement suit may counter-claim the revocation of the patent.

A suit for infringement may be instituted in a District Court having jurisdiction to try the suit, but when a counter-claim has been made for the revocation of the patent, the suit along with the counter-claim is decided by a High Court.

Compulsory Licence.—As a safeguard against abuse of monopoly rights, provisions have been made in the Act, so as to enable any interested member of the public to apply to the Controller for a compulsory licence. The grounds on which a compulsory licence may be applied for, the relief available, procedure for disposal of the application, appeals, and procedure for disposal of appeals are respectively laid down in sections 22, 23, 23D, 23F and 23G of the Act.

Compulsory Licence for Food or Medicine, etc.—If the subject of a patented invention is in respect of food or medicine or is used in the production of food or medicine, or capable of being used as or as part of a surgical or curative device, and also if the subject is a process for producing food or medicine, it is open to the Controller to grant licences without following the circuitous procedure prescribed for granting compulsory licences generally.

Licences of Right.—As a supplementary provision, the Act has also conferred on the Central Government the right to apply to the Controller for endorsement of patents with the words "Licence of Right". The effect of such endorsement is given in section 23B of the Act. Procedure for disposal, appeals and procedure for disposal of appeals are the same as those for a compulsory licence.

DESIGNS

The main provisions of the Act relating to the registration of designs and registered designs are briefly as follows :—

A Design means only the features of shape, configuration, pattern or ornament, applied to an article by any industrial process or means. To be registrable under Part II of the Act, a design must be new or original, and must be applicable to an article. A model or principle of construction of an article, or anything which in substance is a mere mechanical device cannot be registered as a design. Trade Marks and trade names are not designs for the purpose of the Act. Literary or artistic creations such as books, pictures and music which fall under the Indian Copyright Act III of 1914, do not also come within the scope of the Indian Patents and Designs Act.

The novelty or the originality of a design is judged solely by the eye with reference to the external appearance of the finished article to which the design is applied. Neither the constructional details of the article which would not be visible in the finished article, nor the utility of the article, would be relevant for deciding the registrability of the design. The novelty and the originality of a design will be destroyed by the publication of the design.

For purposes of registration of designs, goods to which the designs are to be applied have been grouped into fourteen classes according to the substances composing the article. If an article is composed of more than one substance, it is classified according to the predominant substance.

WHO MAY APPLY AND HOW

Any person claiming to be the proprietor of a new or original design not previously published in India may apply for the registration of the design.

An application for the registration of a design should be drawn up on the prescribed form and should be forwarded to the Controller of Patents and Designs. The prescribed fee and four copies of the design should accompany the application. The fee payable for filing an application for registration of a design in any one of the classes Nos. 1-12 is Rs. 3, and for registration in class No. 13 or 14 is annas eight only.

The copies of the design which should accompany an application may be drawings, photographs, tracings or specimens. The representation of the design should be such as would enable a person looking at it to form a mental picture of the shape, configuration, pattern or ornament of the finished article to which the design is to be applied. Representations illustrating merely the method or principle of construction or the operation of the article, are not suitable.

It is possible to register a design in more than one class, if the article to which it is to be applied is composed of substances included in different classes.

Copyright on Registration.—The registration of a design confers upon the registered proprietor, for a limited period, the exclusive right to sell or to make for sale any article to which the registered design has been applied.

The period of copyright obtainable on registration of a design is initially five years, but this initial period can be extended to two further periods of five years each, on payment of a fee of Rs. 10 for each period of extension.

Infringement.—During the existence of copyright in a registered design, the unauthorised application of the design to the article in question for purpose of sale is prohibited. The penalty for each infringement is a sum not exceeding five hundred rupees recoverable as a contract debt; the proprietor may, in the alternative, elect to bring a suit for the recovery of damages and for an injunction against the repetition of the infringement, in which case the infringer is liable to pay such damages as may be awarded. By an amendment made in Section 18 of the Indian Sea Customs Act (No. VIII of 1878), it has been rendered possible to stop the importation into India of goods bearing a pirated design.

Cancellation.—The registration of a design may be cancelled on the ground that the design has been previously registered in India, or the design has been published in India prior to the date of registration, or the design is not new or original. An application for cancellation may be made by any interested person at any time to a High Court, or to the Controller within one year from the date of registration on the ground of prior registration or prior publication mentioned above.

Registers.—The Patent Office maintains a Register of Patents and a Register of Designs. Particulars of name, addresses, nationalities of the grantees of patents, the titles of inventions, dates of patents, renewal of patents and transactions affecting the proprietorship or validity of patents are notified in the Register of Patents. Similar particulars in respect of designs accepted for registration are notified in the Register of Designs. The Registers are open to inspection by the public on payment of a fee of Re. 1 in respect of each patent or design.

Certificates.—Certified copies, sealed with the seal of the Patent Office, of any entry in the Register of Patents and the Register of Designs may be obtained by any person on application to the Controller, accompanied by the prescribed fee.

A technical library is attached to the office. The library is open to the public, free of charge.

TRADE MARKS

THE Trade Marks Act, 1940 (Act V of 1940) was passed by the Indian Legislature in March 1940 to provide for the registration and more effective protection of trade marks. Sections 1 and 85 of the Act came into force at once, and under the latter section, intending applicants for registration were enabled to deposit their trade marks. About 158,000 trade marks were so deposited, which have since been classified and indexed.

Before the other provisions of the Act could be brought into force the Act was amended in 1941 (Act XXVII of 1941) to establish a separate Trade Marks Registry in Bombay under a Bombay Registrar with jurisdiction over textile marks only. The Amended Act came into force on the 1st June 1942, but had again to be amended by the Trade Marks Amendment Act, 1948. The Act was further amended in April 1948 (Act XII of 1948) with a view to avoiding conflict of registration in the Princely States which had either passed Trade Marks Act of their own or proposed to do so in the near future, and also to make trade marks registered in any territory effective in all territories in which trade marks legislation has been enacted.

On the Federal Financial Integration of States in April 1950, the administration of trade marks in the States was taken over by the Centre and centralised at the Trade Marks Registry Bombay. With the extension of the Central laws to Part B and Part C States, the Trade Marks Act, 1940, now extends to the whole of India except Jammu and Kashmir.

The main office of the Trade Marks Registry is at Bombay, and the Registrar is also kept at Bombay. Mr. K. S. Shivaksha, B.A. (Oxon.), Bar-at-Law, is at present the Registrar of Trade Marks.

There are at present two branches of the Trade Marks Registry. One is established in Calcutta, at which a copy of the Register and the Refused Textile Marks List are kept. The Branch Registry is in charge of the Deputy Registrar who is empowered under section 1 (2A) of the Act to discharge, under the superintendence and direction of the Registrar, any function which under the Act may be discharged by the Registrar. Any reference in the Act to the Registrar includes a reference to the Deputy Registrar when so discharging any such function. Where the Registrar directs the Deputy Registrar to deal with a particular matter, he has in disposing of such matter the same powers as the Registrar. At present, the Deputy Registrar of Trade Marks is Mr. B. C. Ojha, B.A., Bar-at-Law, B.Com. The other branch is at Bangalore under the charge of an Examiner of Trade Marks, Mr. V. R. Keshavaraj, B.A., who is Ex-officio Dy. Registrar of Trade Marks and has the same powers as the Deputy Registrar at Calcutta in respect of matters directed by the Registrar to be dealt with by him.

The following is a summary of the important provisions of the Trade Marks Act, 1940:

A "mark" includes a device, brand, heading, label, ticket, name, signature, word, letter or numeral or any combination thereof; a "trade mark" means a mark used or proposed to be used in relation to goods for the purpose of indicating or so as to indicate a connection in the course of trade between the goods and some person having the right to use the mark. A trade mark may be registered only in respect of particular goods or classes of goods. Any person who is desirous of registering a mark should apply to the Registrar in the prescribed manner. The application may be made either at the Registry at Bombay or at the branch office at Calcutta, or Bangalore.

Under section 6 (1), distinctiveness is the prime requisite of a trade mark for registration. A registrable trade mark must consist of or contain at least one of the following essential particulars: (1) name of a company or individual represented in a special or particular manner, (2) signature of the applicant or some predecessor in business, (3) one or more invented words, (4) word or words, having no direct reference to the character or quality of the goods and not being according to its ordinary meaning a geographical name or surname or the name of a sect, caste or tribe in India and (5) any other distinctive mark. A mark consisting of a name, signature, or any word other than such as fall within the above description is not registrable except upon evidence of distinctiveness. In determining whether a trade mark is distinctive the extent of the inherent distinctiveness of the mark, as well as its acquired distinctiveness by use or otherwise, will be considered. The commonly accepted name of any single chemical element or chemical compound is not registrable in respect of a chemical substance or preparation. Trade marks which are contrary to law or morality, or disentitled to protection in a Court of Law by being likely to deceive or cause confusion or which are likely to hurt religious susceptibilities, are not registrable. The Act contains also special provisions for the registration of certification trade marks, and for defensive registration.

When an application for registration has been accepted subject to such conditions, if any, as the Registrar might think fit to impose, the Registrar shall cause the application to be advertised accordingly. Under section 15 (2) any person may in the prescribed manner oppose an application so advertised within 4 months, and after hearing the parties, the Registrar will decide whether registration is to be permitted. The date of registration of a mark, if and when registered, shall be the date of filing of the application therefor at the Registry.

The registration of a mark will be in force for 7 years in the first instance, after which it may be renewed for a period of 15 years. In all legal proceedings relating to a registered trade mark, the fact of registration shall be prima facie evidence of validity of the registration and of all subsequent assignments and transmissions. Further, after seven years from the date of registration, the validity of the original registration cannot be questioned except on grounds of fraud or deception or unless the mark offends against section 8.

The registered proprietor of a trade mark is entitled to an action for infringement under the Act. This valuable right is extended to owners of "old" marks, who had applied for registration of their trade marks within five years from the commencement of the Act and registration of which has been refused by the Registrar. The rights of action to passing off are not affected by registration, and are expressly preserved under the Act. Registration gives to the registered proprietor the exclusive right to the use of the trade mark in relation to the goods for which the mark is registered. Where a mark is already registered by one person, the same or nearly similar mark cannot be registered by another person, except in case of honest concurrent use or of other special circumstances under section 10 (2).

The proprietor of a registered trade mark has power to assign the mark, and may assign it whether in connection with the goodwill of the business or not. A registered proprietor may also assign an unregistered trade mark without the goodwill of the business along with a registered trade mark under certain circumstances. Any assignment made without the goodwill by the business must be advertised as directed by the Registrar.

A person other than the proprietor of a mark may be registered as a registered user, on application being made both by the proprietor and such person to the Registrar in the prescribed manner, accompanied by particulars relating to their relationship, the control of the one over the other, and other facts relevant to the "permitted" use. The registered user may under certain circumstances file an action for infringement in his own name as if he were the proprietor, but cannot assign or transmit the mark.

Any person aggrieved by the presence of a mark or entry on the Register may apply in the prescribed manner to the Registrar or to a High Court for rectification of the Register. The registered proprietor may apply to the Registrar for correction or cancellation of any entry in the Register, relating to his trade mark. He may also apply for alteration of the registered mark in any manner not substantially affecting its identity.

With effect from the 1st January 1947, it has been an offence to describe a trade mark as registered when it is not so registered. This does not however apply to a trade mark, for the registration of which an application was filed at the Trade Marks Registry before 1st January 1947 and which has not been disposed of by the Registrar. The use of the word "Registered" however, is permissible if it is clearly indicated that the reference is to registration of the mark under the law of a country outside India or if the word is used solely in relation to goods to be exported to a foreign country where the mark is registered. Declaration of ownership of a trade mark under the Indian Registration Act of 1908 is not equivalent to registration under the Trade Marks Act, 1940, and the use of the word "registered" to signify registration of declaration of ownership would therefore be an offence with effect from the aforesaid date. The use of Royal Arms, Heraldic devices, and State emblems without due authority may be restrained by injunction from the Registrar or at the suit of any other person who is duly authorised to use such Arms, etc., but the rights to their use acquired before the coming into force of the Act, are not affected.

All appeals from the decisions of the Registrar lie to the High Court.

There are also special provisions for registration of textile trade marks and for the constitution of an Advisory Committee to advise the Registrar with respect to usages of the textile trade.

The criminal law relating to trade marks is contained in the Merchandise Marks Act (IV of 1889). Section 3 of this Act enacts Sections 478-489 of Chapter XVIII of the Indian Penal Code.

During the transitional period, i.e. from the 15th August 1947 to the 31st March 1948, the Trade Marks Registry, Bombay, had been registering trade marks for both India and Pakistan in accordance with the special provisions made in the Indian Independence (Miscellaneous Transitional Provisions) Order, 1947. These arrangements, however, terminated on the 31st March 1948.

COPYRIGHT

COPYRIGHT in every original literary, dramatic, musical and artistic work means the sole right to produce or reproduce the work or any substantial part thereof in any material form whatsoever; to perform or in case of a lecture to deliver the work or any substantial part thereof in public; if the work is unpublished, to publish the work or any substantial part thereof. Amongst other things it includes the sole right to produce, reproduce, perform or publish any translation of the work, in the case of a dramatic work, to convert it into a novel or other non-dramatic work and in the case of a novel or other non-dramatic work or of an artistic work, to convert it into a dramatic work by way of performance in public or otherwise, and in the case of a literary dramatic or musical work, to make any record, perforated roll, cinematograph film or other contrivance by means of which the work may be mechanically performed or delivered. Copyright also includes the right to authorise any such acts as aforesaid.

Publication in relation to any work means the issue of copies of the work to the public but does not include the performance in public of a dramatic or musical work, the delivery in public of a lecture, the exhibition in public of an artistic work or the construction of an architectural work of art, but the issue of photographs and engravings of works of sculpture and architectural works of art shall not be deemed to be publication of such works.

COPYRIGHT ACT

Copyright in India is governed by the Indian Copyright Act III of 1914 which made the Imperial Copyright Act of 1911 applicable to India with such modifications as appeared to be desirable for adapting its provisions to the circumstances of India. The portions of the Imperial Act made applicable to India form the First Schedule to the Indian Copyright Act III of 1914.

Copyright subsists throughout the parts of the Commonwealth to which the Imperial Act extends. Registration is no longer necessary but the publisher of every book has to supply a copy thereof as provided in the Copyright Act and in the Press and Registration of Books Act XXV of 1867. The author of a work is the first owner of the copyright therein and may assign the right either wholly or partially (copyright being a bundle of different rights) and either generally or subject to limitations, or may grant any interest in the right by license to another person but no such assignment or grant is valid unless it is in writing signed by the owner of the right in respect of which the assignment or grant is made or by his duly authorised agent.

DURATION OF COPYRIGHT

Generally the term for which copyright subsists is the life of the author and a period of 50 years after his death but at any time after the expiration of 25 years or in the case of a work in which copyright subsisted at the time of the passing of the Imperial Act of 1911, 30 years from the death of the author of a published work, copyright in the work is not deemed to be infringed by the reproduction of the work for sale if the person reproducing the work proves that he has given the notice in writing prescribed by the Government of India of his intention to reproduce the work and that he has paid in the prescribed manner to or for the benefit of the owner of the copyright, royalties in respect of all copies of the work sold by him calculated at the rate of 10 per cent. on the price at which he publishes the work.

If, at any time after the death of the author of a literary, dramatic or musical work, which has been published or performed in public, a complaint is made to the Supreme Court of India that the owner of the copyright in the work has refused to re-publish or allow the re-publication of the work or has refused to allow the performance in public of the work and that by reason of such refusal the work is withheld from the public, the owner of the copyright may be ordered to grant a licence to reproduce the work or perform the work in public as the case may be on such terms and subject to such conditions as the Supreme Court may think fit.

DURATION OF SOLE OWNERSHIP

In the case of works first published in India copyright is subject to this limitation that the sole right to produce, reproduce, perform or publish a translation of the work subsists only for a period of 10 years from the date of the first publication of the work but if within the said period the author of any person to whom he has granted permission so to do publishes a translation of any such work in any language, copyright in such work as regards the sole right to produce, reproduce, perform or publish such translation in that language is not subject to the limitation above prescribed.

The term for which copyright subsists in photographs is 50 years from the making of the original negative from which the photograph was directly or indirectly derived and the person who was owner of such negative at the time when such negative was made is deemed to be the author of the work.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

The provisions of the Act as to mechanical instruments for producing musical sounds were found unsuitable to Indian conditions. "The majority of Indian melodies," it was explained in Council, have not been published, i.e., written in staff notation, except through the medium of the phonograph. It is impossible in many cases to identify the original composer or author, and the melodies are subject to great variety of notation and tune. To meet these conditions S. 5 of the Indian Act follows the English Musical Copyright Act of 1902 by defining musical work as meaning any combination of melody and harmony, or either of them, which has been reduced to writing.

The Copyright Act does not apply to designs capable of being registered under the Patents and Designs Act II of 1911 except designs which though capable of being so registered are not used or intended to be used as models or patterns to be multiplied by any industrial process.

INFRINGEMENT OF COPYRIGHT

Copyright in a work is considered to be infringed by any person who without the consent of the owner of the copyright does anything, the sole right to do which is conferred by the Copyright Act on the owner of the copyright. Where copyright in any work has been infringed, the owner is entitled to all remedies by way of injunction, damages and accounts. Every suit or other civil proceeding regarding infringement of copyright must be instituted and tried in the High Court or the Court of the District Judge. An action in respect of infringement of copyright cannot be commenced after the expiration of 3 years next after the infringement. No Court inferior to that of a Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the First Class can try any offence against the Copyright Act. It is not an infringement of copyright to publish a report in a newspaper of an address of a political nature delivered at a public meeting.

In the case of a work of joint authorship (which means a work produced by the collaboration of two or more authors in which the contribution of one author is not distinct from the contribution of the other author or authors), copyright subsists during the life of the author who first dies and for a term of fifty years after his death, or during the life of the author who dies last, whichever period is the longer.

Where a married woman and her husband are joint authors of a work the interest of such married woman therein shall be her separate property.

PROVING OF WILLS

IN India if a person has been appointed executor of the Will of a deceased person, it is always advisable to prove the Will as early as possible. If the Will is in an Indian language it has to be officially translated into English. A petition is then prepared praying for the grant of probate of the Will. All the property left by the deceased has to be disclosed in a schedule to be annexed to the petition. Values must be shown as at the date of the Petition and Probate Fees will be calculated on such value. The Values of immovable properties are usually assessed at 16½ years' purchase on the nett Municipal assessment, in the absence of a report from a competent architect. Unless otherwise prayed for, grant of probate is limited to the State in which it is granted. In all cases in which it is sought to obtain a grant of probate to have effect throughout India, such grant must be expressly asked for.

Probate Duty in Bombay.—Up to Rs 1,000—Nil.

For the next Rs 9,000 (i.e. upto Rs 10,000), 2 per cent, for the next Rs 40,000 (i.e. upto Rs 50,000) 3 per cent, for the next Rs 50,000 (i.e. upto Rs 1,00,000) 4 per cent, for the next Rs 1,00,000 (i.e. upto Rs 2,00,000) 4½ per cent, for the next Rs 50,000 (i.e. upto Rs 2,50,000) 5 per cent, for the next Rs 50,000 (i.e. upto Rs 3,00,000) 5½ per cent, for the next Rs 1,00,000 (i.e. upto Rs 4,00,000) 6 per cent, for the next Rs 1,00,000 (i.e. upto Rs 5,00,000) 6½ per cent, for amounts exceeding Rs 5,00,000 (on the portion over Rs 5,00,000) 7 per cent. In addition to this Probate Duty there is, at present, a surcharge of 25 per cent introduced by the Bombay Increase of Court-Fees Act No XV of 1943.

Exemptions from Probate Duty.—In determining the amount of the value of the estate for the purposes of probate duty the following items are allowed to be deducted

1. Debts left by the deceased including mortgage encumbrances
2. The amount of funeral expenses.
3. Property held by the deceased in trust and not beneficially or with general power to confer a beneficial interest

In addition, there is general exemption for service personnel killed in action or dying on service in certain circumstances.

No probate duty is payable in India on the value of the estate left by the deceased outside India.

Procedure.—The particulars of the property of the deceased and the particulars of all items allowed by law to be deducted have to be shown in separate schedules. It is the practice of the High Court to send a copy of these schedules to the Revenue Authorities and if the properties, particularly immovable properties, have not been properly valued, the High Court issues a notice to the petitioner requiring him to amend the schedule of property accordingly. In certain cases the Court requires citations to be published and served on such persons as the Court thinks are interested in the question of the grant of probate. If no objection is lodged by any person so interested within the time mentioned in the citation to the effect that nothing should be done in the matter of the petition for probate without notice to the person 'objecting' or to use technical language the 'caveator', and if the Will is shown to have been properly executed, probate is ordered to be granted. If an objection or caveat is filed, the petition for probate is converted into a suit in which the petitioner is plaintiff and the caveator is the defendant.

As probate, however, cannot be granted merely because the parties consent, the Will has to be proved. It is against public policy to enter into an agreement or compromise as to the genuineness or execution of the Will if the effect of such an agreement or compromise is to exclude evidence in proof of the Will.

EFFECT OF PROBATE

Probate has effect over all the property and estate moveable or immovable of the deceased throughout the State in which the same is granted and is conclusive as to the representative title of the person to whom the probate is granted against all debtors of the deceased and all persons holding property which belongs to the deceased and will afford full indemnity to all debtors paying their debts and all persons delivering up such property to the person to whom such probate is granted. Probate can only be granted to an executor appointed by the Will and the appointment may be express or by necessary implication. Probate cannot be granted to any person who is a minor or is of unsound mind nor to any association of individuals, unless it is a company, which satisfies the conditions prescribed by rules made by the President in Council in that behalf. Where several executors are appointed probate may be granted to them simultaneously or at different times. If a codicil is discovered after the grant of probate a separate probate of that codicil may be granted to the executor if it in no way repeals the appointment of executors made by the Will. If different executors are appointed by the codicil, probate of the Will will be revoked and a new probate granted of the Will and codicil together. When probate has been granted to several executors and one of them dies, the entire representation of the testator accrues to the surviving executor or executors. Probate of a Will when granted establishes the Will from the death of the testator and renders valid all intermediate acts of the executor as such. When a person appointed an executor has not renounced the executorship, letters of administration will not be granted to any other person until a citation has been issued calling upon the executor to accept or renounce the executorship, but when one or more of several executors have proved the Will, the Court may, on the death of the survivor of those who have proved, grant letters of administration without citing those who have not proved. The renunciation may be made orally in the presence of the Judge or by a writing signed by the person renouncing and when made will preclude him from ever thereafter applying for probate of the Will appointing him executor. If an executor renounces or fails to accept an executorship within the time limited for the acceptance or refusal thereof, the Will may be proved and letters of administration with a copy of the Will annexed may be granted to the person who would be entitled to administration in case of intestacy. No person, who renounces probate of a Will, can, without the leave of the Judge take out representation to the deceased in another character.

Probate is necessary in case of Wills of Europeans, East Indians, Armenians, Jews, Parsis and Indian Christians and also in case of Wills of Hindus, Buddhists, Sikhs or Jains, made on or after 1st September 1870, within the territories which at the said date were subject to the undivided Provincial Government of Bengal, or within the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Courts of Judicature at Madras and Bombay, or to all such Wills made outside the above specified territories or limits so far as they relate to immovable property situate within those territories or limits.

Probate is not necessary, in case of Wills of Hindus, Buddhists, Sikhs or Jains not falling in classes specified above or of Wills of Muslim and Khojas.

Articles of Association of most of the joint stock companies contain an article to the effect that the Executor or Administrator of a deceased member who has obtained Probate or Letters of Administration as the case may be or the holder of the Succession Certificate shall be the only person recognised by the Company as having any title to his share. In such cases, the Company validly insists on the production of such legal representation before transfer of the shares of a deceased member whether he is a European, Hindu, Muslim, Parsi or otherwise.

Residuary Legatee.—When no executor has been appointed by a deceased in his Will or when the deceased has appointed an executor who is legally incapable or refuses to act or who has died before the testator or before he has proved the Will or when an executor dies after having proved the Will but before he has administered all the estate of the deceased, a universal or a residuary legatee may be admitted to prove the Will and Letters of Administration with the Will annexed may be granted to him of the whole estate or so much of it as may be unadministered.

After any grant of Probate or Letters of Administration with Will annexed, no other than the person to whom the same may have been granted has the power to sue or prosecute any suit or otherwise act as representative of the deceased until such Probate or Letters of Administration has or have been recalled or revoked.

Small Estates.—In cases where the value of the estate is Rs 2,000 or less, an Administrator General's Certificate can be obtained. The procedure for obtaining this Certificate is simpler and less expensive. A fee of 3 per cent on the value of the estate is payable. The value of the estate has, however, to be taken as at the date of the death of the deceased. These Certificates are equivalent to Letters of Administration.

PROBATE OF FOREIGN WILLS

When a Will has been proved and deposited in a court of competent jurisdiction situated beyond the limits of the State, whether within or beyond the limits of India, and a properly authenticated copy of the Will is produced, letters of administration may be granted with a copy of such Will annexed, upon a proper application for the purpose being made to the appropriate court within whose jurisdiction such property is situate. It is not the function of the court in India to require evidence of the validity of the Will, if it is recognised as valid by the court of domicile of the testator.

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES

THE maund is the denomination of weight common all over India, but we may find that in a given city there are nearly as many maunds as there are articles to weigh. The maund varies even from district to district. Thus in Uttar Pradesh a maund of sugar weighs 48½ seers in Kanpur, 40 in Muthura, 72½ in Gorakhpur, 40 in Agra, 50 in Moradabad, 48½ in Saharanpur, 50 in Bareilly, 46 in Fyzabad, 48½ in Shahjahanpur, 51 in Goshangunge.

Thus the maund varies throughout India from the Bengal or railway maund of 82·2/7 lb. to the Factory maund of 74 lb. 10 oz. 11 drs., and the Madras maund, which some authorities estimate at 25 lb. and others at 24 lb.

As there are variations in the weights and measures from one place to another there is much confusion and sometimes heavy individual loss. And Municipal and commercial bodies are continually returning to the problem with a view to devising a practical scheme of reform. The Union and State Governments have made various attempts during the past to solve the problem of common units of weights and measures; commercial and trade interests have also agitated about the question for a long time.

The Indian Railways and Government departments adopted a standard tola (180 grains), seer (80 tolas) and maund (40 seers) and it was hoped that this would act as a successful "lead" which would gradually be followed by the whole trade throughout the country, but the expectation has not been realised.

In the Government of India Act of 1935, though 'standards of weights' is a central subject, 'weights and measures' is in the Provincial List. Accordingly the Government of India had to request the Provincial Governments to undertake legislations for enforcement, following the lead given in the Act IX of 1939.

In the present constitution this ambiguity has been set right by including 'establishment of standards of weights and measures' in the Union List of subjects and 'weights and measures except establishment of Standards' in the States List.

STANDARDS OF WEIGHTS ACT, 1939

By 1939 opinion in favour of legislation by the Government of India for the standardisation of weights crystallised to the extent that the Indian Legislature passed the Standards of Weight Act (Act No. IX of 1939) applicable to the whole of the area known as British India. The Act received the assent of the Governor-General of India and was published in Part IV of the Gazette of India of the 1st April, 1939.

The Act laid down the following standard weights:—

- (a) the standard tola, being a weight of 180 standard grains;
- (b) the standard seer, being a weight of 80 standard tolas or 14,400 standard grains;
- (c) the standard maund, being a weight of 40 standard seers;
- (d) the standard pound, being a weight of 7,000 standard grains;
- (e) the standard ounce, being one-sixteenth part of the weight of a standard pound;
- (f) the standard hundred-weight, being a weight of 112 standard pounds;
- (g) the standard ton, being a weight of 2,240 standard pounds.

Under sub-Section (2) of Section 4 of the Act, the Union Government undertook to supply to each State Government a complete set of duly authenticated standard weights.

The position of the provincial legislation, as it stands now, is as follows:

ASSAM	No Act on weights and measures.
BIHAR	Weights Act, 1947 (Act XVII of 1947).
BOMBAY	Weights and Measures Act, 1932 (Act XV of 1932).
M. P.	Weights and Measures Act, 1928 (Act II of 1928).
MADRAS	Weights and Measures Act, 1948 (Act XXII of 1948).
ORISSA	Weights and Measures Act, 1943 (Act VII of 1943).
PUNJAB	Weights and Measures Act, 1941 (Act XII of 1941).
U. P.	Weights and Measures Act, 1947 (Act XXIII of 1947).
WEST BENGAL ..	No Act on weights and measures.

The various provincial legislations generally conform to the Central Legislation with a few exceptions. The unit for the measure of length is usually the yard, defined as the length of the standard yard maintained by the Mint Master at Bombay. For longer measures, the furlong (220 yards) and the mile (1,760 yards) are provided; for measures of area and volume, square and cube of the standards of length; acre (4,840 sq. yd.) being additionally allowed for area. Local units for dry and wet measures of capacity, which vary from province to province, are also allowed in the provincial Acts, but they are usually made integral multiples or submultiples of the basic units.

METRIC SYSTEM

By the time the Government of India passed the Act of 1939, unofficial opinion in the country grew more inclined to the adoption of the metric system on an all-India basis. In 1940 the Manufacturing Sub-committee of the National Planning Committee, in their interim report, made the following recommendation:

"Standardisation of weights and measures on All-India basis should be carried out at an early date so that a uniform system of weights and measures is applicable to the whole country. If other conditions permit, the metric system should be adopted for this purpose."

The Indian Science Congress Association at its Bangalore session in 1946 passed a resolution strongly advocating the decimalization of currency and weights and measures, simultaneously if possible. The matter was further considered at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Indian Science Congress Association held in March, 1946 and presided over by Mr. Jawaharlal Nehru, and the following resolution was passed unanimously:

"Resolved that the Science Congress notes with satisfaction that a Bill for the decimalization of Indian Currency has been introduced in the Legislative Assembly. The Science Congress is, however, of opinion that decimalization of currency alone is not enough, and considers the decimalization of weights and measures on the basis of the metric system to be equally urgent."

By a resolution of February 1947, the Government of India requested the provincial Governments to take up the question of adopting the metric system of weights and measures.

Meanwhile in 1946 the Government of India by a resolution dated 8th September, had decided to establish the Indian Standards Institution, with the stated object, inter alia,

"to consider and recommend to Government of India, national standards for the measurement of length, weight, volume and energy."

The Indian Standards Institution, inaugurated in February 1947, immediately undertook to make a study of the weights and measures, and a special Committee was soon appointed.

This special committee found a solution in the adoption of the metric system.

Based on a country-wide consensus of opinion of scientists, technologists, industrialists and Government departments, the Committee's recommendation for the adoption of the metric system envisages a change-over in three stages extended over a period of about 15 years.

A preparatory stage of three to five years for intensive dissemination of information on the new system, would be followed by a change-over stage of about the same period and a final stage for over-all transition.

After that period, the only system accorded legal recognition would be the metric system.

For the implementation of the Committee's recommendation, the report stresses the need for early Central legislation for the recognition of the metric system and the creation of an agency to co-ordinate all related measures for the change-over.

The introduction of decimalised currency is also recommended in the early stage of the change-over.

In regard to the nomenclature of the new system, the report records the view that the international nomenclature should be used, unless Parliament decides to have an Indianised system. In the latter contingency, however, it has been advised to avoid the use of the existing names, such as seer and guz for kilogramme and metre.

(Copies of this Report could be had from the Secretary (Administration), Indian Standards Institution, 19, University Road, Civil Lines, Delhi.)

PRESENT SYSTEM

The various systems of weights used in India combine uniformity of scales with immense variations in the weights of units. The scales used generally throughout northern India, less commonly in Madras and standardised in Bombay under the Bombay Weights and Measures Act, 1932, may be thus expressed as one maund = 40 seers, one seer = 80 tolas.

The actual weight of a seer varies greatly from district to district and even from village to village except in Bombay State. In the standard system the tola is of 180 grains, and the seer thus weighs 2·067 lb. and the maund 82·28 lb. This standard is also used in official reports.

For calculating retail prices, the universal custom is to express them in terms of seers to the rupee. Thus, when prices change what varies is not the amount of money to be paid for the same quantity, but the quantity to be obtained for the same amount of money.

In other words, prices in India are quantity prices, not money prices. When the figure of quantity goes up, this of course means that the price has gone down.

The name of the unit for square measurement in India generally is the bigha, which varies greatly in different parts of the country. So the areas are expressed either in square miles or in acres.

PRESENT POSITION

The position at present is as follows :

One tola = 180 grains
 „ seer = 80 tolas
 „ maund = 40 seers

Another system of weights is as follows :

16 drams = one ounce (oz.)
 16 ounces = „ pound (lb.)
 14 pounds = „ stone (st.)
 28 pounds = „ quarter (qr.)
 4 quarters = „ hundred weight (cwt.)
 20 cwt. = „ ton

The ones shown above are used in Government and other big transactions.

Elsewhere the weights vary from place to place. The maund is of two kinds, the bazaar maund and the factory maund. The relation between the two is : 100 bazaar maunds = 110 factory maunds.

The tola is the unit and all other weights are derived from it.

4 sikl or quarter = one tola
 5 tolas = „ chhatak
 2 chhataks = „ atapaw
 2 atapaws = „ paw
 2 paws = „ adaseer
 2 adaseers = „ seer
 5 seers = „ panseri
 40 seers = „ maund

The weights for gold and silver are as follows :

4 grains = one pennyweight (dwt.)
 20 dwt. = „ ounce (oz.)

The following are the weights used by the jeweller :

4 dhans = one rati
 4 ratls = „ anna
 8 ratls = „ masha
 12 mashas = „ tola

The following are the apothecaries' weights :

20 grains = one scruple (scr.)
 3 scruples = „ drachm (dr.)
 8 drachms = „ ounce (oz.)

The following are the lineal measures :

12 inches = one foot (ft.)
 3 feet = „ yard (yd.)

CURRENCY CIRCULATION

During 1952-53 the total circulation of all forms of legal tender currency (notes, rupee coin and small coin) recorded a moderate fall of Rs. 18 crores, after the sharp fall of Rs. 116 crores in 1951-52. The total net contraction in currency circulation in the Indian Union during 1948-49 to 1952-53 amounted to Rs. 66 crores.

U.K.-INDIA AGREEMENT

In 1951 an understanding was reached between the two Governments over the broad outlines of a new long-term arrangement. This was confirmed in February 1952. Under the agreement, the U.K. Government have agreed to release during the six years ending June 1957 a sum of £35 million a year from these balances. They have also agreed to transfer £310 million from Account No. 2 to Account No. 1, to be held by the Reserve Bank of India as part of the Currency Reserve, to be drawn upon only in an emergency. Provision has been made for the carry over of undrawn amounts from one year to another and for consultations between the two Governments in case it is found necessary in any year to make a call on a subsequent year's allocation in excess of £5 million. At the end of the period it is expected that the balances would have reached the amount normally required as a currency reserve; but if any excess is left, it will be transferred to No. 1 Account.

The above agreement was modified in July 1953. The more important provisions in the revised agreement are given below:—

(1) Any sterling received by the Reserve Bank in respect of current transactions and transferred from the No. 2 Account shall be credited to the No. 1 Account.

(2) The No. 2 Account shall be credited with (a) the proceeds at maturity or on realisation of any investment purchased in accordance with established custom with funds standing to the credit of the No. 2 Account, (b) transfers from the No. 1 Account in respect of matters outstanding under the Defence expenditure plan and any other accounts connected with the war and such other items as may be agreed between the two Governments. The No. 2 Account shall be debited with appropriate transfers which have not already taken place.

(3) The U. K. Government shall not restrict the availability of sterling standing to the credit of the No. 1 Account for payments for current transactions in any currency area or for payments to residents of the scheduled territories. On the other hand, the Government of India shall not restrict the acceptance by residents in India in settlement of payments for current transactions, of sterling at the disposal of other scheduled territories and, in accordance with current practice, of sterling at the disposal of residents outside the scheduled territories and the supply of Indian rupees arising from permitted current transactions and accruing to residents of the scheduled territories for any payments inside India or for the purchase of sterling.

(4) The Government of India agrees not to draw upon £310 million transferred from the No. 2 Account and held by the Reserve Bank as a currency reserve without previous consultation with the Government of the United Kingdom.

(5) Beginning on July 1, 1951 the balance to the credit of No. 2 Account shall be transferred to the No. 1 Account in instalments not exceeding £35 million every year. Transfers will be for maintaining a minimum balance on the No. 1 Account of £30 million in addition to the amount held as a currency reserve; but any part not transferred during a particular year shall be added to the sums available for transfer in the later periods. Without further consultation, the Government of India may anticipate further transfers to the extent of £5 million; but if anticipation to a greater extent is necessary, the two Governments shall consult each other.

(6) If the transfers from No. 2 Account to No. 1 Account appear to be taking place at a significantly higher rate, either Government can ask for fresh discussions between the two Governments.

Circulation of Notes.—During 1952-53 the decline in note circulation amounted to Rs. 8 crores as against the record contraction of Rs. 100 crores in 1951-52. The 1952-53 busy season from end October 1952 to May 8, 1953 witnessed a substantial expansion of Rs. 107 crores. The highest monthly expansion of Rs. 18 crores was witnessed in December 1952 in keeping with the usual seasonal pattern. The changes in the denominational pattern are indicated in the following statement.

Rupee Coin.—Since November 1, 1943, when the standard silver rupee coin of eleven-twelfths fineness ceased to be legal tender, the 'rupee coin' in circulation in India has comprised (1) the Government of India one rupee notes issued from July 1940, (2) the quaternary silver rupees (of one-half fineness) issued between December 1940 and June 1946, and (3) the nickel rupees issued from June 1947.

During 1952-53 rupee coin in circulation declined by Rs. 5.7 crores to Rs. 120 crores. On April 10, 1952, the Reserve Bank received from the Government of India one rupee notes and coin of the value of Rs. 5 crores, in terms of Section 36 (2) of the Reserve Bank of India Act, against payment of legal tender value.

Small Coin.—Since 1949-50 small coin has been continuously returning from circulation. The following are the details of the return.

(7) Any balance remaining on the No. 2 Account on June 30, 1951 shall be transferred to the No. 1 Account.

(8) The net capital movement from India to other scheduled territories will be determined at agreed intervals and the amount will be transferred from No. 2 Account to No. 1 Account if it is an outgo from India or vice versa if it is an inflow.

(9) The two Governments shall not restrict transfers of capital from India to the U. K. representing remittances of savings of persons of the U. K. origin leaving India permanently for the U. K. and the voluntary repatriation of investments by residents in the U. K. for purposes of the U. K. exchange control.

Hyderabad.—With the accession of the Hyderabad State to the Indian Union, India notes and coin were made legal tender in the Hyderabad State as from January 26, 1950 and arrangements were made for the conversion of the Hall Sica into India notes and coin at the rate of Hyderabad Rs. 116-10-8 for Indian Rs. 100. The Indian Coinage Act, 1906, was applied to the State with effect from April 1, 1951; but the legal tender character of the Hyderabad coins was extended until March 31, 1953. In March 1953, the Union Parliament passed the Hyderabad Coinage and Paper Currency Act, 1953, which allowed Hyderabad State notes to continue as legal tender for a period not exceeding two years.

EXCHANGE CONTROL

The pattern of exchange control in 1952-53 remained practically the same as in the previous year. In order to stimulate investment of foreign capital in desirable channels, further relaxations were made in the exchange restrictions on the repatriation of capital invested from non-sterling area countries after January 1, 1950.

The trends in the balance of payments position for 1951 and 1952 are summarised in the following table:—

INDIA'S FOREIGN LIABILITIES & ASSETS*

The Reserve Bank of India framed, after a comprehensive inquiry, a kind of international balance sheet of the foreign liabilities and assets of India as on June 30, 1948. The main features are given below :—

India appeared to be a creditor by over Rs. 1,300 crores; but the net adjusted surplus is Rs. 664 crores taking into account the inter-governmental debt owed by Pakistan (Rs. 300 crores) and Burma (Rs. 53 crores). In assessing the significance of this figure, the need for maintaining a certain minimum amount of sterling assets as currency reserve must be taken into account. There are further considerations that the income account indicates a debtor position and that there has been a substantial reduction in the foreign assets since the date of the census.

India's foreign liabilities in the official sector amounted to Rs. 648 crores of which Rs. 426 crores were long-term, i.e., maturing beyond June 1949 and Rs. 222 crores short-term. The liabilities of the non-official sector were composed of Rs. 144 crores by way of 'portfolio' obligations and Rs. 254 crores as 'direct' obligations. The total number of companies, shares of which were owned abroad and for which information was made available was about 2,300. There were 210 companies with a total invested capital of Rs. 44 crores, the value of the shares of the controlling interests amounting to about Rs. 28 crores and forming 68 per cent. of the total. Out of this, the United Kingdom accounted for Rs. 21.87 crores. The next group consisted of 150 companies with total capital resources of Rs. 47 crores of which about 95 per cent. was owned by foreign organisations. Here again, the United Kingdom accounted for 69.7 per cent. 334 companies claimed direct investments; but the managing agents owned Rs. 13 crores or 14.6 per cent of the total capital.

Thus of the total value of ordinary shares of all the Indian joint stock companies amounting to Rs. 156 crores, the value of the foreign-held portion of the capital conferring control worked out to Rs. 85 crores or 54 per cent. composed of manufacturing groups (Rs. 22.06 crores), trading (Rs. 19.39 crores) and miscellaneous (Rs. 17.47 crores) and financial Rs. 13.86 crores.

Of the total foreign business investments in India amounting to Rs. 820.42 crores, Britain's share was Rs. 230 crores or 72 per cent. Tea plantations Rs. 52 crores or 80 per cent. direct foreign resources in companies trading in mineral oils and engaged in the distribution of electricity stood at Rs. 22.57 crores and Rs. 19.35 crores respectively. In jute and cotton manufacturing companies, there was a total foreign investment of Rs. 15.74 crores and Rs. 11.70 crores respectively.

The broad picture of India's investments abroad is :—

	Rs.
Deposits abroad owned by residents in India	65.98 crores
Unexpired letters of credit	15.16 ..
Inter-branch and inter-company balances	22.47 ..
Loans due from outside	15.79 ..
Insurance claims abroad	2.48 ..
Land and estate abroad	48.12 ..
Buildings	17.64 ..
Factories and Mines	12.39 ..
Residual items	618.24 ..
Foreign Government securities (includes sterling balances)	1,570.45 ..
Proprietary interest	3.60 ..
Shares and Debentures	26.17 ..
Total	2,418.58 ..

The main events in the field of international finance during 1952-53 were : (1) a cut of $1.3 billion in the U. S. foreign aid, the allocation for this year being $6.0 billion, (2) increased lending by the Export-Import Bank and the World Bank and (3) a further extension of activities under the Colombo Plan in spite of a lower scale of financial assistance.

WORLD BANK

The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development was set up in 1944 by 44 nations in order to encourage capital investment on a world scale. At present 54 countries are members.

Besides $497 million of reconstruction loans made in 1947 to France, the Netherlands, Denmark and Luxembourg, the loans made by the Bank by the end of 1952 totalled $1,000 million. The general reconstruction loans made in 1947 carried interest at 4½ per cent. The rate on long-term loans in 1948 was 4½ per cent. The most recent long-term loans have been at 4½ per cent. The following are the details of the Bank's loans to India :-

DECIMALISATION

With a view to simplifying accounting and facilitating calculations the Government of India had under consideration the introduction of a decimal system of coinage in India. The occasion, calling for a huge recoinage programme necessitated by the unpopularity of the nickel brass coin introduced in 1942 as a wartime measure, was considered to be most opportune for the proposed reform. The proposals under this system were that the rupee would remain unaltered and the half-rupee and the quarter-rupee, while retaining their present shape, size and weight, would be issued as 50 cents and 25 cents coins. The existing lower denominations of small coin would, however, be discarded and, instead, cupro-nickel coins of 10 cents, 5 cents and 2 cents and bronze coins of 1 cent and, if necessary ½ cent would be issued. A bill incorporating the above changes was introduced in the Central Legislative Assembly on the 18th February 1946 and circularised to elicit public opinion. The matter was, however, allowed to rest due to the great changes which followed in August 1947.

BANKING

MODERN banking in India owes its origin to the British agency houses operating in Bombay and Calcutta in the eighteenth century. Then followed the Presidency banks in the latter half of the nineteenth century. As a result of their amalgamation, the Imperial Bank of India was brought into being in 1921 by a special Act. The next stage was marked by the establishment of the Reserve Bank of India on April 1, 1935. Fourteen years later on January 1, 1949, the Reserve Bank was nationalised and its functions are being broadened gradually: from the role of a "lender in the last resort" it has assumed the responsibility of being "the purveyor of credit" and is charged with the responsibility of developing the banking system on sound lines.

At the base of the banking system is the Reserve Bank with Imperial Bank as its agent. The edifice is made up of Indian joint stock banks other than the Imperial Bank, foreign banks and co-operative banks.

The Banking Companies Act was enacted in 1949 with the object of improving the efficiency and the tone of the banking system. The main provisions relate to licensing of branches, requirements of minimum capital and reserves and maintenance of cash reserves. The Act authorises the Reserve Bank to make periodical inspections of banks. During 1952 the Banking Companies Rules were extended to more States and now apply to the entire country.

RESERVE BANK

In pursuance of federal financial integration, the Reserve Bank entered in 1952 into agreements with three Part 'B' States, Madhya Bharat, Travancore-Cochin and Mysore, whereby it became their sole banker.

The Bank advanced to scheduled banks a gross amount of Rs. 246 crores in 1952 as against Rs. 77 crores in 1951 and Rs. 13 crores in 1950. 1,043 loans for general banking purposes totalling Rs. 164.23 crores were made at the Bank rate against Government securities while 100 loans amounting to

Rs. 81.46 crores were made at $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent below the Bank rate under the Bill market scheme.

The following table gives the position of the Reserve Bank over a period of years:—

EXCHANGE BANKS

The banks carrying on exchange business in India are merely branch agencies of banks having their head offices in London, on the Continent, in the Far East or the U. S. A. Originally their business was confined almost exclusively to the financing of the external trade of India; but in recent years, most of them, while continuing to play their main role, have also taken an active part in the financing of internal trade. Following the increase in the British bank rate to four per cent in March 1952, exchange banks found it more profitable to tap Indian deposits than to get funds from London and over the year, showed an increase of Rs. 4 crores in their deposits compared to a fall of Rs. 10 crores in the total deposits of major Indian scheduled banks and of Rs. one crore in those of other Indian schedule banks.

The earlier progress of Exchange Banks has been tabulated in the previous editions. The more recent trends are summed up below:—

Clearing Houses.—The Principal Clearing Houses in India are those of Calcutta, Bombay and Madras and of these the first two are by far the most important. In 1946-47 Clearing Houses were opened at Alleppey, Rajkot and Gaya and are being managed by the Imperial Bank of India. This brings the total number of Clearing Houses under the management of the Imperial Bank to 19. In Bombay, a Metropolitan Clearing Association was formed and registered in October 1946 to arrange for clearing for non-scheduled banks as the Bombay Bankers' Clearing House decided to restrict its membership and sub-membership only to scheduled banks.

Cheque clearances in the Indian Union declined to Rs. 6,198 crores in 1949-50 from Rs. 6,687 crores in the previous year which was incidentally a record year for cheque clearances. In 1950-51 there was, however, a sharp recovery owing to the broadening of business activity and the rise in prices following the outbreak of the Korean War and the rearmament drive and the total cheque clearances amounted to Rs. 8,577½ crores. Of the increase amounting to Rs. 379½ crores, Bombay alone accounted for Rs. 277½ crores at Rs. 2,877½ crores. The year 1951-52, however, broke all previous records.

The figures for 1951 and 1952 along with others are shown in the table given below :

STOCK EXCHANGE*

THE earliest reference to stock broking in India dates back to the end of the 18th century when transactions in Government securities and the shares of the East India Company used to take place in Calcutta under a neem tree. Similar references are also available about business in shares in Bombay before 1840. The boom following the American Civil war gave a great impetus to this business.

The Native Share and Stock Brokers' Association of Bombay was formally constituted by an indenture dated December 8, 1887 and was recognised by the Government of Bombay for forward trading in shares under the Bombay Securities Contracts Control Act, 1925. Since then several attempts were made to start rival stock markets in Bombay, the latest one being the Indian Stock Exchange started in 1938.

Calcutta Association.—The Calcutta Stock Exchange Association was founded at No. 2, New China Bazar Road (now known as 2, Royal Exchange Place), Calcutta, with 150 founder members in 1908. Fifteen years later, it was registered as a limited liability concern. The Association is controlled and managed by a Committee and has a membership of 232 brokers.

The only registered institution in south India of brokers dealing in shares and securities is the Madras Stock Exchange Association, Ltd., registered in 1937.

During the boom period several stock markets were started at other industrial centres. These include Delhi and Kanpur.

The Ahmedabad Stock Exchange is also a registered body and recognised by the Government of Bombay under the Bombay Securities Contract Control Act.

Among the Part B States Hyderabad has an organised stock market of its own; but trading in shares is conducted in several other States, particularly Madhya Bharat in which Indore is an important centre.

CAPITAL MARKET

Until the beginning of the Second World War the capital market had made a slow but steady progress; but its pace quickly accelerated during the War period when the monetary inflation and the rising trend of industrial profits served as a first class stimulant to its growth which was spectacular. The post-war period has, however, served mainly towards consolidating the early gains. A broad idea of the expansion of the market can be had from the fact that between 1938-39 and 1946-47, the interest-bearing obligations of the Government of India increased by Rs. 1,176 crores, while consent for the issue of capital was granted to the tune of Rs. 640½ crores from May 17, 1943 to March 31, 1947.

INDUSTRIAL FINANCE CORPORATION

Under the Industrial Finance Corporation Act, a Corporation was established on July 1, 1948 to provide medium and long-term finance to public limited companies and co-operative societies registered in India, including the succeeding States, and engaged in the manufacture or processing of goods or in mining or in the generation or distribution of electricity or any other form of power. Individuals, partnership firms or private limited companies are thus excluded from the purview of the Corporation's operations. The authorised share capital is Rs. 10 crores, divided into 20,000 shares of Rs. 5,000 each, the paid up capital being Rs. 5 crores in respect of 10,000 shares issued. To this issue, the Central Government and the Reserve Bank of India subscribed Rupees one crore each, the scheduled banks and financial institutions like insurance companies and investment trusts, Rs. 1½ crores each, and co-operative banks Rs. ½ crore. The paid-up value of the share capital and dividends on it, at the minimum rate of 2½ per cent. per annum are guaranteed by the Government. The Board of Directors consists of twelve members, of whom four are nominated by the Central Government and two by the Reserve Bank of India, and six are representatives of scheduled banks, insurance companies, investment trusts and other financial institutions.

The Corporation is authorised to borrow up to five times the amount of its paid-up capital and reserve fund. When the Reserve Fund equals the authorised capital of Rs. 10 crores, the borrowing capacity of the Corporation will be Rs. 100 crores. The Corporation may also accept deposits for periods of not less than five years, but the total deposits accepted may not exceed Rs. 10 crores. It is empowered to provide financial assistance in the following ways:

(i) grant loans or subscribe to debentures of industrial concerns repayable within a period of 25 years secured by sufficient pledge, hypothecation or mortgage of tangible assets; (ii) underwrite the issue of stocks, shares and debentures; and (iii) guarantee loans floated in the market repayable within a period not exceeding 25 years.

The Corporation is prohibited from subscribing directly to the shares or stocks of companies and is primarily a lender and not a partner in industry. Its policy is to finance the acquisition of fixed assets and thereby supplement rather than compete with the activities of commercial banks.

In September 1948 the Corporation started functioning with Mr. Shri Ram as Chairman and Mr. Ram Nath as Managing Director. In August 1949 the Corporation decided to augment its resources by issuing 3½ per cent. bonds repayable in 1964. The Act was amended with effect from December 29, 1952 in order to enable the Central Government to guarantee loans in foreign currencies and in certain other respects, e.g., shipping companies are now eligible for loan from the Corporation.

The nature of assistance that the Industrial Finance Corporation can render to the Industries is governed by the Act which permits help to be given only to public limited companies or co-operatives registered in India and engaged in the manufacture of goods, processing of goods, mining and generation or distribution of electricity or any other form of power.

Up to the end of January 1953 the Corporation sanctioned Rs. 15-23 crores by way of loans.

The break-up of the loans sanctioned by the Corporation from June 30, 1949 to June 30, 1952 is as follows (Rs. in lakhs):

Textile machinery 64; Mechanical engineering 118; Electrical engineering 115; Cotton textiles 204; Woollen and rayon 85; Chemicals 186; Cement 90; Ceramics and glass 119; Non-ferrous metals 85; Sugar 115; Paper 74; Automobiles and tractors 50; Other industries 98; Total 1,403; Total asked for 3,187.

With the passing of the Part B States (Laws) Act, 1950, which came into force on April 1, 1951, the Industrial Finance Corporation Act, 1948, now extends to the whole of India except Jammu and Kashmir. On account of the conditions prevailing in the money market and the stock exchange, the Corporation did not consider it advisable to undertake underwriting commitments.

STATE FINANCIAL CORPORATION

An Act to provide for the establishment of State Financial Corporations was passed in October 1951. The Act enables the State Government to establish a Financial Corporation for the State under a name to be specified by notification and the State Government concerned, the Reserve Bank, scheduled banks, insurance companies, investment trusts, co-operative banks and other financial institutions will be entitled to subscribe to the share capital. Parties other than these can also be shareholders; but their aggregate holding will not exceed one fourth of the total capital. The shares allocated will not be transferable except to the State Government, the Reserve Bank or any other recognised financial institution.

The shares of the Corporation will be a trustee security under the Indian Trusts Act and an approved security under the Insurance and Banking Acts. The shares shall be guaranteed by the State Government in regard to the repayment of principal and the payment of annual dividend at such minimum rate as the State Government may, with the approval of the Central Government, fix by notification. The Corporation may issue bonds and debentures for increasing its working capital and accept deposits of not less than five years' maturity.

The management of the Corporation will vest in a Board of Directors composed of three nominated by the State Government, one by the Central Board of the Reserve Bank, one by the Industrial Finance Corporation of India, one each by scheduled banks, co-operative banks and other financial institutions and one to represent other shareholders. The Managing Director will be an ex-officio member of the Board. The first Board will be constituted by nominating the representatives of the various interests by the State Government.

The Corporation may transact the following business:—(a) the guaranteeing of loans raised by industrial concerns in the public market for not more than 20 years; (b) the underwriting of the issue of stocks, shares, bonds or debentures by industrial concerns; (c) the granting of loans or subscribing to debentures of industrial concerns repayable within 20 years; and (d) other business arising or ancillary to the above. The limit of accommodation to any industrial concern will be up to a maximum of one-tenth of the Corporation's share capital subject to a maximum of Rs. 10 lakhs.

Upto December 1953 four States had established State Finance Corporations—Punjab, Saurashtra, Bombay, Travancore-Cochin.

At present there is no legislation for the regulation and control of stock exchanges except in the State of Bombay. The Bombay Securities Contracts Control Act of 1925 has also not proved particularly effective mainly because transactions outside a recognised stock exchange are, under the Act, merely void and not illegal. The Act does not also make a clear distinction between ready and forward business. To improve upon the Contracts Control Act the Bombay Government enacted in 1947 the Bombay Forward Contracts Control Act; but this Act has not been applied to securities presumably because central legislation on this subject has been in contemplation.

On the basis of the recommendations of an expert committee, the Government of India have formulated proposals for enacting legislation for regulating stock markets. Comments received from the State Governments and public bodies are under scrutiny.

COMPANY LAW

In 1951 the Government of India appointed an expert committee, with Mr. C. H. Bhabha as Chairman, to suggest an overhaul of the Company Law. But trafficking in managing rights and cornering of shares in the open market with a view to acquiring control over the management of well-established and reputable companies for anti-social purposes had reached such proportions that Government decided to promulgate an Ordinance on July 21, 1951. On September 14, the Indian Companies Act was amended. The main features of the changes are given below :-

* For investors' guide see end of book.

(1) Any Amendment in the articles or agreement relating to the appointment of a Managing Director and the increase in the remuneration will be void unless approved by the Central Government.

(2) The Central Government, after an enquiry into the complaint made by the Managing Agent, Managing Director or any other director of a company that the change in the board of directors would prejudice the affairs of the company direct that the resolution will be effective only after it is confirmed by Government.

(3) Any change in the term of a Managing Agent after July 21, 1951 shall be void unless approved by the Central Government.

(4) A Managing Agent can transfer his office only with the approval of Government.

(5) A change in the Constitution of the Managing Agent will require prior approval of Government.

(6) When the affairs of a Company are managed in a manner prejudicial to the interests of the company or oppressive to some part of the members, a member can apply to the court for an order to wind up the Company. Government can also apply for a similar order.

(7) The Central Government may constitute an advisory commission to advise them on company affairs.

Steps to introduce legislation for comprehensive revision of the Indian companies Act are well under way. The administration of the Act will also be brought within the purview of the Central Government.

Section 91 B of the Indian Companies Act was amended in 1952 in order to empower the Central Government to exempt any company from the prohibitions contained in sub-section (1) of that Section. An Advisory Commission was also set up to advise Government on applications under the various provisions of the law.

During 1952, 326 applications for the issue of capital amounting to Rs. 152.3 crores were disposed of by the Ministry of Finance. Out of these 102 applications from industrial companies for the issue of capital aggregating Rs. 32.7 crores were sanctioned and 23 applications for Rs. 53.3 crores were refused. 152 applications from non-industrial companies involving a total issue of Rs. 7.10 crores were sanctioned and 49 applications for Rs. 55.05 crores were refused. 76 applications were decided involving investment of foreign capital in companies in India to the extent of about Rs. 6 crores. Out of these, 63 applications were sanctioned involving a capital of over Rs. 5½ crores, and 13 involving a capital of about Rs. ½ crore were refused.

MARKET TRENDS

Throughout the war period, the stock market was fed on a veritable boom caused by cheap money and inflation. The Index of Government securities moved up from 107.6 in August 1939 to 120.4 in 1946-47 and that of fixed yield industrial securities from 137.7 to 197.8 on the basis of 1927-28 quotations equal to 100. In the same period, the index of variable yield industrial securities advanced from 98.5 to 268.6. In the following four years the economic uncertainty, post-partition riots and the general thinning of investment demand had an adverse effect on the stock markets and the capital values registered a marked depreciation. Thereafter a feeble recovery was noticeable but the volume of business continued to be at a low ebb and even the Korean War broken in mid-1951 did not stimulate speculative excesses in industrial shares.

The table below based on the data collected by the Reserve Bank broadly indicates the trend in regard to paid-up capital of variable yield industrial shares quoted on the stock exchanges of Bombay, Calcutta and Madras and their market value :-

(Rupees in lakhs)

	October 1948	31-3-1949	31-3-1950	31-3-1951
No. of Companies	779	833	820	827
Paid-up Capital	Rs. 20,596	Rs. 22,714	Rs. 23,015	Rs. 23,808
Market Value	Rs. 40,563	Rs. 37,933	Rs. 35,400	Rs. 43,367

During 1951-52 the Stock Exchange turned downward following the evaporation of inflationary pressures and the debacle reached its nadir in March 1952 when the crash on the market, preceded by a heavy slump in commodities, resulted in the temporary closing down of the market.

The behaviour of the stock market during the financial year 1952-53 fitted the customary pattern of disinflation. With the general rise in interest rates, ideas of equity yields were revised in an upward direction and buyers turned more exacting in their demands for safety and liquidity of capital. This tendency was reinforced by the recession in prices and incomes and flagging profits and directly led to the withdrawal of support from variable yield securities. Nevertheless the fall in their index from 109.8 in April 1952 to 103.7 in January 1953 was followed by a recovery to 107 in March. On a percentage basis, the variation over the year was 5 per cent. in Bombay, 7 per cent. in Calcutta and 10 per cent. in Madras.

Since December 1946, the Reserve Bank of India has started constructing indices of security prices covering 398 scrips taking the year 1938 as the base. These indices (all-India) reveal the following trend :-

BULLION

PRECIOUS metals have always held a great place in the Indian economy. Even though gold and silver standard currencies are no more in the world, both the metals determine Government's policies. The price policies in respect of these two metals are governed by American attitude because the U.S.A. is the most important consumer. The U. S. official price of gold at $ 35 per five ounces has been accepted as the official price by all member countries of the International Monetary Fund.

Following the expiry of the Green Act on December 31, 1945, a Silver Bill was enacted on July 31, 1946 authorising the Treasury to sell or lease for manufacturing use any silver, not pledged as monetary backing for silver certificates, at not less than 90¢ cents per fine ounce and also to purchase all domestic silver mined after that day, if offered within one year after being mined, at a net price of 90¢ cents. The tax of 50 per cent on profits derived from transactions in silver, originally designed to prevent speculation at the expense of the Treasury, also continues to be in force in spite of considerable agitation.

The recent trend of silver consumption (partial data) is given in the following table:—

The trend of silver price in New York during 1952 was downward, but there were only six changes in the published price and the opening quotation of 88 cents per troy ounce proved to be the peak of the year and the low of 82½ cents was reached on May 28.

The following table gives the average silver quotations in New York and London from 1948 to 1952:

GOLD

Gold has played a key role in shaping the life and history of the world. Between 1493 and 1600, world's production of gold was placed at 24.2 million ounces. It steadily rose to 38 million ounces during the 50 years ended 1850. Since then, however, the production has risen rather spectacularly. The annual average output mounted from 3.5 million ounces in 1850 to 19.6 million ounces in 1929 and then to 35.2 million ounces in 1936, reaching the peak figure of 41 million ounces in 1940. The greatest part of this enormous increase came since the U. S. Administration raised its price of gold from $ 20.67 per ounce to $ 35 an ounce which made the U. S. A. a sort of magnet strongly attracting the world's entire gold production. The following table gives the figures for world gold production in thousands of fine ounces.

International Gold Policy

The pressure for raising the official price of gold continued in the post-war period. Subsequent to the I.M.F. statement on premium gold in 1951, several gold producing countries permitted external transactions at premium prices under certain specified conditions. During 1952-53 the premium price in the world free markets fluctuated between $ 36.40 and $ 37.50, about 30 per cent of the new gold production during the year went to augment the official gold stocks. It is estimated that in 1952 some 12 million ounces of gold were absorbed by the free gold markets as compared with about 9.5 million during the previous year.

Production, Imports and Exports

The upward tendency in India's gold production noticed since 1950 continued during 1952, the estimated output rising further from 226,344 ounces in 1951 to 252,911 ounces in the following year. Its value, as calculated on the basis of the prices at which it was sold in the open market was, however, lower at Rs. 6 crores as against Rs. 6.8 crores in 1951. The improvement in the physical output was due to higher production in the Mysore State which accounted for as much as 243,829 ounces. On the other hand, the output of the mines in Hyderabad State fell slightly from 9,476 ounces to 9,282 ounces. The Indian output during 1952 was still about 20 per cent below the pre-war (1939) figure of 317,000 ounces though her share in the world output rose from 0.87 per cent in 1951 to 0.96 per cent in the following year.

Imports and exports of gold continued to be negligible in view of the continuance of the restrictions under the Foreign Exchange Regulation Act, 1947, and Imports and Exports (Control) Act, 1947. The inflow of smuggled gold also contracted owing to the narrowing down of the price disparity between the Indian and world price level. In January 1953 the Government of French India decided not to allow any foreign exchange for the import of gold into Pondicherry.

INDIAN MARKET

During 1952-53 forward trading in gold and silver under the auspices of the Bombay Bullion Association, the only recognised body under the Bombay Forward Contracts Control Act, 1947, was sought to be further regulated. The new bye-laws promulgated in May 1952 sought to prevent over-trading and ensure speedy payment of differences when fluctuations were rather excessive. The volume of transactions showed a considerable decline amounting to 118 million tolas in gold and 4.2 million bars in silver as against 245 million tolas in gold and 9.5 million bars in silver during 1951-52.

The following statement gives the highest and lowest spot prices of gold and silver in Bombay with import duties from 1947 to 1952 :—

NATIONAL INCOME

ESTIMATE OF NET OUTPUT PER ENGAGED PERSON : 1948-49

ACCORDING to the report of the National Income Committee, agriculture, animal husbandry, and ancillary activities contributed roughly 48 per cent of the national income in 1948-49. Commerce, transport and communications amounted to 19.5 per cent. Commodity production taken roughly as the total value contributed by agriculture, mining, manufacturing and hand-trades amounted to Rs. 56.5 abja (milliard) or nearly two-thirds of the total national income.

The estimated national income for 1948-49 was Rs. 87.1 abja.

The population in 1948 was taken as 341 million and consequently the per capita national income worked out at Rs. 255.

The following two tables give a broad picture of the distribution of national income though the Committee suggests that too much should not be read in the second table :

NATIONAL INCOME BY INDUSTRIAL ORIGIN : 1948-49

The net national expenditure at market price totalled Rs. 91.7 abja out of which government administration, government administrative capital expenditure and government enterprises capital expenditure were Rs. 6.3 abja, Rs. 0.8 abja and Rs. 1.2 abja, i.e., 6.9 per cent, 0.9 per cent and 1.3 per cent respectively.

It will be noted that government draft on private income amounting to Rs. 87.3 abja was to the extent of Rs. 6.9 abja composed of Rs. 2 abja as direct taxes, Rs. 4.2 abja as indirect taxes and Rs. 0.7 abja as miscellaneous fees, etc.

Dealing with the consumer expenditure, the report pointed out that only fragmentary and dimensional indications were available in isolated cases.

For example, out of a total national product of Rs. 87 abja in 1948-49 the consumer expenditure on food probably amounted to about Rs. 46 abja or nearly 58 per cent of the national income. The high proportion of consumer expenditure on food shows in a general way the underdeveloped character of our economy.

TARIFF POLICY

THE Government of India set up the First Tariff Board in July 1923 for a period of one year and its life was extended from time to time though its personnel was revised every now and then. The Board was guided by three principles, namely, (1) the industry must have natural advantages, (2) the industry is such that without protection it is not likely to develop at all or so rapidly as is desirable in the interest of the country, and (3) the industry must be one which will eventually be able to face world competition without protection.

On November 3, 1945 an Interim Tariff Board was constituted with the late Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty as Chairman. This marked the second stage in the evolution of tariff policy. The Board was expected to keep in view the fundamental objectives of Government's industrial policy which was "to encourage and promote rapid industrialisation of the country to the fullest extent possible." Before recommending protective measures, it was expected to satisfy itself that (1) the industry was conducted on sound business lines, (2) it was likely within a reasonable time to develop sufficiently to be able to carry on successfully without protection or State assistance or it was an industry which it was desirable in the national interest to grant protection or assistance and the probable cost of protection or assistance to the community was not excessive, and (3) due weight was given to the interest of the consumer in the light of the prevailing conditions.

The third stage began with the reconstitution of the Board in November 1947 with Mr. G. I. Mehta as President, and Dr. H. L. Dey and Dr. B. V. Narayanaswamy Naidu as members. Apart from re-assigning the functions hitherto exercised by the Interim Tariff Board, the reconstituted Board was entrusted with two additional functions, namely, (1) to report to Government as and when required factors that lead to increase in the cost of production of Indian manufactured goods as against imported articles and (2) to advise Government, as and when required, on measures whereby internal production may be secured on the most economical cost basis.

The next development took place on August 6, 1948 when Government broadened the functions of the Board in the matter of inquiries into complaints against dumping, combines, etc. and maintenance of watch over progress of protected industries.

The question of evolving a new tariff policy for the Indian Republic was entrusted to the Fiscal Commission in April 1949 which recommended the establishment of a permanent Tariff Commission with enlarged powers and functions. It came to the conclusion that protection should continue to be granted on the following basis: (1) Defence and other strategic industries irrespective of cost on national considerations, (2) Basic and key industries on the recommendations of the Tariff Authority, (3) Other industries having regard to the economic advantages consistent with the cost of protection.

The Tariff Commission Act passed by Parliament received the assent of the President on September 12, 1951 and became immediately effective. Among its main provisions are the following:

The Central Government will establish a Tariff Commission consisting of not less than three, but not exceeding five, whole-time members and one of them will be nominated by the Central Government as its Chairman.

For the purpose of conducting any inquiry under the Act, the Commission will have all the powers of a civil court while trying a suit under the Code of Civil Procedure and to require any person to furnish information on the subject matter of any inquiry.

Upon receipt of a report made to it by the Commission, the Central Government may take such action as it considers fit in respect of any of the matters dealt with in the report. A copy of every final report made to the Central Government, together with a report of the action taken thereon by the Central Government will be laid on the table of Parliament within three months of the submission of the report if Parliament is then sitting and, if Parliament is not then sitting, within seven days of its re-assembly. When the report cannot be so laid, a statement explaining the reasons therefor will also be laid on the table of Parliament.

The first Tariff Commission (Jan. 7, 1952) was composed of Mr. G. I. Mehta as Chairman and Dr. B. V. Narayanaswamy Naidu and Mr. B. N. Adarkar as members.

The Commission is now composed of Mr. M. D. Bhat (Chairman), Mr. B. N. Adarkar, Mr. B. N. Das Gupta and Mr. C. Ramasubban.

The industries which were granted protection for the first time in 1952 were hydroquinone, iron and steel machine screws, electric brass lamp holders and zip fasteners. Protection to the ball bearings industry was granted till the end of 1954 and to batteries for motor vehicles was continued till December 1955. Starch, alloy, tool and special steels, certain categories of grinding wheels and segments and photographic chemicals were granted continued protection till the end of 1954. In the case of 27 industries including preserved fruits, glucose, soda ash, pencils, plywood, sericulture, artificial silk, non-ferrous metals, aluminium, cotton textile machinery and bicycles protection was extended up to the end of 1953. (See below for fuller list.)

Apart from cases relating to protection, the Commission submitted reports on the fair retention prices of steel produced at Bhadravati and the Steel Corporation of Bengal, continuance of protection to the motor vehicles battery industry, woollen hosiery industry, ball bearings and steel balls industry, revision of fair prices of superphosphate for 1952, review of retention prices of tin-plate produced by the Tinplate Co. of India Ltd., revision of raw rubber prices, fair ratio between the ordinary shares of the Steel Corporation and the Indian Iron, power and distribution transformers industry, revision of the fair retention prices of steel produced by Tata Iron and reduction of import duty on metanophenol. At the time of writing Government had issued orders on the first nine reports.

The Commission was to undertake inquiries into the claims of 44 industries for continuing protection in 1953.

ARTICLES TAXED

The general rate of import duty is 25 per cent. On luxury goods the duty varies between 75 and 100 per cent.

The following articles among others are subject to a protective duty: Heavy chemicals, iron and steel, metals (other than iron and steel), sewing machines and parts, cycles (other than motor bicycles) and parts.

The following articles among others are subject to revenue duties: Machinery, iron and steel, metals (other than iron and steel), motor cars, cycles, scooters, omnibuses, lorries, vans, and parts of these, pneumatic rubber tyres and tubes, motor spirit, kerosene oil, oils (fuel and lubricating), gold, bullion, coins, sheets and plates, tin, electric lighting bulbs, wireless apparatus, Portland cement (excluding white), raw cotton, coal tar products including dyestuffs, artificial silk, yarn, textile fabrics, wood, pulp, paper, stationery, cinematograph films, toys, games and sports goods, spices, wines, spirits and liquors, ale, beer, porter, cider and fermented liquors, tobacco, betel-nuts.

The following articles among others are subject to export duties: Raw jute, manufactured jute, raw cotton, cotton waste, cotton cloth and yarn, raw wool, oil and oil seeds, tea, black pepper, other agriculture produce, manganese.

The following articles among others are subject to excise duties levied by the Central Government: Kerosene, sugar, matches, coffee, tea, vegetable products, tobacco, cotton cloth, steel ingots, motor spirit, tyres, coal.

Customs is among the most important sources of revenue of the Central Government. Before the war it accounted for between 55 and 60 per cent of the revenue. Though the percentage today is not as high as it used to be it is still second only to income-tax as a source of revenue.

Among the items that earn most revenue are motor spirits (about Rs. 25 crores), the group that includes motor cars (about Rs. 11 crores), machinery, kerosene oil, raw cotton, artificial silk yarn are also very high (about Rs. 6 crores each).

About export duty, raw and manufactured jute bring in most revenue (about Rs. 60 crores). Tea is next with about Rs. 10 crores.

Before the war excise duties did not form a material part of the revenues of the Central Government. Today they are very important, the estimates for 1953-54 are Rs. 94 crores. The most important single item is tobacco with over Rs. 35 crores.

PERIOD OF PROTECTION

On the following industries, protection was due to expire on December 31, 1953. The date in brackets shows when the duty was imposed:

Artificial silk fabrics (May 1, 1934); cotton and artificial silk mixed fabrics (May 1, 1934); sericulture (May 1, 1938); cocoa and chocolate (April 18, 1947); calcium chloride (April 18, 1947); bichromates (April 18, 1947); coated abrasives (April 18, 1947); iron or steel weed-screws (April 18, 1947); antimony (April 18, 1947); hurricane lanterns (April 18, 1947); bicycles (April 18, 1947); sewing machines (April 18, 1947); aluminium (May 15, 1947); preserved fruit (Jan. 12, 1948); glucose (Sept. 24, 1948); oleic and stearic acids (Sept. 24, 1948); plywoods and batens for chests (Sept. 24, 1948); cotton (Sept. 24, 1948); hair bedding (Sept. 24, 1948); iron or steel balling hoops (Sept. 24, 1948); ferro-silicon (Sept. 24, 1948); non-ferrous metals (Sept. 24, 1948); electric motors (Sept. 24, 1948); pickers for textile industry (March 29, 1949); soda ash (April 24, 1950); sheet glass (April 24, 1950); plastic electrical accessories (April 24, 1950); phenol-formaldehyde moulding powder (April 24, 1950); cotton textile machinery (April 24, 1950); sago globules and tapioca pearls (March 29, 1951); pencils (March 29, 1951); calcium lactate (March 29, 1951); fountain pen ink (March 29, 1951); buttons, studs and cuff links (March 29, 1951); hydroquinone (March 7, 1952); electric brass lamp holders (March 7, 1952); oil pressure lamps (March 29, 1952).

On the following industries protection is due to expire on December 31, 1954:

Photographic chemicals (Dec. 21, 1948); some categories of grinding wheels and segments (Jan. 12, 1948); alloy, tool and special steels (Aug. 30, 1948); sago flour and farina (Sept. 24, 1948); iron or steel machine screws (March 7, 1952); zip fasteners with metal tooth (June 15, 1952); ball bearings (Jan. 10, 1953).

On the following industries protection is due to expire on December 31, 1955:

Batteries for motor vehicles (March 29, 1949); power and distribution transformers (May 30, 1953).

FINANCE

THE following table shows the budgeting position of the Government of India for 1948-49, 1951-52, 1952-53 and 1953-54. The figures for 1953-54 are budget estimates. Throughout the figures are in Rs. crores :

REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE

The principal sources of Central revenue are: customs duties, excise duties levied by the Central Government, corporation tax, income tax (excluding taxes on agricultural income), estate and succession duty, the earnings from the mints, terminal taxes on goods or passengers carried by railway, sea or air, taxes on railway fares and freights, taxes (other than stamp duty) on transactions in stock exchange and future markets, stamp duty on bills of exchange, cheques, bills of lading, letters of credit, insurance policies, transfer of shares etc., taxes on sale and purchase of newspapers and on advertisements in newspapers.

The railways and the posts and telegraphs contribute to the Central revenues. There are also the profits on the Government industrial undertakings.

About as much as 90 per cent of the revenue is derived from the customs, excise duties, corporation and income taxes.

The principal sources of revenue for the individual States are: State taxes (on agricultural income, lands and buildings, minerals rights, consumption or sale of electricity, sale or purchase of goods other than newspapers, advertisements other than in newspapers, goods and passengers carried by road or on inland water-ways, vehicles, animals, boats, tolls, professions, trades, luxuries, amusements), capitation taxes, stamp duties, excise duties on alcoholic liquors, opium and other narcotics.

A point about the Sales Tax is worth mentioning here. The Union has the power of declaring any commodity as essential for the life of the community and thereby vetoing any sales tax levied on it by a State Government. This power comes from the Essential Goods Act of 1952.

The Act however does not apply to taxes levied before it came into force.

Then there are the subventions from the Central Government. Part of the proceeds of the income tax are distributed among the States. The Jute growing States get part of the proceeds from the export duty on jute. There are also special grants which are made to certain States. (For details see report of the Finance Commission).

Collection and appropriation of taxes are not always vested in the same authority. Some taxes are levied by the Central Government but collected and appropriated by the States (stamp duties, excise duties, duties on medicines and toilet preparations). Some are levied and collected by the Union but assigned to the States (succession and estate duties on property other than agricultural, terminal taxes on passengers, railway fares, freights, stock exchange, future markets, newspapers or advertisement. Corporation tax is collected and retained by the Union, but taxes on other incomes are levied and collected by the Union and distributed between the Union and States.

The two biggest items of expenditure of the Central Government are outlay on development programmes (capital account) and defence. These programmes were undertaken to help the country recover from the effects of war and partition and to increase the total wealth. Some of the projects are financed by loans and others by assistance from foreign Governments. Current releases from sterling balances are also used to finance development.

Three important heads of expenditure of the States under the revenue account are: irrigation, security and social services.

Then there is public debt, now almost wholly internal—the rupee debt. This may be divided into three classes, long term loans and money market liabilities, the unfunded debt which includes provident funds, postal deposits, saving certificates, and last the deposits.

In 1952-53 the total public debt of the Government of India amounted to Rs. 2,082 crores. Of this the debt in England amounted to Rs. 27 crores, the dollar debt to Rs. 113 crores.

The entire revenues of the Union form a single fund called the Consolidated Fund of India.

Towards the beginning of the financial year, that is in April the estimates of receipts and expenditure are laid by the Central and State Governments before their respective legislatures.

No expenditure can be incurred without a specific grant being made for the purpose.

Certain routine items which cannot await legislative sanction are non-votable. These items are charged to the consolidated funds of the Central and State Governments.

A difficult problem for the income tax department has been the evasion of tax specially during the war and since.

A commission was appointed in 1947 to investigate such evasion. By September 1952 the Commission had discovered concealed income to the value of Rs. 38 crores, the evaded taxes on which amounted to Rs. 21 crores.

This was not very satisfactory and in 1952 June the Finance Ministry launched a special drive, inviting the public to make voluntary disclosures of hidden income within a specified time. Assessors were offered special treatment, such as exemption from prosecution, dropping of penalties and payment by instalment. The arrears in income tax were estimated at Rs. 150 crores.

By Sept. 1952 the total income voluntarily disclosed amounted to Rs. 74.43 crores, on which the tax was Rs. 10 crores.

1953-54 BUDGET

The 1953-54 Budget estimates tax revenue at 85 per cent of the total as against 89 per cent in 1951-52 and 1952-53 (revised). The budget proposals have the net effect of reducing the tax revenue by Rs. 0.40 crore and raising non-tax revenue by Rs. 1.9 crores as compared to yields on the basis of the rates in 1952-53. The budget also provides, in addition to transfers in accordance with the recommendations of the Fiscal Commission, Rs. 17 crores for special grants. As against this, there is no provision for food subsidies which amounted to Rs. 21 crores in 1952-53 revised.

These estimates leave a deficit of Rs. 1.05 crores which is sought to be converted into a small surplus of Rs. 0.45 crore. The estimated net addition of Rs. 1.50 crores to revenue as a result of budget proposals is accounted for as follows:—

	Crores of rupees.
Loss in revenue due to reduction in export duty on sackings from Rs. 175 per ton to Rs. 80	— 3.5
Loss in revenue due to raising the exemption limit on personal income-tax (Central share) from Rs. 3,600 for individuals and Rs. 7,200 for Hindu undivided families to Rs. 4,200 and Rs. 8,400 respectively	— 0.4

	Crores of rupees
Increase in revenue due to changes in import duties including an additional duty of as. 2 per lb. on betelnuts	+ 3.5
Adjustments in Union excise duties including change from ad valorem duty to specific duties on cloth	Nil
Changes in postal rates	+ 1.9

DEVELOPMENT EXPENDITURE

Out of a total of Rs. 726 crores, which the Centre is expected to raise over the five-year period from its revenue and capital accounts, about Rs. 262 crores have been found in the first two years and it was expected that another Rs. 120 crores would be provided in 1953-54. The States, however, have been able to find only about Rs. 101 crores in the first two years as against Rs. 532 crores expected to be raised in 1951-56.

A good part of the development expenditure was financed through grants and loans received from abroad in 1951-52 and 1952-53. Foreign grants and loans extended to India in this two-year period totalled Rs. 189 crores. The breakdown is as follows:

	(Crores of Rupees)

DEBT POSITION

Under the Indian Independence (Rights, Property and Liabilities) Order, 1947, all liabilities in respect of loans, guarantees and other financial obligations of the Governor-General-in-Council outstanding immediately before the date of Partition have been placed on the Republic of India, subject to the recovery of an appropriate contribution from Pakistan. In regard to the outstandings in respect of Post Office Savings Bank and Post Office Cash, Defence and National Savings Certificates it was agreed that each country should take over liability for the deposits and certificates outstanding in its respective area subject to adjustment of transfers from one country to the other till March 31, 1948. A moratorium of four years has been given to Pakistan for the repayment of the Partition Debt. The first instalment fell due on August 15, 1952.

The outstanding public debt of the Government of India was expected to amount to Rs. 2,082 crores at the end of March 1953 and Rs. 2,173 crores at the end of 1953-54. The broad analysis of the debt compared with that at the end of 1938-39 is given below :—

(In lakhs of rupees)

	Total	Rupee Loans	Sterling Loans	Dollar Loans
31-3-1939 Account	9,49,77	4,84,82	4,64,95
31-3-1953	20,82,05	19,41,00	27,31	1,18,74
31-3-1954	21,73,06	20,34,15	26,15	1,12,76

The liability for the British War Loan remains suspended while against the outstanding Railway annuities an equivalent deposit has been made with the U.K. Government who have undertaken to provide the necessary sterling as the payments fall due. Omitting these items, the total outstanding debt would be Rs. 2,056 crores at the end of the current year and Rs. 2,148 crores at the end of 1953-54, representing at the end of the budget year an increase of Rs. 1,266 crores over the corresponding figure at the end of 1938-39.

In addition, Government are liable to repay the balances in the various Provident Funds, the Post Office Savings Bank, the Post Office Cash and National Savings Certificates, the Depreciation and Reserve Funds of the Railways, Posts and Telegraphs etc. and certain other deposits, mainly relating to excess profits tax and income-tax. These balances were estimated to amount to Rs. 780 crores at the end of the current year and Rs. 819 crores at the end of 1953-54 after making a very rough allowance for Pakistan's probable share in them.

Taking the regular debt and these liabilities together the debt position of the Government of India would stand at Rs. 28,35,92 lakhs on 31-3-1953 and Rs. 29,67,00 lakhs on 31-3-1954 as against Rs. 11,38 crores at the end of 1938-39. The uncovered debt would amount to Rs. 366 crores at the end of 1953-54 as against the pre-war figure of Rs. 188 crores.

The statement below analyses the interest bearing obligations of the Government and the interest yielding assets held by them :—

STATE FINANCE

Details of revenue and expenditure of Part A and B States in the first three years of independence were summed up in the previous edition. The story is carried forward in the table below. The post-war trend of increasing revenue and expenditures continued; but during 1952-53 additional taxes could not be levied to the extent proposed and acute scarcity conditions made large inroads into revenues. Transfer of additional resources from the Centre to the States and large withdrawals from Revenue Reserves, however, helped to keep the deficits at a low level. The budgets for 1953-54 imposed fresh taxation of Rs. 467 lakhs in Part A States and Rs. 20.6 lakhs in Part B States. The U.P. Government alone expected to realise Rs. 330 lakhs by raising irrigation rates.

Despite a substantial increase in development expenditure, the capital account of Part A States shows no serious deterioration from year to year. This is due mainly to increased loans from the Centre and net receipts from State trading schemes in 1952-53 and 1953-54 (BE). In the case of Part B States, the first factor contributed mainly to a position of relative comfort. It is expected that with the assumption by the Reserve Bank of India of their banking and debt management operations and with the growth in their financial requirements, borrowings from the market will in future play a more important role in financing the capital requirements of Part B States.

LAND REVENUE

The principle underlying the land revenue system in the country has been from time immemorial on the basis that government is the supreme landlord and the revenue derived from land is by way of rent. The official term for the method of collection is "Settlement". These were of three types. The permanent Zamindari System was mainly found in the Bengal area, Bihar, the U.P. and parts of Madras and covered roughly an area of 120 million acres equivalent to 19 per cent. of the total agricultural area of the sub-continent. In the second group were the temporarily settled Zamindars such as Malguzari, Maharwari, Khoti, Narvadari, Bhagdari, Inami and Talukdari. These were found mostly in Madhya Pradesh, the Punjab, parts of U.P., the Bengal area and Bombay covering about 30 per cent. of the area of the country. The remaining 51 per cent. or approximately 285 million acres were under the ryotwari system covering parts of Bombay and most parts of Madras, Berar, Assam and the Punjab area.

Most Governments have abolished the Zamindari system. To Madras goes the credit of being the first State to put a measure of this kind on the statute book. The Madras Bill received the assent of the Governor-General early in April, 1949. The validity of the Zamindari Abolition Acts was contested in the various State High Courts and the Supreme Court so much so that the Constitution Act itself was amended to make such bills valid. (See under 'Government of India'.)

Land revenue was the mainstay of provincial finance till 1938-39 and still continues to be an important source of revenue.

Following the Planning Commission's recommendations, several State Governments introduced better charges in 1951 on land for which new facilities by way of irrigation were made available.

EXCISE

The excise revenue in the country can be classified into two divisions—one derived from the Central Excise Duties and belonging to the Central Government's finance and the other derived from the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, hemp drugs, toddy and opium. The latter is a provincial revenue. The budget for 1953-54 estimated the revenue at Rs. 64 crores. These duties are at present levied on motor spirit, kerosene, sugar, matches, steel ingots, tyres, tobacco, vegetable product, betel-nut, coffee, tea, cotton cloth and coal cess. In accordance with the recommendations of the Finance Commission, the States are given a share in the excise duty on matches, tobacco and vanaspathi.

The Budget of the Government of India for 1944-45 brought in force important changes in the field of Central Excises. It raised the rates of duty on unmanufactured tobacco and on cigars and cheroots and included in the Central Excise Tariff betel-nuts, coffee and tea.

A further change in respect of tobacco was proposed in the following year. Accordingly, the highest class of flue-cured tobacco in the excise tariff was sub-divided into three and subjected to a duty of Rs. 7-8, Rs. 5 or Rs. 3-8 per lb., according as it was intended for use in manufacturing cigarettes containing more than 60 per cent., more than 40 but not more than 60 per cent. or more than 20 but not more than 40 per cent. by weight of imported tobacco. In order to avoid double incidence, some of the provincial Governments reached an agreement with the Centre by which they withdrew the provincial excise duty on tobacco in lieu of a share in the proceeds from the Centre's tobacco excise. Tobacco excise has been responsible for nearly half the receipts under Central Excise Duties.

The budget proposals for 1951-52 provided for a stiff increase in tobacco duties; but the Act, as finally enacted, slashed the proposals to the tune of Rs. 6 crores. The excise duty on cloth was first introduced in January 1949.

The 1951-52 Budget also provided for an increase of 5 per cent. in the excise duties on motor spirit and kerosene so as to equalise the duties of customs and excise and for certain changes in the excise duty on tobacco.

The 1953-54 budget imposed a cess on mill-cloth to help the hand-loom industry and changed the basis of excise duty from ad valorem to specific duty at annas 3½ a yard on superfine cloth and annas 1½ on fine cloth.

The provincial excise revenue in the country is derived from the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, hemp drugs, toddy and opium. The excise revenue has been pushed into the background by the prohibition policy of the State Governments.

The following table shows the proceeds from State excise in Part A States.—

CUSTOMS

Import duties have varied from time to time according to the financial conditions of the country. Since the First World War, a greater tendency towards reliance on Customs duties has been in evidence. The policy of discriminating protection and Imperial Preference was also a factor in the inter-war period. During the Second World War export duties were used as a curb to higher exports and inflation; but following the devaluation of the Indian rupee in September 1949 export duties served to narrow the margin between the world prices and Indian prices of the country's more important exports.

The customs schedule was recast in the budget of 1916-17 and the tariffs were raised in 1921-22 to reduce the budgetary deficit. The next major change was effected on January 1, 1933 in order to give effect to the Ottawa Agreement. During 1938-39 when the world trade was small the revenue from customs duties amounted to Rs. 40.61 crores. The war-time decline in trade reduced the revenue to Rs. 25.12 crores in 1942-43. The peak was recorded in 1951-52 at Rs. 231.69 crores.

The import tariff is cast in the form of a commodity schedule with broad distinctions indicating the treatment to be accorded to various classes of articles. The general rate of import duty (now 25 per cent plus a temporary surcharge of 4th) applies to all articles other than those specially listed, certain luxury items which carry a higher rate of tax, certain items subjected to protective duties and certain other items which are declared duty-free or are subjected to a low rate of duty, in the interest of the indigenous industry or the economy of the country. Luxury items which are subjected to the heaviest rates of duty ranging from 75 to 100 per cent mainly consist of tobacco manufactures, wines and spirits, artificial silk goods, gold-plated articles, fabrics containing gold or silver thread, gold and silver thread manufactures, silver thread and wires, games and sports requisites, clocks and watches, etc. In the case of protected items of which the more important are some chemicals, matches, silk and art silk fabrics, certain manufactures of iron and steel, sewing machines, cycles and certain items of machinery and parts, batteries for motor vehicles, the rates of duty are fixed at such amounts and for such periods as are found necessary having regard to the recommendations of the Tariff Commission. Grains and pulses and a number of raw materials for industry are on the free list, while specially low but varying rates of tax cover a large number of essential items like fuel oils, batching oils, lubricants, raw films, textile machinery, etc.

Export duties cover a number of items of which jute and tea are normally the most important. In recent years, however, export duties have been used to counter inflation and to obtain for the exchequer the benefit of any large disparities between the internal and external prices of the country's main exports. The Government continue to keep under constant review the effect of such duties on the country's export trade and recently, in certain cases, duties have either been abolished or reduced to improve the competitive position of the commodities concerned in world markets. At present export duties cover jute, cotton, cotton waste, cotton cloth, manganese ore, tea, black pepper, iron and steel and certain manufactures thereof, some oils and oilseds and mercury.

The trend of revenue from customs is given below:—

Year	(Rs. in lakhs)
1948-49	126.16
1949-50	124.71
1950-51	157.15
1951-52	231.69
1952-53 (Budget) ..	165.00
1952-53 (Revised) ..	177.00
1953-54 (Budget) ..	170.00

INCOME-TAX

Income-tax is levied now not only on income as ordinarily understood but also on certain capital receipts which have been included in a special definition of "income." Tax at the rate fixed for the year of assessment is charged on the income of the "previous year." Both income-tax and super-tax are levied according to the slab system.

The more recent trend of collections is given below:—

1949-50 Accounts ..	Rs. 161.11 crores
1950-51 Accounts ..	173.22 ..
1951-52 Accounts ..	146.19 ..
1952-53 Revised ..	130.17 ..
1953-54 Budget ..	123.38 ..

While the Corporation tax accrues in its entirety to the Centre, the net proceeds of income-tax, except the tax attributable to Central emoluments and Centrally administered areas and any Central surcharge, are divisible between the Centre and the Parts A and B States. The percentage to be assigned to the States has to be prescribed by the President by order after considering the recommendations of the Finance Commission. The Finance Commission recommended the States' share to be 55 per cent as against 50 per cent hitherto. Accordingly, the percentage shares of individual States in this 55 per cent is as follows:—

Assam 2.25, Bihar 9.75, Bombay 17.50, Hyderabad 4.50, Madhya Bharat 1.75, Madhya Pradesh 5.25, Madras 15.25, Mysore 2.25, Orissa 3.50, PEPSU 0.75, Punjab 3.25, Rajasthan 3.50, Saurashtra 1.00, Travancore-Cochin 2.50, Uttar Pradesh 15.75 and West Bengal 11.25.

The Amendment Act of 1953 exempts foreign profits brought into India, grants further relief in the matter of double taxation, allows higher depreciation and further concessions to new undertakings and buildings, confers right to carry forward unadjusted loss, prescribes six new exemptions relating to miscellaneous items, and exempts accumulated income from charities. Persons leaving India are, under the law, required to obtain a tax clearance, or tax exemption certificate. In order to reduce the disparity between a foreign company operating through a wholly Indian subsidiary and a foreign company working through its branches in India, the Finance Act of 1953 reduced the super-tax rebate to a foreign company in respect of income other than dividends received from a wholly subsidiary Indian company from one anna to six ples per rupee and the rate of super-tax rebate in respect of dividends received from such subsidiaries was increased to one anna six ples per rupee.

The Income-Tax Investigation Commission submitted its report on the existing law of income-tax towards the end of 1948 and the same was published towards the end of 1949. A summary of the principal recommendations were given in a previous edition.

The total references about tax evasion to the Commission numbered 1,540 up to the end of 1951. Of these 661 were disposed of. The Commission, in its report for 1951, complains that "many cases which really deserved reference had been omitted for one reason or another while many had been referred which are comparatively insignificant." It says that the machinery of investigation has gathered momentum. The total amount of concealment reported in cases disposed of is Rs. 29.16 crores while the settlement basis is Rs. 25.41 crores. In its opinion "the scope for making concealed profits has not in any manner lessened after 1947". It therefore urges Government to organise an inquiry branch to locate cases of tax dodging.

GUIDE TO TAXES ON INCOME (1953-54)

Part I.

RATES OF INCOME-TAX

A. In the case of every individual, Hindu undivided family, unregistered firm and other association of persons, not being a case to which paragraph B or C of this Part applies—

	Rate	Surcharge
1. On the first Rs. 1,500 of total income.	Nil	Nil
2. On the next Rs. 3,500 of total income.	Nine ples in the rupee.	1/20th of the rate specified in the preceding column.
3. On the next Rs. 5,000 of total income.	One anna and nine ples in the rupee.	—Do.—
4. On the next Rs. 5,000 of total income.	Three annas in the rupee.	—Do.—
5. On the balance of total income.	Four annas in the rupee.	—Do.—

Provided that—

- (i) no income-tax shall be payable on a total income which, before deduction of the allowance, if any, for earned income, does not exceed the limit specified below;
- (ii) the income-tax payable shall in no case exceed half the amount by which the total income (before deduction of the said allowance, if any, for earned income) exceeds the said limit;
- (iii) the income-tax payable on the total income as reduced by the allowance for earned income shall not exceed either—
 - (a) a sum bearing to half the amount by which the total income (before deduction of the allowance for earned income) exceeds the said limit the same proportion as such reduced total income bears to the unreduced total income, or
 - (b) the income-tax payable on the income so reduced at the rates herein specified,—whichever is less.

The limit referred to in the above proviso shall be—

- (1) Rs. 8,400 in the case of every Hindu undivided family which satisfies as at the end of the previous year either of the following conditions, namely:—

- (a) that it has at least two members entitled to a share on partition who are not less than 18 years of age; or
- (b) that it has at least two members entitled to a share on partition neither of whom is a lineal descendant of the other and both of whom are not lineally descended from any other living member of the family; and

- (2) Rs. 4,200 in every other case.

B. In the case of every company, not being a company to which paragraph C of this Part applies—

	Rate	Surcharge
On the whole of total income	Four annas in the rupee.	1/20th of the rate specified in the preceding column.

Provided that in the case of a company which, in respect of its profits liable to tax under the Income-Tax Act for the year ending on March 31, 1954, has made the prescribed arrangements for the declaration and payment within the territory of India excluding the State of Jammu and Kashmir, of the dividends payable out of such profits, and has deducted super-tax from the dividends in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (3D) or (3E) of section 18 of that Act—

- (i) where the total income, as reduced by seven annas in the rupee and by the amount, if any, exempt from income-tax exceeds the amount of any dividends (including dividends payable at a fixed rate) declared in respect of the whole or part of the previous year for the assessment for the year ending on March 31, 1954, and no order has been made under sub-section (1) of section 23A of the Income-Tax Act, a rebate shall be allowed at the rate of one anna per rupee or the amount of such excess;
- (ii) where the amount of dividends referred to in clause (i) above exceeds the total income as reduced by seven annas in the rupee and by the amount, if any, exempt from income-tax, there shall be charged on the total income an additional income-tax equal to the sum, if any, by which the aggregate amount of income-tax actually borne by such excess (hereinafter referred to as "the excess dividend") falls short of the amount calculated at the rate of five annas per rupee on the excess dividend.

For the purposes of the above proviso, the expression "dividend" shall have the meaning assigned to it in clause (6A) of section 2 of the Income-tax Act, but any distribution included in that expression, made during the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1954, shall be deemed to be a dividend declared in respect of the whole or part of the previous year.

For the purposes of clause (ii) of the above proviso, the aggregate amount of income-tax actually borne by the excess dividend shall be determined as follows:—

- (i) the excess dividend shall be deemed to be out of the whole or such portion of the undistributed profits of one or more years immediately preceding the previous year as would be just sufficient to cover the amount of the excess dividend and as have not likewise been taken into account to cover an excess dividend of a preceding year;
- (ii) such portion of the excess dividend as is deemed to be out of the undistributed profits of each of the said years shall be deemed to have borne tax,—
 - (a) if an order has been made under sub-section (1) of section 23A of the Income-tax Act, in respect of the undistributed profits of that year, at the rate of five annas in the rupee, and
 - (b) in respect of any other year, at the rate applicable to the total income of the company, for that year reduced by the rate at which rebate, if any, was allowed on the undistributed profits.

C. In the case of every local authority and in every case in which, under the provisions of the Income-tax Act, income-tax is to be charged at the maximum rate—

	Rate	Surcharge
On the whole of total income	Four annas in the rupee.	1/20th of the rate specified in the preceding column.

Part II.
RATES OF SUPER-TAX

A. In the case of every individual, Hindu undivided family, unregistered firm and other association of persons, not being a case to which any other paragraph of this Part applies—

—	Rate	Surcharge
1. On the first Rs. 25,000 of total income.	Nil	Nil
2. On the next Rs. 15,000 of total income.	Three annas in the rupee	1/20th of the rate specified in the preceding column.
3. On the next Rs. 15,000 of total income.	Four annas in the rupee	—Do.—
4. On the next Rs. 15,000 of total income.	Six annas in the rupee	—Do.—
5. On the next Rs. 15,000 of total income.	Seven annas in the rupee	—Do.—
6. On the next Rs. 15,000 of total income.	Seven and a half annas in the rupee.	—Do.—
7. On the next Rs. 50,000 of total income.	Eight annas in the rupee	—Do.—
8. On the balance of total income.	Eight and a half annas in the rupee.	—Do.—

B. In the case of every local authority—

—	Rate	Surcharge
On the whole of total income	Two and a half annas in the rupee	Three ples in the rupee.

C. In the case of an association of persons being a co-operative society (other than the Sankatta Saltownera' Society in the State of Bombay) for the time being registered under the Co-operative Societies Act of 1912, or under any law of a State governing the registration of co-operative societies—

—	Rate	Surcharge
1. On the first Rs. 25,000 of total income.	Nil	Nil
2. On the balance of total income	Two and a half annas in the rupee	Three ples in the rupee.

D. In the case of every company—

—	Rate
On the whole of total income	Four and three-quarter annas in the rupee.

Provided that—

(i) a rebate at the rate of three annas per rupee of the total income shall be allowed in the case of any company which—

(a) in respect of its profits liable to tax under the Income-tax Act for the year ending on the 31st day of March 1954, has made the prescribed arrangements for the declaration and payment in the territory of India excluding the State of Jammu and Kashmir of the dividend payable out of such profits and for the deduction of super-tax from dividends in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (3D) or (3E) of section 18 of that Act, and

(b) is a public company with total income not exceeding Rs. 25,000;

(ii) a rebate at the rate of two annas per rupee of the total income shall be allowed in the case of any company which satisfies condition (a), but not condition (b), of the preceding clause; and

(iii) a rebate at the rate of one anna six ples per rupee on so much of the total income as consists of dividends from a subsidiary Indian company, and a rebate at the rate of six ples per rupee on any other income included in the total income shall be allowed in the case of any company which, not being entitled to a rebate under the preceding clauses is—

(a) a public company the shares of which were offered for sale in a recognised stock exchange at any time during the previous year, or

(b) a company all of whose shares were held at the end of the previous year by one or more such public companies as aforesaid:

Provided further that the super-tax payable by a company the total income of which exceeds Rs. 25,000 shall not exceed the aggregate of—

- (a) the super-tax which would have been payable by the company if its total income had been Rs. 25,000, and
(b) half the amount by which its total income exceeds Rs. 25,000.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this paragraph of this Part, a company shall be deemed to be a public company only if it is neither a private company within the meaning of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, nor a company in which shares carrying more than fifty per cent. of the total voting power were, at any time during the previous year, held or controlled by less than six persons.

ESTATE DUTY

The question of levying an estate duty had been before the Government of India since 1946 when a bill was first introduced. This as well as the one introduced in 1948 lapsed. In August 1952, a third bill was introduced* with the object of imposing an estate duty on property passing or deemed to pass on the death of a person. The underlying idea is to rectify to a large extent unequal distribution of wealth and to assist the States towards financing their development schemes. The Bill was passed in Parliament in September 1953.

The main features of the Bill are that the levy of duty depends on the domicile of the deceased, the power to assess duty is vested in the Controller of Estate Duty, and the scale of duties is stipulated in the law itself. In Bombay, Madhya Pradesh, Orissa, Uttar Pradesh, Hyderabad, Rajasthan, Punjab, Madhya Bharat and Saurashtra and all Part C States the duty is leviable on agricultural land as well. Like the Income-tax law, this legislation also provides for exemption limits and defines what items are eligible for exemption and to what extent.

The minimum exemption limit provided in the Bill is Rs. 50,000 in respect of property which consists of an interest in the joint family property of a Hindu family governed by the Mitakshara Marumakkattayam or Aliyasana Law and Rs. 100,000 in respect of all other property. The rates of duty are given below :—

Principal Value of Estate.	Rate of Duty.
In the case of Joint Hindu Family property governed by Mitakshara, etc., law.
On the first Rs. 50,000	Nil
On the next Rs. 50,000	5%
On the next Rs. 50,000	7½%
On the next Rs. 50,000	10%
On the next Rs. 1 lakh	12½%
On the next Rs. 2 lakhs	15%
On the next Rs. 5 lakhs	20%
On the next Rs. 10 lakhs	25%
On the next Rs. 10 lakhs	30%
On the next Rs. 20 lakhs	35%
On the balance	40%
In the case of property of any other kind :
On the first Rs. 1 lakh	Nil
On the next Rs. 50,000	7½%
On the next Rs. 50,000	10%
On the next Rs. 1 lakh	12½%
On the next Rs. 2 lakhs	15%
On the next Rs. 5 lakhs	20%
On the next Rs. 10 lakhs	25%
On the next Rs. 10 lakhs	30%
On the next Rs. 20 lakhs	35%
On the balance	40%
In the case of shares held by a deceased member in any such company referred to in sub-section (1) of Section 81.
If the principal value of the shares does not exceed Rs. 5,000	Nil
If the principal value of the shares exceeds Rs. 5,000	7½%

SALES TAX

Sales tax is an alternative source of revenue consequent on the introduction of prohibition in the States. It is an important feature of the provincial revenues throughout the country. In West Bengal and Bihar the single-point sales tax has been favoured. Bombay switched over to the multi-point sales tax in 1953-54 but contemplates to have two-point sales tax. A broad idea of the receipts from sales tax can be had from the following table :—

—	Receipts in lakhs of Rs.
	1951-52 (Accounts)	1952-54 (Budget)
Madras	15.59	14.00
Bombay	11.88	14.00
Madhya Pradesh	2.32	2.12
Uttar Pradesh	4.80	5.24
Bihar	4.09	2.70
Assam	76	71
Orissa	1.11	1.00
Punjab	1.68	1.78
West Bengal	5.62	5.58

* The Estate Duty Act, 1953 came into force on Oct. 15, 1953.

POST-WAR REVIEW

The war meant a change to Indian finance. To understand the implications of the change it may be noted, that (a) the aggregate war expenditure in undivided India, including recoverable war expenditure during the period 1939-40 to 1945-46 came to Rs. 3,484 crores, India's share being Rs. 1,744 crores or about 50 per cent and (b) that the overall Governmental India's public revenue, expenditure and debt outlay (war and civil expenditure) amounted to Rs. 8,996 crores of which Rs. 1,462 crores or 37 per cent was met out of revenue, the balance being partly reflected in the accumulation of sterling balances and partly in the addition to India's public debt which increased by Rs. 1,077 crores.

Following the end of the war, the budget for 1946-47 was designed to face the impact of a steep fall in defence expenditure. The revenue was placed at Rs. 311.65 crores and expenditure at Rs. 355.71 crores. On the other hand, the budget for the following year was aimed at social objectives. Immediately after the partition, the emphasis was again shifted to incentives. The keynote of the budget for 1949-50 was to check inflation and to allay the fears of business men and investors.

POST-INDEPENDENCE FINANCE

The Constitution of India declaring India a Sovereign Republic was made effective from January 26, 1950. It provides that the annual financial statement to be submitted to Parliament will show separately (1) expenditure charged upon the Consolidated Fund of India and (2) other expenditure proposed to be made from the same Fund and will distinguish expenditure on revenue account from other expenditure. All revenues received by the Government of India and all loans raised by that Government and all moneys received in payment of loans will constitute the Consolidated Fund of India. All other public moneys received shall be credited to the public account. Parliament may establish a Contingency Fund which will be at the disposal of the President for making advances for meeting unforeseen expenditure pending its authorisation by Parliament.

The financial provisions in the Constitution divide the field of taxation between the Union and States.* The Union List covers (1) taxes on income other than agricultural income, (2) customs duties, (3) duties of excise on tobacco and other goods produced in India except alcoholic liquors, opium, Indian hemp and other narcotic drugs and narcotics but including medicinal and toilet preparations containing alcohol, (4) corporation tax, (5) taxes on the capital value of the assets, exclusive of agricultural land, of individuals and companies and on the capital of companies, (6) estate duty on property other than agricultural land, (7) duties in respect of succession to property other than agricultural land, (8) terminal taxes, (9) taxes other than stamp duties on transactions on stock exchanges and futures markets, (10) rates of stamp duty on bills of exchange, cheques, promissory notes, bills of lading, letters of credit, insurance policies, transfer of shares, debentures, proxies and receipts, and (11) taxes on the sale or purchase of newspapers and on advertisements published therein.

The financial provisions of the Constitution of India closely follow the Government of India Act, 1935. It enumerates in three separate lists the Union, State and Concurrent subjects of legislation. Residuary powers of legislation vest in the Union Parliament. The items in the respective lists are broadly the same as under the Government of India Act, 1935. There are some changes in the division of tax resources between the Union and the States. Article 286 of the Constitution restricts the powers of the States in regard to sales tax with a view to ensuring uniformity in the principles governing the tax which, however, will be levied and administered by the States. A State Government cannot impose a tax on the sale or purchase of goods outside the State or if it concerns India's foreign trade or inter-State trade or if the goods in question are declared by Parliament to be essential to the life of the community. Taxation on the sale or purchase of newspapers and of advertisements published in them is included among taxes levied and collected by the Union but the proceeds will be assigned to the States. No changes are made in the sharing of income-tax proceeds. A prescribed percentage of the net proceeds from taxes on income other than agricultural income (exclusive of the corporation tax, taxes payable in respect of Union emoluments and proceeds attributable to Part C States) shall be assigned to the States in which they are levied. The limit of the total amount of the tax on professions, trades, callings and employments payable by any one person to a State or to a local authority is raised from Rs. 50 to Rs. 250 per annum. The provision that, if Parliament by law so provides, the whole or any part of the net proceeds of an excise duty levied and collected by the Union may be paid over to the States, is retained. The Union retains the power to levy surcharges on certain taxes for purposes of the Union.

The jute-growing States are no longer entitled to a specified share of the net proceeds of the export duty on jute or jute products. Under Article 273 of the Constitution, the jute duty is assigned wholly to the Centre; the States of West Bengal, Assam, Bihar and Orissa will receive, however, grants-in-aid, so long as the jute export duty is levied or for a period of 10 years, whichever is earlier. As under Section 142 of the Government of India Act, 1935, Article 275 of the Constitution of India provides for general grants-in-aid to such States as Parliament may determine to be in need of assistance; the amount of the aid may vary as between States and from year to year. The Article provides for grants-in-aid to States in respect of approved schemes of development for promoting the welfare of Scheduled Tribes or for raising the level of administration of the Scheduled Areas and for grants-in-aid to Assam of sums equivalent to (1) the average excess of expenditure over revenues during the two years immediately preceding the commencement of the Constitution in respect of the administration of (specified) tribal areas, and (2) the costs of such schemes of development as may be undertaken by that State, with the approval of the Government of India, for raising the level of administration of the said areas to that of the administration of the rest of the areas of the State.

The provisions relating to borrowing remain unaltered. The executive power of the Union extends to borrowing upon the security of the Consolidated Fund of India within such limits, if any, as may be fixed by Parliament and the giving of guarantees within such limits as may be fixed. A State can borrow within the territory of India on the security of the Consolidated Fund of the State. The Government of India may make loans to any State or give guarantees in respect of loans raised by a State. Prior consent of the Government of India is necessary for a State to raise a loan, if there is still outstanding any part of a loan made to it by the Government of India or in respect of which a guarantee has been given by the Government of India. In giving such consent, the Government of India may impose any conditions they may deem necessary.

INDIAN STATES' FINANCE

The Government of India appointed on October 22, 1948 a Committee of experts to inquire into the finances of Indian States and Unions of States with a view to facilitating their financial integration. The Committee was composed of Sir V. T. Krishnamachari, Chairman, Mr. S. K. Patil and Mr. N. Dandekar. The summary of its recommendations, which were accepted by Government is given in the previous edition.

As a result of the Government of Part C States Act, 1951, Coorg, Himachal Pradesh, Vindhya Pradesh, Delhi, Bhopal and Ajmer have had their own legislatures from April 1952. Each of the States consequently has a Consolidated Fund of its own into which the revenues and receipts received in that State and belonging to it are paid and from which the expenditure of the State is met. In respect of Delhi State, however, the Act makes a reservation in respect of police, public order and lands and buildings in Delhi and New Delhi the receipts in respect of which as well as expenditure will still be included in the Central budget.

These States, however, have not been placed in the same autonomous position in regard to their finances as Part A or Part B States; their balances have not been separated from those of the Central Government and their capital requirements and the debt, deposit and remittance transactions are still included in the Central budget. A grant-in-aid is given, where necessary, to these States for balancing their budgets and keeping an adequate working balance in their Consolidated Funds. As the provisions of Part XII of the Constitution do not apply to Part C States, they do not receive any share of the net proceeds of income-tax or other divisible heads of the Central revenue like the Part A and the Part B States.

In April 1953 the Government of India appointed a Taxation Inquiry Commission with Dr. John Matthai as Chairman. The terms of reference, settled in consultation with the State Governments, are: (1) to examine the incidence of Central, State and Local taxation on various classes of people and in different States; (2) to examine the suitability of the present system of taxation—Central, State and Local—with reference to (a) the development programme of the country and the resources required for it and (b) the objective of reducing inequalities of income and wealth; (3) to examine the effects of the structure and level of taxation of income on capital formation and maintenance and development of productive enterprise; (4) to examine the use of taxation as a fiscal instrument in dealing with inflationary or deflationary situations; (5) to consider other relevant matters; and (6) to make recommendation in particular with regard to (a) modifications required in the present system of taxation and (b) fresh avenues of taxation.

REPORT OF THE FINANCE COMMISSION*

THE Finance Commission consisting of Mr. K. C. Neogy (Chairman), Mr. V. P. Menon, Mr. Justice R. Kaushalendra Rao, Dr. B. K. Madan, and Mr. M. V. Rangachary (member-secretary) was set up by the President by an order dated 22nd Nov., 1951. The report was presented to the House of the People on 13th Feb., 1953.

The Chairman assumed office on 30th Nov., 1951. Mr. V. P. Menon, resigned his office on 18th Feb., 1952 and the President appointed Mr. V. L. Mehta in his place.

Pending final recommendations the Commission proposed on 10th Dec., 1951 that (1) in regard to the States' share of income-tax or of grants the position existing in 1951-52 should be maintained, (2) the decisions taken on the final recommendations should have effect from the year 1952-53, and (3) grants made to Part A States into which former Indian States territory is merged under sub-clause (1)(b) of Article 278 of the Constitution might also be continued during 1952-53 but treated as provisional and readjusted in the light of final recommendations.

The final recommendations are effective for a period of five years, ending 31st March, 1957. They are summarized as follows:

1. The percentage of net proceeds of income-tax to be allocated to States should be raised from 50 per cent to 55 per cent.

2. The proceeds of the income-tax assigned to the States should be distributed as follows in percentage: Assam 2.25, Bihar 9.75, Bombay 17.50, Hyderabad 4.50, Madhya Bharat 1.75, Madhya Pradesh 5.25, Madras 15.25, Mysore 2.25, Orissa 3.50, PEPsU 0.75, Punjab 3.25, Rajasthan 3.50, Saurashtra 1.00, Travancore-Cochin 2.50, Uttar Pradesh 15.75, West Bengal 11.25.

3. The share of the proceeds of the income-tax of Part C States should be raised from one per cent to two and three-quarters per cent.

4. Forty per cent of the net proceeds of the duties on tobacco (including cigarettes, cigars, etc.), matches and vegetable products should be allocated to the States (in proportion to the population) and distributed as follows in percentage: Assam 2.61, Bihar 11.60, Bombay 10.37, Hyderabad 5.39, Madhya Bharat 2.29, Madhya Pradesh 6.13, Madras 16.44, Mysore 2.62, Orissa 4.22, PEPsU 1.00, Punjab 3.66, Rajasthan 4.41, Saurashtra 1.19, Travancore-Cochin 2.68, Uttar Pradesh 18.23, West Bengal 7.16.

5. The grants-in-aid payable to the jute-growing States with effect from 1952-53 are as follows: West Bengal Rs. 150 lakhs, Bihar Rs. 75 lakhs, Assam Rs. 75 lakhs, Orissa Rs. 15 lakhs.

6. As regards grants-in-aid to States which may be in need of assistance on any account:

(a) The following States do not need any assistance: Madras, Uttar Pradesh, Bihar, Madhya Pradesh, Hyderabad, Rajasthan, Madhya Bharat and PEPsU.

(b) Bombay, West Bengal, Orissa and Saurashtra are marginal cases. Bombay has a well developed economy, a large budget and resilient resources. There is also no restriction now in taxing tobacco and the State is free to raise additional revenue from this source. No grant-in-aid is therefore necessary.

West Bengal: A grant-in-aid of Rs. 80 lakhs a year because of the result of partition and the problem of refugees.

Orissa: Rs. 75 lakhs, because of the merged areas, the existence of Scheduled Tribes, backward classes.

Saurashtra: Rs. 40 lakhs, because of the size of the State, and its budget.

(c) Punjab: Rs. 125 lakhs because of the law and order problem arising from partition.

(d) Assam: Rupees One crore because of special difficulties arising from partition.

In the case of West Bengal, Assam and Punjab it is assumed that the expenditure on displaced persons will continue to be borne mainly by the Centre.

(e) Mysore: Rs. 40 lakhs because of limited resources.

(f) Travancore-Cochin: Rs. 45 lakhs because of limited resources.

7. In respect of grants-in-aid for primary education the following sums should be distributed among eight States in proportion to the number of children of school-going age not attending school at present

(In lakhs of rupees)

8. The grants now being paid to the States of Bombay, Madhya Pradesh and Madras for refraining from the taxation of tobacco should be discontinued with effect from the 1st April, 1953.

9. The "revenue gap grants" now being paid to the States of Bihar, Bombay, Madhya Pradesh and West Bengal in respect of the "merged areas" should be discontinued with effect from the 1st April, 1952.

10. The Commission made two further recommendations: one relating to the setting up of a small organisation to study State finances and the other for improving the available statistics in regard to income-tax. This organisation, the Commission suggests, should preferably be a part of the Secretariat of the President and make a continuous study of the finances of the State Governments so that whenever future Finance Commissions are constituted they will have sufficient material available to them at the very commencement of their inquiry. This organisation should work in close liaison with the Finance Ministry.

The tables below compare what each State might on an average expect to receive under the Commission's recommendations (second table), with the corresponding sums Part A States received during the three years ending 1951-52, and Part B States during the two years ending 1951-52 (first table):

* As the share of the divisible taxes of these States is expected to be less than the Guaranteed Revenue Gap Grants the States will receive the latter. The balance of these grants after allowing for the share of these divisible taxes is shown in this column.

Note 1. Assam and the other States with Scheduled Areas and Scheduled Tribes will in addition receive grants under the two provisos to Article 275(1) of the Constitution. Assam will also receive Rs. 40 lakhs under sub-clause (a) of the Second proviso to Article 275(1).

Note 2. In addition to the share of revenues under the Commission's scheme the States will also receive the outstanding arrears of their share of income-tax in respect of the period before the 1st April 1952. The budget for 1952-53 assumes that these arrears will be Rs. 5 crores and, if the actual amount is of this order, Madras will receive Rs. 87 lakhs, Bombay Rs. 105 lakhs, West Bengal Rs. 68 lakhs, Uttar Pradesh Rs. 90 lakhs, Punjab Rs. 27 lakhs, Bihar Rs. 63 lakhs, Madhya Pradesh Rs. 30 lakhs, Assam Rs. 15 lakhs and Orissa Rs. 15 lakhs.

The Commission kept three main considerations in view, first, the additional transfer of resources from the Centre must be such as the Centre could bear without undue strain on its resources, taking into account its responsibility for such vital matters as the defence of the country and the stability of its economy; second, the principles for the distribution of grants-in-aid must be uniformly applied to all the States; and last, the scheme of distribution should attempt to lessen inequalities between States.

The main considerations in determining the distribution of income-tax were (a) general population, and (b) contribution.

GADGIL COMMITTEE

A Committee of Enquiry consisting of Mr. N. V. Gadgil (Chairman), Mr. S. V. Ramamurthy and Mr. B. C. Ghose was appointed by a resolution of the Government of India dated April 28, 1953 to enquire into any special assistance that Part B States might need.

The findings of this Committee were made public on December 24, 1953.

The recommendations are as follows:

Assistance should take the form of an outright grant of Rs. 4 crores out of the Central assistance envisaged in the Five-Year Plan of these States, in addition to whatever grants it has already been decided to give, and an ad hoc grant of Rs. 4 crores to be allotted during the next two years.

The ad hoc grant is to be spent on administrative buildings and for providing link roads and public health services in the rural areas.

In order to strengthen the administrative machinery of these State Governments, the Committee has suggested that each of them may be provided with two senior officers, one specially competent to deal with general administration and the other with development, so that their services may be utilised as Chief Secretary and Development Commissioner respectively.

It is also suggested that, in the initial stages of planning and development in each of these States, a Planning and Development Board may be entrusted with the planning and implementation of the State plans.

The outright grant of Rs. 4 crores recommended by the Committee is to be distributed as follows:

Rajasthan, Rs. 1,50,00,000; Saurashtra and Madhya Bharat, Rs. 1,00,00,000 each; and PEPSU, Rs. 50,00,000.

The additional sum of Rs. 4 crores recommended as an ad hoc grant is to be distributed in the following proportion:

Rajasthan, Rs. 1,50,00,000; Madhya Bharat, Rs. 1,00,00,000; Saurashtra, Rs. 90,00,000 and PEPSU, Rs. 60,00,000.

The Government of India has decided to accept the financial recommendations of the Committee on the condition that the State Governments, on their part, accept and implement the recommendations on administrative matters.

The following table shows the financial assistance given by the Central Government during the years 1950 to 1952. The total figure (Rs. in lakhs) includes grant-in-aid, loan, share of income tax or revenue gap grant whichever is greater.

INDUSTRIAL STRUCTURE

INDUSTRIAL production in India has been maintaining an upward trend in many directions since independence in August 1947.

The interim index of industrial production, with 1946 as the base, advanced from 97.2 in 1947 to 108.4 in 1948, slightly receded to 106.1 in the following year and further to 105.0 in 1950 mainly because of the heavy fall in the output of cotton textiles, but it advanced sharply to 117.2 in 1951. In 1952 it stood at 128.7.

An elaborate census of Indian manufactures covering 29 groups of industries has been in progress since 1949. The industries covered by the census are wheat flour, rice milling, biscuit making, fruit and vegetable processing, sugar, distilleries and breweries, starch, vegetable oils, paints and varnishes, soap, tanning, cement, glassware, ceramics, plywood, paper and paperboard, matches, cotton textiles, woollen textiles, jute textiles, chemicals, drugs and pharmaceuticals, non-ferrous metals, iron and steel, bicycles, sewing machines, producer gas plants, electric pumps, electric fans and general and electrical engineering.

The latest report covers these industries for 1950. The following picture has emerged :—

	1949	1950
No. of Factories	6,300	6,328
Fixed Capital (Rs. Crores) .	228	235
No. of emp. 'ees (million) .	1.7	1.527
Wages and Salaries (Rs. Crores)	178	162
Materials Consumed (Rs. Crores)	704	719.6
Value of Products (Rs. Crores)	964	989.7
Value added by manufacture (Rs. Crores) .	260	270

Industries have been further divided into durable and non-durable ones. The following industries belong to the former class : iron and steel, sewing machines, electric lamps, electric fans, general and electrical engineering, bicycles, non-ferrous metals, ply-wood and tea-chests, cement, glass and glassware and ceramics. The structure of these types of industrial units was as follows in 1950 :—

	Durable.	Non-Durable.
Number of factories .. .	2,311	4,012
Fixed capital (Rs. crores) .	72	163.8
No. of employees (lakhs) ..	3.15	12.12
Wages, salaries, etc. (Rs. crores) ..	39.3	123.0
Value of materials consumed .	102.9	616.6
Value of products .. .	167.8	822.2
Value added to manufacture ..	64.9	205.3

INDUSTRIAL POLICY

On April 6, 1948 the Government of India outlined their industrial policy in a resolution which inter alia stated :—

(1) The manufacture of arms and ammunition, the production and control of atomic energy, and the ownership and management of railway transport should be the exclusive monopoly of the Central Government.

(2) The State will be responsible for the establishment of new undertakings in the field of coal, iron and steel, aircraft manufacture, ship-building, manufacture of telephone, telegraph and wireless apparatus excluding radio receiving sets and mineral oils. Existing undertakings will be allowed to develop for a period of ten years and Government will give all assistance for such development. At the end of the period their position will be reviewed.

(3) Control by the State over the generation and distribution of electric power will continue.

(4) Rest of the industries will normally be open to private enterprise with varying degrees of control over location.

(5) The Central Government would investigate the extent to, and the manner in which cottage and small scale industries could be co-ordinated and integrated with large scale industries.

Towards the end of 1951 Parliament passed the Industries (Development and Regulation) Bill. The Act is now in force. The Act applies to 37 industries listed in the First Schedule to the Act.

The most important provision is the establishment of Development Councils which will deal with the problem of productivity and service to the community. On the top will be the Central Advisory Council for Industries which will advise Government on rules, directions to industrial undertakings and taking over the management of industrial concerns.

The Act provides for the registration of existing industrial undertakings and licensing of new ones.

It also empowers Government to investigate into the causes of any possible fall in the production of any concern or any deterioration in the quality of the product, and to take action.

The Act contains provisions for direct control by the Central Government in certain cases.

In the middle of 1952 a Central Advisory Council of Industries was established, consisting of 27 representatives of industry, labour, consumers and primary producers pertaining to the scheduled industries.

Upto November 1, 1952, which was the last date prescribed for registration under the Act, 3,562 undertakings had applied for registration. Of these 2,209 were found to be eligible for registration.

A Licensing Committee has also been set up consisting of representatives of the Ministries of Commerce and Industry, Finance, Railways, Production and of the Planning Commission to examine application for licences. Out of 125 applications for licences received in 1952, 81 had been considered by the Committee.

There was only one case up to 1953 Aug. in which Government ordered an investigation into the circumstances of an undertaking.

The scope of the Act was enlarged in 1953.

REGULATED INDUSTRIES

The Industries (Development and Regulation) Bill which received the assent of the President on Oct. 31, 1951 and came into force on May 8, 1952 applies to the following 37 industries :

Aircraft ; arms and ammunition ; automobiles including tractors ; agricultural implements ; batteries, dry cells and storage ; bicycles ; coal, coke and their derivatives ; cement ; electric lamps and fans ; electric motors ; glass and ceramics ; heavy chemicals including fertilizers ; heavy machinery including ball and roller bearing, gear wheels, steam generator equipment ; hurricane lanterns ; iron and steel ; internal combustion engines ; locomotives and rolling stock ; leather and leather goods ; mathematical and scientific instruments ; motor and aviation fuel, kerosene, crude oils and synthetic oils ; machine tools ; machinery and equipment for the generation, transmission and distribution of electric energy ; non-ferrous metals including alloys ; paper including newsprint and paper board ; pharmaceuticals and drugs ; power and industrial alcohol ; power-driven pumps ; rubber goods ; radio receivers ; ships and other vessels propelled by mechanical power ; sugar ; sewing and knitting machines ; small tools and hand tools ; telephones, telegraph apparatus and wireless communication apparatus ; textiles made wholly or partly by cotton and jute ; textiles made of wool ; vanaspathi and vegetable oils.

FIVE-YEAR PLAN

The Five-Year Plan provides for completion of the various industrial projects already under implementation by the Central Government or by the State Governments.

In addition, the Central Government has a special responsibility for establishing certain defence industries.

Over the five-year period the total expenditure on the projects in the public sector amounts to Rs. 94 crores exclusive of the lump sum provision of Rs 50 crores for basic industries and transport.

The bulk of it—Rs. 83 crores—is in respect of projects directly under the Centre.

The major project is the one for iron and steel with an estimated capacity of 800,000 tons of pig iron and 250,000 tons of steel.

Others are ship building, machine tool manufacture, fertilisers at Sindri, locomotives, railway coaches, penicillin, national instruments manufacture, telephone industries, cables, salt works rare earth factory, D.D.T., and housing factory.

The State Government's projects cover (1) Mysore Iron and Steel Works, (2) a Cement factory in Uttar Pradesh, (3) NEPA Mills in Madhy-Pradesh, (4) Sursilk Ltd. in Hyderabad for spinning art silk yarn, (5) Sirpur Paper mills in Hyderabad, (6) Precision instruments factory in Uttar Pradesh, and (7) Superphosphates factory in Bihar.

In the private sector the total capital investment considered necessary for the purpose is estimated at Rs. 233 crores. Four-fifths of this would be in respect of capital goods and producer goods industries.

Roughly out of the total investment on industries in both the sectors, 26 per cent is to go into the metallurgical industries, one-fifth into petroleum refining, 16 per cent into engineering industries and 8 per cent into the manufacture of heavy chemicals, fertilisers and pharmaceuticals. Among the rest, mention may be made of textile industries (6%), cement (5%), and paperboard and news print (4%).

PRODUCTION AND PRICES

IN 1952 there was a recession in world prices of almost all agricultural commodities. In India there was an appreciable increase in the production of many industrial and agricultural commodities.

Besides the normal G. M. F. schemes, an accelerated programme of minor irrigation works estimated to cost Rs. 10 crores per year was taken up. The programmes for the development of cotton and jute made satisfactory progress. The production of sugarcane recorded a sizeable increase from 4.9 million tons in 1948-49 to 5.9 million tons in 1951-52 in terms of gur.

The following was the trend of production of primary commodities from 1949 :—

INDUSTRIAL PRODUCTION, 1952

Partly in sympathy with world trends and partly due to the working of internal forces, something like a recession set in within the country in the second quarter of 1952. To prevent the fall in industrial production controls were relaxed in several directions. The restriction on imports was so planned as to give the maximum scope to the indigenous producer. Efforts to achieve an equitable distribution of scarce raw materials, indigenous or imported, were continued.

As a result, in spite of the setback experienced by particular industries, the general index of industrial production at 128.7 in 1952 was higher than in any other year since the war and showed a substantial increase over the indices for 1951 (117.2) and 1950 (106.0). A particularly favourable feature of this rise was that the highest monthly index (137.8) was recorded at the end of 1952 in December showing a rising tendency and even the minimum (121.5) in June was higher than the average of the previous year.

The indices for the first three months of 1953 were 131.2 for January, 136.0 for February and 129.9 for March.

The position of particular industries is discussed in the relevant chapters. It may, however, be noted that the most significant increase in production was in the cotton textile industry. The output in 1952 was a record one providing a 25 per cent increase in the per capita supply of cloth over 1951. The production of steel and cement was higher than in the previous year.

Significant increases were also noted under sugar, bicycles, sewing machines, electric lamps, plywood, jute goods and chemicals, the increases in percentage over 1951 being 34, 71.1, 12.5, 33.9, 24.9, 8.8 and 48.3 respectively.

RAW MATERIALS, 1952

During the year ended June 1950 efforts were continued to increase food production and about one million acres of land were reclaimed under mechanical cultivation. The total of wells and tanks newly constructed or repaired came respectively to 97,000 and 4,000, while the minor irrigation projects completed and waterlifting appliances installed numbered 14,000 and 17,000 respectively. The additional production is estimated at 7.9 lakh tons in 1948-49 and 9.5 lakh tons in 1949-50. The target for additional food output for 1950-51 was fixed at 1.7 million tons and Rs. 23.34 crores were provided for the purpose; but the actuals fell short of the target and Government appointed a committee early in 1952 to go into the question of the grow-more food campaign.

Foodgrains production in 1940-50 season increased by 1.29 million tons to 45.55 million tons in spite of the damage caused to the kharif and rabi crops by adverse season and natural calamities. The production of raw sugar rose to 4.94 million tons and of coffee to 17,236 tons. During 1950-51 season the outturn of the crops once again suffered and the loss of foodgrains was to the tune of 5.5 million tons.

Following the partition, India's cotton and jute industries continued to experience difficulties in obtaining adequate supplies of raw cotton and raw jute and efforts to reduce the country's dependence on outside supplies were initiated in 1949-50 and continued in the following years. In order to provide additional incentive to the cotton growers, the ceiling prices for cotton were raised with Jarilla stepped up from Rs. 620 to Rs. 770 and further to Rs. 820. As a result, an additional output of four lakh bales of cotton was secured bringing the total production in 1950-51 to 33 lakh bales. A three-year programme was initiated for raw jute with the result that the production was stepped up from 30.89 lakh bales in 1949-50 to 32.92 lakh bales in the following year and to 46 lakh bales in 1951-52. Production of five major oil-seeds rose from 4.5 million tons in 1948-49 to 5.1 million tons in 1949-50 mainly because of the price incentive.

The broad picture* of industrial production is given below :—

production, the official index of industrial production for 1950 stood at 105.2 as compared with 106.3 in the preceding year and 108.9 in 1948. The increase was particularly marked in the output of cement, steel, salt, diesel engines and electrical goods industries.

The year 1951 was a record thanks to the improvement in the supplies of raw materials and a more realistic price basis. Special efforts were made by Government to procure raw materials supplies through the International Materials Conference. The most outstanding development was the abolition of the control over raw jute and jute goods prices. The general index of industrial production, with 1946 as the basis, touched the spectacularly high level of 117.2. Coal output touched a new high under the stimulus of export inquiry; cotton manufacture rose by 10 per cent; paper, sugar, and chemicals showed an all round rise; and for the first time self-sufficiency was not only achieved in respect of salt but it was revealed that India could start exporting it in small quantities. The only snag was that in several newly started industries, the output still lagged considerably behind the installed capacity. Among the new lines of manufactures may be mentioned linoleum, automatic looms, carding engines and aluminium powder.

A REVIEW 1950-52

The rising trend in industrial production since 1948 was on the whole well maintained in 1950 with most of the industries recording appreciable increases. The cotton and jute textiles and sugar industries were, however, notable exceptions, the first due to shortage of raw materials and since these had a large weightage in the computation of the general index of industrial

CENSUS OF MANUFACTURES

The following census of some selected manufactures for 1950 may be found useful.

The second column shows the number of factories reporting, the third the fixed capital in Rs. lakhs, the fourth the value of the products in Rs. lakhs, the fifth the value added by manufacture in Rs. lakhs:

PRICES IN 1952-53

Food articles declined by 10 per cent, semi-manufactures by 8 per cent, manufactures by 8 per cent and miscellaneous by 16 per cent.

The average for cereals fell by 7 per cent to 444 over the year; but wheat moved up almost without interruption. Jowar, after rising from 216 in April to 226 in July, fell to 177 in October and closed the year at 207. Pulses, after a decline from 436 in April to 412 in May, advanced steadily reaching the highest level of 611 in February and closing at 507.

Other food articles declined by 19 per cent to 223 mainly as a result of lower prices of tea, sugar and gur. Coffee was, however, dearer.

The average for fibres fell by 32 per cent to 423 during the year. Cotton, which steeply declined to 367 in March 1952, recovered steadily to 466 in September and wound up the year at 446. Raw jute witnessed almost a continuous decline touching the bottom at 364 at the close of the year. Raw silk and wool opened at 364 and 307 and closed at 500 and 595 respectively.

Minerals advanced by 4 per cent owing to higher export prices of manganese and iron ores; but other items registered a heavy fall of 31 per cent to 333 as a result of a further fall in raw hides and lac. Rubber was placed higher under Government orders with effect from October 27.

Among semi-manufactures leather improved to 437 at the close of the year after touching the lowest level of 257 in April. The average for the year was, however, 9 per cent lower at 367 than the preceding year's average. The price of mineral oils rose; but vegetable oils averaging 446 showed a fall of 29 per cent over 1951-52. Cotton yarn moved down from 498 to 446 and the yearly average was 9 per cent below the preceding year's average. Metals rose by 8 per cent because of the rise in the prices of pig iron and semis. Copper was firm but zinc ruled weak. Timber moved down rather sharply from 234 at the beginning of the year to 179 at the close.

A fall of 10 per cent was noted under textiles. Jute manufactures moved down from 548 in April 1952 to 419 in August and, after a temporary rise in the following two months, closed at 376. Cotton manufactures were down by 2 per cent over 1951-52 at 400. Rayon and silk ruled firm in the first quarter, but the subsequent trend was downward. The average for woollen manufactures was lower at 323 as compared with 394 in 1951-52. The average for metal products, on the other hand, appreciated by 13 per cent to 330 mainly on account of higher steel prices.

The miscellaneous group showed a fall of 15 per cent to 614. Vanaspathi prices were reduced and eventually decontrolled in June 1952. Pepper black advanced from 2,077 in April 1952 to 3,284 in October but had a set-back in the following two months after which prices again moved up. Chillies, turmeric and cummin were placed lower. After the March slump, cashewnuts more than regained the ground but from October they displayed weakness, the index standing at 554 at the close as compared with 562 in March 1952. Tobacco leaf stood at 818 at the close against 902 at the beginning of April 1952.

During 1952-53 Government adapted their price control policy to the changing conditions of demand and supply. Price controls were either relaxed or removed on a number of consumer goods. On the other hand, price increases were permitted in respect of pig iron, steel and rubber. The floor prices of cotton were also raised by Rs. 55.

On September 25, 1952 the Government removed the price and distribution controls over sugar of the 1952-53 season and also reduced the minimum price of sugarcane. With effect from May 1, 1952 the price of imported milo was reduced by Rs. 2 to Rs. 13 per maund and that of imported wheat by a rupee to Rs. 17-8 per maund as from March 1, 1953.

The following table gives the price trend:

REVIEW OF PRICES FROM 1939

The outbreak of the Second World War in September 1939 introduced a new chapter in the history of Indian commodity prices. After an initial rise, the prices received a sharp setback following the loss of export markets; but the entry of Japan into the war made heavy calls on India's resources from the Allies and the resultant rise in note circulation aggravated inflationary pressures and the pace of the rise. The index number of wholesale prices, with the week ended August 19, 1939 equal to 100, rose to 125.6 in 1939-40, but receded in the following year by 10.8 to 114.8. Since then it advanced by 19 per cent to 137.0 in 1941-42, further by 25 per cent to 171.0 in 1942-43 and recorded the highest rise of 38 per cent in any one year during 1943-44 when it touched 236.4. During 1944-45 the price index advanced by only 7.8 to 244.2 and reached 244.9 in the following year. It was during 1946-47 that the policy of decontrol sent up the general price index by about 11 per cent to 275.4 and further to 307.0 in 1947-48.

Price trends during 1948-49 fell into two distinct phases—a continued rise from April to July and a comparative stability during the rest of the year, with signs of a downward trend in the last quarter of the year. The latter phase was associated with the reimposition of controls, and a net contraction of Rs. 18 crores in money supply during the last eight months of the year. The general index number, with the year ended August 1939 as the base, shot up from 347.9 to 389.6 by July and then tapered off to 370.2, the average for the year being 376.2 revealing a rise of 22 per cent over the year.

With the opening of the financial year of 1949, the prices began to advance upward till the Economic Adviser's general index, which stood at 370.2 in March 1949, touched 389.8 in September 1949 which exceeded the post-decontrol peak level reached in July 1948 and climbed to 393.3 in October 1949. The jump resulted in part from a sharp rise in the prices of certain export goods, in particular, tea, black pepper, oils and oil-seeds. Following the devaluation of the rupee, the Government of India adopted an eight-point anti-inflationary programme including a voluntary cut in the prices of manufactured goods and brought down the price index from 393.3 in October to 381.3 in December 1949. These efforts, however, proved temporary and practically the whole of the improvement of the preceding two months was lost by the close of March 1950, the general index moving up to 392.4 in March. The average for the year worked out at 385.4 as against 376.2 in 1948-49.

The uptrend in the general price level noticed during the closing quarter of 1949-50 gathered further momentum in the following year, particularly in the latter half. The continuation of the gradual rise in prices since devaluation was accelerated with the outbreak of the Korean war and prices reached a peak at 438.6 in March 1951 recording a rise of 11.8 per cent over the year as against a rise of 6.0 per cent in 1949-50. The rise was, however, less marked than that in the U.K. and the U.S. where the increase was as much as 27.4 per cent and 20.3 per cent respectively.

To meet the situation, the Finance Minister enunciated in August 1950 an eight-point programme outlining the major objectives of Government's economic and financial policy, which envisaged measures to hold the price line and to ensure, through increased production, economies and larger supplies, that the inflationary pressures did not get out of hand. Steps were taken to relax import controls and prevent hoarding of foodgrains through the amendment of the Essential Supplies (Temporary Powers) Act, 1946. The Centre also assumed powers to legislate for one year from August 15, 1950 in respect of trade and commerce and production, supply and distribution of goods and these were extended later by another year. This was followed by the promulgation of the Supply and Price of Goods Ordinance. As an anti-inflation measure and in view of the wide disparity between the internal and external prices, fresh export duties on certain commodities were levied or the rates of existing duties were raised as in the case of hessian, sacking, raw cotton, cotton waste and raw wool.

These measures had in part a steady effect on the general trend of prices, the months of October and November registering a decline.

Thereafter the prices resumed an upward trend which became pronounced following the Chinese intervention in the Korean war and touched a high level at 438.6 in March 1951. The prolongation of the Korean war, rising import prices, heavy export commitments and higher prices granted by Government in a number of controlled commodities like sugar, sugarcane, gur, foodgrains, cotton textiles and rubber, contributed to the uptrend in prices; it also embodied the result of the decontrol of prices of raw jute and jute manufactures on March 9, 1951. In December 1950 Government increased the prices of sugarcane and sugar from Rs. 1-10 and Rs. 28-8 per maund respectively fixed earlier in October at the preceding season's level to Rs. 1-12 and Rs. 29-12. Gur prices were raised further and the pool price of imported food was raised in January because of a rise in overseas prices and freight charges. The rise in import prices of raw cotton and the grant of an increase of Rs. 150 per candy for indigenous cotton for the 1950-51 cotton season was announced on June 16, 1950 but its effect by way of higher prices for cotton manufactures was noted only in the closing stages of the year under review.

During the first quarter of 1951, the prices of coarse, medium, fine and superfine cloth were raised by anything between 6 per cent in the case of superfine and 17½ per cent in the case of coarse varieties. The voluntary cut of four per cent in yarn prices was restored on March 5. An interim increase in the price of raw rubber from Rs. 90-8 to Rs. 122-8 per 100 lb. was granted with effect from March 7, 1951.

The fight against inflation in the financial year 1951-52 was greatly assisted by three factors. The first was the budget which aimed at a substantial revenue surplus and sought to finance the railway development by raising passenger fares. Since then, the surplus estimated at Rs. 26.1 crores in the budget has been revised upward to Rs. 92.61 crores. This substantial transfer of purchasing power from the hands of the public to the exchequer helped to hold inflation in check. Secondly, the sale proceeds of the wheat obtained from the American loan have also had the same effect of reducing the money supply in the hands of the public.

Another important step was taken in the middle of November 1951 by the raising of the Bank Rate from three per cent. at which it stood from November 1935 to 3½ per cent. The third factor was of an international character. Following the economic difficulties caused by the burden of the re-armament drive, country after country led by the United Kingdom imposed import restrictions, while the United States had to prune defence expenditure because of the danger of inflation.

As a result of the above factors, the general price index steadily sagged from 457.5, the all time peak level touched in April 1951, to 433.1 in the last month of 1951. Though overseas food prices ruled remarkably firm, the Indian food prices dropped by 2½ per cent and those of industrial raw materials dropped by more than 12 per cent. By the time the new year opened, exports proved difficult owing to buyers' resistance, while the monetary squeeze had rendered hoarding difficult despite credit expansion. Conditions deteriorated in February when the crop movement was in full swing and the general price index fell further to 415.9 thereby wiping out the advance of the past 13 months.

IMPORT AND EXPORT TRADE

Total foreign trade (1952-53)	Rs. 1,233.73 lakhs.

Exports across land frontier only	Rs. 18.84 "

India is essentially an agricultural country with farming regarded by the people as a tradition rather than as business. During the past 30 years the tendency is, however, towards rapid industrialisation. This change has been noticeable in the course of foreign trade especially in the post-partition period. In 1920-21 finished goods represented 84 per cent of imports, while exports of raw materials accounted for 45 per cent of the total shipments. In the quinquennium ended 1929-30 imports of raw materials hardly represented 9.3 per cent of the total, while exports of raw materials were as high as 49.5 per cent of the shipments. By 1950-51 the share of raw materials under imports rose to 35.1 per cent while that under imports dropped to 20.8 per cent. The emphasis on higher industrial production during the intervening period was responsible for reducing the import of manufactured goods from 72.6 per cent of the total imports in the five years ended 1929-30 to 45.7 per cent in 1950-51, while the share of finished goods in the export trade rose from 26.6 per cent to 55 per cent.

India's foreign trade (sea-borne, air-borne and land-borne) amounted to Rs. 1,233.73 crores in 1952-53, as compared with Rs. 1,675.85 crores in 1951-52 and Rs. 1,224.71 crores in 1950-51.

Imports in 1951-52 included about Rs. 100 crores worth of foodgrains from the U.S.A. by way of loan and did not raise any payments problem and there was consequently no need to draw on sterling balances for the period July 1951-June 1952. In 1952-53 also the releases made from sterling balances were not drawn upon.

Trade from 1948-52*

The following table shows the values in Rs. lakhs of the total import and export trade of India from 1948 to 1952. The total includes trade across the land frontiers too:

DIRECTION OF SEA-BORNE TRADE

Country-wise the United Kingdom enjoyed a key position till the First Great War when three-fifths of the imports and one-third of the exports originated from that country. By the time the world depression set in, her share in imports was reduced to 38 per cent but that under exports remained almost unchanged. In the five years preceding the outbreak of the Second World War, Britain's over-all share in India's foreign trade dropped to 32 per cent and this trend gained a fresh momentum in the post-war period during which the United Kingdom was pre-occupied with problems of rehabilitation. In 1950-51 Britain supplied only one-fifth of India's total imports.

The broad pattern of the direction of trade in 1952-53 remained more or less the same as in the previous year, with the U.S. and the U.K. as the principal customers as well as sources of supply. While the U.K.'s share in imports rose from 16.8 per cent in 1951-52 to 21.1 per cent, the U.S. maintained its dominating position by accounting for 27.6 per cent of imports. On the export side, the U.K. was the best customer despite the decline in her share from 25.8 per cent in 1951-52 to 21.3 per cent in the following year, but that of the U.S. rose from 17.8 per cent to 19.5 per cent. The following are the details:—

IMPORT AND EXPORT CONTROL

Import trade control was first instituted in May 1940 for conserving the limited tonnage and the hard currency. In the post-war period, currency difficulties, the prospects of release of sterling balances and the Government's view on inflation were the guiding principles. In July 1950 following the recommendations of the Import Control Inquiry Committee, the Government decided that from the beginning of 1951 (i) commercial imports should be annually around Rs. 400 crores, (ii) the O.G.L. should cover basic raw materials in short supply and exclude commodities sufficiently available in the country at a reasonable price, (iii) the actual licensing should be decentralised and the period should be half-year, and that (iv) the order of priorities for imports should be (a) raw materials and spares for industries essential for the life of the community, (b) other raw materials and capital goods, (c) other essential goods and (d) non-essential goods.

The more recent changes in the policy are detailed below:—

Broad features of the import policy for July-December 1952 were unchanged but 50 items were transferred from the Dollar O.G.L. to soft currency O.G.L. and import quotas for the dollar area were cut. On September 5, 1952 certain imports from Pakistan were placed on O.G.L. up to March 1953. The policy for the first half of 1953 remained unchanged for 70 per cent of the items. Efforts were also made to bring all the essential items under one O.G.L. Imports of a few items such as ball-bearings and textile stores were placed on a quota basis. Where stocks were higher import quotas were cut. Small quotas were given for biscuits, confectionary, playing cards, metal buttons, etc. to provide healthy competition. Where indigenous production was higher, quotas were cut. This applied to iron and steel structures, bolts, nuts and rivets, leather belting, tea chests, linings and umbrella fittings among others. Procedure remained substantially unchanged; but the list of items licensable to actual users was enlarged and a greater scope was given to newcomers.

On March 16, 1953 a few changes were made and certain items including non-ferrous metal manufactures and semi-manufactures were removed from the then existing O.G.Ls. Imports from Persian Gulf Sheikdoms and Portuguese possessions in India were extended upto September 30, 1953. During June 1953, the import policy was announced for the second half of 1953. The salient features were: (1) liberalisation of imports of machinery not indigenously manufactured, industrial raw materials such as art silk yarn and cotton yarn above 80s, and consumer goods like spices, fruits, breakfast foods, etc. and (2) simplification of the licensing procedure. Other measures included the introduction of free licensing for cotton stapling 1/16" and above from the soft currency countries and the extension to 1953-end of the validity of import licences already issued for U.S. cotton. Import of sugar was also arranged and import quotas of sewing machines, machine screws, etc. were slightly lowered owing to improved domestic supply.

The emphasis of the policy shifted from reduced quotas to higher tariff values with a view to regulating imports to meet the more important needs. In pursuance of this objective, import duties were reduced on sugar from Rs. 14-14 to Rs. 7 per cwt., on copra from non-preferred sources from 25 per cent to 15 per cent ad valorem and from other sources from 15 per cent to 5 per cent ad valorem.

EXPORT CONTROL

In pre-war years the Government's policy was to encourage exports. Immediately after the war, export control was relaxed, but the aggravation of inflationary pressures rendered its tightening in 1949. Following the devaluation of the rupee, export duties were put up on commodities for which India was at an advantage. Simultaneously, quality control was gradually introduced and a network of Trade Commissioners' offices was set up. Following the end of the Korean war boom and the fall in demand, the Government was obliged to reduce the export duties gradually. The process started early in 1952 and continued till the end of 1953.

The export duty on hassian was lowered from Rs. 750 per ton to Rs. 275 on May 7, 1952, and that on sacking was progressively reduced from Rs. 350 per ton to Rs. 175 and then to Rs. 80 on February 27, 1953. The export levy of 25 per cent on coarse and medium cotton textiles was reduced to 10 per cent on January 4, 1953. In the case of raw cotton, the duty was lowered from Rs. 200 per bale to Rs. 125 on November 19, 1953 and was totally abolished in the case of Assam/Comilla. In October 1953 export of mercury was permitted subject to a duty of Rs. 300 per flask of 75 lb.

The major export liberalisation measures during 1952-53 are summarised below:—

Free licensing of superfine and fine cloth from April 1, 1952 and of coarse and medium cloth from May 17, 1952. Export of 250,000 tons of sugar, 10,000 tons of khandasari and 50,000 tons of jaggery; but banned since January 30, 1953. Export quotas for raw cotton fixed in instalments. Free licensing of niger seed, kardi seed and their oils till June 30, 1953. Relaxation of control on yarn exports. Free licensing of raw wool shipments till December 1953. Free export of mustard oil till June 30, 1953. Overall quota of 3,000 tons for vanaspathi for 1953. Free licensing to all permissible soft currency countries and O.G.L. to dollar area for black pepper.

TRADE AGREEMENTS

Italy.—For 1952. Chemicals and chemical products, paper, raw silk, moulding powders, electric transformers, generators, machine tools, etc. to be imported. Oils and oilseeds, spices, tea, coffee, manganese, mica, coal, etc. to be exported.

Sweden.—For 1952. Newsprint, aluminium covered steel cables, etc. to be imported. Kyanite ore, manganese ore, jute goods, castor oil, cotton waste, etc. to be exported.

Egypt.—Upto February 28, 1953. Raw cotton, cotton yarn of 80s and above, rock phosphates, gypsum anhydride, etc. to be imported against tea, vegetable oils, cotton piecegoods, shellac, iron and steel manufactures, etc.

Pakistan.—Effective up to June 30, 1953. Imports of hides and skins, fish, bamboo, spices, etc. in exchange for iron and steel and machinery, railway materials, wood and timber, beedi, beedi leaves and tobacco. The Agreement was extended up to September 30, 1953.

Austria.—Upto June 1954. Building and engineering materials, woollen goods, cotton thread, newsprint, aluminium circles, sheets, plates, tungsten and molybdenum products, machine tools on the import side and tea, tobacco, handloom products, oil and oil products, spices, cotton and cotton waste, vegetable oils, iron ore, manganese ore, hides and skins tanned, shellac, raw wool, etc. on the export side.

Finland.—Agreement expired on December 31, 1951, extended by two years. Schedules will be renewed for 1953 by negotiations. Newsprint, wood-pulp, paper and paper products, steel files, farming machinery, etc. to be imported and tobacco, cashewnuts, spices, jute goods, tea, coffee, shellac, vegetable oils, chemical products, textile and hosiery, etc. to be exported.

Treaty of Friendship.—With Syria. Talks in progress with the U.S.

Iraq (1954-end.)—Imports of animals, long staple cotton, dates, food-grains and hides and skins against exports of tea, textile fibres and bristles, rubber goods, soap and iron and steel and their products. Trade subject to trade regulations. Mutual facilities for ships.

Bulgaria (1954-end.)—Imports of canned vegetables, electrometers, textiles and sanitary ceramics against exports of tea, spices, lac, castor oil, raw wool, raw cotton and oil yarn. No territorial discrimination without the currency groups.

Sweden (1954-end.)—Imports of newsprint paper, staple fibre, machinery and mill work metals and ores, wood-pulp and chemicals against export of spices, manganese ore, jute goods, oil manufactures, vegetable oils, lac, mica, tobacco and hides and skins.

Burma (Talks concluded on July 3, 1953)—Certain changes in the Agreement of 1951 and additions to the list of commodities for export from India. In the next six months increased supplies of several commodities including iron and steel and understanding about future purchase of rice.

Indo-Soviet Trade Agreement

A five-year trade agreement between India and the Soviet Union was signed on Dec. 2, 1953, providing for the exchange of a large number of items and specifying the procedure for trade, shipping and settlement of accounts between the two countries.

With the signing of the agreement, letters were exchanged on the establishment and status of Soviet trade representatives in India and on the extension of technical assistance by the Soviet Union to India both for the installation and operation of Soviet equipment as well as for the planning and execution of various projects in India.

The agreement may be extended or renewed by negotiations to be commenced within three months of its expiry.

Among the 20 items agreed for export from India to the U.S.S.R. during the first year of the agreement are:

Jute manufactures, tea, coffee, tobacco, shellac, black pepper and other spices, wool, hides and skins, vegetable and essential oils, oil yarn and rope, chemicals, live animals, exposed cinema films, books and periodicals and cottage industry products.

The list of goods agreed for import from the U.S.S.R. covers 39 items. These include:

Food grains (wheat, barley) crude petroleum and petroleum products, timber and paper, iron and steel manufactures, chemicals, dyestuffs, medicaments, optical goods, cinematograph films, printed matters and other goods as well as a wide range of industrial equipment including boring, mining and road-building equipment, excavators, compressors, electrical equipment, equipment for textile, shoes, food and polygraphical industries, tractors and agricultural machinery and various machine tools and instruments.

To promote economic relations between the Soviet Union and India, it was agreed that the Soviet Embassy might establish a special trade representation wing in New Delhi with branches in Calcutta and Bombay.

It will be the duty of Soviet trade representatives to enter into or guarantee commercial transactions. Such transactions will be subject to the jurisdiction of Indian courts unless otherwise provided. Soviet trade representatives are not to be responsible for any transactions concluded by other Soviet organisations direct without its guarantee.

The inclusion of hydrogenated oils, cashewnuts, dyeing and tanning substances, footwear and sports goods in the list of commodities exportable by India to the U.S.S.R. was to be considered separately as early as possible between the Government of India and the Soviet Embassy.

India's imports from Russia were valued at Rs. 2.3 lakhs in 1950-51, Rs. 1.38 crores in 1951-52, Rs. 2.4 lakhs in 1952-53 and exports at Rs. 1.34 crores in 1950-51, Rs. 6.67 crores in 1951-52 and Rs. 8.5 lakhs in 1952-53.

ALCOHOL INDUSTRY

ALCOHOL has three uses. It can be used as a drink. That is the use for which it is best known. Second, it can be used for industrial purposes, for instance in the manufacture of a number of chemicals. Third, it can be used as a motor fuel, for the production of mechanical power, when we call it power alcohol.

Potable Alcohol.—Three types of potable alcohol are produced in the country, beer, toddy, arrack and certain varieties of 'foreign liquors.' A great number of old pot, and coffee stills have always been in use but the major part of potable liquor is made in proper distilleries of which there are about 70 in India. There are also 25 big distilleries producing mainly industrial alcohol which have a capacity for distilling about 2 million gallons of potable alcohol.

INDUSTRIAL ALCOHOL

Industrial alcohol is a very valuable material in the manufacture of chemicals like acetone, acetic acid, ether, chloroform, ethyl acetate, etc. It is also necessary as a solvent in the manufacture of fine chemicals, medical preparations, toilets, etc. Since the last war its importance if at all has increased. It is now essential in the manufacture of ammunition and of artificial rubber.

In 1946 there were as many as 33 plants capable of producing 12 million gallons of industrial alcohol. The trend of production has been as follows:

Year.	Rectified spirit (000 gals.).	Denatured spirit (000 gals.).
1946 ..	2,147	1,023
1947 ..	1,775	1,085
1948 ..	2,389	1,401
1949 ..	1,950	1,095
1950 ..	3,435	1,477
1951 ..	5,010	1,967
1952 ..	4,698	2,178

The undivided Government of India's Panel on Fine Chemicals, Drugs and Pharmaceuticals estimated that the medical requirements of the sub-continent were a million gallons annually and industrial requirements 10 millions, a target which they said ought to be reached in 15 years time.

To make this possible, it is argued, the first essential is to abolish the present excise duty on industrial alcohol and the second is to have a uniform policy for the country as a whole. Industrial alcohol should not cost more than a few annas a gallon. As it is it costs the distiller about eight annas to make it. When the producer's and middleman's profit is added the price will increase to a point where it becomes uneconomical to use it.

POWER ALCOHOL

The importance of the power alcohol industry lies in its supplying a product which can replace an equivalent quantity of imported petrol. The rapid development of the sugar industry since 1931 has rendered large quantities of molasses available for its production.

At the beginning of 1951 there were 19 power alcohol distilleries with an annual rated capacity of 12-838 million gallons of power alcohol and 2-948 million gallons of commercial spirit.

Actual production in the post-war period is given below:—

Year.	Production (000 bulk gallons).
1946 ..	2,397
1947 ..	2,736
1948 ..	3,776
1949 ..	4,230

Year	Production (000 bulk gallons).
1950 ..	4,498
1951 ..	5,809
1952 ..	7,742

The gap between the installed capacity and actual production of power alcohol has been mainly due to the shortage of molasses, difficulties of transport and the policy of prohibition in general. The Kolhapur and Nasik distilleries in Bombay State, for instance, could not come into regular production because the use of power alcohol has not been introduced so far in that State. The industry has been developed by private enterprise except in Mysore and Hyderabad State and at Nasik in Bombay State.

The total investment is about Rs. 158 lakhs.

The principal raw material required is molasses. Out of a total production of 550,000 tons of molasses in 1951-52, Uttar Pradesh accounted for 300,000 tons and Bihar for 87,000 tons. Other raw materials required in small quantities are sulphuric acid, ammonium sulphate and entertaining agents.

According to the Planning Commission, about 39-6 million gallons of power alcohol can be absorbed by the country. Among the handicaps are the high cost of production because of high fuel consumption and the low grade of molasses, heavy transit and handling losses and the high charges paid to oil companies for mixing power alcohol with petrol. The extensions to existing units and new units contemplated should enable the country to hit the target of 21-12 million gallons by 1955-56 compared to 12-87 million gallons in 1950-51 so that the actual production of power alcohol will be stepped up from 4-72 million gallons to 18 million gallons.

CEMENT INDUSTRY

IMPORTS & EXPORTS

Imports of cement before the outbreak of the Second World War were small and generally the cement was of special quality. During the post-war period imports by sea totalled about 150,000 tons in 1948-49 and 300,000 tons in 1949-50. In addition, about 25,000 tons and 100,000 tons were imported from Pakistan by land routes in the two respective years. Since 1950 imports were restricted to quantities included in trade agreements as well as to those in respect of which prior commitments had been made and were only about 17,000 tons in 1950-51. The quantity imported in the following two years was negligible.

There have been no exports except of very limited quantities to Pakistan under the trade agreements and to the Middle East, Ceylon and East Africa. With the contemplated increase in productive capacity, the industry should be in a position to export 200,000 tons to 300,000 tons per annum by 1955-56.

DEVELOPMENT PLAN

The annual consumption of cement was 2 million tons per annum during the war years and rose to about 2-6 million tons during the post-war years, 1949-50 and 1950-51. In 1951 about 3-17 million tons of cement were delivered, while 1-714 million tons were supplied in the first half of 1952. The future demand for cement, exclusive of the needs of the multi-purpose projects should be around 3-8 million tons by 1955-56. Including the demand of the projects and roads, the total should reach 4-5 million tons by the end of the Plan period.

At present eight of the existing units having an annual capacity of less than 100,000 tons each are considered uneconomical. Two of them are, however, expected to raise their production during the period of the Plan.

The State-wise distribution of the industry during 1950-51 and towards the end of the period of the Plan is indicated below:—

State	1950-51		1955-56

THE first venture in the manufacture of Portland Cement in India took place in 1904, in a small factory just outside Madras, but it quickly went out of business.

A few years later three new companies came into existence and laid the foundation of the industry as it exists today.

In 1925, following the result of an enquiry by the Tariff Board, the necessity for co-operation among the manufacturing units was clearly emphasised and as a result, an Association known as the Indian Cement Manufacturers' Association was formed.

Inspired with a certain measure of confidence they took yet another step which was the formation of the Cement Marketing Company of India, Ltd.

The next step was the fusion of all the Indian cement manufacturing companies then in operation (with the exception of the Sone Valley Cement Co. Ltd.) into one unit known as the Associated Cement Companies Ltd., in 1936 whose Managing Agents are Cement Agencies Ltd.

By March 1952, there were 23 cement factories with an annual rated capacity of about 3-88 million tons.

In addition to the two combines—the Associated Cement Companies owning 12 factories with a capacity of 2-3 million tons and the Dalmia Group owning four factories with a capacity of about 825,000 tons—there are 6 independent manufacturers with an aggregate capacity of 670,000 tons, and a factory of 86,000 tons capacity owned and operated by the Government of Mysore.

The production in million tons is as follows: 1948, 1-553; 1949, 2-102; 1950, 2-613; 1951 3-199; 1952, 3-538.

A sum of about Rs. 29 crores had been invested in the industry up to 1950-51 of which the A.C.C. accounted for Rs. 15-5 crores and the Dalmia Group Rs. 7 crores. Some 33,000 persons were employed by the industry in 1950-51.

CHEMICAL INDUSTRY

FOR purposes of industrial production, chemicals fall easily into one of two major groups: (a) Heavy Chemicals; and (b) Fine Chemicals.

The term "Heavy Chemicals" is applied usually to substances such as the common acids, alkalies, fertilizer, etc., which are the foundation of the entire chemical industry.

Fine chemicals, on the other hand, are manufactured generally in relatively small amounts since purity is important; their production requires great skill and care in each operation under accurately controlled conditions. In this category are included photographic materials, drugs and pharmaceutical products, paints, varnishes and pigments, dyestuffs, etc.

According to the latest data, there are over 250 factories with a capital investment of nearly Rs. 33 crores and providing employment for about 35,000 workers.

The industry expanded further in 1952. For the first time calcium carbide used for making acetylene was produced in a factory having an annual capacity of 825 tons, and a second unit with a capacity of 3,300 tons was expected to go into production in 1953-54. The production of benzene hexachloride, an important insecticide, also started during the year, as well as of rayon grade caustic soda.

SULPHURIC ACID

The capacity of the industry and its regional distribution in June 1952 were as follows:—

	No of units.	Rated capacity in tons.
Assam	1	6,000
West Bengal	13	56,560
Bombay	12	35,013
Punjab and Delhi	9	14,935
Uttar Pradesh	4	5,775
Madhya Pradesh	1	825
Madras	2	13,530
Former States and States Unions	5	56,183
Total ..	47	189,441

The trend of production in tons is as follows:—

1948, 80,004; 1949, 99,456; 1950, 102,480; 1951, 106,932; 1952, 96,072.

Built up in the private sector, about Rs. 2 crores have been invested in this industry. The consumption of sulphur for producing sulphuric acid was 37,000 tons in 1951.

The annual consumption of sulphuric acid in different industries in 1951 was estimated at 106,935 tons and is estimated to rise to 200,000 tons by 1955-56. The following picture would emerge at the end of 1955-56:—

	1950-51	1955-56
Number of units ..	43	51
Annual rated capacity (tons of 100 per cent. acid) ..	150,410	220,791
Actual production (tons of 100 per cent. acid) ..	99,153	200,000

ALKALI INDUSTRY

The alkali industry comprises the manufacture of soda ash and caustic soda, sodium bicarbonate, bleaching powder, benzene hexachloride, liquid chlorine and zinc chloride.

As against the rated capacity of 54,000 tons per annum, the production of soda ash in tons was as under:—

1948, 29,148; 1949, 17,916; 1950, 43,788; 1951, 47,532; 1952, 44,328.

On the basis of the Tariff Board's report in 1951 the estimated consumption of soda ash is placed at 115,000 tons. This is expected to rise to 155,000 tons by 1955-56.

The table below summarises the programme of development of the soda ash industry:—

	1950-51	1955-56
Number of units ..	2	2
Annual rated capacity (tons) ..	54,000	86,000
Actual production (tons) ..	44,650	77,800

Caustic Soda.—The six electrolytic soda plants are located at Rishra (West Bengal), Mettur (Madras), Ahmedabad (Bombay), Mithapur (Saurashtra), Dehri-on-Sone (Bihar) and Delhi. The capital invested in the caustic-chlorine plants in 1951 was Rs. 195 lakhs. The installed capacity of caustic soda has progressively risen to 34,944 tons in 1952, that of chlorine liquid to 13,512 tons, and that of bleaching powder to 7,400 tons.

Actual indigenous production of caustic soda and the associated chemicals in the post-war period was as under:—

Year	Caustic soda in Tons	Liquid chlorine in Tons	Bleaching powder in Tons
1948 ..	5,862	1,749	3,443
1949 ..	7,315	2,547	2,528
1950 ..	10,846	3,970	3,309
1951 ..	14,722	5,268	3,583
1952 ..	17,064	6,652	792

Imports of caustic soda varied from 90,616 tons in 1948-49 to 12,989 tons in 1949-50 in the post-war period, while those of bleaching powder dropped from 11,520 tons to 5,513 tons in the same period.

The plan provides that the number of factories will rise from 7 in 1950-51 to 9 in 1955-56, the annual rated capacity will double from 18,725 tons to 37,125 tons and the actual production treble from 11,375 tons to 33,000 tons.

MISCELLANEOUS CHEMICALS

The present position of some of the important products is as follows:—

* Not produced in the country. Exports of chemicals have been essentially confined to magnesium chloride and sodium bichromate to the extent of 2,000 tons and 500 tons respectively.

FERTILISERS

So far in India the inorganic nitrogenous fertiliser almost universally employed has been ammonium sulphate. There are at present four units in West Bengal and Bihar (excluding Sindri) with a rated capacity of about 36,000 tons of ammonium sulphate per annum. The Sindri factory went into production in October 1951 and with its coming into full production, the rated capacity for inorganic nitrogenous fertilisers has reached 428,070 tons of ammonium sulphate.

The output of ammonium sulphate has progressively risen from 45,395 tons in 1949 to 220,308 tons in 1952.

Assuming country-wide application of nitrogenous fertilisers the annual needs would be about 12 million tons of ammonium sulphate. As a result of the implementation of the development plans, the installed capacity for nitrogenous fertilisers in terms of ammonium sulphate is expected to rise to 481,270 tons by 1955-56. Even then a gap of 150,000 tons is foreshadowed.

The annual rated capacity for the production of superphosphates was 173,855 tons by the middle of 1952. The factories are small and have survived because of import restrictions. The production of superphosphates has steadily risen to 61,018 tons in 1951.

Although the scope for phosphatic fertilisers in India is still almost unlimited, consumption in 1952-53 was no more than 100,000 tons and is not likely to exceed 200,000 tons by 1955-56.

The projects submitted by manufacturers for the planned period expect that the rated capacity will rise from 173,855 tons in 1952-53 to 209,355 tons in 1955-56.

The estimated annual needs of potassic fertilisers are roughly 37,500 tons out of which it may be possible to recover about 52,700 tons from all the salt works in the country.

FINE CHEMICALS

The term "fine chemicals" is applied usually to substances such as photographic materials, drugs and pharmaceutical products, paints, pigments and varnishes, and dyestuffs. All the figures are in tons per annum except where otherwise stated.

Chemical.	Production.		Target estimated for the next five years.	Main uses.

The Tariff Board's inquiry in 1950 into the claim for protection of fine chemicals industry was confined to calcium lactate, iron-ammonium citrate, potassium citrate and sodium citrate.

The average annual demand has been estimated at 60 tons for calcium lactate, 80 tons for iron-ammonium citrate, 200 tons for potassium citrate and 50 tons for sodium citrate. Government have, on the Board's recommendation, converted the 36 per cent. standard and 26 per cent. preferential revenue duty on calcium lactate into a protective duty.

Production of bromine and bromides at one of the alkali works has been attempted and an annual output of 75 tons bromine, 36 tons potassium bromide and 14 tons sodium bromide has been recorded.

Coal, tar and wood distillation products are not sufficiently exploited to manufacture fine chemicals and even the war-time production of methanol and formaldehyde has been recently curtailed. Synthetic fine chemicals are yet to be turned out in India on a commercial scale.

Photographic Materials.—The basic chemicals required for the photographic industry are: (i) gelatin, silver halides and sensitizers in the coating of film, plate and paper base, and (ii) hypo sodium sulphite metal, hydroquinone and chrome alum in the processing stages.

Borax, boric acid, acetic acid and metal and photographic-grade sodium sulphite are still imported. The present capacity of sodium sulphite is 800 tons and output 800 tons which meets the full demand. Production capacity of 30 tons for potash chrome alum has been established. Hydroquinone is being manufactured in India since 1950 and the annual output is 25 tons. X-ray developing and fixing salts have been placed on the market since 1949.

The existing import duties on Sodium Thio-sulphate, Sodium Sulphite and Sodium Bisulphite have been extended up to the end of 1954; but the industry is free to seek protection if the import control is liberalised and foreign competition intensified.

Pre-war imports of raw film base into India were enormous, the film industry alone consuming some 80 million ft. per annum. The Celluloid Industries Panel has recommended the installation of a factory for manufacturing 60 million sq. ft. of all types of raw film, and this should synchronize with the manufacture of gelatin, silver halides, sensitizers and other photographic materials in adequate quantities.

DRUGS AND PHARMACEUTICALS

There are at present more than 60 comparatively important units engaged in manufacturing various types of drugs and medicinal preparations. They are mostly concentrated in Bombay and Calcutta. About 40 of the factories produce tinctures, extracts and galenicals. Most of the crude drugs are obtained indigenously and the rated capacity exceeds 1.2 million gallons. The total capacity for producing tablets and injectible drugs from materials imported in bulk is estimated at nearly 88 million tablets and 9 million ampoules; but this can be expanded in case of greater demand without difficulty.

The Government have also established factories for manufacturing a variety of alkaloids. There are two Government factories, one at Madras and the other in West Bengal, producing quinine from cinchona bark. Their total capacity is 90,000 lb. of quinine per annum. Two factories in the private sector have a capacity for producing about 20,000 lb. of caffeine from tea waste. The manufacture of opium alkaloids is the monopoly of the Government of India. Ephedrine is produced by a private firm from raw materials imported from Pakistan. Another firm has a capacity for producing 15,000 lb. of strychnine.

Considerable quantities of glandular extracts are prepared in the country from animals slaughtered in the big cities. Twenty-one firms are engaged in producing liver extracts and have a capacity of about 23.8 million cc. of injectible liver extract and 1.4 million lb. of oral liver extract. The annual capacity for producing liquor adrenaline hydrochloride, liquor adrenaline tartrate and extract pituitary are 40 million cc. 44 million cc. and 55 million cc. respectively. There are four factories manufacturing these products. Five units producing shark liver oil have a capacity of 30,000 gallons of oil equivalent to potency of 6,000 international units/gram.

In the sphere of vaccines, anti-toxins and sera the capacity of the private firms is nearly 5 million cc. per month and that of Government institutes nearly 6 million cc. per month. The country is self-sufficient in regard to many sera and vaccines. A number of patent medicines are also produced in the country.

During 1952 the production of three important anti-bacterial drugs viz. sulphathiazol, sulphapyridine and sulphadiazine was started. The production of standard quality nikethamide was also undertaken. Also processes for the synthesis of the latest anti-tubercular drug, hydrazide of isonicotinic acid, were successfully worked out.

Despite the increase in indigenous production during the past few years, imports were rising from Rs. 8 crores in 1949-50 to Rs. 10 crores in 1950-51 and to Rs. 15 crores in 1951-52 and were valued at Rs. 11.32 crores in 1952-53. Penicillin, sulpha drugs, vitamins, streptomycin, quinine salts and patent medicines account for the major portion of these imports.

Exports are confined to crude drugs and a few raw materials of drugs and amounted to Rs. 211 lakhs in 1951-52 and to Rs. 186 lakhs in 1952-53. Besides, exports by land averaged Rs. 90 lakhs a year.

The tariff duty for drugs and chemicals is 26 per cent. ad valorem from the U.K. and the British Colonies and 86 per cent. ad valorem from the U.S. This applies to raw materials and finished products and the duty on the latter is partly responsible for the high cost of indigenous production.

Development Programme.—The short supply of solvents, crude drugs and intermediate chemicals and the State excise barriers are the main handicaps. The Government of India in agreement with UNICEF and WHO are setting up a penicillin factory at Pimpri near Poona in Bombay State at a cost of Rs. 211 lakhs with an ultimate target of 750,000 mega units. A scheme for manufacturing chloromycetin has been launched by Park Davis, while Atul Products propose to manufacture auromycin. Alkali Chemical Corporation are putting up a plant at Bishra near Calcutta for producing 500 tons annually of benzene hexachloride.

Atul Products Ltd. in collaboration with the American Cyanamid Co. of New York have started a modern factory for pharmaceuticals and dyestuffs. The manufacturing programme envisages the production of 250,000 lb. of sulphadiazole, sulphathiazol and sulphadiazine and 100,000 lb. of dyes. May & Baker have also erected a sulphadiazine plant.

Besides substituted quinolines, arsenicals and antimonial drugs, the manufacture of sul-phone drugs, thiosemicarbazone and para-amino salicylic for the treatment of leprosy and tuberculosis has been undertaken. Production of nicotinic acid and nikethamide has started and that of paludrine planned.

A proposal to erect a factory for manufacturing D.D.T. has been approved by W.H.O. The Madras Government has plans for increasing quinine production. A Calcutta firm contemplates the manufacture of para-amino salicylic acid, a specific for tuberculosis. Sarabhai Chemicals have under consideration a project for manufacturing insulin.

There are at least 150 factories manufacturing paints and varnishes, but nearly 100 of them are very small in size. The bigger ones are concentrated in Bombay and Calcutta. Eighteen units with a capacity of 36,360 tons are in Calcutta, and 17 with an annual capacity of 19,860 tons are in Bombay. Taking only the important firms, in 1952 the output totalled 32,172 tons. The capital investment is over Rs 3 crores and 6,000 workers have found employment.

The demand for paints is roughly 35,000 tons to 40,000 tons and may reach 60,000 tons by 1955-56.

FIVE-YEAR PLAN

The following table summarises the programme of development of the industry during the period of the Plan :-

COFFEE INDUSTRY

COFFEE cultivation is mainly confined to the hilly tracts of south India, from one thousand to six thousand feet above the mean sea level, and is centred in the Malnad area of Mysore, Coorg, Madras, and the United State of Travancore-Cochin. In the lower elevations, which have a higher rainfall, the more delicate but better quality Arabica coffee has given place to the harder but coarser Robusta coffee.

The capital investment in the industry is estimated to be over Rs. 15 crores and the average annual value of the crop is about Rs 8 crores. Nearly 200,000 people drawn chiefly from Malabar, South Canara and Mysore are employed in the industry. Many of the coffee estates are inter-planted with orange trees, cardamom and pepper vines. There are about 50 species and sub-species of coffee plants in the country, the one most extensively cultivated is Coffee Arabica, the best in quality, with Robusta coming next in importance.

The area and production, of the two varieties of coffee from 1948 to 1958 are as under:

MARKETING

Under the existing scheme of Coffee Control, all coffee estates in the country, big or small, are required to get themselves registered and to deliver the entire production, except quantities allowed for domestic consumption and seed purpose, to a Common Pool administered by The Indian Coffee Board. Growers are paid in proportion to the value of coffee delivered to the Pool after deducting the cost. The average price of plantation of coffee in the auctions in 1951 was Rs. 218-11 per cwt. against Rs. 187-1 in 1950. The total turnover of the Pool was Rs. 649 lakhs and the growers received Rs. 180-18-4 per cwt. as against Rs. 182-8-0 per cwt. in 1949-50. The total number of registered estates on June 30, 1952 was 23,967 while those unregistered totalled 5,306.

The following table gives the trend of exports:

Year	Exports in Tons
1948-49	31

INDIAN COFFEE BOARD

To stimulate internal consumption and to regulate exports a statutory body, now known as the Indian Coffee Board, was set up under the Coffee Market Expansion Board. One of the serious problems the Board had to contend with in 1952 was the growing rise in the price of coffee which advanced from Rs. 207 per cwt. of plantation type in April 1952 to a record level of Rs. 316 per cwt. in the following September. The Board effected increased sales of Coffee and banned exports. In December 1952 a Bill was introduced in Parliament to amend the Act of 1943 for the purpose of ensuring better co-ordination between the Board and the Central Government and of providing adequate representation of consumer interests on the Board.

COIR INDUSTRY

COIR is the trade name given to the fibre obtained from the husk of the coconut fruit. India and Ceylon have a virtual monopoly in the production of this by-product of the coconut industry.

In India the coir industry is practically confined to Kerala. Travancore-Cochin State and the Malabar district of Madras account for over one million acres of the coconut growing areas out of a total of 1,526 million acres in India. The distribution of the area under cultivation and production of coconuts in respect of India is as follows:—

	Area in acres.	Production Percentage.
Madras	605,765	41.3
Travancore ..	584,736	37.8
Cochin	67,058	4.3
Mysore	170,180	11.3
W. Bengal ..	31,300	1.4
Orissa	30,021	1.8
Bombay	29,197	1.8
Other States ..	7,592	0.3
	1,525,759	100.0

The coir industry is organised partly on cottage basis and partly in factories. The production of coir fibre, yarn and ropes is essentially a cottage industry, while coir mats, mattings, rugs, carpets, bags, etc. are manufactured in factories. About 300,000 people earn their living from this industry in Travancore alone and 50,000 in Cochin and about one lakh in Malabar.

There are two principal types of coir fibre—mat fibre and curled fibre. The bulk of the output consists of mat fibre. The yarn spun by hand is soft and even twist, while that spun on wheels is hard twist and not so even as hand spun. Spinning is mainly done by women, boys and girls. Over 100,000 families are employed in this trade in Travancore alone.

The yarn produced in the spinning districts is marketed chiefly in Alleppey where there are a large number of factories for the manufacture of mats, mattings, rugs and carpets and also exporters of yarn.

In 1948 there were about 525 factories of which 474 were small ones with less than 20 looms and the rest large factories with more than 50 looms, having in all about 16,000 looms on mats and mattings.

About 15,000 workers were engaged by these factories.

Following are the estimates of coir-manufactured and unmanufactured:—

State.	Production (Tons).
Madras	25,038
Travancore-Cochin	97,000
Mysore	Not available
W. Bengal	225
Bombay	63
Total	132,326

EXPORTS

Export of coir yarn, mats and mattings, ropes and other sorts of coir are detailed below:—

Year.	Coir yarn.	Coir mats and mattings.	Coir ropes.	other sorts.
1949-50	40,660	26,758	3,263	6,580
1950-51	55,145	18,834	3,907
1951-52	45,269	11,510	5,809*	4,790
1952-53	48,318	12,390	4,422*	4,087

* Includes export to Pakistan by land.

The price of a candy of 6 cwt. of superior Anjengo declined from Rs. 325 in January 1948 to Rs. 188 in August 1949, rose thereafter to Rs. 583 in March 1951 and fell steeply thereafter to Rs. 275 by May 1952.

The appointments of a statutory board to deal with the various aspects of the industry is now contemplated. India's trade representatives have been asked to study the prospects for coir and coir products since exports fell in 1952 from 13.49 lakh cwt. valued at Rs. 11.6

crores in 1951 to 12.20 lakh cwt. valued at Rs. 7.4 crores; but it was not possible to get a reduction in import duties on coir mats and mattings under the GATT from the European countries. The main reason given was the need to protect domestic interests.

COTTAGE INDUSTRIES

TOTAL allotment for small-scale and cottage industries under the Five-year Plan: Rs. 27.04 crores.

It is customary to refer to industries which are not required to be registered under the Factory Act as cottage and small-scale industries. There is no accepted line of distinction between cottage and small-scale industries but the use of electric power is one of the popular tests.

The data about their strength is extremely meagre. The National Sample Survey carried out recently a large scale sample survey; but its results are not available.

It is, however, very roughly estimated that at least 20 million persons are gainfully employed in these industries classified as under:—

Name of Industry	Persons Employed in Lakhs.
Textiles	50
Leather	24
Wood	20
Metals	40
Pottery, Ceramics, Tiles, Bricks, etc.	20
Vegetable Oils, Chemical Products, etc.	10
Food including Hand-pounding ..	20
Dress and Toilet	11
Miscellaneous including jewellery and toy making	6
TOTAL	201

In order to encourage more effectively the development of cottage and small-scale industries, the All-India Cottage Industries Board, constituted in 1948, was replaced by two Boards, viz., The All-India Handicrafts Board and The All-India Khadi and Village Industries Board. The former was constituted in November 1952, and the latter in February, 1953.

Towards the end of 1952 the Government also constituted the All-India Handloom Board to deal specifically with problems affecting the handloom industry. A cess of three ples per yard has been levied on all mill-made cloth consumed within the country and is expected to yield every year about Rs. 5 crores. Schemes for the development of khadi and handlooms are to be financed out of this resource.

The Cottage Industries Directorate has been merged as a part of the Development Wing and is responsible, generally, for all small-scale industries.

The primary objective of the policy laid down under the Five-Year Plan is to provide a field within which each cottage industry may be able to organise itself. Wherever a large-scale industry competes with a cottage industry, a common production programme should be evolved.

The programme may cover (a) reservation of spheres of production, (b) non-expansion of the capacity of a large-scale industry, (c) imposition of a cess on products of a large-scale industry, (d) arrangements for the supply of raw materials and (e) co-ordination for research, training, etc.

To carry out research, the establishment of an Institute for village technology has been recommended by the Planning Commission.

Finance for the development of village industries has to be viewed as a problem inseparable from finance for agriculture. The formation of industrial co-operatives is, therefore, considered essential. Meantime, the responsibility for revitalising village industries has devolved on the Government.

In the States the Five-Year Plan provides Rs. 12 crores for cottage and small-scale industries.

The responsibility for organising industrial co-operatives lies on the State Governments. The number of industrial co-operatives rose from 3,758 in 1949 to 5,305 in 1950 and the plan expects to raise the total to about 8,000 by 1955.

The question of training the artisans has received considerable emphasis in the Five-Year Plan. The training centres maintained by the Central Government under the Directorate-General of Resettlement and Re-employment have trained during the past few years 144,000 persons.

The Ministry of Rehabilitation has arranged for the technical training of 82,000 persons from West Pakistan.

The plans of the State Governments provide for the following training programmes:—

	1950-51	1955-56
No. of Industrial Schools	365	456
No. of pupils trained ..	14,750	21,797
No. of technical and vocational institutions ..	280	407
No. of persons trained ..	20,708	42,997

TEXTILES

In the main, these are composed of two units—handlooms and khadi.

The details about the handloom industry have been given in the article on the cotton textile industry. Suffice it to say that there were in 1951 three million handlooms, accounting for a production of 810 million yards in 1950-51. This is proposed to be stepped up to 1,700 million yards by 1955-56.

To clear the unsold stocks, the Handloom Board has decided to subsidise sales.

The All-India Spinners' Association has at present in its fold over 2½ lakhs of persons engaged in khadi production. It is now proposed to subsidise the sales of khadi at the rate of three annas in the rupee which would work out at Rs. 3-3 crores on an annual output of 100 million yards. The balance of Rs. 4 crores will be spent on organisation, training, research and subsidy for equipment.

The main emphasis of khadi is to minimise the pressure of the problem of under-employment. It is hoped that about a million persons willing to devote four hours every day can have a supplementary income of Rs. 75 per month.

Calico printing is an old industry in Farukhabad and Ahmedabad and is now extended to most of the other cities. Over 25,000 people practise this art. In Farukhabad alone there are over 2,000 printers. The industry's products have a wide export market. During 1952 the cotton mills printed about 30 million yards. The question of reducing mechanised printing is under examination.

The Government of Bombay sanctioned during 1951-52 a grant of Rs. 5-90 lakhs for various schemes connected with khadi self-sufficiency. Self-spinners registered under the Katal mandals were granted a subsidy of half a rupee per square yard of khadi woven upto 20 square yards.

The scheme for opening 100 khadi self-sufficiency centres was continued in 1951-52 and a grant of Rs. 3,19,450 was sanctioned. In Bombay State there were 89 centres with 5,025 self-spinners who produced 57,477 square yards.

The khadi scheme of the Madras Government is run in two parts. The intensive schemes operating in eight centres aim at self-sufficiency. The extensive scheme prepares the ground. During 1951-52 khadi production in the State totalled 12-09 lakh yards. In Mysore the Government khadi organisation has been functioning for over 25 years.

In Hyderabad private organisations are functioning, and over 5,000 workers are engaged by them.

Silk weavers are found in nearly every State. Assam and W. Bengal are, however, the largest producers of silk accounting for two lakh looms and 15,000 looms respectively.

India is the only country where tussar, endi and munga silk is produced. The industry produces about 2 million lb. of silk and employs about a lakh of people. The industry is now heavily protected and a Silk Board has been constituted to promote its growth.

Spinning and weaving of wool are easier than that of cotton. At present the cottage industry has confined its activities to the production of carpets and kamblies. Under the Plan, it is proposed to have four wool spinning and weaving centres for developing hand-spinning and hand weaving for the production of woollen blankets required by the defence services. Carding and finishing will however, be done by machinery operated by power.

OTHER INDUSTRIES

Coir-Making.—The aggregate production of the coir industry is approximately 1·3 lakh tons and supports about eight lakh persons. A coir Board is proposed to be set up to tackle the difficulties of the industry which is an important contributor to export earnings. The industry is mainly concentrated in Travancore-Cochin and the State's plan lays down an elaborate programme for its development.

Village Oil Industry.—The plan for this industry covers a common production programme for village oil presses and oil mills. The production of ghanis is proposed to be raised from 10 lakhs tons to 13·8 lakhs tons of seed pressing by 1955-56. The object is to organise 12,000 village oil centres, each serving a group of 40 to 50 villages and about 50 village oil presses. A development expenditure of Rs. 233·10 lakhs over four years is expected and this will provide employment for 100,000 persons.

The Indian Central Oilseeds Committee has decided to start demonstration centres of improved ghanis in each of the Community Project areas and has recommended to the Government of India to levy an additional cess of one anna per maund for the first five years, and two annas per maund thereafter for financing the development of the village oil crushing industry.

Under the Essential Supplies Act, the Government of India has delegated powers to State Governments to check the indiscriminate growth of oil mills. Under the Industries (Development and Regulation) Act the Union Government is competent to prevent further growth of the large-scale industry.

The All-India Khadi and Village Industries Board has recommended that the crushing of sesamum oilseeds should be completely reserved for the ghanis. It has also suggested the allocation of quantities of different oilseeds to mills and to ghanis.

During the Plan period, the mill-oil production is expected to rise from 22·12 lakh tons to 23·4 lakh tons of which 14 lakh tons will be edible, while the ghani oil production will be stepped up from 11·56 lakh tons to 17·53 lakh tons out of which only 0·45 lakh tons will be non-edible. Four lakh ghanis will consequently be fully engaged.

Paddy Husking.—Hand pounding of rice is an important village industry. It processes about 65 per cent of the paddy. The Five-Year Plan aims at improving the hand process for increased recovery of rice and production of bran in a pure form by introducing paddy husking stone chakkis in place of the pounding method.

Over a period of four years the distribution of about 50,000 chakkis in rice pounding areas is expected to be subsidised.

About Rs. 10 lakhs will be spent by the Government during the Plan period and 40,000 persons will be able to find employment as hand pounders.

The Food Ministry has declared that the huller type mills are a destructive type of equipment for milling, particularly raw rice. Under the Essential Supplies Act, the Union Government is competent to prohibit the establishment of rice mills. At present there are 15,000 huller mills in the country. The All-India Khadi and Village Industries Board has urged the Central Government that there should be no further increase in the number and capacity of the huller mills and that the use of the huller type for pounding rice should be banned.

Bee-Keeping.—Bee-keeping is a cottage industry which has not to compete with any machine. The industry is not, however, well developed. The total yield of honey in the country does not exceed 12 million lb. a year and hardly a third gets into commercial channels. Consequently there have been heavy imports of honey.

The Five-Year Plan contemplates an intensive development of bee-keeping in selected areas in which the industry has already made some progress. For instance, Madras, Bombay, Uttar Pradesh, Punjab, Mysore, Travancore-Cochin and Coorg offer scope for intensive development. In each selected area there will be a sub-station serving a group of 20 to 30 villages. The scheme provides for training of staff and bee-keepers and for supply at subsidised rates of beehives and other appliances. Co-operatives of bee-keepers are envisaged for collecting and marketing of the honey.

The Plan provides for an outlay of Rs. 16·29 lakhs.

Paper Making.—The All-India Village Industries Association has a separate department for hand-made paper which mainly imparts training and carries on research in paper industry. The Association has encouraged the paper industry throughout the country. The methods of production are fairly satisfactory and the processes and implements are being improved year after year. Cotton rags, jute waste, paddy straw and grass of any kind that grows to a height of two feet, plantain stalks, sugarcane waste and waste paper are the chief raw materials. Hand-made paper is generally used for documentary purposes.

The five-year programme, therefore, suggests the production of high-grade hand-made paper at all existing centres. These centres will receive assistance in respect of equipment, training and research. Pulp-making is proposed to be done by power-operated machines, while other processes will be done by hand. It hopes to support 1,000 paper makers and turn out annually 1,400 tons of high-grade paper.

Soap Making.—In the village industry programme has been included a small scheme the main object of which is to utilise material now going waste. The scheme aims at establishing production-cum-demonstration centres in different States where neem oil will be produced and utilised in soap manufacture. It provides for 11 neem units, each one consisting of one soapery and 7 neem pressing centres producing a total of 1,260 maunds of neem oil and utilising it for the production of about 78 tons of soap every year.

Neem oil is at present produced in small quantities in Madras, Uttar Pradesh and Bombay. Neem trees are, however, in abundance all over the country and a survey recently conducted in Madras has shown that about 72,000 tons can be collected annually in that State alone. Actually however 20,000 tons of seed are crushed to yield 1,650 tons of neem oil. The neem oilcake is also a valuable manure.

Washing soap can be manufactured very easily on cottage scale provided caustic soda, oils, tallow, etc. can be made available at reasonable prices.

The question of encouraging this industry in rural areas by levying a cess on large-scale production and reserving a portion of the market is under investigation.

Palm-Gur.—According to a recent estimate India has 50 million palm and corresponding varieties of trees. At present some four million trees are tapped and yield 55,000 tons of palm gur. It is estimated that about 3·3 lakh persons are engaged in this industry. The Plan envisages an increase in production to 80,000 tons of gur. By spending about a crore of rupees, 60,000 agriculturists tappers can be trained.

Gur and Khandasari.—Gur and khandasari are well established in areas where there is not enough cane to start a sugar factory. Because the operations are near the field, the industry is carried on even in factory areas. The object of the programme is to extend the use of improved types of cane crushers to obtain a higher percentage of extraction. It is proposed that over a period of four years about 100,000 cane crushers should be introduced and the introduction of small centrifugals for the manufacturing of khandvari popularised. As a result, about 600,000 cane growers in 30,000 villages supported by 1,200 whole-time workers, 3,000 part-time workers and 4,800 honorary workers, will find employment for part of the year and contribute Rs. 20 crores more to the national product.

Leather.—According to a livestock census in 1945 there are 18.07 crores big animals and 4.40 crores sheep and goats. About one-tenth of them die every year and if the dead bodies are properly disposed of, commercial products worth Rs. 30 per big animal can be recovered. The gross income from this source will be about Rs. 40 crores per annum.

The object of the scheme is to minimise waste due to the incomplete utilisation of dead animals. The programme provides for recovery work, tanning, leather craft and organisation of co-operatives of village leather workers. The Plan has provided for an outlay of Rs. 160.57 lakhs over four years so that about 3 lakh channars in 72,000 villages and 900 tanners can make a better living.

Matches.—Eighty per cent of the production of matches is at present controlled by one international combine, and several Indian factories are now lying idle. In addition it is estimated that about 0.6 million gross is the output of the cottage industry.

The Plan seeks to treble it in four years by providing for training, certain concessions and financial assistance to the cottage industry. The All-India Village Industries Board has recommended to the Union Government that a cess be levied on large-scale production and the proceeds be used for subsidising the manufacture by cottage industry and other small-scale manufactures.

Pottery and Earthenware.—The village potter has been gradually eliminated by new tastes and requirements. On the other hand, the demand for bricks, tiles, earthen pipes and crockery has been fast rising.

The Bengal Ceramic Institute established in 1941 has been engaged in solving the problems of the cottage workers in the pottery trades and also functions as a training centre. It has successfully introduced the production of Rockingham pottery. The problem of standardising cheap, durable, and easily cleanable cooking earthenware has been taken up.

The Government Ceramic Factory at Gudur, in Andhra State has been running an artisan course since 1947 for training students in improved methods of pottery making.

In Bombay State experiments on production of low temperature vitreous ware, of glass pots for bangle making and of single fired red clay glazed articles—all from local materials—are being made at the Government demonstration centre in Belgaum district.

STATE-WISE SURVEY

The more important of the industries have been discussed above. There are, however, a good many industries in which one or the other State has specialised.

The State-wise survey in respect of which the latest data is available is summarised below:—

The hand-loom industry is the most important and by far the best organised cottage industry in Bombay State. A small spinning machine of 10 spindles to be run by power and capable of producing 2 lb. of yarn of average 20s per 8-hour shift is now being tried. Besides there are 16,000 power-looms. One unit at Surat is of the co-operative sort.

The manufacture of woollen textiles on a cottage basis has not developed but good progress has been made in art silk weaving and hosiery manufacture. Out of 35 hosiery factories, only 3 employ more than 31 workers and the rest are smaller units.

A new industry which has sprung up lately produces personal requisites such as purses, wallets, spectacle cases and brief cases out of plastic sheets. In Bombay City there are six mechanised units. Nearly 50 small establishments are engaged in the manufacture of light chemicals. Their capital outlay is about Rs. 60 lakhs and production about Rs. 1½ crores. About 1,200 persons depend on this industry.

Out of 24 paints and varnishes manufacturing industries, 20 employ 50 or less persons.

Soap and toilet industry has 14 units.

The gold and silver thread industry consists of a large number of small factories and cottage units using electric power. About 1,000 factories having a capital investment of Rs. 52 lakhs engage 4,400 persons to produce goods worth Rs. 4 crores. There are 500 units with a capital investment of Rs. 20,000 to Rs. 50,000 each and of an aggregate total of Rs. 80 lakhs and employing 5,000 workers producing goods worth Rs. 4½ crores. Only six units have a capital outlay of more than Rs. 50,000 each. These employ 150 persons and production totals Rs. 6 lakhs against a capital investment of Rs. 9½ lakhs. The industry has a good export market.

The paper and board industry received a stimulus from the Second World War.

The bulk of leather is vegetable tanned; but 15 tanneries are well organised on a cottage scale. In manufacturing leather goods machinery is being slowly introduced.

Gur and jaggery manufacture ranks next to power-loom industry and out of 420 units over 400 employ 50 or less seasonal workers. Most of the manufacturers, unlike their counterparts in Uttar Pradesh, grow their own cane.

The engineering industry has made considerable headway in the State. Out of 886 organised engineering workshops as many as 130 have capital of less than Rs. 60,000 and employ less than 50. The aggregate capital invested by them is Rs. 42 lakhs, production totals Rs. one crore and about 2,850 persons are employed in these small works. There are 50 associations with 764 factories employing 3,400 persons as members. Fifty-one industrial co-operatives account for a membership of 2,234. Iron foundries alone number 278. Of these 120 were established in the post-war period. Over 20 are engaged in the manufacture of electrical goods. Production ranges from consumer goods and steel wire products to machinery spares and automobile parts.

Madras.—Industrial Co-operatives have been accepted as the basis for promoting cottage industries in Madras. The State itself has got a well-knit organisation to look after cottage industries. The Gandhiniketan Co-operative Village Industries Ltd., Kallupatti, meets, for instance, the important needs of the surrounding villages and is looked upon as a model for reorganising village industries.

In Vellore basket making and metal industry have been built on a co-operative basis.

Rope making at Madura, pottery production in Tirunelveli district, fabrication of goods in Madurai district, bee colonies in Madras, metal works in Salem district, production of toys by women in Madras have also to be mentioned.

The research institute is concentrating mainly on the development of 15 more important cottage industries. Prior to the war there was no pottery factory in the State; but Khurja potters are today producing a variety of products.

Uttar Pradesh.—Gur manufacture is the biggest cottage industry in Uttar Pradesh. The State has initiated a scheme for raising the output by introducing superior types of Kolhus. The scheme covers 4,000 villages.

The manufacture of essential oils and scents is a traditional cottage enterprise in the State. Experimental plantation of palma rosa, peppermint and camphor bearing cinchona and lemon grass plants as well as coriander, dill and aniseed has been started and an improved type of still has been designed.

About 10,000 workers are engaged in chemical gold thread manufacture at Banaras which has invested Rs. 3 crores in the industry. It costs only two annas per tola to colour the silver thread by the process evolved by the Technological Institute, Kanpur.

The glass bead industry has also made considerable headway.

Following the partition 52 concerns have been set up by refugees for manufacturing sports goods. Their annual output is approximately Rs. 45 lakhs, and about 2,000 workers have been gainfully employed.

The State has 657 weavers' co-operatives with a membership of 87,095 weavers.

West Bengal.—For tackling the unemployment problem, the West Bengal Government has placed much emphasis on cottage industries, 13 reela's co-operatives, 5 waste silk spinners' units and 5 silk weavers co-operatives have been already formed.

A model apiary for bee-keeping has been set up in Kalimpong area. For the promotion of the khadi industry 19,556 villagers have been trained since 1948 at 26 centres covering 926 villages.

Twenty-one co-operatives have been registered for palm gur production and steps have been taken to organise the manufacture of handmade paper.

Madhya Pradesh.—The handloom industry is the principal cottage industry in Madhya Pradesh. There are 81 cottage industrial co-operatives other than handloom weavers' societies with a membership of 3,128.

The details of the more important ones are given below:—

Industry	No.	membership
Brass Metal Workers' Societies	26	291
Iron and Steel Fabrication	5	52
Leather Goods	3	76
Home Industries for Women	4	440

The plentiful supply of raw materials in the former Chhattisgarh States prompted the Government to develop cottage industries through Lokshalas.

Labour saving contrivances for cottage industries have been installed in the Cottage Industries Laboratory, Nagpur, where practical training is given to the public.

Units for automatic rope making and fibre extraction have been set up and a machine capable of producing cheap cordage out of paddy straw has been introduced.

Punjab.—Industrial co-operatives have been well developed in the Punjab. There are 294 societies with a membership of 5,548 and a working capital of Rs. 21 lakhs. Of these 10 are central institutions accounting for one-tenth of the membership and half the capital. They are mainly concerned with the purchase of raw materials on behalf of primaries and provision of credit.

Recently the Government work centres at Nilokheri were converted into seven industrial co-operatives.

The primaries are classified as under:—

Textile 136, Leather 44, metal 82, oil 46, Hosiery 7, Wood makers 9, Mat makers and Soap makers 2 each and Sports, Glue, Plastic, Calico printing, Saltpetre and Brick makers one each.

Punjab has been traditionally noted for several types of artware products. The total investment in this industry is roughly Rs. 1½ lakhs and though only about 100 persons are at present engaged in it, the scope for expansion is considered to be great.

Carpet making has been carried on in the State since early Moghul period. Practically all the carpets intended for export are made in factories or in cottages controlled by factory owners.

Orissa.—Filigree and horn industries, two of the cottage industries of the State having a large export potential date from ancient times. The industries languished after the Moghul period but are now being revived. At present there are 150 filigree workers confined only to three different centres of Cuttack—Maninghpata specialising in decorative and furniture works, Muhammadia Bazar famous for flowery work and Dagarpada specialising in filigree ornaments.

During the war as many as 1,500 persons were engaged in producing articles from horn; but now hardly 200 are able to find any work. The industry is generally run individually but co-operative effort is once again being made.

Typical of the organisation in the State is the "Orissa Poor Industries Cottage" a private institute, started in 1926. It carries out experiments on processes of producing articles, utilisation of materials available in villages without much cost and on tools and demonstrates the production of useful articles of handicrafts practically out of waste.

Bihar.—This is the only State which produces shell buttons from the mother-of-pearl. Started in 1908, there are now 45 factories in Mehul almost the whole population of which is engaged in this industry.

Assam.—The Cottage Industries Department has confined its activities to cottage industries like soap manufacture, bee-keeping, handmade paper and shellac. The Government Paper Tralung Institute, Shillong, produces large quantities of file-boards, envelopes, and a variety of handmade paper. Industrial loans are granted at 5 per cent. interest. Production of mulberry silk has doubled since 1947, while that of eri and muga is about 5½ lakh lb. The provision in the budget for cottage industries has been doubled from Rs. 4.32 lakhs in 1948-49. The traditional crafts of the State are hushai rugs dyed in different colours, dinner mats, Manipuri articles and shoulder bags.

Manipur.—Cottage industries such as handloom cotton and silk weaving, gold smithy, carpentry, pottery and tailoring collectively constitute the basis of the economic life of the people. The Government has drawn up a scheme of development for most of the industries. Out of a total population of six lakhs, 1½ lakhs are weavers.

Hyderabad.—The State's five-year plan has set the target of bringing 25,000 craftsmen into productive activity and of adding Rs. 5 crores to the national income.

The whole State has been divided into zones and each of them will have a warehouse, a workshop and a training centre. The industries to be covered are handloom weaving, leather goods manufacture, oil and perfumery, pottery and earthenware, woodwork and bamboo, chemicals, dyes and fertilisers, stone and slate cutting, food and dairy products, forest industry, and kambal, carpet and woollen goods manufacture.

Almost all of them are in existence but the methods are crude, equipment poor and organisation absent.

In the new set-up there will be primary industrial Co-operatives of which the Federation of Industrial Co-operatives will be the apex body for procuring raw materials and equipment and providing finance.

Two renowned cottage industries of the State are the filigree and Himroo industries. About 120 goldsmiths in Karimnagar are experts in filigree. The Himroo fabric of Aurangabad is a richly ornamented production with diversified colour schemes. At one time 200 looms were working in 40 factories; but today only three factories exist. The earnings of a Himroo weaver are about Rs. 45 to Rs. 60 per month, while the draw-boy gets about eight annas per day. Efforts are being made to revive this industry.

Madhya Bharat.—Cottage industries occupy a key position in the economy of Madhya Bharat and provide means of livelihood for 10 per cent. of the population.

No survey of these industries has been taken but the following figures of employment have been officially published:—

Textiles	26,914
Leather manufacture	24,052
Clay	20,809
Wood Working	16,927
Metal Industries	16,083
Oilseed pressing	12,546
Bamboo and Baskets	5,418
Miscellaneous	31,443
TOTAL	153,992

Among the new industries now being started mention may be made of sericulture near Indore, palm gird making in the Adivasi areas of Jabua and Dhar, leather toy making, bee-keeping and lac cultivation.

The State's Five-year Plan provides for an expenditure of Rs. 50 lakhs on development of cottage industries, and embraces a programme for (a) establishment of a provincial handloom weavers' society, (2) installation of a milling and finishing plant at Mandsaur, (3) creation of a pottery centre at Mandsaur for utilising waste shale from the quarries, (4) establishment of wood working institutes at Indore and Bhilsa, and (5) formation of 12 peripatetic demonstration parties.

Mysore.—Wood carving is an ancient industry in the State. In villages hand-driven lathes are used. About 400 families are engaged in this industry in Mysore and Shimoga districts, where teak, rose wood, sandal wood and ivory are in plenty. In Sri Chamarajendra Technical Institute a five-year course has been introduced. About 200 students have so far been trained and most of them have started small workshops.

Inlaying work is an art practised in Mysore since the 17th century. In Mysore and Bangalore cities, about 100 workmen grouped in 20 centres are engaged in this industry.

The drugget industry is about 200 years old and provides employment for over 800 persons. To develop it, the Centre has set up an all-India Drugget Board.

Rajasthan.—Calico printing is done all over the State but tie and dye printing requiring high dexterity and skill is a speciality. In handloom weaving yarn of even 120s is used. Khadi industry gives work to thousands of people. Coir and rope making is practised in almost every village. Niwar manufacture is another allied industry. Jaipur and Khandela are famous for Gota Kinari.

Rajasthan is the biggest wool producing State in India. And spinning of wool gives employment to a large number. Weaving is done on ordinary looms and products are coarse. Jodhpur and Jaipur are famous for the manufacture of embroidered shawls.

Jaipur produces the best type of brass work in the whole of India. Enamelling on metals with the help of shellac soluble colours is done at Jaipur and Nathdwara.

Hand-made paper is produced at Sanganer, Gosunda and Kotah.

Other lines include marble idols, lac, bangles, stone polishing and carving, bamboo baskets, chicks, lacquered toys and scents. The cutting of synthetic stones and precious stones alone supports 3,000 families in Jaipur.

Saurashtra.—The State Cottage Industries Board is concerned with the task of putting the cottage industries in the State on a sound footing.

Handloom industry is, next to agriculture, the major industry. It is poised to open a handloom centre where weavers will be called to work and learn on a wage basis.

Leather tanning has been organised and supply of implements and tanning materials is subsidised. Efforts are being made to popularise palm-gur and the Board is running six centres in which 62 students were trained in 1951-52.

Bee-keeping is still in an experimental stage.

There are about 14,000 handlooms supporting 36,000 families.

The rest of the industries are scattered. These include wooden toys, ornaments, wood-working, button manufacture, clay and plaster modelling, carpet weaving, stoneware articles and basket making.

An Industrial Co-operative Association has been fostered by the State Government with substantial capital for organising artisans on co-operative basis and to supply them with raw materials at controlled prices.

Travancore-Cochin.—Besides the coir industry, the State specialises in palm gur, handloom weaving, pottery, wood carving and bee-keeping. A Cottage Industries Board has been set up to ensure an orderly development of industries. The establishment of an industrial museum and sales emporia for cottage industries has been decided on.

Himachal Pradesh.—The main cottage industries are wool spinning and weaving, manufacture of leather goods, paints and varnishes, phenyle and sealing wax. There are 2,607 handloom and 26 industrial co-operatives. Expansion of sericulture, textiles, wood working, sports, basket-ware, pottery and matches is contemplated. A sum of Rs. 7½ lakhs was budgeted for this purpose in 1953-54.

The sericulture industry exists in all districts. There are two training institutes. A spinning mill for woollen yarn is being established at Jogindernagar. Schemes are under way for starting hand-weaving.

Clays in Mandi district are suitable for manufacturing stoneware, small containers and cheap crockery.

The plan provides for the manufacture of Mangalore tiles at Paonta and of slates in Mandi and Chamba.

Ajmer.—The Ajmer State is one of the biggest wool exporting centres. Low quality woollen goods are produced in the State. Handloom weaving is an important industry accounting for nearly 2,000 weavers, 2,300 handlooms and 26 Weavers' Societies. Tobacco and sup making industries give employment to over 4,000 persons. Button manufacture is a new industry. The two factories at Bawar use dome as raw material.

Coorg.—Coorg is a good honey producing area. Co-operatives have been well developed and have marketing organisations all over the State.

FILM INDUSTRY

At the end of 1952 there were nearly 2,400 cinemas in buildings and about 850 in tents or other similar structures. The average capacity of a permanent theatre in India is about 600, ranging between 400 and 1,200. The annual attendance was computed at 60 crores. The cost of a large theatre in major cities might exceed Rs. 8 lakhs; but smaller theatres predominate in numbers and the average cost of such a theatre would be about one lakh of rupees. The over-all capital outlay in the exhibition section would amount to nearly Rs. 26 crores.

The annual production of films was about 275 in 1949 and 1950 and the average cost of a picture was about Rs. 3½ lakhs. There were nearly 60 studios with their equipment costing about Rs. 4 crores and 38 processing laboratories with a capital investment of Rs. 2 crores. Some 70,000 workers were engaged in the industry. According to the Patil Committee, the net revenue was about Rs. 20 crores. Nevertheless the enterprise was profitable to a comparatively small proportion of producers.

FILM PRODUCTION

India occupies a second place in the world industry from the point of production. The

The details regarding the more recent production trends are given below :—

	Total		Bombay		W. Bengal		South
	Hindi	Regional Language	Hindi	Regional Language	Hindi	Regional Language	Hindi	Regional Language
1950 ..	115	126	106	38	7	44	2	44
1951 ..	100	121	91	27	5	40	4	54
1952 ..	102	131	91	21	6	42	5	68

Since 1947 production, particularly of Hindi films, has been steadily on the decline and that of films in regional languages has been steadily rising. Western India continues to be the major producing centre, but Bombay's share has fallen from 75 per cent. in 1946 to less than 60 per cent. in 1952. Another significant development is the production of pictures in colour, one picture in colour was released in 1952 and another early in 1953. The release position has considerably improved since 1951 and there is no longer a back-log of unreleased pictures. The terms of exhibition have also partially come down and the production costs have declined.

SHORT FILMS

"Short Films" include documentaries, news-reels, cartoons and comic strips. The industry has hardly evinced any interest in this line. The Information Films of India set up by the Government of India in February 1943 produced documentaries in five languages, namely, English, Hindi, Bengali, Tamil and Telugu. The themes were selected by the Department of Information and Broadcasting and 101 shorts were produced until the Division was closed in May 1948. During the war Government activity was extended to the production of newsreels and cartoons also.

The Films Division as a branch of the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting was set up in Bombay early in 1948. Till 1950 it produced 70 documentaries. Besides the stipulation that all exhibitors shall show "approved" films at each show, the rental is charged by the Films Division.

The annual report of the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting for 1952-53 says that the Films Division produced and released 89 documentaries (including 7 obtained from outside producers) as against 36 last year. An important feature of the year was the production of two colour "shorts". The scheme for producing progress of film production from 1948 is given below :—

Year	Number of films passed by Censors.
1948 ..	264
1949 ..	289
1950 ..	241
1951 ..	221
1952 ..	233

The production activity is virtually confined to Bombay, West Bengal and Madras. Bombay concentrates on films in Hindi, Marathi and Gujarati. Bengal's production is chiefly in Bengali and to a lesser extent in Hindi, and Madras produces films in regional languages of south India, namely, Tamil, Telugu, Kannada and Malayalam. In 1939, 94 producers produced 167 films and the highest production by any single producer was nine. In 1948, 211 producers produced 264 films, the highest number of films produced by any single producer being only six. The number of "newcomer independents", having neither their own studios nor any previous connection with the industry, is large, and "infant mortality" among them is also heavy. In 1947, out of 214 producers, newcomers were 156; but in the following year only 54 out of 214 survived, though the number of newcomers reached 157. Only 25 producers could claim to be in the industry for three consecutive years from 1946 to 1948.

documentaries for State Governments on payment by them of half the cost did not receive adequate response. Films Division shorts are now being screened in several countries. It also organised an International Film Festival in 1952. Two units will be set up for producing films in 35 mm. and 16 mm. dealing with Community Projects and three units will be started for producing 18 educational films every year.

16 MM. FILMS

The 16 mm. film has not received the attention it deserves. Its potentialities have not yet been adequately explored.

Economy of cost and storage are two main factors in favour of the 16 mm. film (1,000 ft. of 35 mm. = 400 ft. of 16 mm.). Colour is also easily available and the film can be processed and copies made in India itself.

About 50 full length Indian features, mainly in Hindi, Marathi and Gujarati, are available in 16 mm. The layout for the 16 mm. film theatre is small and the whole equipment is portable (about the size of two portable typewriters in all). There is therefore a vast scope for the development of the 16 mm. theatre on commercial lines. The general practice in this matter is, however, very strange. Whenever features are reduced to 16 mm., the new versions are released only after the exploitation of the standard size is complete.

There are 16 mm. libraries of films suitable for non-theatrical audiences maintained by the British Information Services and the U.S. Information Services through their regional offices. These offices also maintain trucks equipped with projecting machinery, and shows are arranged free of cost wherever wanted. Many industrial houses have also made good films, some in colour, of great value for education or information and they are easily available for showing through schools and institutions.

In the Defence Forces, 16 mm. films have been extensively used for training and entertainment. There are Inspectors of Visual Education under Directors of Public Instruction in the States who do valuable service by using 16 mm. projectors in educational institutions. They are, however, mainly dependent on imported films. The biggest single 16 mm. library of films in India is maintained by the Inspector of Visual Education in Bombay who makes the films available regularly to schools under him. The Ministry of Education in Delhi has recently started building up a library of 16 mm. educational films. The work done through the Social Education Scheme of the Madhya Pradesh Government is also worthy of note, particularly because of the exhibition arrangements through 26 well-equipped motor vans.

FILM DISTRIBUTION

Distribution as a distinct unit is a relatively recent development. In 1928 there were 11 film distributing agencies all dealing in foreign films. In 1938 their number rose to 214 and, ten years later, to 887. On the other hand, distributors of foreign films dropped from 27 in 1938 to 10 in 1948. The table relating to distributors is given below :—

	1938	1948
Eastern Circuit (Bengal, Bihar and Assam) ..	25	134
Central Circuit (Madhya Pradesh, Madhya Bharat, Rajasthan and Bhopal) ..	5	49
Northern Circuit (Uttar Pradesh, Punjab and Delhi) ..	34	168
Western Circuit (Bombay and Saurashtra) ..	32	153
Southern Circuit (Madras, Mysore and Hyderabad) ..	118	383
Distributors of Foreign Films	27	10
Distributors of 16 mm. Features ..	—	27
Total ..	241	924

The main export market for Indian films is Pakistan; but Indian exporters are now being put to considerable difficulties. Other markets are countries where there are large groups of Indians such as Malaya, Indo-China, Burma, Ceylon and Africa. Imports of exposed cinematograph films have been fairly heavy. Until 1936-37 imports remained below 10.8 million feet, touched a peak at 26 million feet in 1938-39 and dropped to 6.9 million feet in 1942-43 owing to wartime conditions. In the post-war period imports recovered to 16.2 million in 1945-46 and thereafter fluctuated between 15 million feet and 12 million feet. Under the import control regulations, import of foreign films are subjected to a monetary ceiling and distributors are authorised to remit up to 70 per cent. of the gross revenue.

The years 1952 and 1953 marked a period of acute depression for distributors and exhibitors. In Sholapur (Bombay State) the competition became so intense that five cinemas reduced the rates of admission to a flat rate of one anna for all classes. The Government of Bombay imposed additional restrictions on touring cinemas precluding them from visiting an area declared as the Sarvodaya area or a place with a population of less than 2,000. No touring cinema can visit a place in Bombay State within a year from the date another one was operating in that State nor can it return to the same place for a period of three years. The Films Division also raised the rental on "approved" films.

Recommendations of the Film Enquiry Committee.—The following is a summary of the more important recommendations of the Film Enquiry Committee :—

(1) A Film Council of India as the central authority should be set up to regulate the industry and to advise the State and Central Governments on matters connected with production distribution, and exhibition of films. The Council should have statutory powers in regard to licensing of studios and supervise training institutions.

(2) There should be Production Code Administration on the lines of the one in the U.S.A. with four regional branches in Delhi, Calcutta, Bombay and Madras and a Central Office. Its main task should be to avoid wastage. At the same time, the restriction on footage should be withdrawn.

(3) A Film Finance Corporation should be established to provide finance to the industry on the condition that the producer raises at least one-fourth of the capital.

(4) The entertainment tax should be on an ad valorem basis at the level of 20 per cent. of the gross takings. Half the proceeds should be earmarked for the Film Council and 5 per cent. of the proceeds should be earmarked for the initial capital of the Film Finance Corporation. The fee charged from the producers for certification should be nominal. Films should be exempted from the operation of octroi and terminal taxes. Internal customs duties and police charges should have no place. The licence fees for storage of films should cover the actual overhead charges. The show tax imposed by Municipalities is unjustified.

(5) Imports of raw film should be on the O. G. L. and the Film Council should put the ceiling on consumption at 240 million feet.

(6) The exhibition of "approved" films of an informative or instructive nature as an essential part of each programme has proved quite successful and should be continued. Such compulsion should not, however, exceed one-tenth of the total screen-time for each show.

None of the above recommendations has been implemented by the Government.

CINEMATOGGRAPH ACT

The regulations of films for exhibition and of the cinemas is carried under the Indian Cinematograph Act. The power of certifying films was until the amendment of the Act in 1949 vested in the State Governments. Since production was concentrated in the three States of Bombay, Bengal and Madras and imports also mainly took place through the three ports in those States, the first examination of films for certification was done mainly by the Boards at these three cities. The Act as amended in 1949 made a distinction between films considered suitable for exhibition to adults only and those suitable for general exhibition.

The Act was amended in 1952 and a Bill was introduced in Parliament in November 1952 to amend the Act with a view to removing certain defects noticed in the course of actual administration. Under the law the responsibility for deciding whether a film is or is not suitable for public exhibition is entrusted to the Central Board of Film Censors; but powers are vested in the Central Government to declare that any film already certified as uncertified and notice has to be given to the person who has been granted certificate to show cause why the film should not be uncertified. This delay is sought to be avoided by the amendment. Provision has also been made in the Bill making it obligatory on persons delivering a certified film to a distributor or exhibitor to transmit information and documents relating to the certificate which would enable punishment of the exhibitor if he shows the film with portions cut out by the Board before certification. The difficulties encountered in proceedings against persons for interpolation and exhibition of unauthorised scenes in certified films are sought to be encountered by the Bill. Enhancement of the penalty has also been suggested. The Bill was passed in April 1953.

The censorship rules amended in January 1953 provide that no certificate will be issued until a copy of the film as certified in 35 mm. or 16 mm. or a shooting script of the film is deposited with the Board and that the certificate shall be valid for five years from the date of its issue.

During the period April 1, 1952 to January 31, 1953 the Central Board of Film Censors examined 2,298 films of which 59 were also examined by Revising Committees in addition to Examining Committees. 2,434 films were granted certificates. Of these 2,411 were 'U' and 23 'A' certificates. 21 films were refused certification, while a number of films were certified after exclusion of certain portions. The total footage ordered to be cut during the period was 46,995. Appeals were received by the Government in respect of 8 films. Three were rejected and in the case of 2 the decision of the Board was reversed. In regard to the remaining three films, the Board was asked to issue certificates subject to certain cuts. 15 films were re-examined by Reviewing Committees of the Board. The certificates of two of these were converted from 'U' to 'A' and in the case of six films orders for exclusion of certain portions were issued. During the period 711 films were certified as predominantly educational.

GLASS INDUSTRY

THE more commonly used raw materials are: sand, borax, soda ash and salt cake, dolomite, lime or limestone, salt petre and sulphur, manganese dioxide and colouring materials. Though supplies of sand are in plenty, its quality is not uniform. Nearly all the glass factories of northern India and West Bengal obtain their requirements of sand from the Allahabad district. Subsequent to the Tariff Board's inquiry in 1932, little progress has been made in the installation of grading and washing equipment for sand. Borax is mostly obtained from abroad, while soda ash is received from indigenous manufacturers and importers. Sufficient quantities of lime or limestone are available. Coal is the commonest fuel. The bulk of refractories is obtained from indigenous sources. The demand for refractories by the glass industry is estimated at about 10,000 tons per year.

The industry comprises the manufacture of sheet glass, blown and pressedware and bangles. The industry has developed mainly under the private sector with reported capital investment of Rs. 5.78 crores in 1951.

Some 26,000 workers excluding those engaged in cottage industries are employed in the industry. Government protection to the sheet glass section was granted in 1950.

The total number of factories in 1951 was 109 and their regional distribution was as under:—

State.	No. of units.	Annual rated capacity.
		Tons.
West Bengal	30	63,600
Bombay	22	43,560
Uttar Pradesh	21	36,960
Madras	8	6,850
Bihar	8	16,380
Madhya Pradesh	5	4,220
Punjab and Pepsu	4	4,140

Rajasthan	2	900
Hyderabad	2	3,960
Saurashtra	1	360
Mysore	1	720
Travancore-Cochin	1	600
Orissa	1	3,600
Madhya Bharat	1	1,800
Total	109	188,850

Besides there were 35 units with an installed capacity of 30,000 tons which had not been in operation for over three years bringing the total capacity of all the units in the country in 1951 to 218,850 tons.

The manufacture of bangles was undertaken by about 100 units, mostly established on a cottage industry basis and localised in the Ferozabad district in Uttar Pradesh and Belgaum district in Bombay. The rated capacity of these factories was placed at 35,000 tons. In the sheet glass section there were three units in existence in 1950-51 with a combined rated capacity of 23.4 million sq. ft. equivalent to about 11,700 tons.

OUTPUT

Actual output of glassware is shown by the following table:

	1949	1950	1951
	Tons.	Tons.	Tons.

„ in million sq. ft. ..	(3.5)	(9.57)	(11.1)
Total	85,760	103,270	112,743

During 1952 the actual production, however, showed a decline. The output of sheet glass dropped to nine million sq. ft. and that of laboratory glass to 1,476 tons. A small increase of a little over 10 per cent was noted under glass shells for electric lamps whose production rose from 144 lakh pieces to 166.8 lakh pieces in 1952; but the other glassware reported a fall from 90,324 tons in 1951 to 85,224 tons in the following year.

The year was notable for a good increase of 30,000 tons in the capacity on account of 8 new units coming into existence.

Imports and exports are as follows:

DEVELOPMENT PLANS

For meeting the domestic and export needs, other than bangles. Even then imports of glass to the extent of Rs. 30 lakhs might be necessary in 1952-53 and of Rs. 20 lakhs in 1955-56.

The following table summarises the programme of development during the period of the Plan —

HIDES, SKINS AND LEATHER

THE Republic is regarded as a surplus area in respect of its resources of raw hides and skins. It is estimated that normally it produces 16.2 million cow hides, 6.5 million buffalo hides, 23.2 million goat and 15.1 million sheep skins a year. Only a portion of the cattle and buffalo hides is obtained from slaughtered animals and the bulk, about 75 to 80 per cent, is derived from animals that die a natural death.

The bulk of the production is carried on in small towns and villages.

The tanning industry comprises four sections, viz., 1. organised tanneries producing finished vegetable tanned buffalo leather and chrome tanned upper leather; 2. tanneries producing vegetable tanned leather known to the trade as E. I. kips and E. I. tanned skins; 3. small-scale chrome tanneries producing chrome tanned upper leather; and 4. village tanneries producing vegetable tanned cow and buffalo leather and vegetable tanned leather from goat and sheep skins.

The number of factories and annual rated capacity in 1950 of each of these sections was as follows :—

—	Number of factories.	Capacity in million.
1.	26 (16 produce chrome)	3.184 (hides for vegetable tanning) 1.976 (hides for chrome tanning)
2.	500	10 (tanned hides) 20 (tanned skins)
3.	250	3 (hides)
4.	..	8 to 9 (raw hides) 3 to 4 (raw goat and sheep skins)

The second section is mainly concentrated in south India, while the third is located in Calcutta and worked by the Chinese.

The main problems about raw material relate to the supply of hides and skins and wattle bark. Supplies of hides have to be arranged from Pakistan. As for wattle bark, the Government of Madras is reported to be taking steps for bringing about 21,000 acres under wattle plantation.

FOOTWEAR INDUSTRY

The principal use of leather is for the production of footwear. According to the Monthly Statistics of Selected Industries, nine of the large-scale factories in existence had an annual capacity of 4.7 million pairs of Western type footwear in 1951, while small-scale factories and cottage units turn out annually about 13 million pairs of Western type footwear, and 70 million pairs of the indigenous kind.

The output of the large-scale factories since 1948 is given below :—

—	Western type (million pairs).	Indian type (million pairs).
1948 ..	3.202	2.068
1949 ..	2.850	2.108
1950 ..	2.837	1.997
1951 ..	3.641	2.074
1952 ..	3.367	1.806

On the basis of the level of footwear production estimated at 85 million pairs in 1950-51, the requirements of raw materials are approximately 10.25 million tanned hides and 4 million tanned skins, 4.51 million reels for upper and 300 tons for others of thread, 240 million pieces of eyelets, 1,100 tons of other items of grindery and 7.5 million yards of abrasives.

Imports and Exports are as follows :—

no. of pairs.
—	1948-49.	1949-50.	1950-51.	1951-52.
Imports	24,140	Negligible
Exports	778,145	380,933	539,228	1,417,506

The Planning Commission thinks that exports during the period of the Plan should fluctuate between 0.539 million pairs and one million pairs and has recommended that the production should be raised from 85 million pairs in 1950-51 to 91 million pairs by 1955-56 by fuller utilisation of the existing capacity of large-scale factories, and through the establishment of 100 new small-scale units each with a daily output of 100 pairs of Indian type.

PRODUCTION

The following is the trend of production :—

Year.	Chrome and tanned hides.	Vegetable tanned buffalo and cow hides (in terms of cow hides).	Leather cloth (000 yards).
	(thousands)	(thousands)
1948	1,087.2	1,958.4
1949	580.8	1,834.8
1950	879.6	1,514.4
1951	650.4	1,704.0	1,808.8
1952	823.2	1,478.4	845.0

According to the census of manufactures, 1950, the total fixed investment in 81 factories giving employment to 8,330 workers in 1950 was Rs. 85 lakhs and the working capital Rs. 261 lakhs.

The annual requirements of raw materials at the beginning of 1950-51 were :—

Raw hides—20 million pieces; raw skins—25 million pieces; lime—25,000 to 30,000 tons; wattle bark and wattle bark extract—30,000 tons (imported); other barks—300,000 tons; myrabolans—25,000 to 30,000 tons; sodium sulphide—700 tons; boric acid—1,000 tons; sulphuric acid—1,500 tons; sodium bichromate—1,200 tons; sodium thiosulphate—300 tons; fish and vegetable oils—4,000 tons; coal tar dyes—125 tons; artificial dyes—60 tons; water and nitrocellulose pigment finishes—150 tons; and tallow—1,000 tons.

Imports of manufactured leather are insignificant, but exports play a vital part in the foreign trade as shown below :—

JUTE INDUSTRY

The following table gives the details of the production trends of raw jute in the Indian Union :—

Year	Lakh acres	000 bales

1950-51	14.5	3,270
1951-52	19.5	4,677
1952-53	18.84	4,695

Following the partition India has not only ceased to be an exporter of raw jute but presently depends on imports from Pakistan. These are arranged under bilateral trade pacts concluded periodically for a short duration.

The statistical position of raw jute for 1951-52 season (actual) and for 1952-53 season (estimated) is given below :—

JUTE INDUSTRY

In 1950 there were 112 registered jute mills with a total number of 72,161 looms ; of these 101 were located in West Bengal.

The loomage on June 30, 1951 was 72,235 capable of producing 100,000 tons of jute goods per month. 107 mills had a fixed capital of Rs. 29.81 crores and a working capital of Rs. 87.4 crores in 1950. In the same year, 306,000 workers found employment in the industry.

The progress of the industry during the past few years is summed up in the following table :—

Ever since the devaluation of the Indian rupee and non-devaluation of the Pakistani rupee, supplies of raw jute from Pakistan badly needed by Indian jute mills became difficult and while there was a boom in the demand for jute goods due to outbreak of hostilities in Korea in mid-1950, the production of jute goods outside India considerably increased. This competition became intense following Pakistan's decision to charge a higher price for supplies meant for India and, consequently, the Government reduced the export duty in May 1952 from Rs. 750 to Rs. 275 per ton in the case of hessian and from Rs. 350 to Rs. 175 on sacking. With effect from March 1, 1953, export duty on sacking was lowered further to Rs. 80. Efforts were also made to stimulate American offtake of jute goods by sending a goodwill mission. On March 30, 1953 the working hours were reduced from 48 to 42 1/2.

The main problems facing the industry, observes the Planning Commission, are shortage of raw material, modernisation of equipment and possible competition in the foreign markets from substitutes and other products. Lack of finance is a major factor deterring the industry from undertaking modernisation. The task, therefore, is to utilise the existing capacity more fully by procuring greater supplies of raw jute. On this basis, it hopes that the output of the mills can be stepped up from 858,000 tons in 1950-51 to 1,200,000 tons in 1955-56 and exports from 650,000 tons to 1,000,000 tons.

LAC INDUSTRY

LAC is a resin which finds extensive application in industries. It is a resinous protective secretion of an insect which lives by sucking the sap of certain trees and shrubs called lac hosts.

There are four crops of sticklac, named after the Hindu months in which the collection of each crop commences. These are 'Baisakhi' and 'Katki' from one strain of the insect (Rangeeni) and 'Jethwi' and 'Aghani' from another strain (Kusumi). The first processed product, after the crushing and washing of sticklac is known as 'seedlac'. From this shellac is manufactured.

Sticklac is generally an Indian product though for some time now Thailand has been a competitor.

The average production of sticklac in different States from 1946 to 1953, a period during which shellac was free from price control, is as follows:—

States.	Average crop (In maunds)
Bihar	673,019
Madhya Pradesh	290,041
West Bengal	48,535
Vindhya Pradesh	33,272
Assam	21,379
Orissa	20,349
Bombay	15,211
Uttar Pradesh	11,633
Other States	27,480
Total	1,141,819

There are no regulated markets for trading in sticklac.

Out of the 489 factories in the country, 405 are located in Bihar; only two are, however, fully mechanized.

Yield from sticklac varies from year to year and locality to locality.

Roughly the yield of seedlac and shellac is 65 per cent and 55 per cent of sticklac.

The cost of manufacturing one maund of shellac from seedlac is about Rs. 16 and of converting sticklac into seedlac is Rs. 3. In 1939 these were roughly Rs. 3-8 and as. 8 respectively.

Prices of shellac and seedlac have been subject to wide fluctuations.

During the first war, the price of T. N. Shellac at Calcutta ranged between Rs. 32 and Rs. 50 per maund but the upward movement initiated in 1917-18 lifted it beyond Rs. 200 in October 1920. Then followed a downward trend except for a slight recovery in 1927-28 and 1934-35, and the rate touched the bottom at Rs. 18 in 1933-34 and sought a fresh lower level at Rs. 13 per maund by April-June 1939.

During the Second World War—July 1942 to April 1946—the prices were controlled on T. N. basis at Rs. 64 and later at Rs. 71.

After decontrol, the prices started rising, but in March 1950 they fell to Rs. 95 on T. N. basis as compared with an average price of Rs. 130 in December 1949.

Following the outbreak of the Korean war, the price touched Rs. 190 in January 1951 but declined by the end of March 1952 to Rs. 92 per maund.

During 1952-53 the market was subdued with pure T. N. Shellac fluctuating between Rs. 84 and Rs. 66. There has been a firm trend since 1953 April and in November the rate was around Rs. 107 per maund.

About 90 per cent of the total quantity of processed goods is exported.

The U.S. is the best customer, followed by the U.K. and Germany.

EXPORTS

The data relating to the average annual exports in seven years preceding the War (1932-33 to 1938-39) and in the corresponding post-war period (1946-47 to 1952-53) are given below:—

Lac has made significant contributions to the development of art and industry.

Shellac is consumed chiefly by five industries.

The gramophone industry consumes about 11 to 13 thousand tons.

The varnishes and paint industry absorbs something like 4 to 6 thousand tons.

The total demand from the electrical industry is estimated at 3,000 tons as against 6,000 tons in pre-war years.

Nearly 3,000 tons are used in the hat industry as a stiffening material.

The manufacture of sealing wax requires about 1,500 tons.

The Indian Lac Association for Research was formed by traders in Calcutta in 1921 and the Government found the funds by levying a cess on all exports of lac other than refuse lac at as. 4 per maund and for refuse lac as. 2 per maund.

The Indian Lac Cess Committee was established under the Lac Cess Act of 1930 and the cess was raised to as. 7 and as. 5 respectively. With effect from April 1948 this cess was doubled.

The Government of Bihar appointed in January 1953 a Committee to report on the condition of the industry and to recommend remedial measures.

Some of the more important recommendations are given below:—

(1) The fukka in the trade should be replaced by a system of specific delivery contracts.

(2) Export of seedlac and shellac on consignment should be stopped, and floors and ceilings should be fixed for prices of seedlac and shellac. Export of sticklac should be banned.

(3) The total lac production in the country should be raised by approximately three lakh maunds a year during the next five years.

(4) The Indian Lac Cess Committee should be replaced by a Lac Board whose functions should correspond to those of the Tea Board.

In addition to effective propaganda abroad for increased consumption of shellac, steps should be taken to stimulate domestic consumption also.

NON-FERROUS INDUSTRY

ACCORDING to Dr. D. N. Wadia, formerly Mineral Adviser to the Government of India, mineral resources of India for aluminium, copper and antimony are sufficient to meet our present and future requirements. As regards lead, zinc and tin, our resources are not likely to be sufficient and imports will be required to meet the deficiency in these metals. And about the rest of the non-ferrous metals, our mineral resources are negligible. The position regarding these metals is briefly described below:

(a) Aluminium Ores—India is rich in deposits of high grade Bauxite which are estimated at 250 million tons. These are generally located in Jabalpur and Balaghat Districts of Madhya Pradesh, Belgaum, Kolhapur, Thana and Kalra Districts in Bombay; Ranchi Plateau in Bihar; and Shevaroy Hills in Salem, Madras.

(b) Copper Ores—Copper pyrites is the principal ore of copper. The deposits of copper pyrites in India are in Singbhum and Baragunda in Bihar; Khetri mines in Jalpur; Sikkim State, Mysore State and in the Salem District of Madras State. Although only the Singbhum deposits are worked at present, the copper belts of Sikkim and Khetri are very promising.

(c) Lead Ores—Lead ores are known to occur at a number of places in India. Special mention may be made, however, of lead deposits in Jalpur and in Zawar Mines in Udaipur, where lead is found in association with zinc; in Chhota Udaipur in Gujarat and in Hazaribagh in Bihar.

(d) Antimony Ores—Antimony ore deposits have been found at the Shigree Glacier in Lahaul, Kangra District, Punjab (India).

(e) Zinc Ores—At present zinc deposits are known to occur at only two places in India: Zawar mines in Udaipur and in the Riasin District in Kashmir State.

(f) Tin Ores—Several localities are known in India where tin stone (Cassiterite) has been found in small quantities. The most interesting of these areas is that in the Hazaribagh District of Bihar. None of these ores are said to be very promising.

PRODUCTION OF METAL

The only non-ferrous metal produced in India before the war was copper. The Indian Copper Corporation Ltd. started working the Singbhum copper deposits in Bihar in 1928-29.

The production of refined copper in tons is as follows: 1946—6,310; 1947—5,932; 1948—5,864; 1949—6,390; 1950—6,614; 1951—7,083; 1952—8,070.

There was practically no refining industry for the recovery of metal from scrap and most of the industrial non-ferrous scrap was exported to Japan and Germany.

As regards processing of semi-manufactures the only production was of brass sheets by the Indian Copper Corporation Ltd. averaging about 8,000 tons per annum, and electric copper wires and insulated cables by the Indian Cable Co. Ltd. A more recent development is the manufacture of brass and copper pipes and tubes. Their annual capacity is 300 tons but the actual production has never exceeded 11 tons and 60 tons respectively.

For antimony a smelter was set up during the war at Bombay by the Star Metal Refinery with a capacity of 300 tons per annum. This capacity has now been increased to 700 tons, per annum. The ore brought from Chitral State (Pakistan) was used for smelting antimony and the plant had reached full production in 1946-47. After the partition of the sub-continent, the ore supplies from Chitral were cut off and as a result the production suffered. The production from 1949 to 1952 was 100 tons in 1949, 375 tons in 1950, 527 tons in 1951, and 181 in 1952.

There is a new Lead Smelter at Katrasgarh in Bihar with a capacity of 7,000 tons per annum. The production of lead in 1949 and 1950 was, however, only about 600 tons a year due to the difficulties of transporting ore from the Jawar mines in Udaipur to the Smelter. The company has now set up an ore dressing plant at the mines which will reduce the weight of the ore to be transported. The capacity of this plant is reported to be 9,000 to 10,000 tons of lead concentrates of 60 to 65 per cent. lead and 7,000 to 8,000 tons of zinc concentrates averaging 55 per cent. zinc. The production in tons is as follows: 1948—625; 1949—594; 1950—627; 1951—859; 1952—1,131.

No progress has been made in the production of zinc in India. Although the Jawar mines were originally prospected by the Geological Survey of India for zinc and although the ore in the Jawar mines contains about 18 per cent. lead and 9 per cent. zinc, there is no immediate proposal for producing zinc. The present plans are only to produce from the zinc-bearing ores lithopone and zinc oxide which are required for the paint industry.

SEMI-MANUFACTURES

The greatest progress in the non-ferrous industry made since 1939 is in regard to the semi-manufactures. Several brass and copper rolling plants were started for rolling brass and copper sheets mainly in Bombay. The combined capacity of these new plants is about 20,000 tons per annum.

Some lead sheets are also manufactured in the Calcutta area, but at present they are rolled in 3 ft. width, while the chemical industries require lead sheets of 7 to 9 ft. width. Aluminium and lead foils for tea-chests are also manufactured in the Calcutta area and the present capacity is estimated to be sufficient to meet India's requirements.

Several rolling plants for rods and bars of brass, copper, etc. were started during the war; afterwards an Extrusion Press was set up in Calcutta by National Tubes and Pipes Ltd. Arsenical copper rods which are required for railway locomotives as boiler stays were manufactured in Jalpur by the Jalpur Metal Industries Ltd. during the war and all the requirements of railways can be met by indigenous production. The present capacity for rods and tubes of brass and copper may be estimated at about 10,000 tons, which is enough to meet the present requirements of the country. The manufacture of lead pipes was started during the war at Konnanagar.

A new plant for lead pipes was also set up in Bombay during 1949. The present production is about 330 tons per annum, but this could be increased to 1,000 tons, if required.

A plant for the manufacture of electrical wires and cables was set up near Calcutta during the war by the National Insulated Cable Co. The total production of electrical bare copper wire and cables of this company and the Indian Cable Co. is estimated to be about 10,000 tons per annum.

Two plants one in Bombay and the other in Calcutta for the manufacture of enamelled copper wire required for making electric motors and fans have a total capacity of 2,000 lbs. per day.

A number of concerns have been started for manufacturing different kinds of non-ferrous alloys. The refining and reconditioning of railways scrap and other industrial non-ferrous scrap is now done in this country, which was formerly largely exported. The total present alloying capacity in the country may be estimated at about 20,000 to 25,000 tons per annum.

A plant for the recovery of silver from old coins has been taken up for implementation at the Alipore Mint. This plant will also be able to recover about 3,600 tons of electrolytic copper from copper scrap.

A scheme for erecting a ferro-manganese plant with an annual capacity of 10,000 tons, has been approved. This plant is proposed to be installed at the Hirakud Dam site in collaboration with an Italian firm.

In most cases there is a protective duty of 30 per cent. In the case of zinc and lead sheets the protective duty is fixed at 20 per cent. and of arsenical copper rods, brass rods and brass wires, a protective duty of 35 per cent. The import duty on machinery is 5 per cent. which is applicable to all industries.

ALUMINIUM

Aluminium is the only non-ferrous metal which India can produce in large quantities because of extensive deposits of bauxite and adequate supplies of bulk power. There are two units. The Indian Aluminium Co. working in collaboration with the Canadian Aluminium Co. has put up an alumina plant at Murl in Bihar. The alumina produced is converted into pig aluminium at Alwaye and rolled into sheets and finished goods at Calcutta. The Aluminium Corporation has an integrated plant near Asansol.

The two plants have a total capacity of 4,000 tons of aluminium ingot per annum. Their rolling mills have a combined capacity of 3,500 tons. The capacity of the alumina plants is 14,000 to 15,000 tons and the capital invested in the industry is about Rs. 350 lakhs.

The production of aluminium in tons since 1948 is as follows: 1948—3,369; 1949—3,489; 1950—3,596; 1951—3,848; 1952—3,435.

Except bauxite and coal, most of the other raw materials are available only partly or not at all from indigenous sources. Caustic soda and soda are not produced in enough quantities, cryolite, aluminium fluoride, carbon blocks and filter cloth have to be imported, and the possibilities of producing greenland in this country are yet to be investigated.

The demand for aluminium has been estimated at between 15,000 tons and 20,000 tons. The handicaps of the industry are the small capacity of the units, the inherent refractory nature of Indian bauxite which costs more to mine, and expensive raw materials such as petroleum coke.

The Indian Aluminium Co. envisages the expansion of the smelter at Alwaye to 5,000 tons and to raise the rolling capacity of its mills at Belur to 6,000 tons per annum. The Aluminium Corporation has a scheme to step up its production of aluminium ingots to 2,000 tons per annum and the sheet rolling capacity from 500 tons to 3,000 tons. These plans of both the units are expected to be completed by the end of 1953.

For the planned period, the installed capacity is expected to be stepped up from 4,000 tons in 1950-51 to 20,000 tons by 1955-56 and production from 3,677 tons to 12,000 tons. The industry is protected by a protective duty of 30 per cent.

OPIMUM INDUSTRY

IN addition to being a narcotic, opium is the base of many medicinal drugs. Because of its devastating effect as a dope, the Central and State Governments have adopted various measures to put an end to the evil and a very small fraction of the population is now left still making habitual use of the drug. With a view to restricting its manufacture only for medicinal and scientific purposes, the Government has taken in hand improved methods of poppy cultivation, restricted the cultivation of poppy through licenses, and confined production to its factories at Ghazipur and Neemuch. Only a small percentage of opium is sold to the State Governments after processing and the balance is exported for medicinal and scientific purposes.

Poppy cultivation is confined to the States of Uttar Pradesh, Madhya Bharat, Rajasthan and Himachal Pradesh and a negligible quantity is grown in Bilaspur. The entire crop has to be sold to the Central Government at a fixed price. The opium poppy grown in India is of three varieties—Banaras in U.P., Malwa in Madhya Bharat and Rajasthan, and Himalayan in Himachal Pradesh. Cultivation starts in November and the crop is harvested in April or May. Preparation of the land for the reception of the seed is a prolonged process, the field being given 20 to 25 ploughings. Opium is derived as a juice called latex. After collection it is dried by the farmer before being delivered to the Government.

The area under poppy cultivation, which used to be 780,000 acres in 1905-06, is now barely 70,000 acres. The production fluctuates according to the overseas demand and its trend in recent years is given below :—

Year	Area (acres)	Production (Maunds)	Exports (Tons)
1948-49 ..	69,425	9,515	35
1949-50 ..	51,480	5,535	172
1950-51 ..	60,725	13,700	348
1951-52 ..	56,190	9,045	167

At a conference of the State Governments in 1949 it was decided to reduce the supplies to States at a progressive rate of ten per cent every year so that these supplies will cease completely by 1959. The trend of domestic consumption of excise opium is given below :—

Year	Consumption in Maunds
1948-49.. ..	3,895
1949-50.. ..	2,925
1950-51.. ..	3,170
1951-52.. ..	3,700
1952-53.. ..	3,135

In 1946 the Central Government erected a huge alkaloid plant at the Ghazipur factory for manufacturing medicinal preparations and India claims today the distinction of producing alkaloid products including thebaine, papaverine and cotarnine. During the past five years, sales of alkaloids in the country have gone up from 515 lb. in 1947-48 to 1,430 lb. in 1950-51 and then declined to 1,198 lb. in 1951-52, while exports, which were insignificant in 1947-48 and only 374 lb. in 1950-51, shot up to 1,479 lb. in 1951-52.

INTERNATIONAL CONTROL

International efforts to control opium date back to the beginning of the present century, and the League of Nations and the United Nations Organisation have, during the last three decades, been endeavouring to confine its use solely to medicinal and scientific purposes. An International Opium Commission met in Shanghai in 1909 at the initiative of President Theodore Roosevelt as a result of which the first Opium Convention was drawn up at the Hague in 1912. Several treaties on narcotics have been signed since then but all efforts at limiting production of opium have met with limited success.

The Geneva Convention of 1925 provides for measures to regulate international trade in opium and other dangerous drugs. In 1950 the United Nations proposed a draft plan for creating an international opium monopoly, but due to lack of agreement the proposal fell through. The latest International Protocol signed at New York on June 23, 1953 aims at limiting production and control of the international and wholesale trade in opium and incorporates many of the salient features of the comprehensive Indian system of control.

Until the establishment of the plant for the manufacture of alkaloids, opium as a source of revenue lost its importance because of the deliberate policy of the Government to curtail opium consumption and exports. Between 1941-42 and 1946-47 the net receipts fluctuated between a surplus of Rs. 48 lakhs and a deficit of Rs. 52 lakhs. Since then the trends have been more helpful for the Central budget. Details for recent years are given below :—

(In lakhs of rupees)

	1950-51	1951-52	1952-53 Revised	1953-54 Budget
REVENUE :
Sale of opium to State Governments
Sale of medical opium			62.00	62.00
Sale of alkaloids			1.40	1.50
			6.80	6.70
SALE ABROAD		268.48
Sale of raw opium			120.00	125.00
Sale of alkaloids			4.00	4.00
Sale of miscellaneous			1.00	1.00
Total		268.48	195.20	200.20
Refunds		0.06	0.20	0.20
Net Revenue		268.42	195.00	200.00
EXPENDITURE		Not Available	177.38	203.47

The decrease in revenue is due to slender sales of raw opium to foreign countries. The expenditure budget provides for a higher anticipated yield of opium, purchase of stores and machinery for Ghazipur Opium Factory and enhancement of wages as a result of the recommendations of the Fair Wages Committee.

PAPER INDUSTRY

THE bulk of the production comprises the more common types of paper, especially printing and writing paper. The manufacture of superior varieties is also undertaken but on a restricted scale.

There is no mill manufacturing newsprint at present.

The following table gives the trend of production :—

(in 000 tons)
Year	Installed Capacity	Total Production	Printing & Writing	Wrapping	Special Varieties	Board
1947	105	93	53	17	5	18
1948	105	98	50	17	13	17
1949	110	103	59	13	11	19
1950	114	109	70	15	5	19
1951	137	131	78	24	3	26
1952	147	138	91	22	2.8	22

There are 20 factories engaged in the manufacture of straw and other boards with an annual rated capacity of about 54,500 tons, and an actual production of 25,400 tons in 1951-52.

The block capital of the paper and paper-board industry in 1950-51 was Rs. 21.8 crores. There were 37 factories and the industry found employment for about 22,000 workers.

The State-wise distribution of the paper and paper-board industry in February 1951 is given below :—

State.	No. of units.	Annual rated capacity (tons).
West Bengal	4	58,500
Bihar	1	11,000
Orissa	1	31,500
Uttar Pradesh	2	6,400
Punjab and PEPSU	1	8,500
Bombay	3	5,100
Madras	2	2,600
Hyderabad	1	5,000
Mysore	1	4,000
Travancore-Cochin	1	4,000
	17	136,600

There has been a steady fall in the imports of paper and pasteboard from 113,000 tons in 1949-50 to 90,400 tons in 1951-52. The figure for 1952-53 was 106,459 tons. Exports have not been appreciable in the past. In 1951-52 they were 3,251 tons, and in 1952-53, 1,702 tons.

Sabal grass and bamboo are the chief raw materials which are available locally. The use of imported woodpulp has been gradually discouraged and hardly 10 per cent of the raw material is imported. Of late, however, the industry has been placing a greater reliance on rags, hemp, hemp ropes and wastepaper. One important mill is exclusively dependent on waste paper and rags.

For many years the paper pulp section of the Forest Research Institute at Dehra Dun has been carrying out experimental work in connection with the development of new fibres for paper-making.

Recent enquiries show that the Kashmir and Tehri-Garhwal can supply fir and spruce in quantities sufficient for the establishment of newsprint mills in Kashmir and U.P. The two species of wood are well known raw material for the production of mechanical pulp for use in newsprint manufacture and the suitability of both the species from the two States has recently been tested at the Forest Research Institute, Dehra Dun.

DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMME

The main problem of the industry is the shortage of raw materials accentuated by the partition of the country as the factories in West Bengal were deprived of their supplies of bamboo previously obtained from East Bengal.

The immediate programme of development visualises the expansion of the rated capacity to 211,000 tons of paper and paper-board and 30,000 tons of newsprint by 1955-56 at a capital cost of Rs. 8 crores. The actual production is, however, expected to be 200,000 tons of paper and paper-board and 27,000 tons of newsprint by 1955-56.

The production of straw-boards is expected to go up to 52,000 tons since the expansion plans of Straw Products, Ltd., Bhopal, would raise the rated capacity by 4,000 tons to 58,500 tons. In addition, about 25,000 tons of paper-boards would be available for consumption making a total of about 77,000 tons by 1955-56 as against an anticipated demand of about 95,000 tons.

According to the Planning Commission, the production of 200,000 tons of paper and paper-boards by 1955-56 should be adequate and further development, if any, should be in the direction of enabling some of the existing un-economic units to attain the minimum economic size of 8,000 tons of paper per annum. The likely gap of 17,400 tons between output and estimated consumption of straw-board and other fibre boards can be met if some of the sugar factories release bagasse by using wood or coal as fuel. The use of semal wood a basic raw material for the match industry for paper manufacture should be banned and measures concentrated on the plantation of bamboo and sabal grass.

The newsprint plant of the NEPA Mills in Madhya Pradesh was expected to go into production in 1953 and to meet domestic needs to the extent of 27,000 tons from 1954 onwards.

The Five-Year Plan for the industry is summarised in the following table :—

	1950-51			1955-56
	No. of units.	Annual rated capacity (000 tons)	Actual output (000 tons)	No. of units.	Annual rated capacity (000 tons)	Actual output (000 tons)
Paper and paper-board	17	136.6	114	19	211	200
Newsprint	1	30	27
Strawboard and other fibre boards	18	48.5	22	20	58.5	52.6

PLASTICS INDUSTRY

THE plastics industry in India was largely developed during the Second World War and is primarily concerned with turning out finished product from imported raw material. At present there are about 100 major factories and several small ones operating on a cottage industry basis. The capital investment is placed around Rs. seven crores and the industry provides employment for about 12,000.

At the beginning of 1950, the more important factories possessed 182 injection moulding machines with a capacity of 403 oz. and 154 compression moulding presses with a capacity of 7,074 tons. Early in 1953 the respective capacity figures were 550 oz. and 10,200 tons. The size of the equipment of smaller units is placed at a third of these figures. Besides there are 41 extruders with size varying from 1 inch to 4½ inches.

The processes used by the industry are: (1) Compression moulding, (2) Injection moulding, (3) Extrusion, (4) Fabrication, and (5) Coating of fabrics by plastics. Articles manufactured cover an extensive field ranging from electrical accessories and insulated electric cables to spectacle frames, artificial leather and waterproof cloth. The West Bengal Government has plans to set up a factory for manufacturing plastic teeth. Metal using of plastics has been successfully undertaken by a few firms. The trend of production of compression and injection moulded goods since 1948 is given below:—

Year	Production (million gross)
1948	0.37
1949	1.02
1950	2.29
1951	1.48
1952	1.54

Of the articles produced in 1952, electrical accessories constituted about 24,500 gross and other industrial articles 198,000 gross. Nearly 30 per cent, of utility goods comprised combs, while bottle caps made up 90 per cent of industrial goods. Production of mechanised toys was an important achievement of the year. The details regarding the more important lines of production are furnished below:—

Tooth Brushes: 12 factories, 24 million annual capacity. Output 4.3 million brushes in 1951 and 2.8 million (estimated) in 1952.

Spectacle Frames: 9 factories, 1.4 million annual capacity. Production 0.35 million in 1950, 0.51 million in 1951 and 0.64 million in 1952.

Fountain Pens: Six major firms. Production—3 million in 1949, 3.23 million in 1950, 4 million in 1951 and 3.8 million in 1952.

Buttons: Production in 1952 about 857,000 gross.

Insulated Cables, Wires and Flexible: Started in 1950. Annual capacity 8.6 million yards. Production—2.814 million yards in 1950, 3.475 million yards in 1951 and about 4 million yards in 1952.

Leather Cloth: Capacity 5.28 million yards. Production in million yards—0.204 in 1948, 0.76 in 1949, 0.93 in 1950, 2.04 in 1951 and 0.95 in 1952.

Phenolic Resin Laminates: First plant in 1952. Production 40 tons in 1952.

RAW MATERIALS

The consuming capacity of the industry in respect of raw materials is about 3,000 tons of Thermosetting moulding powders and about 8,000 tons of Thermoplastic moulding powders. Most of the raw materials are imported. Imports of raw materials were stepped up from Rs. 20.58 lakhs in 1948-49 to Rs. 256 lakhs in 1951-52 composed of Rs. 158 lakhs of synthetic resin and moulding powder and Rs. 98 lakhs worth of semi-fabricated plastic raw materials. Phenol formaldehyde moulding powder, phenol and formaldehyde and alkyl resin are, however, manufactured in the country out of imported basic materials.

The consumption of plastic goods in India has increased five-fold since 1938 and practically the whole of it is met from indigenous production. The country is now an exporter of plastic goods at an average monthly value of Rs. one lakh. Imported moulds are expensive and a central tool room for the design and production of moulds is contemplated. The present demand for P.V.C. sheets (without textile base) is estimated at 400 tons. There is, therefore, a big scope for its manufacture. Polythene film and dentures also have a big potential market. The application of cellulose plastics, nitrate and acetate is the basis for industries such as acetate rayon and photographic film. The demand for phenolic resin used by the surface coating industry is about 500 tons a year. In view of the possibility of urea becoming available in the country, the manufacture of urea plastics has a great scope. Since benzene and ethylene, the basic materials for polystyrene, are indigenous, this branch of manufacture can be profitably explored. Industrial nitrocellulose is produced in an ordnance factory. This can form the basis for producing sheets, rods and tubes required by the spectacle frame and fountain pen industries. Lack of technical personnel is the industry's main handicap. The U.N.T.A.A. has, therefore, lent the services of a plastics moulding expert to India. Steps are being taken by the Indian Standards Institution to formulate suitable standards for the P.F. moulding powder.

PROTECTION

The Tariff Commission recommended in 1950 that protection should be extended to the industry till March 1953. The period was further extended to December 1953 to enable the Tariff Commission to review the position.

The Commission's main recommendations were the following:—

(1) In the absence of a fully-developed chemical industry supplying the basic raw materials for the moulding powder section of the industry and in order to reduce the cost of production of moulding powder, the manufacturers of such powder should be allowed a refund of the whole of the duties payable on the principal raw materials used in the manufacture of powder. This should be available to those who produce at least 200 tons of phenol-formaldehyde moulding powder per annum.

(2) The existing revenue duty of 30 per cent ad valorem on moulding powder should be converted into an equivalent protective duty which should be kept in force till March 31, 1953.

(3) Imports of phenol-formaldehyde moulding powder should be permitted only to the extent of the gap between the domestic demand and production.

(4) In view of the need to expand the domestic market for plastic goods, assistance to the industry should be given in other ways than by an increase in the import duty.

(5) The section of the industry manufacturing plastic goods such as soap-boxes and spectacle frames should be helped by granting a reduction in import duty on such raw materials as are not manufactured in the country from 30 per cent to 20 per cent, both ad valorem. The rate of duty on raw celluloid should also be 20 per cent ad valorem.

(6) In respect of electrical accessories, the existing revenue duty should be converted into a protective duty to remain in force till March 31, 1953 and the present preferential rate of 24 per cent on imports from the United Kingdom should be raised to 30 per cent and the standard rate adjusted in accordance with the terms of the Indo-British Trade Agreement.

(7) In regard to spectacle frames, the existing revenue duty of 20 per cent should continue.

(8) Early steps should be taken to set up a central moulding powder factory in order to co-ordinate the production of the existing units and others to be established and to ensure economical production.

(9) In view of the necessity for standardisation of plastic-ware and rationalisation of its production, the scheme for having a central mould-making shop should receive early and favourable consideration of Government.

(10) Indian manufacturers of plastics should keep abreast of technical developments in other countries.

(11) Early steps should be taken by the industry for the formulation of proper standards for moulding powder and finished articles.

(12) The existing revenue duty of 30 per cent ad valorem on phenol-formaldehyde moulding powder should be converted into a protective duty.

(13) The duties of 25 per cent standard, on phenol and of 30 per cent standard and 26 per cent preferential, both on formaldehyde and hexamine, these three being the principal raw materials used in the manufacture of phenol-formaldehyde powder, should be refunded on import to the manufacturers of moulding powder, who have a minimum annual production of 200 tons.

The Government of India issued orders on January 7, 1950 on the Board's recommendations. In regard to the main recommendation of the Board suggesting a reduction in the import duties on raw materials used by the industry in producing plastic goods like soap boxes, Government came to the conclusion that "the requirements of the case would be adequately met by a reduction of duty from 30 per cent ad valorem to 20 per cent ad valorem in respect of only cellulose nitrate (sheets, rods and tubes), rennet casein and polyvinyl chloride resin". This meant that raw materials like urea-formaldehyde moulding powder, polystyrene, cellulose acetate, cellulose and butyrate, would continue to be subjected to 30 per cent duties.

RAYON INDUSTRY

WORLD'S first rayon factory capable of producing about a hundred pounds of rayon a day was erected in France in the year 1884. Today the world production of rayon, inclusive of staple fibre, has risen to the staggering amount of over 3,000 million pounds.

It is estimated that in 1951 there were 25,980 mill looms in 476 mills, and 181,278 handlooms engaged in the manufacture of art silk fabrics in India, and the industry's needs of filament yarn, which till recently had to be imported entirely, were placed at 70 million lbs.

The rayon industry is a post-war industry. There are at present two plants in operation, viz., Travancore Rayons Ltd., Perambavoor, and the National Rayon Corporation Ltd., Kalyan, Bombay, with an annual production capacity of 4 million lbs. and 5.6 million lbs. respectively of filament yarn.

The former came into production in July 1950 and the latter in February 1951. Both the factories have adopted the viscose process.

Sirsilik Ltd. has under construction a factory at Sirpur in Hyderabad State. It was expected to be ready in the latter half of 1953 and will have a daily production capacity of 5 tons based on the cellulose acetate process.

A fourth factory has been planned for producing 15 tons of viscose staple fibre daily at Nagda in Madhya Bharat by the Gwallor Rayon Silk Manufacturing (Weaving) Co., Ltd.

The units operating the viscose process produce also carbon disulphide and sulphuric acid in the factory with the exception of Travancore Rayons Ltd. which purchase them from FACT Ltd. Sirsilik Ltd. has facilities for producing acetic acid, acetic anhydride and acetone to meet its needs.

The annual rated capacity of the rayon industry based on a continuous operation for 360 working days is given below :—

	Filament yarn (m. lbs.)	Staple fibre (bales)	Art Silk cloth (m. yards)
1. Travancore Rayons, Alwayo	4.0
2. National Rayon, Bombay	5.6
3. Sirsilik Ltd., Hyderabad	4.0	..	18.0
4. Gwallor Rayon, Nagda	28.000	..

The actual production in million lbs. of the two factories in operation was as follows :— 1950—0.27; 1951—4.5; 1952 (Jan.-June)—3.2.

The capital employed in the two firms already in production in March 1951 was Rs. 7.1 crores while the labour employed was 1,400.

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS

Imports consist of staple fibre, rayon yarn, yarn of rayon staple fibre and rayon piece-goods and were as follows :—

(Quantity in million lbs. and value in lakhs of Rupees)

Year	Yarn		Piece-goods		Staple fibre (cut fibre and waste)		Staple fibre yarn		Total including other goods mixed
	Quantity	Value	Quantity	Value	Quantity	Value	Quantity	Value	Value
		Rs.		Rs.		Rs.		Rs.	Rs.
1948-49	39.9	12.83	4.0	103.6	0.05	0.66	0.75	20.0	1412.6
1949-50	36.0	10.46	14.3	311.8	0.45	6.5	2.76	77.6	1548.9
1950-51	35.3	14.71	1.8	41.7	12.6	189.9	1.25	30.9	1739.4
1951-52	36.5	17.29	3.0	82.4	36.5	1010.1	3.73	117.0	2953.8

Exports of artificial silk piece-goods are mainly for Pakistan, Ceylon and Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. The sea-borne exports are detailed below :—

	M. yards	Rs. in lakhs
1948-49	24.50	519.1
1949-50	12.28	148.7
1950-51	6.99	95.8
1951-52	8.41	117.0

The report of the Indian Tariff Board on the continuance of protection to the artificial silk and cotton and artificial mixed fabrics industry in 1951 placed the productive capacity of the weaving industry at 350 million yards per annum and computed the need for art silk yarn at 70 to 75 million lbs. With the completion of the plant belonging to Sirsilik Ltd., the weaving capacity would be further raised by 15 million yards.

The domestic consumption of artificial silk goods has, however, remained practically unchanged over a period at 210 million yards; but there has been an increase in the imports of filament yarn at the expense of finished goods.

FIVE-YEAR PLAN

The National Rayon Corporation contemplates expansion of its plant so as to increase its capacity to 7 million lbs. per annum by the end of 1953 and to 14 million lbs. by 1955-56, involving a capital investment of Rs. 50 lakhs and Rs. 500 lakhs respectively. Consequently, the rated capacity of the rayon filament industry would be stepped up to 22 million lbs. by 1955-56 out of which 4 million lbs. would be consumed by the Sirsilik Ltd. in weaving rayon fabric so that 18 million lbs. would be available for the rayon fabric industry. In addition, rayon staple equivalent to 11.2 million lbs. would be available from within the country. The total additional capital expenditure for achieving these developments has been estimated at Rs. 10½ crores.

The soft timber resources from the Himalayan region can be utilised for producing 100 tons of pulp per day in order to reduce the dependence on imported rayon-grade pulp by 11,500 tons a year. The capital needs are placed at Rs. 6 crores and the project might be taken up in the second part of the Five-Year Plan. The Commission has also recommended the establishment of a few plants for producing at least five million lbs. of cotton linters preferably in Madras, Hyderabad and Madhya Pradesh. For this purpose, a capital of Rs. 60 lakhs would be needed. In view of the fact that the existing capacity of the rayon weaving industry is enough to meet the domestic needs and export orders, expansion in this direction is considered unnecessary.

RUBBER INDUSTRY

INDIA produces about 18,000 tons of raw rubber constituting a little over one per cent of the world output. Of an area of about 170,000 acres under rubber cultivation, nearly 75 per cent is located in the State of Travancore-Cochin. Other rubber growing areas are the districts of Malabar, Coimbatore, Salem, Nilgiris, Madura and South Canara in the Madras State and Coorg. Cultivation on a small scale exists in Mysore and Assam.

There are about 250 estates owning over 100 acres each and comprising an area of nearly 103,000 acres. Small holdings below 100 acres in size number about 14,000 with a total area of 67,000 acres. The following are the details:—

Year	Production (Tons)	Tapable Acreage	Average yield per acre in Lbs.
1948	15,422	118,811	291
1949	15,587	123,791	282
1950	15,599	137,888	253
1951	17,148	148,739	258
1952	19,803	170,000	N.A.

The year 1952-53 was notable for a slump in the world rubber trade with London price falling by more than half. In this country, the price of indigenous raw rubber was revised in October 1952 on the recommendation of the Tariff Commission from Rs. 122-8-0 to Rs. 138 for grade I rubber per 100 lbs. with suitable differentials for other grades. But the increase in production followed by a fall in consumption resulted in the accumulation of stocks.

Compared to 17,148 tons of raw rubber produced in 1951, production went up to 19,863 tons in 1952 whereas consumption fell from 22,427 tons to 21,061 tons. On the other hand, the industry had on hand 5,800 tons from the 1951 stock. The Government, therefore, removed in December 1952 the control over the movement of raw rubber imposed in 1950.

RUBBER GOODS

During the past three years, the manufacturing side of the industry has made a considerable progress with the result that the output of indigenous raw rubber can be readily absorbed.

The progress of the manufacturing industry is given below:—

SERICULTURE

SERICULTURE is carried on mainly as subsidiary to Agriculture. The country's total production is placed at about 30 lakh lbs. The total area under mulberry is about 80,000 acres at present. Mulberry is cultivated both as rain-fed and irrigated crop. The yield of leaf per acre per year from rain-fed garden is about 4,000 lbs. Average yield from tank irrigated gardens per acre per year is about 8,000 lbs. whereas in the case of deep well irrigated gardens it is 10,000 lbs.

The total production of cocoons per year is about 240 lakh lbs. and the raw silk produced may be put at 15 lakh lbs. Based on the area under mulberry, the total requirement of disease-free layings is estimated to be about 600 lakhs of layings per annum.

The main producing areas are Mysore and Madras, whose production is placed at 15 lakh lbs. and 8 lakh pounds respectively.

In Mysore there are about 51,000 rearing families, who practise sericulture as a subsidiary industry.

After the Government Organisation was set up the Central Farm at Channarayana began to produce small quantities of disease-free layings on 'Pasteur System' and to educate ryots to use the same. To supplement the work of the grainages which produce only disease-free seed by a controlled campaign of seed cocoon production, there are now 4,000 selected seed cocoon rearsers to produce Mysore seed cocoons, capable of producing about 4,000 lakhs of seed cocoons, i.e., the entire requirements of the industry for seed cocoons in Mysore and Madras. About 96 per cent of the cocoons produced in the State are used for reeling and only 4 per cent for seed purposes.

Sericultural education in Mysore is given in a practical manner in the Government Silk Farms, such as Channarayana, Mysore, Kolar, Mugur and Siddaghatta.

The total area under mulberry in Madras State is about 22,000 acres. In black cotton soils, the annual yield of mulberry leaf is about 4,000 lbs. per acre and in red loam or sandy soils, the yield is about 3,500 lbs. Under the present organisation and with the existing acreage under mulberry cultivation, the productive capacity of reeling cocoons and silk will be 45 lakh lbs. of cocoons and about 3 lakh lbs. of raw silk of both filature and charka grades. In the Kollegal area the raw material is worked by handlooms.

The sericultural industry was started in Uttar Pradesh in September 1948. The silkworm races reared are univoltine and multivoltine, Bengal, Mysore and Kashmir races of mulberry and Eri silkworms. About two dozen families have taken it up. The industry is practised as subsidiary to agriculture. The estimated annual production of Eri is 3 mds. dry weight and that of mulberry 2 mds. 2 ams. dry weight. As the industry has recently been started the department of industries provides rearsers with rearing appliances on a returnable basis. The cocoons are purchased by the Government farm till they instal their own reeling equipment.

In Bombay roughly 700 acres are under silkworm food. The estimated annual production of cocoons is around 30,000. The estimated annual production of raw silk is around 1,500 lbs. There are 11,339 looms in weaving pure silk goods only, and 25,498 looms for mixed goods.

There is one Government silk farm in Belgaum District in addition to five Government model silk farms in Belgaum and Dharwar districts.

Bengal's silk industry is said to have been carried on from time immemorial. The production of raw silk is about 4 lakh lbs. The area under mulberry is 18,000 acres. The estimated actual annual production of cocoons and raw silk are: cocoons (6,785,543 lbs.) and raw silk (407,644 lbs.).

About 1,500 persons spread over in about 435 villages conduct rearing and reeling operations in the Punjab. The silk industry in the Punjab has come to be considered as one of the best subsidiary industries. It gives a part time occupation to about 95 per cent of rearsers. The remaining 5 per cent take up reeling on commercial lines. There are about 75,000 mulberry trees available in the Punjab for the purpose of silkworm rearing. Apart from this, the Department maintains its own mulberry farms and nurseries and the total area of land under these plantations at present is about 75 acres.

The estimated total annual production of cocoons and raw silk is 650 mds. and 130 mds. respectively.

BIHAR AND KASHMIR

In Bihar about 50,000 people are engaged in tassar silkworm rearing, about 200 people in rearing mulberry silkworm and about 2,000 people in rearing Eri silk worm. The estimated total annual production is nearly 50,000 Kahan of tassar cocoon, one lakh lbs. of raw reeled tassar and 60,000 lbs. of tassar waste per annum. Forty-five thousand lbs. of cocoon mulberry and 3,000 lbs. of raw charka reeled silk are produced. Besides 60,000 lbs. of pierced cocoon and 21,000 lbs. of handspun Eri yarn, are produced all over the State.

Bihar has got a very old silk weaving industry and Bhagalpur is the centre of silk weaving. There are about 10,000 handloom weavers engaged in weaving silk goods. About 20 per cent of the local silk and the rest foreign silk are used by the weavers.

The total annual production of reeled silk and waste silk in Madhya Pradesh is estimated to be 160,000 lbs. and 150,000 lbs. respectively. There are about 1,500 handlooms, weaving tassar and mixed fabrics.

Orissa accounts for an annual production of 300 mds. of tassar and 60 mds. of Eri cocoons.

In Himachal Pradesh sericulture is practised only in Mandi district.

The Government of Assam started the sericulture and weaving department in 1948-49 and despite the prejudice against the rearing of mulberry silk worms, production has doubled in the past decade and now amounts to 22,000 lbs. The output of Eri and muga is estimated at 420,000 lbs. and 100,000 lbs. respectively.

Silkworm rearing is practised by the rearsers in Kashmir as an auxiliary occupation next to agriculture.

The industry depends only on full-grown mulberry trees. The annual production of cocoons and raw silk is estimated at: cocoons (32,000 mds.), superior silk (162,500 lbs.).

It may be added here that the silk industry in Kashmir is being run on Government monopoly basis. There are about 350 local factories with about 4,000 handlooms.

TARIFF COMMISSION

Early in 1952 the Tariff Commission submitted its report on the Sericulture Industry to the Government of India. The following were the more important recommendations of the Tariff Board:—

(i) An ad valorem duty of 30 per cent and a specific duty of Rs. 3-14-0 per lb. should be levied on raw silk, tariff item 46; (ii) The existing duty of 30 per cent ad valorem on silk waste and noils, tariff item 46(1), should be continued; (iii) The same rate of duty should be levied on silk yarn including thrown silk warps but excluding sewing thread, tariff item 47 (a), as on raw silk, namely, 30 per cent ad valorem plus a specific duty of Rs. 3-14-0 per lb.; (iv) An ad valorem duty of 30 per cent and a specific duty of Rs. 5 per lb. should be levied on yarn spun from silk waste, excluding sewing thread, tariff item 47 (b); (v) The existing duty of 30 per cent ad valorem should be continued on yarn spun from noils, excluding sewing thread, tariff item 47 (c); (vi) The existing duty of 30 per cent ad valorem should be continued on silk sewing thread, tariff item 47 (1); (vii) An ad valorem duty of 35 per cent should be levied on pongee, tariff item 48 (a); (viii) An ad valorem duty of 40 per cent should be levied on fuzzi, bouseki and corded (excluding white cord), tariff item 48 (b); (ix) An ad valorem duty of 35 per cent, should be levied on other silk fabrics covered by tariff item 48 (c); (x) The industry should continue to be protected upto December 31, 1952 for the present; (xi) Imports of silkworm seeds should be allowed free of duty; (xii) The quantum of imports, if import prices fall, should be so adjusted as to meet the gap between estimated demand and domestic production; (xiii) While the Board's estimate of the fair selling price of raw silk should remain valid during the extended period of protection, the position regarding the c.i.f. prices of imported silk should be reviewed by the end of June, 1952.

The Government of India accepted recommendations No. (i) to (vi), (x), (xi) and (xiii). As regards the Board's recommendations No. (vii) to (ix), Government came to the decision that the existing duties should continue.

SHIPPING INDUSTRY

AFTER the end of the Second World War, the Planning Department of the Government of India appointed a Policy Committee on Shipping. It observed: "India possesses a distressingly small number of deep sea ships which at the outbreak of the war stood at no more than 30 with a total of less than 150,000 tons gross. The rectification of this state of affairs should be one of the immediate post-war objectives."

This was followed by the constitution of a Reconstruction Policy Sub-Committee, with Sir C. P. Ramaswami Aiyar as Chairman, in 1945. This Sub-Committee submitted its report in March 1947 which was approved by the Policy Committee. Its principal recommendations were:—

(1) India needs two million gross tons of shipping to carry more than 10 million tons of cargo and about three million passengers a year. The figure does not include country craft.

(2) Hundred per cent. of the purely coastal trade of India, 75 per cent. of India's trade with Burma and Ceylon and with geographically adjacent countries, 50 per cent. of India's distant trades and 30 per cent. of the trades formerly carried in Axis vessels in the Orient should be secured for Indian shipping in the next five to seven years.

(3) As the Indian shipping industry is still very young, emphasis should now be placed on how Indian companies can expand their fleets and the Indian Shipping Board should be empowered to control deferred rebates, rate-cutting and all other evils arising from monopolies.

The Government of India, by their Resolution dated July 12, 1947, fully endorsed the views of the Committee. They agreed that the definition of "Indian Shipping" should be shipping owned, controlled and managed by Indian nationals. They also laid down that the following conditions should qualify any shipping company for treatment as "Indian shipping companies":—

(a) The steamers of the companies should be registered at a port or ports in British India. (b) At least 75 per cent. of the shares and debentures of the companies should be held by Indians in their own rights. (c) All the directors should be Indian. (d) The managing agents, if any, should be Indian.

PRESENT POSITION

The subsequent developments may be summarised as follows:—

(1) Plans for setting up three corporations, each with an authorised capital of Rs. 10 crores were announced in November 1947. The first Government-sponsored shipping corporation (The Eastern Shipping Corporation) was registered on March 24, 1950.

(2) Indian shipping companies participated in overseas trade for the first time in 1948. Two of them are members of the India-U.K.-Continent Conference Lines and are entitled to operate 12 ships each. The position will be reviewed again at the end of 1954.

(3) The coastal trade of the country was reserved in 1950 for Indian vessels in response to a public demand which had been made for the past 35 years. With effect from January 1, 1951, a new Indian Coastal Conference, consisting primarily of Indian shipping companies commenced functioning and the two British shipping companies became associated members.

The more recent progress of Indian shipping is given in the following table:—

Year.	No. of companies.	No. of ships.	Tonnage (G.R.T.).
1939 ..	9	53	126,709
1940 ..	11	42	98,286
1947 ..	14	60	189,226
1948 ..	15	72	249,261
1949 ..	20	84	332,490
1950 ..	23	90	364,632
1951 ..	23	92	366,646
1952 ..	26	100	383,911
1953 ..	25	111	422,734
(Jan. 1)

The Shipping Policy Committee fixed in 1947 a target of two million tons to be attained by 1954. Ten of the 25 companies own only one vessel each. Seven of them own a vessel each under 1,000 G.R.T., while three own a vessel each varying from 1,069 to 1,602 G.R.T. Four others own two vessels each under 2,000 tons. Thus 14 out of 25 companies own only 18 vessels with an aggregate tonnage of 12,953 G.R.T.

Eight ferry steamers with an aggregate G.R.T. of 5,284 are engaged in the carriage of passengers on the Konkan Coast and carry approximately a million and a half passengers per year.

Twenty-three steamers owned by 11 companies with an aggregate G.R.T. of 34,957 run between the Kandla and the Tuticorin Range. On an average they carry about six lakh tons of cargo every year on the West Coast of India.

Forty-four vessels of 206,005 G.R.T. owned by 10 shipping companies participate in the wider coastal trade of India.

Three companies owning 23 ships with an aggregate G.R.T. of 188,669 maintain their services in the overseas trades of the country.

Planning.—Taking into account the financial resources available, a programme of development is formulated which aims at raising the total gross registered tonnage to about 600,000 by the end of the period of the Plan. In order to assist the shipping companies in replacing obsolete tonnage operating on the coast, Government has provided funds for constructing ships at Vishakapatnam; a total of 100,000 G.R.T. is expected to become available from this shipyard during the period of the Plan. These ships will be sold to the shipping companies at reasonable prices.

In order to make coastal reservation effective, the tonnage required is estimated at 300,000 G.R.T. This also covers the needs of near trades, e.g., India-Pakistan, India-Burma, and India-Ceylon. A provision of Rs. 4 crores as loans to the shipping companies has been made in the Plan. The minimum requirements of additional shipping for overseas trade has been placed at about 100,000 d.w.t. excluding 80,000 d.w.t. required by the Eastern Shipping Corporation for which a sum of Rs. 4.4 crores to cover Government's contribution has been provided. The additional tonnage for overseas trade will be acquired from the Government loan of Rs. 6.5 crores and supplemented by Rs. 2.2 crores to be advanced by the shipping companies.

According to the Sailing Vessels Committee's Report published in 1949, sailing vessels continue to carry a substantial volume of cargo. It is estimated that 150,000 tons of shipping under sail consisting of about 2,000 vessels carry about a million to a million and a half tons of cargo every year. These vessels employ about 40,000 men, 2,500 masters, 2,500 mates and about 35,000 seamen. Taking the average cost of these vessels at Rs. 250 a ton, the capital outlay is computed at Rs. 4 crores.

SHIP-BUILDING

The credit for building the first modern ship-building yard goes to the Scindia Steam Navigation Co., Ltd. This was founded at Vishakapatnam in 1941; the company completed two berths in 1947. The first steamer built in this yard was launched on March 14, 1948 by Mr. Nehru. A third berth of the same capacity (building of ships ranging from 320 to 550 ft. in length and from about 5,600 tons to about 15,000 tons dead weight capacity) was ready in 1953. The yard is equipped with a fitting-out wharf 1,200 ft. long, which will be capable of fitting-out six ships of large size and 3 medium sized ships in one year. On the engineering side, the hull and structural shop has a fabricating capacity of 8,000 tons of steel per year.

On January 21, 1952 "Hindustan Shipyard Ltd." was registered to take over this yard. The Government of India holds a two-thirds interest in the Company and Scindia one-third. The valuation of the shipyard has been provisionally agreed at Rs. 270 lakhs which will be paid by the issue of fully paid shares of the new company for Rs. 103 lakhs and the balance in five equal annual instalments. The aggregate initial capital of the company will be Rs. 309.9 lakhs.

After the transfer of the ship-yard to the new company, a five-year plan for its development was formulated which was estimated to cost Rs. 15.82 crores between 1952-53 and 1956-57. Out of this, Rs. 11.77 crores are envisaged to be spent during the four years ending 1955-56. With a view to obtaining the necessary technical assistance, an agreement has been made with a French firm for 5 years. This provides for advice in setting up a fully-equipped designing and estimating office, organisation, development and management of the shipyard and the building of ships as well as help in procuring supplies from France and training Indians in France. In return, the firm will receive 4 per cent commission on the annual turnover of the yard.

The annual break-up of the expenditure is visualized as under:—

(Rupees in lakhs).

Under the Cabinet reorganisation scheme, shipping became the sole concern of the Transport Ministry early in 1951. While matters of policy are dealt with in the Ministry, the newly created office of the Director-General of Shipping serves as an executive office, as distinct from the Secretary, for the co-ordinated implementation of policy. The office of the Controller of Indian Shipping, the Mercantile Marine Department and the Lighthouse Department have come under his administrative control.

The administration of the Merchant Shipping Acts and Rules made thereunder, at the ports is undertaken by the Principal Officers, Mercantile Marine Department at the principal ports. The Assistant Director of Seamen's Welfare and his officers carry out the planning and execution of schemes and projects for seamen's welfare, scrutiny of the schemes and projects recommended by the Welfare Committees at the ports and administration of the Merchant Seamen's Welfare Amenities Fund.

STEEL INDUSTRY

THE first successful and the most outstanding attempt to manufacture steel in the country on a commercial basis was that of the Tata Iron & Steel Co. which started its Steel Works at Sakchi in the year 1908. Pig iron was made in 1911 and the first steel ingot a year later.

The Indian Iron & Steel Company was started in 1918 at Hirapur about 4 miles from Asansol junction on the Eastern Railway for producing pig iron. Eighteen years later it floated another company, the Steel Corporation of Bengal to manufacture steel. Towards the end of 1952 the two companies were merged.

An iron works was started at Bhadravati in Mysore State in 1921 to which a steel plant was added in 1934. During World War II, a 25-ton basic furnace together with two small electric furnaces were installed.

The combined capacity of these works is 1,878,000 tons of pig iron and 1,050,000 tons of finished steel.

The total capital investment is about Rs. 61 crores and the number of workers employed about 60,000.

The recent trend of production is given below :—

Year.	Pig iron.	Steel ingots.	(000 tons)
			Semi-finished steel.	Finished steel.
1947	1,320	1,256	1,027	803
1948	1,405	1,256	1,012	857
1949	1,528	1,352	1,105	930
1950	1,562	1,438	1,142	1,004
1951	1,709	1,500	1,249	1,076
1952	1,685	1,578	1,308	1,103

Since 1924 there have been three main tariff enquiries into the case of the iron and steel industry—in 1924, 1926 and 1934. In between there were three supplementary enquiries and five special enquiries for the subsidiary industries in India. The scheme of protection sanctioned as a result of the tariff enquiry held in 1934 was to remain in force for seven years till 31st March 1941. Before, however, this protection expired, World War II intervened, and the protective duties on imported steel were continued from time to time by continuation Acts, the last extension being for a period of one year till 31st March 1947.

Since the war in 1939 the price and distribution of steel have been controlled by the Government though a certain degree of relaxation was introduced in 1952. Even during that year the estimated demand was approximately 2.4 million tons, while the available supply totalled 1,097,000 tons. The demands of the Defence Services and the Railways were met in full. The selling prices of steel were raised twice in 1952, once by Rs. 50 on July 1, 1952, and, again, by another Rs. 50 on September 22, 1952.

RAW MATERIALS

The important raw materials are iron ore, coking coal, manganese ore, refractories made from magnesite, dolomite, chromite, fireclay, etc. and fluxing materials like silica, limestone and fluor-spar. Sulphur is also required for the manufacture of sulphuric acid.

In regard to most of these raw materials, India enjoys a favourable position. The deposits of iron ore are plentiful and of a superior quality, the average iron content of the ore being as much as 69 per cent as compared with 40 per cent in Europe and 50 per cent in the U.S. This is also true of manganese ore, magnesite and dolomite. Known deposits of coking coal are estimated at between 1,500 and 2,000 million tons.

The principal raw materials brought from abroad are spelter for galvanising, tin for tin plates, ferro-tungsten, nickel, chromium and fluor-spar. Deposits of fluor-spar are located in Madhya Pradesh; but they are yet to be exploited.

As raw materials account for nearly 80 per cent of the cost of pig iron and 60 per cent of the cost of finished steel, they provide the explanation for the low cost of steel produced in India.

RE-ROLLING MILLS

The re-rolling mills manufacture a variety of products from blooms and billets. In the initial stage the revenue duty on imported billets was removed to encourage the industry and by 1939 there were 32 re-rolling mills with a productive capacity of 140,000 tons. Towards the end of 1942 when control over distribution of scrap and billets was introduced, out of the 130 mills then existing only 75 came within its purview. Later several mills were compulsorily closed under Government orders.

There are at present 23 registered re-rollers of which five are manufacturers of special products such as tin plates, wire and wire products, fish plates and spikes, bars and rods, bolts and nuts, rivets, spring steel, hoops and strips and are called "secondary producers". In addition, there are 71 re-rollers who are not registered.

The productive capacity on the basis of three shifts is 220,000 tons in respect of secondary producers, 292,000 tons in regard to registered re-rollers and 219,000 tons in unregistered factories. The actual production was, however, very much below the capacity.

In 1933-34 the Tariff Board stated that the re-rolling mills had a place in the iron and steel industry in India. The subsequent inquiries have revealed that a large proportion of the mills are inefficient and uneconomic in addition to such handicaps as the acute shortage of raw materials.

FIVE-YEAR PLAN

The Planning Commission has estimated that the demand for steel will rise from 2.34 million tons in 1952 to 2.8 million tons by 1957, while that for foundry pig iron will be stepped up by 100,000 tons to 700,000 tons.

The main difficulty in stepping up the output is finance. For assisting development, the Government has agreed to loan Rs. 5 crores to the Indian Iron and Steel Company and has also raised the retention prices of steel. Though the production of pig iron has been rising, the portion available for sale has fallen from 356,398 tons in 1948 to 287,209 tons in 1951 and much of it is off-grade quality.

At the beginning of the Plan, the following programmes of expansion were under execution :—

(1) The Mysore Works have taken up certain schemes for execution in the post-war period. These cover expansion of cement production and direct recovery of acetic acid from pyro-ligneous liquor, erection of two electric pig iron furnaces each capable of producing 100-110 tons of pig iron per day, and modernisation of iron ore mines and extension of forest tramways to ensure an adequate supply of wood fuel and mineral raw materials. By April 1, 1951 it had spent Rs. 2.16 crores and the Government may have to lend Rs. 2.82 crores during the period of the Plan for financing the installation of 3 electric pig iron furnaces, electric Duplex plant, billet and light structural mills, and acetic acid plant and extension and improvement of cement plant, ore mines and tramways and shop, foundry, etc. The implementation of this programme is expected to raise the production of finished steel from 40,000 tons to 100,000 tons.

(2) The Steel Corporation of Bengal and the Indian Iron Company have between them projects under execution to increase the installed capacity for finished steel to 345,000 tons by 1953-54.

They have also formulated additional proposals to enable them to produce another 350,000 tons of finished steel and 400,000 tons of foundry iron at a cost of Rs. 31.7 crores spread over 1953-57.

(3) The Tata Iron and Steel Company have formulated a programme of expansion and modernisation of their works at a total cost of about Rs. 22.71 crores apart from normal capital expenditure for replacement and maintenance which is estimated to cost additional Rs. 10.21 crores. Their plan envisages the raising of the capacity for finished steel to 931,000 tons by 1957.

The above schemes are expected to produce the following results :—

	Unit	1950-51	1957-58
Rated capacity of finished steel ..	Tons '000	1,015	1,650
Production—
Pig iron (for foundries) ..	"	350	750
Finished steel ..	"	976	1,650

The Plan stipulates that the future expansion of the industry should provide for the production of an additional 150,000 tons to 200,000 tons of billets for the re-rolling industry. The expansion will also call for the creation of certain additional transport facilities involving an outlay of about Rs. 10 to Rs. 12 crores.

The Planning Commission is of the view that in spite of the expansion contemplated, there will be a short-fall of a million tons of steel and has, therefore, urged the establishment of a new iron and steel plant through collaboration between the State and an experienced Indian concern. The total expenditure on this during the period of the Plan will be about Rs. 25 crores and negotiations for participation by foreign concerns and the World Bank have been advocated.

SUGAR INDUSTRY

THE sugar industry is the second largest industry in India, next only to the cotton textile industry, with a capital of about Rs. 60 crores of which about Rs. 20 crores is fixed capital and Rs. 40 crores working capital.

It has a considerable influence on the agricultural economy in so far as it brings additional remuneration to those who take to the cultivation of sugarcane.

The economy of Uttar Pradesh and Bihar is particularly tied with the development of this industry since three-fourths of the sugar production is in these two States.

The industry also produces a variety of raw materials for other industries such as power alcohol, paper, paper board and straw board.

The labour employed in sugar factories is roughly 135,000 skilled and unskilled workers.

The growth of the industry is attributable to the protection given to it in 1932 for a period of 14 years. The import duty in pre-war years was as much as Rs. 9-4 per cwt. of which Rs. 2 represented the quantum of the excise duty on indigenous production. Protection was continued till 1950 but it was of an academic interest since imports were negligible since 1937.

In 1931-32 there were only 32 sugar factories in the country but by 1952 the number of factories producing white sugar rose to 160. Seven of these came into existence in the post-war period. In addition, there were two more under construction.

The industry has so far developed in the private sector, the only exception being some of the former Indian States in which the State Governments substantially contributed to its development by financial participation and in other ways.

The year 1952 was notable for another innovation inasmuch as the first factory was built by cane producers on a co-operative basis in the Ahmednagar District in Bombay State.

On the basis of an average operating season of 120 working days and assuming a recovery of 10 per cent. sugar, the rated capacity of the 160 factories is estimated to be over 1.5 million tons of sugar per annum. The industry in Uttar Pradesh and Bihar alone has a capacity to produce 1.15 million tons.

The State-wise distribution of the factories is given below:—

VACUUM PAN FACTORIES IN 1952-53

		Number	Daily cane crushing capacity, in tons.
West Bengal	4	1,925
Bihar	30	27,865
Uttar Pradesh	72	67,484
Punjab	1	400
Orissa	2	350
Madras	10	8,942
Bombay	15	9,225
Part C States	2	1,100
Kashmir	1	600
PEPSU	2	2,650
Mysore	1	1,400
Madhya Bharat	6	3,200
Rajasthan	2	1,100
Hyderabad	3	1,550
Saurashtra	1	350
Travancore-Cochin	1	500
Vindhya Pradesh	1	100
Total	160	128,741

The size of the factories operating in the country varies widely from 50 tons to over 2,000 tons of cane crushing capacity per day. It is generally accepted that factories with a minimum cane crushing capacity of 800 tons per day should be considered as economic units. On this basis, only half the number can be considered economic.

RAW MATERIALS

The principal raw material is sugarcane. Its consumption in 1949-50 was about 10 million tons for a production of 975.00 tons of sugar. Approximately 20 to 25 per cent. of cane is consumed by sugar factories.

Other important raw materials for producing 975,000 tons of sugar in 1949-50 were: Limestone 85,000 tons, sulphur 5,400 tons, coal 100,000 tons, coke 9,500 tons and firewood 5,700,000 tons.

About 90 per cent. of the acreage under cane is now under improved varieties; but the yield per acre has not improved materially and this accounts for the high cost of sugar.

The following tables give the details:—

Year.	Acre under sugar cane (000 acres)	Gross output of raw sugar (000 Tons)
1948-49	3,824	4,869
1949-50	4,138	4,938
1950-51	4,314	5,016
1951-52	4,328	5,895

PRODUCTION

Price of sugar is not controlled now. But there was control from 1942 to October 1952 except for a brief period in 1947. During this period the controlled price of sugar was linked with the minimum price for cane fixed for Uttar Pradesh and Bihar. Besides the excise duty, the provincial cess was also levied. Since 1948 the floor for cane prices has been and is being slowly lowered.

Since gur was excluded from the orbit of control, the parity price for gur was always higher.

The details of sugar production are given below:—

Year.	Installed cap- acity (Lakh Tons).	Sugar output (Lakh Tons)
Ended October
1948	11.99	10.05
1949	11.99	10.01
1950	12.70	9.77
1951	12.70	11.15
1952	15.50	14.94

CONSUMPTION

The per capita consumption of sugar in the pre-war period was 6.6 lbs. During 1950-51, on the basis of a production of 1.1 million tons of sugar being consumed by a population of 355 million, the per capita consumption worked out at about 7 lb. In addition, gur amounting to three times the quantity of sugar is also consumed in the country so that the total per capita consumption is not much behind that of other countries.

On the basis of a population of 345 millions and of a production of 1.5 million tons of sugar in the country by utilising the entire rated capacity available, the per capita consumption of sugar can be increased to 8.7 lbs. by 1955-56.

This quantity might be deemed sufficient under present economic conditions, according to the Planning Commission. In 1953 India had, however, to import more than one lakh tons.

The main problem is of cane supply. The factories in Uttar Pradesh and Bihar are in a number of cases situated so near each other that there is competition between them for cane. The industry has also been complaining of the prices fixed for cane. Several factories have not enough covered storage facilities for molasses.

The Five Year Plan for cane cultivation envisages an increased output equivalent to 703,000 tons of gur of which Uttar Pradesh will account for 410,000 tons. The additional production targets (in tons) for other States are: Bombay 80,000, Madras 80,000, Punjab 70,000, Bihar 50,000 and other States 13,000.

Another part of the development programme should consist of enabling some of the factories to shift to areas or States where a plentiful supply of cane is assured. These and other remedial measures should enable the industry which has a productive capacity of over 1.5 million tons of sugar to produce by 1955-56 about 1.5 million tons as against 1.12 million tons in 1950-51.

TEA INDUSTRY

TEA ranks after jute as the second largest item in India's export trade. It earns a foreign exchange of about Rs. 94 crores and a revenue of about Rs. 14 crores from excise and export duties. The State Governments also derive considerable revenue from the agricultural income-tax on tea grown within their jurisdiction as well as from the sales tax on the commodity.

The indigenous plant growing in wild conditions was first discovered in Assam in 1820 and 15 years later the East India Company started an experimental garden which was sold to the Assam Company in 1840. In less than 100 years India has become the tea shop of the world.

On March 31, 1952 there were 6,241 gardens with a total area of 785,884 acres under tea. Of these, over 680,000 acres were in Assam and West Bengal, while Madras, Mysore and Travancore-Cochin accounted for nearly 170,000 acres.

Tea is also grown on a limited scale in Bihar, U.P., Punjab (Kangra) and Tripura. The industry as a whole gives employment to a labour force of over a million.

With the cessation of bulk buying in Bihar 1951 and the re-opening of London auctions, the tendency was for better types of teas to do well at the auctions.

By the end of 1951 the sellers' market was at an end and common teas, which were the worst to be affected, fetched only Rs. 1-3 a lb. at the end of March 1952 as compared with Rs. 1-14 a year before. Simultaneously production costs began to soar and in 1952 the extension of the Minimum Wages Act to the plantation industry prevented many gardens from covering their costs out of prices.

In May 1952 an official team inquired into the problems and recommended certain measures for temporary relief. These included deferred payment of excise duty, guaranteeing the banks of a portion of the loans to gardens, relaxation of provisions in the matter of advance payment of income-tax and supply of more wagons. The labour also agreed to forego certain concessions. Thus a substantial cut in production costs was effected by the end of 1952.

By this time tea prices had again begun to look up but to make sure of the recovery the industry decided to effect a voluntary cut of 8 per cent. in production and pay more attention to quality. The crisis had forced the closure of over 100 estates; but as a result of the above measures, the industry managed to turn the corner.

The cess levied on teas exported out of India has been fixed at Rs. 2 per 100 lbs. since May 1950. This is the maximum rate leviable under the Central Tea Board Act. The excise duty on tea continues to remain at As. 3 a lb.; but teas sold in bulk are subjected to a duty of an anna with effect from 1953-54.

For 1952-53, the export quota allotment was fixed at 452,720,021 lbs. being 130 per cent. of India's standard export figure under the International Tea Agreement and equivalent to 86.5 per cent of the crop basis of estates.

The following table shows the growth of the industry since 1915 :—

TEXTILE INDUSTRY

COTTON

The statistical position of cotton in the Indian Union is summed up in the following table:—

	(In lakhs of bales)
	1948-49	1950-51	1951-52	1952-53
Opening Stock	31.36	17.16	18.19	24.58*

Exports	3.05	1.69	1.97	3.30
Extra Factory Consumption ..	2.70	2.70	2.70	2.70
Total Distribution ..	48.30	40.49	45.38	49.50

* The disparity of 20,000 bales remains unexplained.

Export quotas of cotton were more liberal at 200,000 bales of Bengal Deshi and 152,000 bales of other short staple growths for 1951-52 and the export duty was reduced from Rs. 400 to Rs. 200 per bale in March 1952. For the year 1952-53 a quota of 150,000 bales of Bengal Deshi was announced in addition to 100,000 bales of other short staple varieties while Assam Comillas and Coconadas were made free for export. The duty on export of Bengal Deshi was reduced further to Rs. 125 in November 1952 and exports of that growth were allowed up to half of the quotas fixed for other varieties. Cotton waste is also licensed freely for export and the export duty of 50 per cent. ad valorem was reduced in the case of soft cotton waste to 30 per cent. in March.

The total imports in 1952 from all sources were 11.4 lakh bales as against 14 lakh bales programmed for and these proved more than sufficient in view of the emergence of the buyers' market for finished goods.

The sharp recession in cotton prices resulted in the relaxation of the cotton control in the field of movement and the Government had to reiterate in March 1952 its assurance about supporting the floor prices. The prices later rallied and, encouraged by the floor remaining untouched, the Government raised the floor for 1952-53 season by Rs. 50 with a view to providing a fresh stimulus to cotton growing.

In view of the satisfactory supply position, forward trading in cotton was permitted from December 1952 within the ring of the East Indian Cotton Association.

The agricultural plan envisages increased production of cotton from 33.00 lakh bales in 1950-51 to 42.29 lakh bales in 1955-56. Meantime, the deficit is being met by imports.

COTTON MILL INDUSTRY

The cotton textile industry, which is the largest single industry in the country, has made rapid strides during its existence of a century. India holds the third place among the countries of the world in its capacity for yarn and cloth based on mechanical equipment and stands second on the basis of cotton consumption.

In addition to providing means of livelihood for nearly 10 million handloom weavers, the mill industry provides employment to about 800,000 workers.

The capital invested is estimated at 100 crores, and the annual turn-over between Rs. 350 crores and Rs. 400 crores.

The following table gives details about the distribution of mills in India, as in August 1952.

Where situated	Number of Mills	Number of Spindles Installed	Number of Looms Installed	Average No. of Hands employed	Approximate Quantity of Cotton consumed in bales
Greater Bombay	65	29,20,509	65,370	1,12,468	10,41,910

Total	437	1,09,03,298	1,95,520	4,12,634	39,26,446

Note: Out of the above six mills in Uttar Pradesh, three mills in rest of Bombay State, two in Ahmedabad, two in Rajasthan, Ajmer and PEPSU and one mill each in Greater Bombay, Saurashtra, Punjab and Delhi, Madhya Bharat and Bhopal, Madras State and Travancore-Cochin were not working. The table also excludes 22 mills which have been registered and/or are in course of erection.

The actual production of yarn and cloth are as follows:—

Year	Yarn in 000 lbs.		Cloth in 000 yards.
	Production	Mill consumption	Coarse	Medium	Fine	Superfine	Total
1948	1,447,616	1,036,925	797,620	2,580,567	601,429	339,687	4,319,803

1952	1,448,400	N o	t A	v a	i l a	b l e	4,803,200

On the basis of the full rated capacity of the industry, about 50 lakh bales of cotton are required compared to the actual indigenous supply of 26.28 lakh bales in 1949-50 and 33.00 lakh bales in 1950-51. During 1948-49 the cotton consumption by mills was 42.5 lakh bales.

On this basis, the estimates of the other important raw materials are given below:—
Card clothing—3,500 sets; Bobbins—425,000 gross; Shuttles—8,300 gross; Healds—800,000 sets; Reeds—400,000 pos.; Pickers—37,500 gross; Mutton tallow—3,600 tons; Starch—36,000 tons; Coal tar dyes—5,900 tons; Hydro-sulphite of soda—2,000 tons; Zinc chloride—3,000 tons; Caustic soda—15,000 tons.

SMALL-SCALE INDUSTRY

It is estimated that there are 2,850,000 hand-looms and 23,800 power looms in existence in the country. About 65 per cent of the power looms are located in Bombay State though the handloom industry has witnessed the largest development in Madras State.

The regional distribution of power looms and handlooms, together with their estimated requirements of yarn is given below :—

State	No. of Power looms	Annual yarn Requirements (m lb.)	No. of Hand-looms	Annual yarn Requirements (m. lb.)
Bihar	147	0.72	190,218	47.10
Bombay	15,742	76.82	161,255	38.70
Madhya Pradesh	1,123	5.48	105,000	25.20

Other Areas	28	0.01	190,164	166.46
Total	23,800	116.11	2,851,685	684.40

Statistics of the production of powerlooms are not available. The actual output of the handloom sector, which showed a remarkable expansion during the Second World War when it reached a peak of 1,700 million yards, registered a fall in the subsequent period and was as low as 810 million yards in 1950 as against 1,250 million yards in 1948 and 1949.

Production of cloth by the handloom industry in 1951-52 has been estimated at 924 million yards.

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS

The year 1952 witnessed the emergence of a buyers' market in cotton textiles and the accumulation of unsold stocks was accompanied by a fall in prices. As a result, there was a progressive relaxation of control measures and restrictions. In October the prices of a number of varieties including dhories, sarrees and mulls were de-controlled and the policy was further extended to coatings, twills etc. with effect from January 1, 1953, leaving about one-third of the mill production subject to price control. With effect from July 1, 1953 the cloth control was totally abolished.

The production control was used towards the end of 1952 for helping the handloom industry by reserving the production of certain varieties including sarrees woven of dyed yarn, dhories with borders of certain width, lungies, sarongs etc.

In the post-war period, foreign exchange difficulties have resulted in shutting out imports of cotton textiles except (a) umbrella cloth and special fabrics, (b) yarn of 80s and above required for handloom purposes and (c) yarn of 30s and 60s for manufacture of heads and reeds.

While India was an important importer of cotton goods for several years she has now become an important exporter. In January 1953 the Government provided a stimulus to exports by reducing the export duty on coarse and medium cloth from 25 per cent. ad valorem to 10 per cent.

Export quotas for yarn are allowed for the first half of 1953 on a percentage basis of the free yarn made available by each mill in 1952.

The following table gives the sea-borne export trend :—

Year	Twist and Yarn		Cloth
	Million lb.	Rs. in crores	Million yd.	Rs. in crores
1948-49	7.4	1.3	340.92	36.2
1949-50	64.9	11.8	700.86	59.1
1950-51	74.5	17.1	1,269.60	116.7
1951-52	6.2	2.0	423.82	51.7
1952-53	17.3	4.2	614.61	61.3

DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMME

Cotton cloth (mill-made and handloom) available for consumption per head averaged 15 to 16 yards in pre-war years. The consumption in 1951-52 was, however, estimated at 12.5 yards as against 9 yards in 1950-51, and has been fixed at not less than 13 yards for 1952-53 so as to be progressively increased to 15 yards by 1955-56.

To enable the handloom industry to meet the consumer resistance, the Government constituted an All-India Handloom Board in December 1952.

In regard to the mill industry, it was found that apart from cotton shortage, there were about 150 inefficient and uneconomic units. Another important problem related to diminishing productivity.

The following table summarises the programme of development of the industry as approved by the Planning Commission :—

	Unit	1950-51	1952-53	1955-56
Rated Capacity of Mill industry
Spindles	No.	10,942,241	11,175,283	11,292,241*

* This figure does not include additions in existing mills for achieving economic sizes.

VEGETABLE OIL INDUSTRY

INDIA is one of the most important producers of oilseeds in the world and is consequently a large producer of vegetable oils as well as an exporter of oils and oilseeds.

The following figures show the average production of different varieties of oilseeds in recent years along with their share in world production :—

	Average Indian Production (lakh tons)	As percentage of world Production
Groundnut	30.0	36
Castor seed	1.2	26
Linseed	4.0	15
Sesamum	3.0	26
Cotton seed	13.0	13

According to the latest census of the Development Wing of the Ministry of Commerce and Industry, the number of the more important large-scale mills engaged in crushing edible oils in 1951 was 174 with a rated capacity of about 580,000 tons of oil per annum on a daily single shift operation of 8 hours and their regional distribution was as under :—

State	No. of units	Annual rated capacity (Tons of oil)
Assam	23	15,300
West Bengal ..	10	63,288
Bihar	21	52,104
Bombay	8	43,152
Delhi	2	3,660
Hyderabad ..	2	N. A.
Madhya Pradesh ..	12	32,640
Madras	14	74,868
Madhya Bharat ..	8	13,548
Mysore	4	14,700
Orissa	1	4,440
Punjab	3	10,956
PEPSU	2	3,672
Rajasthan	2	2,136
Saurashtra	4	37,944
Travancore-Cochin ..	9	15,672
Uttar Pradesh ..	49	190,608
Total	174	578,688*

* Refers to capacity of only 172 units.

The capital invested in the organised industry is estimated at Rs. 30 crores and the number of workers at 25,000. The most important oilseeds consumed in large quantities for the production of oils are groundnut, linseed, rape and mustard, castor seed and sesamum seed. Small quantities of cottonseed and mohwa seed are also crushed.

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS

The following table shows the imports and exports of oil since 1948-49 :—

	1948-49	1949-50	1950-51	1951-52	1952-53
Imports (Tons) ..	7,893	34,164	19,143	29,371	28,767
Coconut oil	7,856	30,700	18,070	20,900	23,401
Exports (Tons) ..	64,361	45,092	120,100	89,073	143,208
Groundnut oil ..	36,760	28,960	82,270	21,065	68,206
Linseed oil	9,171	7,362	5,664	25,338	28,219
Castor oil	13,020	4,922	25,530	23,013	37,344
Others	4,442	3,848	6,636	18,757	9,409

There is an export duty of Rs. 150 per ton on groundnut. The tentative export target is 50,000 tons of oilseeds and 170,000 tons of oil for 1955-56.

On the basis of the minimum per capita consumption of fats in this country the total consumption of fats of the entire population would work out at 7 million tons as against the present estimated consumption of 1.2 million tons.

The consumption of vegetable oils in industries has considerably risen since the last war. The development of soap, paints and varnish industries has stimulated the consumption of non-edible oils. Castor oil consumption as a lubricant has also registered considerable expansion. During the decade following the outbreak of the war, consumption of vegetable oils by the soap industry has doubled from 30,000 tons to 63,000 tons, and that of paints and varnish industry and lubricant has risen from 15,000 tons each to 30,000 tons and 25,000 tons respectively.

The Planning Commission estimates that the additional demand will be stepped up by 100,000 tons by 1955-56.

According to the Five-Year Plan, the production of oilseeds would increase by 400,000 tons over the estimated production of 5,103,000 tons in 1950-51. Consequently, the supply of oil is expected to rise from about 1,113,000 tons in 1949-50 to about 1,272,000 tons by 1955-56. The total supply of vegetable oils of all varieties including about 110,000 tons of coconut oil is thus expected to be 1.38 million tons by 1955-56.

The Commission has recommended measures for assisting the cottonseed industry, introduction of solvent extraction process to secure higher overall recovery of oils and wider utilisation of neglected resources of oil-bearing materials such as neem, mohwa, karang and narotly which grow wild.

The table below summarises the programme of development envisaged during the period of the Plan :—

	1949-50 Tons.	1955-56 Tons.
Output of vegetable oils excluding coconut oil ..	1,113,000	1,287,000
Cottonseed oil	5,000	12,500
Exports of oil	45,000	170,000

VANASPATHI

The Vanaspathi Industry though a minor branch of the Vegetable Oil Industry is one of the most highly organised and efficient industries. Its history is interesting. It started on a small scale in 1930. Then it grew rapidly as shown in the table below :—

Year	No. of factories	Sale in sub-continent in tons
1937	5	32,000
1938	5	40,000
1939	9	51,000
1940	11	65,000
1941	12	84,000
1942	12	71,000
1943	16	87,000
1944	18	108,000
1945	21	134,000
1946	21	138,000
1947	23	96,000
1948	26	127,000
1949	38	152,728
1950	39	167,653
1951	41	172,000

The State-wise distribution of factories at the beginning of 1952 with annual capacity was as follows :—

State	In production	Under construction	Annual capacity (tons)
Bombay	14	1	133,400
Saurashtra	3	1	22,500
West Bengal ..	7	1	56,000
Bihar	1	..	4,960
Orissa	1	..	7,600
U. P.	4	..	42,488
Delhi	2	..	13,500
Punjab	1	..	3,000
PEPSU	1	3,000
Madras	7	5	52,900
Mysore	4	..	10,800
Hyderabad ..	1	..	7,500
Travancore-Cochin ..	1	..	1,200
Madhya Pradesh ..	2	..	19,500
Madhya Bharat ..	1	1	10,500
Total	40	10	388,828

The gap between the installed capacity and actual production has continued to remain wide as will be seen from the following table :—

Year	Installed Capacity Tons	Production Tons
1948	216,228	129,696
1949	283,728	155,544
1950	319,728	171,636
1951	325,728	172,320
1952	339,228	190,812

The capital invested in the industry is about Rs. 22½ crores. Besides 15,000 workers directly employed, the industry provides indirect employment for nearly 60,000 workers.

Vegetable oils constitute the chief raw material of the industry.

There is no import and export is also negligible.

Production, distribution, sale and price are all controlled for which purpose the country is divided into four zones.

The demand for vanaspathi at present is estimated at about 150,000 tons a year. The Planning Commission, however, thinks that the demand would rise to about 190,000 tons by 1952-53 and to about 300,000 tons by 1955-56.

The table below summarises the programme of development during the period of the Plan :—

	1950-51	1955-56
No. of factories	48	59
Annual rated capacity (tons)	332,228	388,828
Actual Production (tons) ..	152,600	300,000

WOOLLEN INDUSTRY

THERE are three main groups of mills, those which operate both woollen and worsted systems, those with woollen or worsted systems only, and lastly, the Amritsar group of mills which purchase ready spun yarn, and from that stage occupy themselves in weaving, dyeing and finishing.

In 1951 there were 44 factories including four put up since the war and the total capital employed was estimated at Rs. 7 crores. The industry gave employment to about 18,000 workers. The number of powerlooms and spindles installed were 2,039 and 116,800 respectively. The regional distribution of the woollen industry in 1951 was as under :—

Region.	Number of units.		Total.	Rated Capacity (m. lbs.).
	Spinning only.	Spinning and weaving.
Bombay	2	6	8	6.04
Saurashtra	1	1	1.50
Punjab	26*	26	5.70
Uttar Pradesh	4	4	3.90
West Bengal	1	1	0.30
Kashmir	1	1	0.61
Mysore	3	3	2.10
	2	42	44	20.15

* Of these 22 units are mostly for weaving and account for one million lbs. of rated capacity.

The above rated capacity is assessed on the basis of a single shift of 8 hours per day. Some of the mills are, however, working more than one shift.

Woollen manufactures consist of blankets, rugs, shawls, lolls, coating, overcoating, tweed, flannel, serge, etc.; but the major portion is of coarser and heavier types of goods. The trend of production of woollen manufactures is detailed below :—

Year.	Quantity (m. lbs.).
1947	24.0
1948	20.0
1949	21.0
1950	18.1
1951	17.7
1952	16.7

The fall in production during the years 1950, 1951 and 1952 was mainly due to the difficulty of marketing the goods as a result of consumer resistance to high prices. Since August 1952, however, the fall in the prices of raw wool and finished goods has been accompanied by the broadening of the demand as well as production.

Among the first group, the Cawnpore Woollen Mills and the New Egerton Woollen Mills, Dhariwal, each with more than 15,000 spindles and operating both woollen and worsted systems, are the largest units in India at the present time.

Exports of woollen goods rose in the same period from Rs. 304 lakh to Rs. 649 lakh, carpets and rugs accounting for the bulk of the shipments.

HOSIERY INDUSTRY

According to the Tariff Commission, there were in 1951, 875 units, excluding four mills having hosiery section, of which as many as 843 were in the Punjab with a capital investment of approximately Rs. 3 crores. Only 56 units were, however, registered under the Factories Act and 45 used electric power.

The Ludhiana factories numbering about 805 work during the season, but have a rated capacity for consuming 10.425 million lbs. of yarn annually. The annual rated capacity of the four woollen mills having hosiery section is estimated at 1.313 million lbs. of yarn. The actual production of the industry has, however, been very much less than the rated capacity and has been estimated as under by the Tariff Commission in terms of weight of the finished products :—

Year.	Lakh lbs.
1949	37.83
1950	27.57
1951	20.22

Two new units which were under construction in 1950 went into production in 1951. In addition, another two units were likely to be established for woollen goods apart from the installation of spinning plants for additional production of worsted yarn.

The Planning Commission has estimated the indigenous demand for woollen manufactures at 23 million lbs. by 1955-56 and is of the view that if some of the mills work double shift and the existing capacity fully utilised, the establishment of new weaving units during the period of the Plan is unnecessary. It, however, recognises that the industry is handicapped by inadequate supplies of wool tops and the absence of facilities for technical training and has, therefore, stressed the need for washing of wool before shearing and grading before marketing. The following table summarises the programme of development of the woollen textile industry (mechanised section) :—

	1950-51	1955-56
No. of spindles in existence	116,800	146,800
Annual rated capacity for cloth on single shift (m. lbs.)	20.15	20.15
Actual Production (m. lbs.)	18.00	25.00
Estimated requirements (m. lbs.)	20.00	23.00

Owing to restrictions on imports of finished woollen goods in recent years, there has been a gradual decline in imports from 11.176 million lbs. valued at Rs. 724 lakh in 1948-49 to 3.963 million lbs. valued at Rs. 298 lakh in 1951-52. The bulk of the imports was yarn and knitting wool.

MINES AND MINERALS

Allotment under Five-Year Plan (mineral development) Rs. 1.06 crores.

THE mineral wealth of India, as at present known, though by no means inexhaustible, comprises an adequate range of useful products necessary for industrial development.

The reserves are ample in respect of minerals essential for basic industries—coal and iron—but the country is deficient in a fairly long list of vital minerals like ores of copper, tin, lead, zinc, nickel, cobalt and in sulphur and petroleum.

The position with regard to aluminium ore, refractories, abrasives, limestone etc., may be considered as fairly adequate while in respect of titanium and thorium ores and of mica, the country has considerable reserves.

An idea of India's mineral resources, their adequacy, deficiency and present production is given below :—

MINERALS ADEQUATE FOR INDIA'S NEEDS

Mineral	Production in 000 tons
	1950	1951
Bauxite	64	67
Coal	32,307	34,431
Ilmenite	212	220
Iron ore	2,971	3,657
Kyanite	35	42
Sillimanite	1	4
Magnetite	53	117
Manganese ore	883	1,234

Coal, iron ore, manganese ore, ilmenite, kyanite and mica for which the data is not available are produced in quantities of real importance to industry and other sections of economy.

Of these mica, manganese ore, kyanite and ilmenite are wholly or largely exported.

Manganese ore	70.0	100.0
Bauxite	26.0	60.0 (b)
Glass sand	108.0	184.0
Ilmenite	Nil	3.0
Monazite sands	Nil	1.5
Sulphur	42.5	82.0
Rock phosphate	35.0	108.0
Petroleum crude	Nil	1,700.0 (c)
Pyrites	Nil	22.0

(a) When the expansion scheme of the existing steel units is complete, the demand for iron ore is expected to go up to 4.4 million tons. This will rise further to 5.5 million tons when the proposed Government steel factory materialises.

(b) Following the execution of the expansion programme of Indian Aluminium Co., the demand for bauxite will be about 110,000 tons per annum.

(c) The addition of two refineries will raise the demand for crude petroleum to 4.2 million tons per annum.

As part of the rational policy to ensure efficient working of known mineral deposits, the Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Act was enacted in 1948. Under this Act, the Central Government's concurrence is necessary for the issue of licences and leases for atomic energy minerals and rare minerals. There is a proposal to cover other minerals by this provision and also to lay down rules regarding economic units for different classes of minerals with due advertence to local conditions.

The Indian Bureau of Mines Act set up in March 1948 continues to tender advice to Government on mineral concessions.

The Geological Survey of India has been expanded so that it can cope with the growing work of protecting, investigating and mapping mineral deposits and tackling the engineering problems connected with the country's hydro-electric projects.

COAL

The most important coal fields are Raniganj and Giridih. Bihar and West Bengal contribute about 82 per cent of the total output. Other States in which coals are found are Madhya Pradesh, Orissa, Hyderabad, Vindya Pradesh, Assam and Rajasthan.

There are about 100 coal fields in India. The production in 1952 was over 36 million tons. The industry employed in 1951 about 340,000 workers, an increase of 68 per cent over 1941.

Indian coal falls mainly into two classes namely, high grade steam and low grade steam.

The Metallurgical Coal Conservation Committee placed the reserves of coking coal at 829.6 million tons in respect of selected grade, 395.7 million tons of grade I quality and 49.1 million tons of grade II quality. With atoning, washing and blending the committee thought that a reserve of 2,000 million tons of good quality coking coal could be obtained. The Geological Survey of India estimated the reserves of non-coking coal at 39,650.25 million tons of which gondwana coal represented 37,113.25 million tons and balance tertiary coal.

The following table gives the details of output :—

Year	Production (million tons)
1946	29.27
1947	30.07
1948	29.82
1949	31.44
1950	32.31
1951	34.43
1952	36.23

Recently the mineral concession rules were revised by the Government of India. The rules (1949) limit the period of the leases to twenty years with the option of one renewal for another twenty years. The rules also require the certificates of approval from the State Governments. The Government has also constituted a committee to consider all applications for opening mines.

Mechanisation in the industry is at a very early stage of development. In the middle of 1951, there were only 374 coal cutting machines in 118 coal mines which represented hardly one-fifth of the total output. There were nine mechanical loaders of which two were out of order while the number of conveyors was only 19. An event of great importance was the introduction of coal washing plant, for the first time in the history of the industry, by Tatas in their West Bokaro mines.

In earlier times the coal used to be sold by the name of steams. For the first time the Indian Coal Grading Board was constituted in 1926. The maintenance of grades requires beneficiation but only about 70 collieries are fitted with screening plants and mechanical chutes, the rest are worked by hand labour.

The Coal Grading Board has split up the area into Raniganj and Jharia coal fields and has carried out extensive work in the field of grading. In 1944 the necessity was felt to control production and distribution of coal and the Colliery Control Order introduced what is known as Coal Commissioner's grade.

Under the Coal Mines (Conservation and Safety) Act, 1952, the Central Government is empowered (1) to adopt measures for the safety of coal mines or for conserving coal, (2) to authorise the Coal Board to deal with problems of the industry, (3) to levy excise duty on coal and coke, and (4) to frame rules for regulating the industry.

The coal industry is thus subjected to a comprehensive control embracing production, allocation, prices and wages. Levies on exports also differ from country to country.

Since the middle of 1952, the overseas demand for Indian coal showed trends of contraction and the mounting stocks at pits forced the industry to offer secret discounts thereby rendering the official prices ineffective.

The export trends are summarised below :—

Country	1950-51	1951-52	1952-53
United Kingdom	3.7	117.0	—
Aden and Dependencies	6.1	55.9	37.8

IRON ORE

On account of the high ash of Indian metallurgical coke, it is usual in estimating the Indian iron ore reserves to accept only ores with an iron content of 60 per cent and above. Ores below this iron content are used only in very small quantities in Indian blast furnaces.

India possesses perhaps the largest reserves of high-grade iron ore in the world as well as large quantities of low-grade ores. The estimated resources are :—

	Million Tons
Bihar
Singbhum	1,047.00
Madhya Pradesh
Bastar	610.00
Rowghat	800.00
Chanda	21.90

Sandur	130.00
Bombay and Goa	6.00
Punjab and PEPSU
Patiala	5.00
Mandi	5.00
Total (not conclusive) more than ..	5,007.20

Large deposits of high grade ores are limited to a few areas of which the following fields require special mention :—

(i) Singbhum and Orissa : In what is known as the Singbhum Iron Belt, consisting of the Singbhum District, in which the Tata Iron & Steel Company's Steel Works are situated, and the neighbouring areas, there exist some of the richest iron ore deposits in the world. The iron content of the ore considered usable varies from 60 per cent to 65 per cent.

(ii) Mysore : There are big deposits of hematite and quartz—magnetite ore in Mysore but the latter are of low-grade and would require concentration before using them. The ores used in the Bhadravati Iron Works are from the Bababudan Hills and can be compared to Singbhum ores containing about 60 per cent iron. Incidentally, the total quantity of ore available is not less than 100 million tons.

Limonites deposits are also known to exist but they have not been properly explored owing to transport difficulties.

(000 Tons)

MANGANESE ORE

North Kanara and Panch Mahals in Bombay, Vishakapatnam in Andhra, Sandur, Shimoga, Chitaldrug and Tumkur in Mysore and Balaghat, Bhandara, Chhindwara and Nagpur districts in Madhya Pradesh are today considered as the most valuable and economically workable centres.

Domestic consumption of manganese is given below :—

Year	Production	Domestic Consumption	Exports
1949 ..	645,825	79,264	613,007
1950 ..	882,929	69,325	808,221
1951 ..	1,283,929	88,867	952,000
1952-53 ..	N. A.	N. A.	1,364,931

It is estimated that domestic requirements will reach 100,000 tons by 1957-58.

To conserve reserves export control was brought into force late in 1948 and ceiling limits were placed for both high and low grades. Later, for special reasons, Government decided on a policy of export of high grade ores to the extent of one million tons per annum for a temporary period.

India is believed to have abundant resources probably of the order of 70 to 80 million tons of low grade ore, i.e., containing less than 42 per cent manganese.

Provision has been made in the Plan for investigations in regard to beneficiation of such ores.

The export price for manganese ore which had touched Rs. 175 per ton during the Korean boom and remained almost steady around Rs. 155 in 1952 steadily declined to Rs. 113 by April 1953.

MICA

Mica has been treated as a strategic material and India accounts for a big slice of the world trade in it.

The principal mica deposits are concentrated in Bihar, Rajasthan including Ajmer-Merwara, and Madras. In recent years, its occurrence has been reported from other parts of the country as well.

In Bihar the mica belt is 60 to 80 miles long and about 12 to 16 miles wide and produces "ruby" mica which is in great demand all over the world.

At present Rajasthan is responsible for about 25 per cent of the Indian production. Most of the production from Rajasthan is sent to Bihar to be split and marketed.

The mica belt in the Nellore district in Andhra is about 40 miles long and 5 to 10 miles wide. The greater portion of the Andhra output is of "green" variety.

Statistics of mica production are not reliable and export figures are always higher than production figures. The quantity and value of mica exported from India are given below :—

Year	Quantity in 000 cwt.	Value in lakhs of Rs.
1948-49 ..	340.2	593.7
1949-50 ..	297.7	684.5
1950-51 ..	383.4	956.5
1951-52 ..	407.7	1320.9
1952-53 ..	283.8	899.5

CHROMITE

Chromite is an important strategic mineral of which India has moderate supplies.

The chief deposits are in the Singbhum district of Bihar, the Mysore and Hassan district

The following is the trend of production :—

Year	000 Tons
1949	2,809
1950	2,965
1951	3,657

There has been a small but growing export trade in iron ore as indicated below :—

Year	Tons
1949-50	4,300
1950-51	84,513
1951-52	280,102
1952-53	811,571

of the Mysore State, the Ratnagiri and Sawant-wadi areas of Bombay State, the Krishna district of Andhra, the Salem district of Madras and the Keonjhar district of Orissa.

No reliable estimates of reserves are available but the following figures in tons may be given:—
Reserves in Tons: Mysore (185,000); Bombay (67,000); Orissa (200,000); Salem (200,000).

The following table gives details regarding production and export of chromo ore:—

Year	Production (Tons)	Exports (Tons)
1949	19,416	6,382
1950	16,729	3,864
1951	15,802	8,838

Export of chromite which was unrestricted till 1948 was brought under control and a ceiling of 10,000 tons was prescribed.

MAGNESITE

Large deposits of magnesite used in the manufacture of magnesium salts, metallic magnesium and refractory bricks are known to occur in Salem (Madras), Hassan and Mysore (Mysore), Almora (U.P.), Coorg, Idar (Bombay), Dungarpur (Rajasthan) and Singhbhum (Bihar).

Of these, the chief producing centres are Salem, Hassan and Mysore.

The deposits in Salem have been estimated to contain over 90 million tons within a depth of 100 ft. from the surface. The Almora deposits are supposed to contain a minimum of 20 million tons.

Only a part of the output is used in the manufacture of refractory bricks for steel works and a considerable quantity is exported.

The output and export of magnesite from Salem and Mysore from 1949 to 1951 are given below:—

Year	Output (Tons)	Exports (Tons)
1949	90,504	37,099
1950	52,859	16,465
1951	117,071	40,409

GYP SUM

Gypsum deposits are known to exist in several parts of India. The better known gypsum bearing regions are in Rajasthan (Jodhpur, Bikaner and Jaisalmer) and in Madras (Tiruchirappalli district).

The reserves are placed at 40 million tons in Rajasthan, 15.3 million tons in Madras and one million tons in Andhra (Nellore district).

Smaller deposits also occur in Tehri-Garhwal, Himachal Pradesh and parts of western India; but these have not been explored.

The annual production from Indian deposits from 1949 is given below:—

Year	Output (Tons)
1949	139,944
1950	206,366
1951	203,602

At present the annual estimated consumption of gypsum is about 94,000 tons for cement manufacture and about 2,000 to 3,000 tons for plaster of Paris.

The Sindhri Fertiliser Factory will annually require about 600,000 tons of gypsum.

The Planning Commission estimates that by the end of 1955-56 the demand will rise to 870,000 tons as against 127,000 tons in 1951-52. Of the increase cement will account for 45,000 tons to 160,000 tons and fertilisers for 678,000 tons to 690,000 tons.

SULPHUR

Native sulphur in deposits of large size is unknown in India though some occurrences have recently come to light in the hill ranges in the north of India, and small deposits of native sulphur produced by bacterial action on sulphates derived from sea-water have been found in the coastal tract of Masulipatnam and in the Barren Island.

Deposits of pyrites are more widespread and are found in Kashmir, at Taradevi near Simla, at Amjor near Rohtas in Bihar, Karwar in Bombay and in the Chitaldurg area of Mysore.

Substantial quantities of pyrites are associated with the gold deposits of Wynad in the Nilgiri district of Madras. Most of the copper deposits also occur in the form of copper pyrites. Some of the Indian coals, e.g. Assam coal and Rewa coal are high in sulphur.

As there is no production of sulphur in India, the country's requirements are met from imports, for which the recent figures are given below:—

Year	Quantity (Tons)
1948	38,300
1949	41,000
1950	55,000
1951	38,507

SALT

The principal centres of salt manufacture in the Indian Union are as follows:—

(a) Marine Salt Works:—

(i) Saurashtra and Kutch—Bhavnagar, Jafraabad, Jannagar, Lavanpur, Porbandar, Bharai and Kandla.

(ii) Bombay—Dharasana, Bhayandar, Bhandup, Uran and Mithapur.

(iii) Madras—Nanpada, Pennugudur, Madras, Cuddalore, Adirampatnam, and Tuticorin.

(iv) Orissa—Astarang (Puri) and Huma, Gokhukuda, and Sumadi (Ganjam district).

(v) West Bengal—Contal (Midnapur).

(vi) Travancore-Cochin—along the coast.

(b) Salt Mines:—

(vi) Himachal Pradesh—Mandi.

(c) Inland Sources:—

(viii) Rajasthan—Sambhar, Dikwana and Pachbadra.

(ix) Bombay and Saurashtra—Kharaghoda and Kuda (Rann of Kutch).

Production

At present there are 122 salt works with an annual productive capacity of about 2.804 million tons (76.3 million maunds) of which six units with a productive capacity of about 0.73 million tons (20 million maunds) are owned and operated by Government.

The total area under salt is estimated at about 82,000 acres as against 55,600 acres at the beginning of the period of the Plan of which 84 per cent is owned and leased out by the Central and the State Governments. In terms of actual production, however, Government factories account for one-fourth of the output.

In the private sector, the manufacture is largely in the hands of small licensees or lessees of absentee proprietors, except in Saurashtra and Kutch.

The trend of production (in thousand tons) in 1951-52 is given below:—

Bombay, 644; Madras, 736; Orissa, 40; West Bengal, 2; Rajasthan, 494; Saurashtra, 776; Mandi, 5; Unlicensed factories, 100; total, 2,797.

The total block capital invested in the industry is estimated at about Rs. 703 lakhs (Rs. 505 lakhs in marine salt works and Rs. 108 lakhs in inland salt works).

The amount of working capital is about Rs. 250 lakhs.

The total number of persons employed in the industry in 1948 was approximately 72,000 of which about 57,000 worked in the marine salt works, about 14,000 in the inland salt works and about 600 in the Mandi mines.

Until 1939 India was a heavy importer of salt but imports into India since 1947 not only steadily declined but of late the country has become an important exporter as will be seen from the following:—

—	Quantity (Tons)	Value Rs. in lakhs
1950-51 ..	1,862	1 5
1951-52 ..	86,632	39 4
1952-53 ..	222,617	60 1

The Salt Experts Committee (1950) estimated that the total consumption would rise to 3.0 million tons (81.7 million mds.) in five years, the break-up being domestic consumption 2.1 million tons, industries 0.4 million tons, livestock and agriculture 0.3 million tons and curing of hides and fish, etc. the remainder.

The Planning Commission thinks that it will rise to about 2.75 million tons by the end of 1952-53 and to 3 million tons by the end of 1955-56.

Salt is produced by solar evaporation except in Mandi where rock salt is obtained by dry mining.

Excepting in Saurashtra and Kutch, most of the holdings are small. In Madras 3,500 licensees hold 17,000 acres of land under salt. The average yield in south India is about 40 tons per acre, while in Saurashtra, where the average holding varies from 600 to 1,000 acres, the yield ranges 50 and 90 tons per acre.

The distribution is regulated under the zonal system for despatch by rail since the beginning of 1949.

A cess of two annas per maund on salt produced in private salt works and 3½ annas on salt produced in Government works is levied in order to meet administrative charges of the Salt Commissioner's office and finance the development of the industry.

Export of salt by sea from other parts of the country to West Bengal were exempted from the payment of cess till 1952. Export of salt to Japan by sea from India are still exempted from cess.

Schemes for the existing Government works at Rajasthan and Kharaghoda involve an outlay of Rs. 50 lakhs during 1951-56. Rs. 100 lakhs are meant for the development of the Mandi mines to obtain an annual output of 66,000 tons from 1955-56 onwards.

RARE METALS

The recent technological advances for meeting the rigorous demands of modern times have focussed the attention of the various countries on the possibilities of using new metals or modifying known metals. Some of the rare metals which were scientific curiosities till recently are now being produced on a commercial scale in Western countries. It is known that the soils of India contain ores from which some of these rare metals can be recovered. The Government of India and the Travancore-Cochin State Government have jointly floated a joint stock company, the Indian Rare Earths Ltd., to process the monazite sands of Travancore. The Company plans to extract a mixture of oxides of rare earths containing cerium lanthanum, praseodymium, neodymium and ten other metals of the rare earth group.

Cerium is now being extensively used in glass manufacture, cores of cinema electrodes, catalyst in chemical manufacture, as abrasive in optical glass fabrication and in some structures of steel.

The use of thorium salts in manufacture of incandescent gas mantles is well known. It is also used in glass manufacture, benzene synthesis, metallurgy and cloth impregnation. Intensive search has located deposits of pitch blend containing a high percentage of uranium oxides in Rajasthan. A belt of uranium minerals over 150 miles long has been found in Bihar and there are sporadic occurrences in Madras as well.

Vanadium is of great value to the manufacture of certain types of steel. Appreciable reserves bearing titaniferous iron ores containing about 3 per cent oxides of vanadium have been discovered in Bihar. Tungsten ore accepted as of strategic importance is found in parts of West Bengal and Rajasthan. Chromite ores occur mostly in Chitaldurg (Mysore) and Singhbhum (Bihar). The minerals containing columbium and tantalum used to prevent weld decay and corrosion respectively have been traced in small quantities in the mica producing areas like Nellore, Monghyr, Gaya, Mysore and Travancore.

Beryllium used in metallic springs and in manufacturing X-ray tubes is produced from the ore known by that name. It is found in Rajasthan, Bihar and Nellore in Madras. Gallium and germanium are found in coal. More recently a rich source in the mineral sphalerite was reported from Nepal. The National Metallurgical Laboratory at Jamshedpur is examining the economics of Mysore and Singhbhum chromite and of low-grade chrome ores from Talur (Mysore) and has evolved a new electrolytic technique for separating beryllia from beryl. The National Chemical Laboratory of Poona has developed quick methods for estimating vanadium, beryllium, uranium and germanium.

Lithium is an important light metal of strategic significance. In India lithium minerals were first noticed as early as in 1874, and are commonly found as constituents of granite pegmatites. The sources are Pihara (Bihar), Jodhpur, Bastar (Madhya Pradesh) and Ooregam (Mysore). Kashmir is reported to have crystalline white blocks in a valley north of the famous sapphire mines. Nevertheless no systematic survey of the resources has yet been undertaken.

THE FIVE-YEAR PLAN

THE Planning Commission was set up in March 1950 by a resolution of the Government of India. A draft plan was presented in July 1951.

The final plan was presented to the Government of India on December 7, 1952 and laid before Parliament on December 8.

The members of the Planning Commission were: Mr. Jawaharlal Nehru (Chairman), Mr. Gulzarilal Nanda (Deputy Chairman), Mr. V. T. Krishnamachari, Mr. Chintaman D. Deshmukh, Mr. G. L. Mehta, Mr. R. K. Patil and Mrs. Durgabai Deshmukh. The Secretary was Mr. N. R. Pillai and the Deputy Secretary Mr. Tarlok Singh. Mr. Mehta remained a member till August 26, 1952 and Mr. Patil till November 10, 1951 and was subsequently associated with the work of the Commission.

The five-year period is 1950-51 to 1955-56.

Below is given a statistical description of the Plan.

Throughout the allotments for Madras include those for Andhra.

The total outlay and distribution as between Central and State Governments is as follows (Rs. in crores):—

Centre (including railways), 1,241; Part A States, 610; Part B States, 173; Part C States, 32; Jammu & Kashmir 13; Total 2,069.

The outlay proposed in the development programmes of States other than Jammu & Kashmir is as follows (Rs. in crores):—

PART A STATES: Assam, 17.49; Bihar, 57.29; Bombay, 146.44; Madhya Pradesh, 43.08; Madras, 140.84; Orissa, 17.84; Punjab, 20.21; Uttar Pradesh, 97.83; and West Bengal, 69.10.

PART B STATES: Hyderabad, 41.55; Madhya Bharat, 22.42; Mysore, 36.60; PEPSU, 8.14; Rajasthan, 16.82; Saurashtra, 20.41 and Travancore-Cochin, 27.32.

PART C STATES: Ajmer, 1.57; Bhopal 3.90; Bilaspur, 0.57; Coorg, 0.73; Delhi, 7.48; Himachal Pradesh, 4.55; Kutch, 3.05; Manipur, 1.55; Tripura, 2.07; and Vindhya Pradesh, 6.39.

The table below shows the financial basis of the Plan in crores of rupees:—

	Central Government	States including Jammu & Kashmir	Total
Planned outlay on development	1,241	828	2,069
Budgetary Resources:
1. Saving from current revenues	330	408	738
2. Capital receipts (excluding withdrawals from reserves)	396	124	520
3. Internal Inter-Governmental transfers in connection with the Plan (i.e., "Central assistance")	—229* 497	229* 761	1,258
External resources already received	156	—	156
TOTAL (of last two items)	653	761	1,414

* Includes Rs. 4 crores by way of statutory grants for Scheduled Tribes which will be available for part of the development expenditure on Scheduled Tribes in the Assam State Plan.

The balance of Rs. 655 crores will have to be found from further external sources or internal taxation and borrowing and deficit financing.

OUTLAY

The distribution of expenditure in the public sector is as follows :—

	Rs. Crores	Per cent of Total.
Agriculture and Community Development	361	17.5
Irrigation	168	8.1
Multi-purpose Irrigation and Power Projects	266	12.9
Power	127	6.1

Industry	173	8.4
Social Service	340	16.4
Rehabilitation	85	4.1
Others	52	2.5
TOTAL	2,069	100.0

In October 1952 it was decided to increase the expenditure on the Plan by another Rs. 175 crores to meet the rising unemployment in the country. (For details see end of the article.)

The following table shows the Development Expenditure Under the Plan in greater detail with the Central contribution :—

A review of the progress of the Plan during the two years 1951-53 was presented to Parliament by the Minister for Plannings, Irrigation and Power in May 1953. The more important points of the review are given below :

The total expenditure on the Plan during the first two years amounted to Rs. 585 crores, as against the planned outlay for the entire period, of Rs. 2,069 crores. Thus over 70 per cent of the expenditure was to be incurred during the remaining three years. During the period, the Central assistance to the State Governments amounted to Rs. 71.7 crores.

Industrial production went up by about 15 to 20 per cent over the level of 1950-51. The industries which recorded an increase in production were cotton textiles, cement, iron and steel, paper and paper board, sewing machines, bicycles, rayon and jute goods.

Additional area irrigated by major projects, 1.42 million acres; New power generated 315,000 kW.

Increase in the production of agricultural crops since 1951 was—jute 14 lakhs bales; cotton 3.0 lakh bales; sugarcane 0.3 million tons, and food grains 1.15 million tons. Agricultural acreage has increased by six million acres.

Fifty-eight locomotives were produced at the Chittaranjan Works, where as from January 1953, 70 per cent of the component parts of locomotives were being produced.

Railway coaches manufactured in 1951-52 numbered 643. Between April 1951 and December 1952, 8,000 railway wagons were also manufactured.

Additional coastal shipping tonnage of 77,000 tons was acquired and six ships were built at the Vishakapatnam shipyard.

An aggregate length of 380 miles of national highways and strategic roads was constructed and 1,050 miles of existing roads were improved. Seven large bridges were constructed.

Important State Industries which went into production were the Sindri Fertiliser Factory, the Chittaranjan Locomotive Works, the Indian Telephone Factory, the Indian Rare Earths Ltd, the new mint at Alipore, the Machine Tool Prototype Factory and the Ambernath (Defence Industry) Factory.

Fifty-five community projects were started in October 1952, and a comprehensive national extension service scheme, covering 120,000 villages was also formulated.

SPECIAL GRANT FOR EMPLOYMENT

In October 1953 it was decided to increase the expenditure on the Five-Year Plan by Rs. 175 crores for financing new specific schemes, which will simultaneously expand employment potential and check growing unemployment in the country.

It was also decided that the programme of rehabilitation of displaced persons should be extended to the full planning period instead of ending it in 1953-54.

The Deputy Chairman of the Planning Commission, Mr. V. T. Krishnamachari, who addressed the Council before it adjourned, urged the States to tap all possible sources for raising additional funds, including betterment levies, enhancement of water rates and floating of loans for accelerating economic development.

Positive action towards relieving unemployment was to be taken on the following lines :

1. Establishment of Industrial Finance Corporations in States; 2. Central assistance to States for initiating schemes to end chronic scarcity; 3. Grants for road-building activities and execution of small power projects; and 4. Expansion of technical training facilities.

A communication was sent to the States indicating clearly the nature of the schemes which would be considered eligible for inclusion under the expanded programme. These schemes were to be strictly related to the Plan and were also to be capable of producing results within the planning period.

The break-up of this investment was : Rs. 45 crores for extending the rehabilitation programme for the remaining period of the Plan under which refugee townships would be developed;

Rs. 10 crores for a road programme and Rs. 15 crores for port, health, education and housing schemes.

The road programme was initiated while the housing scheme was already under way.

The additional investments totalled Rs. 70 crores.

In respect of States, new schemes to introduce permanent improvements in scarcity areas in 12 States and to raise the purchasing power of the people in these areas would cost Rs. 35 crores.

For these purposes, the Centre was to give the States 30-year loan of Rs. 40 crores bearing no interest for the first five years.

Other items are : Rs. 5 crores for setting up State Finance Corporations and assistance to small-scale and cottage industries; Rs. 2.5 crores for installing thermal power sets in small towns.

CENTRAL ASSISTANCE IN THREE YEARS

The Central Government, in the first three years of the Five-Year Plan period, gave assistance to the States to the extent of Rs. 27.61 crores in the shape of grants and Rs. 250 crores by way of loans for the execution of the Plan.

Grants were divided into seven categories.

They are : food production, community projects, basic and social education, cottage and small-scale industries, assistance under Article 275 (1) of the Constitution, natural calamities and special development grants for Part "B" States.

The amount paid to Part "A" States on this account was Rs. 1,030 lakhs, Rs. 118 lakhs, Rs. 4 lakhs, Rs. 7 lakhs, Rs. 539 lakhs and Rs. 280 lakhs, respectively making up a total of Rs. 1,980 lakhs.

A sum of Rs. 780 lakhs was distributed as grants to Part "B" States under the same seven categories of assistance.

So far as assistance from the Centre to deal with natural calamities was concerned, Assam received Rs. 49 lakhs, Bihar Rs. 111 lakhs, Madras Rs. 72 lakhs, West Bengal Rs. 40 lakhs and Saurashtra Rs. 30 lakhs.

A large portion of the Central loans to States amounting to Rs. 250 crores was for river valley projects.

Part "A" States received loans aggregating Rs. 213 crores, of which river valley projects accounted for Rs. 114 crores and Rs. 42 crores went for development schemes.

Further, Rs. 29 crores were given for rehabilitation purposes, Rs. 22 crores for minor irrigation, Rs. 2 crores for industrial housing, Rs. 48 lakhs for community projects and Rs. 2 crores for natural calamities.

Part "B" States received an aggregate loan of Rs. 37 crores.

Punjab, where the Bhakra Nangal project is in execution, was the largest recipient of Central loans, amounting to Rs. 62 crores (Rs. 54 crores for river valley works).

West Bengal, with the D.V.C., came next, receiving a loan of Rs. 48 crores and Orissa with the Hirakud Project received Rs. 31 crores.

The total revenue receipts in Part "A" States were in 1951-52 Rs. 315.6 crores, in 1952-53 Rs. 336.96 crores and in 1953-54 Rs. 350.5 crores.

So far as Part "B" States are concerned, the aggregate revenue was Rs. 106.70 crores, Rs. 110.91 crores and Rs. 115.29 crores, respectively.

In the three years of the Plan period the total State revenue receipts were Rs. 1,335 crores.

While direct Central assistance loan and grants amounted to Rs. 300 crores, according to the Schedule, the resources expected to be raised by the States fell short of the targets.

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROJECTS

It is proposed that during the Plan period 1951-56 the Community Development Projects (also called the National Extension Service) should cover one-fourth of the country's villages.

This means the initiation of work on 1,200 Community Development Blocks.

Each Block would comprise 100 villages, covering about 160 sq. miles, a cultivated area of about 50,000 acres and a population of about 66,000.

Work on 55 projects (each is about four and a half times the size of a Block) started on Oct. 2, 1952. They covered about 1,600 villages with a total population of 12 millions and a land area of 15 million acres. (For list and location see below.)

In December 1952 a supplement to the first operational agreement was signed, whereby 55 new Development Blocks were to be started. (For list and location see below.)

The two together are regarded as being equivalent to about 300 Development Blocks.

The estimated expenditure on each Block is Rs 45 lakhs.

The programme for the rest of the National Extension Service (900 Blocks) will be as follows:

1953-54—180
1954-55—270
1955-56—450

It is proposed that out of these 900 Blocks 400 should be selected for intensive development on the lines of the Community Projects. The programme proposed is as follows:

1954-55—150
1955-56—250

It is estimated that there would be about four Blocks in each district in a State out of which one or more would be selected for intensive development.

Generally speaking, a project is to be completed in three years, the period being broken into five stages: conception, three months; initiation, six months; operation, 18 months; consolidation, 6 months; and finalization, 3 months.

The majority of the development Blocks are under the Community Projects Administration (CPA), the rest of the Blocks and the training centres for the staff are under the Ministry of Food and Agriculture.

COST

Total cost of programme—Rs. 156.2 crores.

Share of Centre—Rs. 107.2 crores.

TYPES OF PROJECT

Development projects will be of three main types. First of all, there are envisaged the so-called "basic" community development projects, consisting of 300 villages and some 200,000 villagers, in which the primary emphasis will be on raising agricultural production, with some work on public health and sanitation, education and road building. The smaller basic development "blocks" consisting of 100 villages will have exactly the same programme and the same emphasis on agricultural improvement.

All except 8 Development Blocks in West Bengal are of this type.

Second, there are to be the so-called "composite" development projects and blocks, in which emphasis will be on development of small industries, as well as on agricultural production. The industry phase of these "composites," it is proposed, will be patterned after the industry-development project in Nilokheri and Faridabad.

There are 8 blocks of this type, all in West Bengal.

The third main type of project is a training centre for instructing village workers. Each of these centres would be located either in or nearby rural development areas to permit the students practical on-the-job training in the villages.

Substantially the proposed programme aims at these objectives in each village: two surface wells or other facility per village to assure a safe, clean drinking water supply; tube-wells for irrigation in those areas where tube-wells can be sunk (approximately a tenth of the proposed projects are in tube-well areas); in other areas, assistance to canal, tank and well construction for irrigation purposes, with the proposal that at least half the land in each village be given improved irrigation; reclamation of culturable waste land where feasible; sanitary services plus improvement of village drainage as a sanitation measure; improvement of roads to link village to village; and facilities for primary and adult education.

Included in the plans for each project and block is the development of a "Mandi" unit for each 15 to 25 villages where one does not already exist. Under present proposals, this Mandi unit would have a dispensary and health centre reaching out to the villagers through mobile units and serviced by a health visitor, midwives and the sanitary inspector. It would also have a transport and tractor servicing centre, a centre for marketing and shopping, a storage godown for agricultural produce and veterinary centre.

FORD FOUNDATION

The second part of India's over-all community development programme is that which is to be supervised by the Ministry of Food and Agriculture, with financial aid from the Ford Foundation. This programme was put under way many months earlier than that of the Community Projects Administration.

Part of this programme is the setting up of 15 community development projects, which though smaller (only 100 villages each) propose exactly the same objectives and general programme for agricultural development as those under the Community Projects Administration. Plans and budgets have now been approved for fourteen of these projects.

Experience at various successful agricultural projects carried on in India over a period of time have led to estimates that in four years a community development programme following these general lines can bring about an increase in food production of roughly 50 per cent in each area. In addition there can be an increase in cash income per village of some 35 per cent.

The second part of this programme is the establishment of training centres for village workers and project supervisors—the critical core of the whole community development programme of both the Planning Commission and the Food Ministry. For each of the large 300-village projects will need a staff of 103 Indian village workers and 23 Indian specialists in agricultural work, public health and education. The smaller 100-village "blocks" will each require about a third of that number. This means that a total of roughly 7,600 trained workers must be developed in India as rapidly as possible.

For the Basic Community Development Project, Basic Development Blocks and Composite Blocks financial aid will come from the Indo-American Development Fund, while for the Development Projects, Training-cum-Development Projects and Training Centres financial aid will come from the Ford Foundation.

The former group will be supervised by the Government of India Community Projects Administration, and the latter by the Ministry of Food and Agriculture.

NATIONAL EXTENSION ORGANIZATION

It is estimated that about 84,000 persons will be needed to put the Community Development Projects through.

The administrative structure is somewhat like this:

At the very top in Delhi is the Community Projects Administration itself under the Planning Commission which is called the Central Committee for this purpose.

The Committee is assisted by an Advisory Board consisting of the Secretaries of the Central Ministries of Food and Agriculture, Health, Education, the Additional Secretary to the Ministry of Natural Resources and Scientific Research and the Government of India's nominee on the Indo-U.S. Technical Fund.

The executive head is designated Administrator of Community Projects, and his office is designated Community Projects Administration. It consists of a small secretariat staff and a number of technical experts. The C.P.A. is assisted by a team of advisers drawn from the various Central Ministries.

In each of the States there is a State Development Committee consisting of the Chief Minister and Ministers in charge of the development departments, for laying down general principles.

There is a Development Commissioner who acts as secretary of the Committee. He is the leader of a team consisting of the heads of the development departments or secretaries to Government in those departments. In some States the Chief Secretary himself may be the Development Commissioner. In others States it may be someone else with the rank of an Additional Chief Secretary. In any case his rank is never below that of a Secretary to Government.

At the District level there is a District Development or Planning Committee. This Committee will consist among others of the district heads of the development departments and Chairman and Vice-Chairman of the District Board.

The Collector of the District will be the Chairman of this Committee, and the District Development officer (also called Extension or Planning Officer) will be the secretary.

At the sub-divisional level the Revenue Divisional officer may act as the Extension or Development officer or there may be an assistant to him who will be entrusted with the work of an Extension Officer.

The core of the whole organization is the multi-purpose village worker (Gram Sevak) who is directly in touch with the villager and instructs, guides and educates him in his day to day work, and the technical supervisor whose duty is to supervise the work of a group of the village level workers.

A multi-purpose village worker will generally be in charge of about 10 villages.

The agency in the village through which much of the administration will be carried on such as distribution of improved seeds will be the village panchayat.

In each project area there will be seven Social Education Organizers, three of whom will generally be women. Of these seven one will be the Chief Education organizer.

The trained technical personnel includes besides, of course, the village level workers and social education organizers the following categories: agricultural extension supervisors, veterinary doctors, co-operative and panchayat officers, school teachers, doctors, compounders, sanitary inspectors, lady health visitors, midwives, engineers, overseers, mechanics.

The existing staff of the various development departments will be absorbed in the N.E.S. organization. Thus it can be assumed that about one-fourth of the staff required already exists in the area.

Thirty-four centres for training multi-purpose village workers and technical supervisors will be set up. Of these 31 were already in working order at the time of writing (Nov. 1953). At these centres 1,430 village workers were under training, and 1,299 had already been trained and sent out. Of the supervisory personnel 199 were under training, and 260 had been trained and sent out.

Five centres for training social education organizers were started on April 1, 1953. These centres are situated at Nilokheri, Hyderabad, Gandhigram, Shantiniketan and Allahabad. Of these the centre at Allahabad will train Chief Social Education Organizers. The training period will be six months.

The centre at Nilokheri is administered directly by the C.P.A., while the others are run under the auspices of established institutions.

The expenses of training the education organizers are shared among the Government of India, the T.C.A. and the Ford Foundation.

The following voluntary organizations engaged in rural uplift (outside the N.E.S. organization) may be mentioned: Bharat Sewak Samaj, Bharatiya Adimjati Sevak Sangh, Gandhi Smarak Nidhi, Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust.

Andhra: Kamaravolu Ashram (Krishna Dist.), Gram Seva Mandiram (Anantapur Dist.).

Bombay: Jana Seva Sangh.

Bihar: Adimjati Seva Mandal (Ranchi), Santal Paharia Seva Mandal (Deoghar), Bihar Harijan Sevak Sangh (Patna).

Madhya Pradesh: Friends Rural Centre (Rasania).

Madras: Gandhigram and Ambathural (Madurai), Gandhi Ashramam (South Arcot).

Mysore: Bharat Scouts and Guides, Bharat Seva Dal, Adult Literacy Council.

Punjab: Janta Sundhar Co-operative Society (Sonapat).

Rajasthan: Rajasthan Sewa Sangh (Dungapur), Spree Soman Rural Uplift Centre (Jodhpur).

Travancore-Cochin: Y.M.C.A. (Narthandam).

West Bengal: Calcutta University Institute.

AMERICAN AID TO INDIA

AMERICAN aid to India can broadly be classified under three heads: governmental, institutional, and private.

Governmental aid is channelled through the Indo-U.S. Technical Co-operation Programme, which has been shaped to support the objectives of India's Five-Year Plan and is now in its third year.

U.S. Government contribution in the first year ended June 30, 1952, totalled $52,759,888. In the following year it was $44,315,000, and for the year ending June 30, 1954, the U.S. Congress has appropriated funds totalling $93,565,000.

Major institutional aid is given by philanthropic organisations like the Ford and Rockefeller Foundations.

Private voluntary contributions by individual Americans are distributed through several relief agencies, such as CARE.

Large-scale American aid to India began in 1951, when India was faced with a threatened famine. Americans in large numbers voluntarily contributed hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of foodstuffs, clothing and medicine. This aid was channelled through various relief groups, which have continued every year to send large quantities of such items since.

Also, in 1951, the U.S. Government provided a loan to India of $190 million on easy terms for the purchase of nearly two million tons of food-grains in the United States. The loan is to be repaid in 35 years at an interest rate of 2½ per cent, with no interest due for a year and no principal due for five years.

In addition, the U.S. Government at that time specially re-activated nearly 100 World War II Liberty-type ships for quick transport of the grain to India, as there was an acute shipping shortage at that time.

Technical Co-operation Programme.—The Indo-American Technical Co-operation Programme is one of 35 such programmes of bilateral co-operation of the United States and other nations in economic and social improvement. These programmes are carried on in Central and South America, the Middle East, South and South-east Asia and Africa. Eighty per cent of all projects undertaken, world-wide, are in agriculture, health and education.

U.S. bilateral aid to these countries is founded on the belief that if America helps in the fight against hunger, poverty, ignorance, and disease it will thereby promote a stable and peaceful world.

The Indo-American programme, in its present form, dates from the General Agreement between India and the United States signed on January 5, 1952. In keeping with an annual basis of planning, this was supplemented on November 3, 1952.

During the first two years high priority was given to increasing agricultural production, although the programme has been steadily increasing in support of industrial development also. It is expected that industrial phases will receive larger attention in the third-year allocations.

In the first two years of the programme, the United States has provided a total of $88,350,000 for the co-operative undertakings under the programme and India has contributed Rs. 72.3 crores (about $152 million). All projects support objectives of the Five-Year Plan.

Each year specific projects are worked out and detailed in what are called "operational agreements." Under the 1952 programme, 11 such operational agreements were concluded. Under the 1953 programme, nine of the 11 were supplemented and five new agreements were signed.

Specific projects are suggested by the Planning Commission of the Government of India, discussed with the American Technical Co-operation Administration (TCA), which has offices in New Delhi, and operational agreements are signed designating the scope of particular activities and the amounts in dollars and in rupees.

A brief summary of these projects follows.

Fertiliser Imports.—(U.S. Contribution: $14,590,927): In order to help make up the gap between India's own fertilizer production and the country's needs for increased agricultural production, this project calls for import of a total of 186,000 tons of fertilizer, largely ammonium sulphate. Supplies were obtained in Japan, Belgium, Western Germany and the United States. Some 135,686 tons have already arrived in India.

Expansion of Sindri Plant.—(U.S. Contribution: $77,000). In order to increase fertilizer production at the Sindri plant, the TCA, at the request of the Government of India, engaged experts who studied Sindri's facilities and made recommendations for expansion. A team of Indian technicians was sent abroad to study fertilizer production. TCA also has agreed to pay for engineering consultants to work with the Government of India on the planned expansion of Sindri.

Iron and Steel Imports.—(U.S. Contribution: $16,885,000): This project also is designed to meet the needs of an increased agricultural programme. Provision is made under the project for the import of 110,000 tons of iron and steel for use by village blacksmiths and for farm implement factories. Of this, nearly 50,000 tons obtained in the United States has reached India.

Locust Control.—(U.S. Contribution: $451,000): Locust menace is a recurring problem in south Asia and the Middle East whose countries co-operate in the annual campaign. To support India's locust control organisation, the Indo-American programme is providing jeeps and other mobile equipment, dusters and sprayers, along with the assistance of spraying planes operated by American pilots from the TCA regional locust control organisation. Some 32 jeeps with trailers, 25 power wagons, 49 sprayers and dusters arrived for use in the 1953 locust campaign. The spray planes, after the close of the 1952 locust campaign, helped with a campaign against rice bug infestation in Bihar and also trained Indian pilots in spraying techniques.

Soil Fertility and Fertilizer Use.—(U.S. Contribution: $200,000): Knowledge of what types of soils exist in various parts of India and how they will respond to use of fertilizers to achieve increased agricultural production is essential to any nation-wide agricultural programme. The Indian College of Agricultural Research (Pusa Institute), New Delhi, and other institutions have already done important studies in this field. Under the Indo-American programme, provision is made for supplying latest types of testing equipment to expand their programmes and the advice of technical specialists in developing the system.

Marine Fisheries—(U.S. Contribution: $2,462,000): This project provides for two major classes of equipment—diesel engines to power small fishing boats and permit them to go farther from shore, and large fisheries equipment to enable large-scale operations. Also included in the project is provision for refrigeration plants to guarantee protection of the catch and refrigerated vehicles to enable fresh fish to reach a wider market.

A group of Indian fisheries experts and an American fisheries adviser made a trip in 1952 to fisheries in Europe, America and Japan, to examine types of equipment suitable or adaptable to India. On their recommendations orders were placed for new equipment for India.

Tube-wells—(U.S. Contribution: $21,500,000): The tube-well drilling project, calling for 2,000 new wells in the first year and an additional 650 in the second, is a direct way of increasing agricultural production by providing irrigation. Most of these wells will be dug in the Gangetic plain of north India, where conditions are most favourable for this type of irrigation. Each well will irrigate approximately 400 acres, or a total of more than 10 lakh acres.

Ground Water Exploration—(U.S. Contribution: $4,500,000): This project is to determine the prospects of drilling tube-wells in parts of India other than the proved areas of the Punjab, PEPSTU, U.P. and Bihar. Exploratory wells will be sunk in almost all the other States of India under the project.

Community Projects—(U.S. Contribution: $10,598,000): The Community Projects programme is an organised, planned approach to the problem of intensive development of India's villages. Through this effort nearly 20 million villagers will be helped to learn better agricultural methods, wipe out malaria and smallpox, banish illiteracy, and bring their whole area up to a higher level of economic development.

Work started on October 2, 1952, in 55 project areas all over India. A project area covers more than 300 villages and 250,000 persons. Work on 165 additional development blocks was started on October 2, 1953 each covering some 100 villages.

The U.S. is providing transportation and other types of equipment for these projects. Already 330 jeeps are in use.

Also, American extension training specialists are provided to work with development officers of the States as well as with training centres in bringing to villagers the knowledge of improved agricultural methods.

Village Workers Training—(U.S. Contribution: $299,200): Thirty-four training centres throughout India are now in operation instructing village workers. These training centres are set up by the Government of India with the aid of the Ford Foundation and the U.S. Government.

Also, five social education training centres and three public health workers training centres have been started. American extension specialists assist the training centres in developing courses of study.

Malaria Control—(U.S. Contribution: $5,848,000): This project is designed to conquer, within three or four years, the most serious health problem of India. There are an estimated 80 million or more cases of malaria a year, almost all among the rural population that produces the nation's food.

The United States is furnishing supplies of DDT and various other types of malaria control equipment as well as expert assistance. Ninety malaria units are in operation. More than 41,000 tons of DDT has arrived in India, as well as 4 million anti-malarial tablets.

Forest Research and Desert Afforestation—(U.S. Contribution: $314,000): The Research Institute at Dehra Dun will be provided with new research equipment, including that for completion of a pulp and paper mill, under this project. Part of the U.S. aid under this project will go to experiments in control of the spread of the Rajasthan desert by tree-planting and other means.

River Valley Development—(U.S. Contribution: $10,188,873): This project provides for purchase of heavy machinery, crushers, earth-moving and other equipment for work at India's various river valley projects, as well as for technical advice by construction engineers, dam designers and development specialists.

Damodar Valley Project—(U.S. Contribution: $285,000): This project provides for consulting engineering services and advice on the designs, specifications and construction of dams and other engineering facilities planned by the D.V.C. Also provides engineering services for the Bokaro Thermal Plant.

Building Materials and Low-Cost Housing Research—(U.S. Contribution: $175,000): These two allied projects are aimed at improving the facilities of the Central Building Research Institute at Roorkhee (U.P.) for developing and demonstrating indigenous building materials and for developing more economical methods of housing design and construction. Two U.S. housing specialists are also provided.

Labour Institute—(U.S. Contribution: $100,000): Under this project a Central Labour Institute will be set up at Bombay to promote industrial efficiency and to increase industrial production by encouraging improvement in the safety, health and welfare of industrial workers.

Lignite Development—(U.S. Contribution: $250,000): This project provides for supply of equipment for experimental operation of the lignite deposits in Madras State. An American mining expert supplied by TCA has been working with Indian experts in the investigation of the deposits, estimated to total perhaps 2,000 million tons.

Allied Phases—The basic technical co-operation approach rests on the exchange of knowledge and skills, largely through the medium of technical specialists in particular fields or through the further training of individuals already doing specific kinds of technical work. Under the Indo-American programme, these phases are financed solely from U.S. funds in addition to those allocated under the Operational Agreements.

This type of activity exists in several forms, although always at the request of the Government of India. Special contract services, in which individual technicians or teams of technicians are engaged for specialised tasks, such as the Sindri and D.V.C. projects, is one form. Bringing American technical specialists to India is another. Advanced training for Indian technicians in the United States is a highly important phase, in keeping with India's development plans. An enlarging field is that of inter-university exchanges, between Indian and American technical institutions.

Technical specialists are provided by the United States in fields in which request is made by the Government of India. Their salaries in India and travel to India are paid by the United States. They are usually recruited for two-year assignments, for which they obtain leave of absence from their regular employment in the United States.

On July 1, 1953, there were 62 such American technical specialists in India. Most of these were agricultural extension specialists. Other fields were natural resources, education, industry, health and sanitation, social welfare, housing and industrial hygiene.

On July 1, 1953, also, the number of Indian technicians who were in the United States or had returned, after training, was 176. Another 125 had been selected to go to the U.S. in three months to a year.

Fields of advanced training include agriculture, forestry, fisheries, health and sanitation, education, natural resources, industry, trade and industrial productivity, transportation, public works, public administration and labour and community services.

The United States has also provided funds for inter-university exchanges of technical knowledge between India and the United States. Typical of these is the arrangement between Allahabad Agricultural Institute and the University of Illinois in 1952. This included assignment of various faculty and staff members from Illinois to work at Allahabad and advanced training for staff members of Allahabad at Illinois. Several other such arrangements are under way or are nearing final form.

All the projects under the Indo-American programme are administered exclusively by the Central and State governments of India. For example, the Central Ministry of Food and Agriculture has supervision of the fertilizer, iron and steel and fisheries projects. It also directs the locust control and tube-well projects.

Procurement of equipment and supplies imported into India to implement the Indo-American programme is by the India Supply Mission at Washington and by the Technical Co-operation Administration at Washington, in association with each other or through such other arrangements as these two agencies agree to be desirable.

The tube-well project is an exception, since the contracts are signed in India after tenders are invited through the press.

Projects covered by the operational agreements originate in this way: A State government in India, or the appropriate Ministry or other Central Government organisation, is the source of each proposed project. Suggested projects are transmitted to the Planning Commission, which is responsible for setting broad domestic policy and general supervision of projects under the Indo-American programme. If the Planning Commission and TCA agree that a project proposal is within the scope of the Indo-American programme, the Central Ministry concerned draws up a detailed operational agreement in consultation with the TCA technical and administrative staff. Final details are worked out and the agreement is signed.

Requests for TCA training awards similarly originate in the Indian States or the Central Government. In the States, they are presented through the department concerned in which the applicant is working and go to the Central Government. Some originate directly in the appropriate Central Government ministries, and some in trade organisations.

In addition, the U.S. Government is a major contributor to the U.N. Technical Assistance Administration, which has extended aid to India in several fields.

AID FROM FOUNDATIONS

The Ford Foundation has provided nearly six million dollars for several projects.

It has allocated $2,344,000 to help establish and operate 34 centres to train some 7,000 village level workers for the community development projects. Another $879,000 has been given by the Foundation to aid in the establishment of 15 pilot development centres. Another grant of $1,910,000 provides for setting up a department of extension in each of five major agricultural colleges in India to impart specialised extension education. Another $1,041,310 has been allotted for several other projects in the implementation of the community development programme.

The Rockefeller Foundation also has extended aid to India in the field of public health, especially training of health personnel. This programme has been in existence for more than two decades. The Foundation has had one or more representatives in India since 1920, helping the Government of India and State Governments, at their request, to develop public health programmes.

It supplied funds for the construction and equipment of the All-India Institute of Hygiene and Public Health in Calcutta in 1932, and also aided in the setting up of seven rural demonstration health units.

Apart from various training programmes in India, through 1952, the Foundation had given 168 fellowships and travel grants to qualified Indians for advanced studies abroad.

Among other activities of the Rockefeller Foundation in India are a malaria control programme in Mysore State and the recently established Virus Research Centre in Poona.

Rockefeller grants to India have totalled more than $2,532,000, in addition to all expenses of staff members resident in India, amounting to over a million dollars.

The Watamull Foundation also has a sizeable programme for India in the fields of education and population control.

PRIVATE AID

Impressive though the above figures may be, it is the private aid—both from individuals and voluntary welfare agencies—that reveals the extent of good-will that Americans bear towards India.

For example, in the year ended July 1952 a total of more than $750,000 was contributed by private U.S. citizens for relief in India. These contributions ranged all the way from a one-dollar gift from a five-year-old to the $200,000 allocation by the American Red Cross for aid to India.

The number of gestures from individual Americans and small groups is legion. Among the several group efforts in U.S. towns to combat food shortage was the "Share a Meal with India" campaign launched in Champaign-Urbana, a small town in the State of Illinois. The local population contributed some $1,000 with which 42 tons of wheat was bought and sent to India in 1952. The response to a Harvard University drive to collect $1,000 was so good that $6,700 was collected.

Housewives of the small town of Levittown, Long Island, collected three tons of canned and dried foods for Indian orphanages. Individual donations are, of course, too numerous to mention. A letter written by a nurse, Miss Dorothy Lynch, asking U.S. pharmaceutical firms to send samples of their products as gifts to India, resulted in a surprise gift of $20,000 worth of vitamin capsules from a single company.

In addition to these private campaigns, well-organised American relief agencies such as the Co-operative for American Remittances to Everywhere (CARE), the Christian Rural Overseas Programme (CROP), the American Friends Service Committee, and the Church World Service, to mention only a few, have dispatched large quantities of food, clothing, medicine and other aid to India in the last few years. For example, CROP has sent more than 550 tons of wheat and 1,500,000 pounds of food products and vitamins.

Several of these relief groups yearly allocate a part of their funds towards relief in India, but most of their members' individual gifts are channelled through CARE, which has standard food, clothing, tool and medical packages which can be sent to any country of the donor's choice, including India.

CARE gift packages to India in three years since the programme started in March 1950 have totalled more than $500,000 in value, including some 35,000 food packages, 2,538 ploughs, 1,380 textile packages, 299 midwifery kits, 1,040 parcels of children's books and 95 large food packages to educational and medical institutions.

A closely-related programme to foster closer understanding between India and the United States is the so-called exchange of persons programme. Early in 1950, the India-U.S. Fulbright Agreement was signed, as sequel to the Fulbright Act of the U.S. Congress, which provides for the use of U.S. receipts from sales of World War II surplus property abroad for travel grants to students.

The agreement provides for the utilisation of the rupee equivalent of up to $400,000 a year towards travelling expenses of Indian students to and from the U.S. and all expenses of Americans coming to India for study, research or instruction. More than a hundred Indian students are awarded Fulbright travel grants every year, while nearly one-fourth of that number of Americans come to India annually under the programme.

Another U.S. exchange programme under the Smith-Mundt Act enables leaders of public opinion, both American and Indian in various fields to visit each other's countries. Under this programme several prominent Indians visit the United States on study-observation-lecture tours every year, and Americans come to India on similar tours.

India is again a full participant in the U.S. programme of sharing its technical know-how with other countries. Hundreds of Indian experts and students go to the United States every year for observation and training in U.S. techniques.

U. N. AID TO INDIA

IN 1952 India received assistance from the U.N.O. amounting to $1,045,248; she had the help of 136 experts and 93 fellows. In the same year India contributed $275,000; she gave the help of 84 experts and 105 fellows. The table below shows in a summary form the assistance that India has received from the various U.N. bodies. The figures are in U.S. dollars.

FROM U.N.

Sindri fertilizer plant for 1953 (1; 0; 27,580), for 1954 (3; 0; 27,300).

National Instruments Factory for 1953 (1; 0; 735); for 1954 (1; 0; 375).

Cottage Industries for 1953 (1; 0; 8,300). Marketing of handicrafts for 1954: project continues.

Ports and shipping for 1953 (3; 0; 21,430). One hydraulic surveyor and two dredging engineers for work on minor ports in Bombay State; for 1954: project continues with 2 experts.

Statistical quality control for 1953 (4; 0; 4,500). Four lecturers conducted training centres.

Family planning for 1953 (2; 0; 9,040). With WHO assistance to organize study of rhythm method for family planning; for 1954: continues with one expert.

Lignite utilization for 1953* (2; 0; 10,000). To investigate nature of deposits in Madras State and prepare plans for utilization plant.

Chemical and allied products for 1953 (1; 0; 8,878)*; for training staff in administration and accounting. For 1953 (1; 0; 7,665); for studying possibilities of manufacture of soda ash. For 1953 (1; 0; 7,665); for assisting in production of butyl alcohol and acetone.

Machinery industry for 1953 (1; 0; 8,695). For assisting local production of moulds for plastic industry.

Small industries for 1953 (1; 0; 9,555). To assist in the manufacture of high tension insulators.

Photogrammetry and map reproduction for 1953 (1; 0; 55,898), for 1954 (2; 0; no estimates). For preparation of large-scale maps for hydro-electric plants and irrigation schemes.

Water resources development for 1953 (1; 0; 16,620), for 1954 (1; 0; 8,820). For arid zone research in Rajasthan desert.

Telecommunications for 1953 (1; 0; 6,465). For designing equipment for direct dialling facilities between main automatic exchanges.

Visiting lecturers for 1953 (0; 0; 1,000). U.N. statistical experts were to be asked to deliver lectures at Indian Statistical Institute.

Water resources development (1; 0; 16,620): under negotiation.

Resources development in Damodar Valley (8; 0; 22,129): under negotiation.

FROM ILO
Employees State Insurance scheme for 1953 (3; 3; 16,400), for 1954 (0; 1; no estimates). For advising Government and training personnel.

Payment by result and production for 1953 (8; 0; 52,800); for 1954 (11; 0; 60,000). For setting up national productivity centre to train management and worker personnel.

Development of handicrafts among plantation workers for 1953 (1; 2; 12,500).

Training within industry for supervisors for 1953 (2; 0; 10,000); for 1954 (2; 0; 10,600). For help in introducing techniques of job instruction, job methods, job relations in a number of factories in the Ahmedabad region and the Sindri region. Also, for drawing up plans for a national institute.

FROM FAO

Farm machinery for 1953 (11; 2; 90,826); for 1954 (9; 0; 94,500). To help Central and U.P. Governments in land reclamation, cultivation operations, service training to operators, and maintenance and repair men working with agricultural machinery.

Animal disease control for 1953 (5; 0; 73,707); for 1954 (5; 0; 63,800). For help in research and field programmes at Izzatnagar Institute.

Agricultural institutes and services for 1953 (2; 0; 12,586); for 1954 (1; 0; 11,600). For help in improved tanning methods at training centre in U.P.

Agricultural economics for 1953 (2; 0; 12,700). To help Indian Council of Agricultural Research in research programmes and study groups, and in theoretical statistics. Project will continue in 1954.

Fisheries development for 1953 (5; 3; 47,300); for 1954 (3; 0; 37,000). For help in inland fisheries and fisheries engineering in West Bengal. For help in deep-sea fishing in Bombay. For help in fisheries community development in Travancore-Cochin in the joint Government of India-Norway-U.N. project. For help in designing improved fishing craft and gear.

Forest development for 1953 (3; 0; 16,200); for 1954 (1; 0; 11,600). For help in manufacture of plywood and mechanical logging. For advice on developing research and training facilities of the Forestry Research Institute at Dehra Dun.

Nutrition for 1953 (3; 0; 21,377); for 1954 (1; 0; 12,500). For advice on forest preservation centres in U.P. For training cafeteria workers to encourage consumption of non-cereal foods.

Land and water use for 1953 (0; 0; 952). Travel costs of FAO mission in India.

† Cancelled in 1958 and is expected to be implemented in 1954.

Animal production for 1953 (8; 1; 88,900); for 1954 (6; 0; 77,500). To advise Bombay Government on methods of utilizing surplus milk, on improving the processing and bottling plant, on breeding programme. To advise U.P. Government on sheep and wool production, on artificial insemination of live-stock at Izzatnagar, on grassland fodder and forage crops.

FROM UNESCO

Technology for development for 1953 (4; 0; 88,300); for 1954 (6; 0; 134,300). To help conduct engineering courses in the Indian Institute of Technology at Kharagpur. Provision for hydro-electric, dam construction, civil engineering equipment worth $96,500.

Indian National Scientific Documentation Centre for 1953 (8; 1; 51,700); for 1954 (3; 0; 41,600). $28,000 worth of books, journals and equipment.

Central Water and Power Research Station, Poona for 1953 (1; 1; 29,100). Photo-elastic equipment worth $17,600.

Institute of Paleobotany, Lucknow for 1953 (1; 0; 11,900).

National Physics Laboratory for 1953 (1; 0; 17,000); for 1954 (1; 0; 8,900). For technical guidance on study of properties of materials at very low temperatures. Equipment worth $9,000.

Central Institute of Education for 1953 (1; 2; 12,100). For training in child guidance.

Ahmedabad Textile Research Institute for 1953 (1; 0; 8,700); for 1954 (1; 1; 9,200). For conducting textile research.

Malaria and Insect Control in Terai for 1953 (3; 0; 25,000). For malaria control team in the Terai region of U.P.

Yaws Control for 1953 (1; 0; 8,500); for 1954 (1; 0; 10,275). For pilot project in Madhya Pradesh.

Population studies for 1953 (2; 0; 13,500); for 1954 (2; 0; 14,873). For survey of family planning in New Delhi and rural area in South India.

Physiotherapy Training Centre, KEM Hospital, Bombay for 1953 (2; 0; 21,000); for 1954 (2; 0; 10,760). Equipment worth $5,000.

Principal, Medical College, Trivandrum for 1953 (1; 0; 11,500); for 1954 (1; 1; 11,710).

Professor of Pharmacology, School of Tropical Medicine, Calcutta for 1953 (1; 0; 13,000); for 1954 (1; 1; 13,274). To develop School into teaching and research centre for training pharmacologists.

Professor of Industrial Hygiene, Institute of Hygiene and Public Health, Calcutta for 1953 (1; 0; 8,000); for 1954 (1; 1; 13,273). To organize and develop training and research department.

Tuberculosis centres at Patna and Trivandrum for 1953 (7; 0; 59,100).

Tuberculosis control including BCG, Calcutta and Madras for 1953 (7; 0; 46,000) for BCG alone; for 1954 (11; 6; 151,236) for TB and BCG. To initiate two new TB demonstration and training centres at Calcutta and Madras. For mass BCG campaign. WHO is providing experts and UNICEF supplies and equipment worth $65,000.

Visiting Team of Medical Scientists for 1953 (17; 0; 57,000). To demonstrate operative and other techniques.

Food hygiene for 1953 (1; 0; 3,900). To advise on abattoir, meat hygiene practices, and utilization of meat by-products.

COLOMBO PLAN

Director, Bureau for Technical Co-operation, P. W. E. Curtin, (262 Secretariat, Colombo).

THE Colombo Plan was conceived at a meeting of the Foreign Ministers of the Commonwealth countries at Colombo in January 1950.

A consultative committee was set up to consider ways and means of carrying out the desired co-operative economic development. This committee met at Sydney in May and proposed a six-year development plan and a scheme for technical assistance.

In July and August 1950 the details of the Technical Assistance Scheme were worked out, and the constitution of the Council of Technical Co-operation was proposed.

The original members were Australia, Canada, Ceylon, India, New Zealand, Pakistan and the United Kingdom, together with Malaya and British Borneo. These were Commonwealth countries, but it was contemplated from the beginning that all countries in the area should be invited to participate in the Plan on equal terms.

At the London meeting of the Consultative Committee in September, 1950, Burma, Cambodia, Indonesia, Laos, Thailand and Viet-Nam were represented by observers. Viet-Nam, Cambodia and Laos shortly afterwards became full members.

Burma and Nepal attended the Karachi meeting in 1952 as full members; while Indonesia attended the Delhi meeting in 1953 as a full member.

The United States of America has attended as a full member from the Colombo meeting of 1950.

The distribution and cost of the programmes of the participating countries in million £s were as follows:

	India	Pakistan	Ceylon	Malay and Br. Borneo	Total	Percentage to Total

Thailand has sent observers to all meetings since the London meeting in 1950, while the Philippines had observers at the Colombo and Karachi meetings.

The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development has maintained close liaison with the Committee in its work and has been represented at the Colombo and later meetings.

Each of the Commonwealth and Colonial countries drew up their plans for future development over the next six years.

These plans were finally issued under the title "The Colombo Plan" on 28th November 1950.

As originally proposed it was a six-year plan and was officially launched on 1st July 1951. When the plan was launched the U.S.A. became a member of the Consultative Committee.

At present the members are: Australia, Burma, Canada, Ceylon, Cambodia, India, Indonesia, Laos, Malaya, Nepal, New Zealand, Pakistan, U.K., U.S.A., Viet Nam.

Two countries in this area which receive aid and are not members of the Plan are Philippines and Thailand.

SALIENT FEATURES

Plan period: Six years

Total sum allotted: £1,868 million

Money to be allocated as follows: Transport and communications, 34 per cent; Agriculture including river valley development schemes, 32 per cent; Housing, health, education, 18 per cent; Industry and minerals excluding coal, 10 per cent; Fuel and power, 6 per cent.

A Council of Technical Co-operation was established and a £8 million fund set up for providing technical assistance.

The cost of the Bureau during 1952 and the first half of 1953 was £20,000.

Under the technical scheme India offered £750,000, Ceylon £400,000, Pakistan £161,290.

The anticipated results in 1956-57 were as follows: 1. An increase in cultivated land of 18 million acres (3½ per cent); 2. An increase in irrigated land of 18 million acres (17 per cent); 3. An increase in the production of food grains of 6 million tons (10 per cent); 4. An increase in electric power of 1.1 million kW. (87 per cent); 5. An increase in the number of universities and technical training institutions from 3,000 to 3,670; 6. An increase in the number of technicians from 150,000 to 200,000.

Out of a total expenditure of £1,868 million, £1,084 million were to be met from internal resources and £784 million from external sources.

The external sources were enumerated as follows: sterling balances (£246 m.), private investment, loans floated by private investors in London and other financial centres, loans from the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, grants and loans from other Governments.

FINANCE

The financial assistance promised by the various Governments was as follows:

Australia: £51.25 million for the plan period; Canada: $25 million for each of the first two years; New Zealand: £ one million for each of the first three years; U.K.: £300,000,000 for the whole six-year period.

During the first year of the Plan the following sums were made available by the 'supplier' countries:

Australia: £ (A) 8,750,000; Canada: $25,000,000; New Zealand: £1,000,000; U.S.A.: $70,000,000 (1950-51), $150,000,000 (1951-52), $280,000,000 (loans from 1950-52).

India earmarked £750,000 for the Technical Co-operation Scheme, Ceylon £400,000 and Pakistan £161,290. Out of these funds, India has supplied five experts (to Ceylon), has taken in 98 trainees from countries of the region in statistics, sugar technology, customs administration, broadcasting and engineering and has offered 55 scholarships and fellowships in Indian Universities and specialised Institutions.

It must be pointed out that the amount to be given by a country depends on Parliamentary appropriations and cannot really be anticipated. So questions like the total allotment, the future contributions of the various countries do not permit of a definite answer.

Member countries are required to report twice yearly the expenditure incurred and the cost of commitments entered into towards the provision of assistance under the Scheme.

By 30th June 1953, the total expenditure incurred and commitments entered into against the £8 million sterling, amounted to £2,499,664.

The expenditure on trainees amounted to £598,496; on experts £231,517; and on equipment £64,146.

The estimates of firm commitments as at 30th June 1953, were £488,581 on trainees, £284,579 on experts, and £832,345 on equipment.

The assistance received by India was as follows:

From Australia: £A 7.2 million till 30 June, 1953; from Canada: $28.8 million till 30 June, 1953; from New Zealand: £625,000 till end of 1953.

The releases from India's sterling balances in U.K. will be at the rate of £35 million a year together with the unutilised balances of the previous years.

Thus during the plan period 1951-1956 the total releases should be in terms of Rupees 3,900 million.

The following table gives an analysis of the actual expenditure incurred by India and of the total expenditure incurred upto June 30, 1953 :

The following factories are under the Ministry of Natural Resources and Scientific Research: Indian Rare Earths Ltd., Bombay Uranium-Thorium factory (under construction).

The following factory is under the Ministry of Railways: Chittaranjan Locomotive Works.

BOMBAY URANIUM-THORIUM FACTORY (Trombay, Bombay)

The foundation stone of this factory was laid on January 1954. It will work under the auspices of the Atomic Energy Commission.

The cost of the factory is estimated at Rs. 45 lakhs and it is expected to be completed by the end of 1954.

It will produce 205 to 228 tons of thorium nitrate per annum.

The factory will process indigenous uranium and thorium ores, as well as the uranium-bearing residues of the Indian Rare Earths Ltd., Alwaye.

The uranium will be extracted, purified and converted into metal for use in atomic reactors.

The ores will come from Bihar and other parts of India. From the Alwaye factory will come the residual coke left after the rare earth chlorides, carbonates and tri-sodium phosphates are extracted from the monazite.

The factory will be self-supporting and will meet its operating costs through the sale of its thorium compounds to the Indian gas mantle industry.

CHITTARANJAN LOCOMOTIVE WORKS

(Chittaranjan, Burdwan Dt., West Bengal;
4 Chittaranjan Avenue, Calcutta 13)

The works are under the Ministry of Railways. Construction started on April 1, 1948 and was completed on September 30, 1952.

Production started on January 26, 1950. The first locomotive rolled out on November 1.

The total investment is Rs. 14.93 crores.

The total number of workers (1953 July) was 3,426.

The present out-turn is five locomotives per month.

Capacity when complete will be 120 steam locomotives, and 50 spare boilers per year, working single shift.

The production schedule has been as follows:

Year	No. of locomotives	Percentage of parts manufactured
1950	3	—
1951	33	30
1952	45	70
1953	66	80
1954	90	100

General Manager, P. C. Mukerjee.

D.D.T. FACTORY (Delhi)

A site adjacent to D.C.M. Chemical Works has been chosen for the factory.

The factory will be managed by Government through a private limited company with a Board of Directors under the Ministry of Production.

The factory was expected to go into production before the end of 1953.

The plans are based on an agreement concluded between the Government of India, WHO and UNICEF on the 19th July 1952.

Under this, the UNICEF will supply all imported equipment involving an expenditure of about $250,000. WHO will arrange and provide all technical assistance for the Factory involving an expenditure of about $100,000 and the Government of India will arrange for the provision of land, buildings, steam, water, electricity, etc., at an expenditure of Rs. 22,45,000.

The Delhi Cloth and General Mills have agreed to provide the required steam and water supplies, as well as the necessary sulphuric acid, alum and chlorine for the factory at reasonable prices.

GOVERNMENT HOUSING FACTORY (Jangpura, New Delhi)

The factory which was built in the middle of 1950 is managed by a company under the Ministry of Production.

It was decided in May, 1952 that the factory should be utilised for producing pre-fabricated houses in association with Messrs. Basakha Singh Wallenberg Ltd. (the BSW), an Indo-Swedish firm.

Negotiations with the firm took definite shape and the approval of the Cabinet was obtained in September 1952 to the main heads of agreement with the firm.

In slight modification of the previous decision, it was decided that the factory should be used for the production of foam concrete roofing slabs, pre-stressed concrete housing components, wooden doors and windows in standard patterns, and for the fabrication of steel.

In pursuance of this decision, an agreement was signed between the Government of India and the B.S.W. on the 6th December, 1952.

The salient features of the new scheme are:—

A company called the Hindustan Housing Factory Limited, has been floated to control and manage the affairs of the factory.

The paid-up share capital of this Company is Rs. 1 lakh, contributed equally by the Government and the B.S.W. The two partners are entitled to nominate an equal number of Directors on the Board, and the Chairman is appointed by the Government in consultation with the B.S.W.

To this company, the Government will lease the fixed assets of the present factory at a rent equivalent to the normal depreciation allowable under the income tax law, and the B.S.W. will lease to the company on similar terms all the additional machinery required.

The working capital necessary for the day to day expenses of the factory will be provided by the B.S.W. free of interest.

Government are not expected to incur any expenditure apart from the subscription to the share capital of the company but they are entitled to 40 per cent of the profits which may become available for distribution.

The Hindustan Housing Factory Limited was incorporated on the 27th January, 1953.

The Board of Directors have since decided to take over immediately, on lease, the assets of the Government Housing Factory and start large-scale manufacture of all forms of wood-work for buildings, particularly doors, windows and furniture, pending the import of the additional machinery required for the production of pre-stressed concrete products.

Chairman, Dr. S. B. Bhatnagar.

Managing Director, Sardar Sasakh Singh.

Directors, S. Ranganathan, I.C.S.; K. R. P. Aiyangar; Sardar Mohkam Singh.

HEAVY ELECTRICAL POWER PLANT INDUSTRY

The need for the establishment of a heavy electrical power plant industry in India as a key industry for generation, transmission and distribution of power in the country has long been felt, but due to financial stringency, the proposals could not be proceeded with earlier.

In view, however, of the fact that hydro-electric schemes have made considerable headway and large-scale electrification of railways to increase line capacity is also becoming a necessity, it has been considered that, to make India self-sufficient, it is essential to establish a factory in India to manufacture heavy electrical equipment.

The Planning Commission has provided Rs. 7 crores for this project out of the lump sum provision of Rs. 50 crores for basic industries and transport.

HINDUSTAN AIRCRAFT LTD. (Bangalore Dist., Mysore)

The company is managed by a Board of Directors under the Ministry of Defence.

It was started in 1940 and has a staff of about 8,500 including workers.

It now undertakes the following kind of work:

Repair and overhaul, arisings of all civil and Air Force aircraft in India; manufacture of trainer aircraft for Air Force and civil flying clubs' use; overhaul of aero-engines and other aircraft components; manufacture of all-metal broad gauge railway coaches; manufacture of heavy duty single and double decker bus bodies.

Board of Directors:

Chairman, Secretary, Ministry of Defence.

Vice-Chairman, J. R. D. Tata.

Directors, K. Bhavanishankar Rao (Financial Adviser, Ministry of Defence); E. V. Ganapathy Iyer (Director of Industries and Commerce, Mysore).

Board of Management:

Chairman, J. M. Shrinagesh, I.C.S.

Members, J. R. Stranding (Chief Production Engineer); Dr. V. M. Ghatage (Chief Designer); V. G. Kamath (Financial Manager).

Some important officials:

Factory Manager, Albert Zampolino.

Chief Inspector, H. K. Karve.

Chief Commercial Engineer, A. Mitra.

Personnel Manager, G. Vasudeva Rao.

Sales Manager, A. C. Banerjee.

Purchasing Manager, P. P. Patel.

HINDUSTAN MACHINE TOOLS LTD. (Jalahalli, Bangalore)

This is a private limited company under the Ministry of Production registered in Mysore on February 7, 1953.

The Registered Office of the Company and the factory are located at Jalahalli, Bangalore.

The plans are based on an agreement between the Government of India and Messrs. Oerlikon Machine Tool Works, Buehrle & Co., Zurich, Switzerland, concluded in April 1949.

The company envisages manufacture in the final stage of 900 high speed lathes, 460 milling machines, 240 heavy duty drilling machines, shaping and planing machines at an estimated capital cost of Rs. 8.37 crores.

Building work is now in progress. Plant and Machinery worth about Rs. 50 lakhs were expected to arrive by the end of 1953.

The first stage with a capacity for manufacturing 400—8½" centre high speed lathes or any other allied machine tools was expected to be completed by the end of 1953.

Key technical personnel (both Indian and European) numbering about 25 have already been recruited. Skilled Indian technical workers are being recruited.

About 750 workers (excluding the supervisory personnel) are expected to be employed when the factory goes into full production.

The company will be largely financed by Government. The foreign consultants are allowed 15 per cent of the shares, out of which they will pay 10 per cent in cash, while the remaining 5 per cent will be issued without payment in return for their technical services.

It may be added that today there are 16 graded and 100 ungraded firms in India, but the annual value of the graded machine tools produced by them is less than Rs. 40 lakhs.

Production is still confined to essentially simple and primary types of tools. The industry is not in a position to manufacture precision types of machine tools.

The monetary value of the annual demand is estimated at Rs. 10 crores.

Chairman, Board of Directors, Secretary, Ministry of Production.

Managing Director, Aftab Rai.

Members, P. C. Bhattacharya; K. R. P. Aiyangar; Dr. A. Gerber; N. N. Wanchoo, I.C.S.; Dr. Otto M. Wenger.

INDIAN RARE EARTHS LTD.

(Alwaye, Travancore-Cochin)

This factory is owned jointly by the Government of India and the Government of Travancore-Cochin.

The subscribed capital is Rs. 80 lakhs, of which the Government of India's share is 55 per cent and of the Travancore-Cochin Government 45 per cent.

The technical consultants are Societe de Produits Chimiques de Terres Rares.

The factory started production in July 1952. It has the capacity to produce 1,500 tons of rare earths chlorides and carbonates, and about 1,800 tons of trisodium phosphate a year from the monazite that will be dug up.

The chlorides and carbonates which are exported are used in the manufacture of aerial camera lenses, cinema projector carbon arcs, special optical glasses and so on.

The phosphates which are a substitute for soda ash will be used in textile mills, soap factories, and for general cleaning purposes in mills and factories.

INDIAN TELEPHONE INDUSTRIES LTD.

(Duravani Nagar, Bangalore Dt., Mysore)

The factory normally works a single shift. Only some sections are at present working two to three shifts.

The following amenities are provided:

Three Canteens are run for providing lunch to workers and staff, two of which are worked by the Employees' Co-operative Society.

Other amenities include a well-equipped dispensary, a well-organised sports club, a library and reading room.

Free milk is supplied to employees doing hazardous work.

There is a separate rest rooms for girls.

The employees themselves have organised a voluntary fund for giving financial aid to needy employees in emergencies.

Seven twin block quarters are provided for the staff who do essential jobs. There is a hostel in which accommodation has been provided to some of the employees. Forty-eight other quarters are now under construction.

In co-operation with the Hindustan Aircraft Ltd., bus transport facilities have been provided for about 450 employees.

There is a technical society for the senior staff where they meet and discuss subjects of scientific interest.

All the employees enjoy the benefit of film shows at frequent intervals free of charges.

IRON AND STEEL PROJECT

In view of the acute shortage of pig iron and steel in the country, Government decided in February, 1952 that, along with other measures, negotiations should be opened with steel firms abroad for putting up a blast furnace of suitable capacity at a new site to be selected in consultation with the prospective participants.*

It was also decided that Government would participate in the undertaking by providing necessary finance.

The estimated cost is Rs. 71.25 crores.

Negotiations were thereupon carried on with various parties by the Ministry of Production.

In October, 1952 Government decided to depute three officers, namely, Mr. C. C. Desai, Mr. P. C. Bhattacharyya and Mr. S. Bhoothalingam to the U.S.A. for further negotiations with some foreign parties and the World Bank. The officers returned to India towards the end of December, 1952 and submitted a Report to Government on the results of their discussions in the U.S.A.

On consideration of their Report Government decided early in January, 1953 to set up a technical mission to prepare a project report for the establishment of the new iron and steel plant.

Government have also decided to nominate Messrs. Koppers, a well-known firm of the U.S.A., as technical consultants to the Government of India on this Mission.

The Mission which consists of Dr. E. W. Rembert of the World Bank, Mr. Hill of Koppers and Mr. C. R. Natesan, Iron and Steel Controller in the Ministry of Commerce and Industry, is now engaged on the preparation of a revised project report.

NAHAN FOUNDRY LTD.

(Nahan, Sirmoor District, Himachal Pradesh)

This was started in 1876 and has been continuously expanded.

The total investment is about Rs. one crore and the number of persons employed is 500 in the works and 300 in the agencies.

Production consists of an improved type of cane crushers, bullock and power driven; centrifugal pumps in different sizes; a new patented device "Sarovar" for taking out water by bullock power for irrigation purposes; paddy-threshers; ploughs; corn-sheller machine (a new patented machine for separating maize corn from their cobs); chaff-cutters of different types; boiling pans; cast iron sheets; flour mills, power and bullock driven; and miscellaneous items.

The company has a network of 74 agencies in north India with mobile workshops which cater to the needs of the cultivator in the villages in respect of machines, and also undertake repairs at site.

It is managed as a private limited company (which took over on Jan. 1, 1953) with the President holding all the shares. The affairs are looked after by the Ministry of Production.

The Board of Directors:

V. L. Goswami (Chairman), N. C. Mallick, B. S. Bhattacharya, K. L. Mehta, I.C.S., Ram Lal, I. N. Sewal.

General Manager and Chief Engineer, Gandharv Sain.

NATIONAL INSTRUMENTS FACTORY

(15, Wood Street, Calcutta 16)

Total investment Rs. 90 lakhs. Value of production and repair for 1952 Rs. 17.31 lakhs. Value up to Oct. 30, 1953 Rs. 13.82 lakhs. Number of persons employed 989.

This is under the Ministry of Production.

It is one of the oldest if not the oldest factory in India engaged in the manufacture and repair of scientific and mathematical instruments in India.

It manufactures prismatic binoculars, telescopes, prismatic liquid compasses, sun compasses, thermometers, aircraft instruments, excise apparatus, hydrometers, measuring cylinders, barometers, manometers, students' microscopes, concentration eye-pieces, Fortin's barometers, drafting machines, and profile projectors.

The value of the production for the first nine months of 1952 was Rs. 13.58 lakhs.

The Planning Commission has provided Rs. 182 lakhs for the plan period to reorganize the factory.

Superintendent, B. C. Mukherji.

PENICILLIN FACTORY

(Pimpri, Poona Dt.; Indian Penicillin Committee, King Edward Road, Parel, Bombay 2)

This is to have the company form of management under the Ministry of Production and is to be located at Pimpri near Poona.

The plans are based on a tripartite agreement between Government of India, World Health Organisation (W.H.O.) and United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund (UNICEF), concluded on 24th July 1951.

Government will provide land, buildings, fittings, administrative offices, laboratories, pilot plant, workshop, other services like steam plant, electric substation, sewage disposal, water, etc.

Estimates for providing these are Rs. 1,30,00,000.

UNICEF will supply imported equipment valued $850,000.

W.H.O. will provide technical assistance valued $350,000.

The factory is planned to produce 3,600 billion units of Penicillin per year to start with, rising to 9,000 billion units.

Construction of non-residential buildings is in progress and was expected to be completed by the end of March, 1953.

*It is now decided that the plant should be located at Bourkola in Orissa.

Orders have been placed by the UNICEF for a major portion of the plant and equipment, and consignments were to start arriving from January 1953.

Some eleven technical officers are expected to have their training abroad.

To meet the immediate needs of Penicillin a Penicillin Bottling Plant with a capacity of 10,000 vials a day and on average 1,500 billion units per year has been set up in the compound of the Haffkine Institute, Bombay.

SINDRI FERTILIZERS AND CHEMICALS LTD. (Sindri, Bihar)

This is a State-owned private limited company, in which all shares except eight (allotted one each to the chairman and seven directors) are held by the President of India. The company was registered on December 18, 1952.

The Secretary to Government in the Ministry of Production is the Chairman of the Board of Directors.

Authorized share capital Rs. 30 crores; paid up—Rs. 17 crores. A further sum of Rs. 7.5 crores was invested by the Government as a loan at 4½ per cent interest.

Profit during the first 14 months was Rs. 2.7 crores. After providing for depreciation, renewal, replacement and partial write-off of development expenditure, the net profit was Rs. 96,000.

Started production—February 7, 1952 (bags of ammonium sulphate went out).

Average daily production—1,000 tons of ammonium sulphate. This is about 80 per cent of rated capacity.

Target—350,000 tons a year. This should help in the production of one million tons of extra food a year valued at Rs. 40 crores. It will also result in a saving of foreign exchange of about Rs. 12 crores a year in the import of artificial fertilizers.

Total production upto March 31, 1953—230,000 tons.

Price—Rs. 200 per ton.

The factory consists of gas, ammonia, sulphate plants; power from 80,000 kW Power House; water (some 12 million gallons a day under full production condition). Adequate arrangements have been made to ensure this large supply of water from the Damodar river for the factory and connected activities.

A barrage has also been thrown over the Gowai, a tributary of the Damodar, impounding about 1,000 million gallons of water as a stand-by.

Then there are a bagging plant, marshalling yards and 12-mile railway track.

The factory was 100 per cent complete at the end of 1951; it started production October 31, 1951; gas plant started 13th April 1951; production of anhydrous ammonia started 28th August 1951; marshalling yards completed 30th August 1951; bagging plant commissioned 4th February 1952; bags of ammonium sulphate went out of the factory 7th February, 1952.

The township is designed for 4,000 employee families or 20,000 persons; is 1,375 acres; has 4 groups of composite and self-sufficient colonies; all modern amenities (electricity, water supply, sanitary services, roads). The township is now complete and fully occupied.

There are also a hospital, branch dispensaries, first-aid posts, an English high school for boys and girls, three primary schools and one Kindergarten school.

Sindri's development plans include the establishment of a coke oven plant for the manufacture of 600 tons of coke per day.

A contract for this plant costing Rs. 2.35 crores has been placed and construction work is already in hand.

The erection of a cement manufacturing plant by the A.C.C., with an installed capacity of 600 tons of cement a day for the utilisation of Sindri's by-product—chalk sludge—is being undertaken.

It is also proposed to utilise the coke oven gases for the manufacture of urea, a stable fertilizer with high nitrogen content, which is ideal for rice cultivation.

A Fertilizer Mission, appointed by the Government of India in association with the T.C.A., has returned from a world tour after studying the manufacturing processes employed in some of the modern fertilizer plants in the world and has submitted a comprehensive report to the Government of India on the basis of which a joint decision by the Government of India and the T.C.A. will be taken on Sindri's expansion plans for production of other nitrogenous fertilizers like urea and ammonium nitrate.

These expansion plans are estimated to cost about Rs. 9.5 crores.

It is also proposed to set up an independent and efficient marketing organisation for Sindri to take over the distribution responsibilities of its product from January 1954.

Board of Directors:

Chairman, Secretary to Government of India, Ministry of Production.

Members, J. J. Ghandy; Sri Ram; Sri Narayan Mahtha, M.P.; Financial Commissioner, Railways; Joint Secretary, Ministry of Finance (I. & C. Div.); A. B. Chatterji, I.C.S.; S. R. Vasavada, M.A., M.L.A.

Mg. Dir., A. B. Chatterji, I.C.S.

TELEPHONE CABLE FACTORY

(Rupnarainpur, Burdwan Dt., West Bengal)

The control and management are in the hands of an entirely Government-owned private limited company named Hindustan Cables Ltd., under the Ministry of Production.

The factory started operating on Nov. 10, 1952.

The estimated cost of the factory is Rs. 110 lakhs, and the sale value of the annual output—Rs. 87 lakhs.

It is designed to produce annually 469 miles length of cables of different specifications, and was expected to go into production by December 1953.

The planning and lay-out of the factory has been completed. Consignments of plant and machinery have started arriving.

The plans are based on an agreement with the Standard Telephones and Cables Ltd. of U.K. concluded on Oct. 31, 1949. According to this agreement technical consultants were to prepare drawings, designs, estimates, supervise erection of factory, provide engineers at their cost for initial construction, put plant and machinery into service, train Indian personnel.

Chairman, Board of Directors, General Manager, Chittaranjan Locomotives.

Members, B. C. Mukherji (of Sindri Fertilizers); M. P. Birla; D. C. Driver; G. D. Ambekar; three officials of the Ministry of Production, Finance, Communications.

VISHAKAPATNAM SHIP-BUILDING YARD (Vishakapatnam, Andhra)

This is located at Vishakapatnam in Andhra State. It was originally designed by the firm of Sir Alexander Gibb and Partners.

It is on eight-berths basis, but now has 3 building berths to build ships ranging from 320 to 550 ft. in length, and from about 5,000 tons to about 15,000 tons deadweight capacity.

The construction of a fourth berth will soon commence.

It has also a fitting-out wharf 1,200 ft. long which permits fitting out of 6 large ships and 3 medium-sized ships in one year.

There are about 3,400 technicians, workers and staff.

There is a housing estate for employees on a site of 145 acres of land, provided with electricity, water supply, playgrounds, parks, school and hospital buildings, where about 1,500 families of the staff, workers and officers are accommodated.

The yard has been managed by Hindustan Shipyard Limited since the 1st of March 1952, a company in which the Government of India have a controlling interest.

The Board of Directors consists of 8 Government nominees including the Chairman and 4 nominees of Scindia Steam Navigation Co. Ltd.

The authorised capital of Rs. 10 crores is divided into 100,000 ordinary shares and issued in four stages and so arranged that Government contributes two-thirds of capital, thus acquiring a controlling interest.

Technical assistance is provided by Societe Anonyme des Ateliers et Chantiers de la Loire, a French firm of ship-builders under an agreement entered into with them.

So far (Dec. 1953) 10 ships of 8,000 tons each have been built, 4 on Scindia's account, and 6 on Government account.

Orders to build 9 more ships are under execution.

Of these 2 are of 8,000 tons deadweight and are of the same design as those built already.

The remaining 7 will be of different design, viz., Maelform design, and will be propelled by diesel engines—2 being of 8,000 DWT, and the remaining 5 being of 7,000 DWT.

A provision of Rs. 14.08 crores in the Five-Year Plan has been made for the acquisition and development of the ship-building yard and construction of ships.

The following table gives details about the ships built at the yards:

Name of ship	Date of laying keel	Date of launching	Date of completion and sailing	To whom sold

*11. "Jalapushpa" ..	26-12-51	9-7-52	30-9-52	"

* These six ships were ordered by Government.

The company is managed by a Board of Directors as already mentioned under the Ministry of Production. Chairman, N. R. Pillai, I.C.S. Managing Director, R. L. Gupta, I.C.S. Members, K. B. P. Aiyangar; N. Dandekar, I.C.S.; S. Jagannathan, I.C.S.; Dharamsey M. Khatau; Tulidas Kilachand; Michael John; Paul Maerton; Capt. Newham; Kasturba Lalbhai; P. C. Bhattacharya.

FOREIGN INVESTMENTS IN INDIA*

IN 1948 the Reserve Bank conducted a census of foreign investments in Indian joint-stock companies. The more important findings are given in the tables below. The figures are still the latest available ones, as there have been no official investigations since 1948.

It was found that about 2,300 foreign companies had investments in India, of which 334 had direct investments.

The number of companies with 95 per cent of its investments from abroad was 150, and of companies with 68 per cent of its investment from abroad was 68 per cent.

The first two tables show the investments business-wise and country-wise.

RESEARCH*

RESEARCH in pure science is done chiefly under the auspices of the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research and the Atomic Energy Commission.

Research in applied science and for industrial purposes is also done under the auspices of the C.S.I.R. and the various research associations of individual industries.

Research in engineering subjects is done under the auspices of the Board of Engineering Research.

Medical research is mainly in the charge of the Indian Council of Medical Research.

Agricultural research is looked after by the Indian Council of Agricultural Research and the various Central Committees for agricultural commodities like the Indian Central Cotton Committee, Indian Central Jute Committee, etc. (See under Agriculture).

Research in the humanities—literature, language, the arts, etc.—is done at individual institutions scattered throughout the country.

It may be mentioned here that the Central Government has a Scientific Liaison Officer in the U.K. He keeps in touch with the latest scientific developments in Europe, arranges for the training of Indians at research centres in Europe, and helps to promote personal contacts between Indian and foreign scientists.

Allotment for scientific and industrial research under the Plan: Rs. 4.61 crores.

SCIENTIFIC SOCIETIES

The National Institute of Sciences, New Delhi, is the premier scientific organization recognized by Government for co-ordinating the work of scientific academies, societies and Government departments and services. It has the same status as the Royal Society of London or of the National Academy of Washington.

Two all-embracing science societies are: The Indian Science Congress Association, Calcutta, under whose auspices Indian and foreign scientists meet every year to exchange ideas; and the Indian Association for the Cultivation of Science, Calcutta.

Other scientific societies are: Agricultural and Horticultural Society of India, Calcutta; Agri-Horticultural Society, Madras; Anthropological Society, Bombay; Banarus Mathematical Society (Bharat Ganita Parishad), Lucknow; Bombay Sanitary Association, Bombay; British Medical Association, Bombay Branch, Bombay; Entomological Society of India; Horticultural Society of India, Calcutta; Indian Academy of Sciences, Bangalore; Indian Botanical Society, Calcutta; Indian Ceramic Society; Indian Chemical Society, Calcutta; Indian Dairy Association, Bangalore; Indian Mathematical Society, Madras; Indian Physical Society, Calcutta; Indian Physiological Society, Calcutta; Indian Psychological Society; Indian Council of Medical Research, New Delhi; Indian Roads and Transport Development Association, Bombay; Indian Society of Genetics and Plant Breeding; Indian Society of Social Sciences; Mining and Geological Institute of India, Calcutta; Mining and Metallurgical Society; National Academy of Sciences, Allahabad; National Horse-breeding and Show Society of India, New Delhi; Psycho-analytical Society, Calcutta; Institute of Engineers, Calcutta; Indian Society of Soil Science, Calcutta; Society of Biological Chemists, Bangalore; Indian Science News Association, Calcutta; Indian Institute of Chemical Engineers; Indian Institute of Metals, Calcutta; Indian Society for Quality Control, Calcutta; Indian Society for Agricultural Statistics.

GOVERNMENT RESEARCH

Most Government research is now carried on under the auspices of the Council of Industrial and Scientific Research (Ministry of Natural Resources and Scientific Research). It manages the laboratories and institutions for research, awards fellowships, puts the knowledge so gained at the disposal of industry. It also publishes scientific papers and journals.

The Council is administered by a Governing Body with the Prime Minister as President and members as representing science, industry and certain Government departments. The Governing Body is advised by a Board of Scientific and Industrial Research consisting of 19 members about schemes for research or investigation of natural resources. For individual subjects the Board has advisory committees, the number of which at present is 24 as follows:

Glass and Refractory Committee; Chemical Research Committee; Physical Research; Fuel Research; Vegetable Oils; Cellulose Research; Biochemical Research; Pharmaceuticals and Drugs; Plastics; Atmospheric Research; Essential Oils; Metals Research; Internal Combustion Engine Research; Uniform Calendar; Radio Research; Statistics Standards and Quality Control; Leather Research; Measurement of Geological Time; Malaria Chemotherapy; Vanaspathy Research; Building Research; Salt Research; Mining Research; High Altitude Research.

The 10 National Laboratories which the Council looks after are, in the order in which they were started, as follows:

National Chemical Laboratory at Poona (Jan. 3, 1950); National Physical Laboratory at New Delhi (Jan. 21, 1950); Central Fuel Research Institute at Dhanbad (April 22, 1950); Central Glass Ceramic Research Institute at Jadavpur, Calcutta (Aug. 25, 1950); Central Food Technological Institute at Mysore (Oct. 21, 1950); National Metallurgical Laboratory at Jamshedpur (Nov. 26, 1950); Central Drug Research Institute at Lucknow (Feb. 17, 1951); Central Road Research Institute at New Delhi (July 16, 1952); Central Electro-Chemical Research Institute at Karalkudi, south India (Jan. 1953); Central Leather Research Institute at Madras (Jan. 1953).

The three following laboratories are in the process of establishment:

Central Building Research Institute at Roorkee; Central Salt Research Institute at Bhavnagar; Central Electronic Engineering Research Institute at Pilani, Rajasthan.

The Council of Scientific and Industrial Research encourages the formation of trade associations for the purpose of conducting co-operative research. Where recognition is given Government may make a money grant. Examples of industries where such associations exist are:

Ahmedabad textiles, the silk and art mills of Bombay, the leather manufacturers and tanners of south India, and the Colabators textiles.

The Council also encourages research at universities and other institutions through grants-in-aid.

The Atomic Energy Commission has to be mentioned here; it was set up in Aug. 1948. It deals with all matters concerning the development and production of atomic energy.

In its research work it is assisted by two bodies: The Board of Research on Atomic Energy and the Cosmic Ray Committee. The research is conducted at its own laboratories, the Tata Institute of Fundamental Research and also at the universities, to whom it makes grants for raising the standard of instruction in physics, chemistry and mathematics.

The Atomic Energy Commission also looks after Rare Earths Ltd., located at Alwaye in Travancore-Cochin. A factory is also due to start working in Bombay for extracting uranium and thorium from the waste thrown up by the Alwaye works.

The Commission spends much money on cosmic research at various universities, and more especially at the following institutions: Institute of Nuclear Physics, Calcutta; Bose Research Institute of Science, Calcutta; Physical Research Laboratory, Ahmedabad.

For engineering research a body has been set up, called the Board of Engineering Research which is assisted by five expert committees.

MEDICAL RESEARCH

Medical Research is conducted chiefly under the auspices of the Indian Council of Medical Research, New Delhi. The Council also grants research fellowships. There is a Scientific Advisory Board which deals with technical questions and publishes reports of research carried on at the centres under its charge.

Some of the more important institutions where medical research is conducted are:

Malaria Institute of India, Delhi; Central Research Institute, Kasauli, Punjab; All India Institute of Hygiene and Public Health, Calcutta; King Institute, Guindy, Madras; School of Tropical Medicine, Calcutta; Haffkine Institute, Bombay (plague, poisonous snakes); Nutrition Research Laboratories, Coonoor; Seth G. S. Medical College, Bombay; Central Malaria Laboratory, Public Health Department, Madras (for D.D.T.); Indian Veterinary Research Institute, Mukteswar-Kumaun, U.P.; University College of Science and Technology, Calcutta; National Chemical Laboratory, Poona (for dietary protein); Presidency College, Calcutta (for nicotinic acid); Department of Chemical Technology, University of Bombay, Bombay (for B vitamins); Indian Dairy Research Institute, Bangalore; University Bio-Chemical Laboratory, University of Madras, Madras; Medical College, Baroda (for physiological reactions to Indian foods); Presidency College, Calcutta (for vitamin A); Safdarjung Hospital, New Delhi (for effects of malnutrition); M. G. M. Medical College, Indore (for riboflavin and thiamine); Institute of Science, Bombay; Assam Medical College, Dibrugarh (for caloric needs of persons of different occupations); College of Nursing, New Delhi (nutrition of mothers and infants); M. S. University, Baroda; Tata Memorial Hospital, Bombay (leprosy); Christian Medical College, Vellore (leprosy); Acworth Leprosy Home, Bombay; Victoria Leprosy Hospital, Dichepalli; Government Silver Jubilee Children's Clinic, Saidapet, Madras (for leprosy); Central Drug Research Institute, Lucknow (pituitary gland); S. N. Medical College, Agra (pulmonary disease, skin diseases and liver); Medical College, Amritsar (diabetes); King George's Medical College, Lucknow (lymphoid tissue); S. C. B. Medical College, Cuttack (allergy); Lady Hardinge Medical College, New Delhi (sterility); Sawai Man Singh Medical College, Jaipur (guinea worm); Office of Director of Public Health, Madras (infant mortality); Chittaranjan Cancer Hospital, Calcutta (urine); N. R. Sarkar Medical College, Calcutta (anaemias of pregnancy); Topiwala National Medical College, Bombay (abortions); Stanley Medical College, Madras (toxemia of pregnancy); Grant Medical College, Bombay (polio); Pasteur Institute, Coonoor (influenza); Drug Research Laboratory, Jammu (indigenous drugs); Virus Research Centre, Poona.

* For a consecutive list of research institutions see under Societies.

For personnel of some of the institutions see under Government of India personnel.

CIVIL AVIATION

ALLOTMENT under the Five-Year Plan, Rs. 22.87 crores.

Compensation to air companies and purchase of new aircraft, Rs. 9.5 crores.

India's air transport services were nationalized by an Act of Parliament called the Air Corporations Act 1953 which received the President's assent on May 28, 1953. The Act came into force on August 1, 1953.

The internal air services are now managed by a corporation called Indian Airlines Corporation, and the external services by Air-India International Corporation. According to the Act the number of members of a Corporation cannot be less than five and not more than nine. Each of the Corporations has a general manager.

The Central Government has authority to give the Corporations directions about opening a new transport service, closing an existing service, or other changes in schedule. At the end of a financial year the Corporations must present a report to the Central Government which will be laid before Parliament.

Private agencies can use aircraft for purposes of instruction, rescue or relief, air survey, fire fighting, crop dusting, locust control or for providing joy rides.

There were 11 Indian transport companies, holding permits on June 30, 1953.

An Air Transport Council is to be established so that certain points of common interest to different departments may be discussed.

An Advisory Committee for each Corporation may also be appointed.

There will be a Labour Relations Committee for each Corporation consisting of representatives of the Corporation and of employees formed in such a way that the representatives of employees are not less than the representatives of the Corporation. This Committee will give advice to the Corporation on matters of labour.

There is to be a special tribunal to determine compensation. The amount of compensation is to be determined in accordance with certain principles laid down in a schedule to the Act.

Government will negotiate with each company to arrive at an agreed figure. If there are differences they will be referred to the tribunal. Part of the compensation is to be paid in cash, and part in negotiable bonds bearing a rate of interest of three and a half per cent.

The names of the existing air companies taken over by the Indian Airlines Corporation as mentioned in the Act are:

The Air India Ltd.; the Air Services of India Ltd.; The Airways (India) Ltd.; The Bharat Airways Ltd.; The Deccan Airways Ltd.; The Himalayan Aviation Ltd.; The Indian National Airways Ltd.; The Kalinga Airlines.

The Air-India International Corporation took over the Air-India International Ltd.

The members of the Indian Airlines Corporation (Mandi House, New Delhi) are:

B. C. Mukharji, I.C.S. (Chairman), J. R. D. Tata, M. L. Khaitan, Michael John, B. N. Jha, I.C.S. (Secy., Min. of Communications), K. R. K. Menon (Secy., R. and E., Min. of Finance), L. C. Jain, I.C.S. (Dir.-Genl., Civil Aviation), K. K. Roy, P. M. Reddy.

The members of the Air-India International Corporation (New India Assurance Bldg., Bombay 1) are:

J. R. D. Tata (Chairman), B. C. Mukharji, I.C.S., K. C. Mohindra, Michael John, K. C. Bakhle, B. N. Jha, I.C.S., K. R. K. Menon, L. C. Jain, I.C.S.

The Indian Airlines Corporation has appointed seven Resident Representatives to take over the services formerly run by the eight companies. Three of them have their headquarters in Calcutta and the rest in Delhi, Bombay, Madras and Hyderabad.

The line numbers of the airlines and their respective resident representatives are:

(1) K. K. Roy, Calcutta, (Airways, India, Ltd.): Great Eastern Hotel.

(2) C. J. Lalkaka, Calcutta, (Bharat Airways, Ltd.).

(3) P. K. Ghosh, Calcutta, (Himalayan Aviation, Ltd.), (Kalinga Airlines, Ltd.).

(4) J. M. Gupta, New Delhi, (Indian National Airways, Ltd.): Air India Bldg., Connaught Circus.

(5) P. M. Reddy, Hyderabad, (Deccan Airways, Ltd.): Bashir Bagh Road.

(6) B. K. N. Rao, Madras, (Air-India, Ltd.): Khaleeli Mansions, Mount Road.

(7) W/Cdr. W. H. Burbury, Bombay, (Air Services of India, Ltd.): New India Assurance Bldg., Mahatma Gandhi Rd., Bombay 1.

Mr K. K. Roy is in over-all charge of lines 1, 2, 3 and 4, while Mr. P. M. Reddy has over-all responsibility for lines 5, 6 and 7.

AIR SERVICES

The services conducted by the Indian Airlines Corporation are now numbered 1 to 7. The following table shows the numbers, the routes and also the names of the former companies which operated the routes when they were taken over.

Number 8 is the external service.

AIRCRAFT

Indian airlines have had a fleet of 110 aircraft. But the actual number required to operate the services on the present scale cannot be more than 50.

Of the 110 aircraft 91 are twin-engined, 21-seater Dakotas; 12 twin-engined, 27-seater Vikings; three four-engined, 56-seater Sky-masters and four four-engined, 44-seater, fully-pressurised Constellations.

Two of these four types of aircraft, Dakotas and Vikings, both non-pressurised and each carrying a 4-member flight-crew consisting of pilot, co-pilot, radio officer, and air-hostess, are operated on domestic sectors and short-range foreign routes, like Pakistan (both East and West), Burma, Ceylon, Afghanistan, Kashmir, and Nepal, whereas non-pressurised Sky-masters operate on Calcutta-Bangkok-Singapore-Djakarta route.

Pressurised Constellations operate from New Delhi, Calcutta and Bombay to Cairo, Rome, Paris, Geneva, Dusseldorf, London, Karachi, Aden, and Nairobi.

International air carriers, like the Sky-masters and Constellations, carry a complement of 7-member flight-crew—commander or pilot-in-command, first officer or co-pilot, flight navigating officer, flight engineer, flight radio officer, flight pursuer or cabin service officer, and air-hostess or stewardess.

Sometimes on long range journey, like Bombay-Nairobi service, even ten-member crew is also carried to ensure additional margin of safety.

FACTS AND FIGURES

Some basic facts are as follows:

Total route mileage ..	27,763 miles
Domestic route ..	14,050 "
International ..	13,713 "
Aircraft miles flown (Jan.-June 1953) ..	9,900,000
Passengers carried (Jan.-June 1953) ..	230,000
Freight carried (Jan.-June 1953) ..	48 million lbs.
Mail carried (Jan.-June 1953) ..	4.4 million lbs.
Load factor (Jan.-June 1953) ..	68.5 per cent.
No. of aircraft registered (1st July, 1953) ..	655
No. of aircraft holding certificates of airworthiness (1st July 1953) ..	167
No. of pilots with A licences (1st June, 1953) ..	440

No. of pilots with A-1 licences (1st June, 1953) ..	2
No. of pilots with B licences (1st June, 1953) ..	531
No. of pilots with P-1 licences (1st June, 1953) ..	46
No. of Navigators with 1st class licence (1st June, 1953) ..	12
No. of Navigators with 2nd class licence (1st June, 1953) ..	54
No. of Radio Telegraph Operators with 1st class licences (1st June, 1953) ..	10
No. of Radio Telegraph Operators with 2nd class licences ..	160
No. of Radio Telegraph Operators with Provisional licences ..	5
No. of Radio Telephone Operators (Regular) 1st June, 1953 ..	241
No. of Radio Telephone Operators (Provisional) (1st June, 1953) ..	2
No. of aircraft maintenance engineers with licences (1st July, 1953) ..	612

On the 14 Indian transport companies 2.24 million miles were flown, and 54,139 passengers and 32.48 million lb. of freight were carried between January and June 1953.

Thus on the scheduled and non-scheduled services together 12 million miles were flown, 284,000 passengers carried, 80 million lb. of freight, and 4.4 million lb. of mail were transported between January and June 1953.

The corresponding figures for the preceding half year were 12.7 million miles, 281,000 passengers, 107.5 million lb. of freight and 4.4 million lb. of mail.

AERODROMES

There were 77 aerodromes in India on June 1, 1953.

During 1952-53, the revenue that accrued to the national exchequer on account of the Central Government aerodromes was Rs. 5,698,400.

The Indian airlines contributed to that revenue to the extent of Rs. 4,245,296 while the contribution of foreign airlines using Indian aerodromes totalled Rs. 1,453,104.

Below is a list of the aerodromes maintained by the Civil Aviation Department on June 1, 1953.

The following aerodromes are classed as International Aerodromes:

Bombay Airport (Santa Cruz); Calcutta Airport (Dum Dum); Delhi Airport (Palam).

The following aerodromes are classed as Major Aerodromes:

Agartala (Tripura); Ahmedabad; Begumpet (Hyderabad); Bombay (Juhu); Delhi (Safdarjung); Gauhati; Madras (St. Thomas Mt.); Nagpur.

The following aerodromes are classed as Intermediate Aerodromes:

Allahabad; Amritsar; Aurangabad (Hyderabad); Bagdogra (West Bengal); Banaras; Baroda; Barrackpore; Bhavnagar; Bhopal; Bhuji (Kutch); Coimbatore; Cuttack (Bhubaneswar); Gaya; Indore; Jaipur; Jorhat (Assam); Junagadh (Hashod); Lucknow (Amausi); Madras; Mangalore (Rajpet); Mohanbari (Assam); Patna; Porbandar (Saurashtra); Rajkot; Tezpur (Assam); Tiruchirappalli; Trivandrum; Vijayawada; Vishakapatnam.

The following aerodromes are classed as Minor Aerodromes:

Akola; Asansol; Bareilly; Belonia (Assam); Bilaspur; Chakulia (Bihar); Cuddappah (Andhra); Donakonda (Madras); Gorakhpur (Rusmi); Jhansi; Jharsuguda (Orissa); Jubbulpore; Kailashahar (Assam); Kamalpur (Assam); Kanpur (Civil) (Uttar Pradesh); Khandwa; Khosait (Assam); Kolhapur; Kotah (Rajasthan); Lalitpur (U.P.); Manipur Road (Assam); Mysore; North Lakhimpur (Assam); Palampur (Deesa) (Bombay); Pasighat (Assam); Raipur; Rajahmundry; Ramnagar; Ranchi; Sadilya (Assam); Saharanpur (U.P.); Shella (Assam); Sholapur; Tanjore; Udaipur; Vellore; Warangal.

FLYING CLUBS

There were 10 flying clubs Centrally subsidised on 1st July, 1953—Delhi, Bombay, Madras, Bengal, Bihar, Hind Provincial, Orissa, Northern India, Madhya Pradesh, Government Flying Training School at Bangalore.

A new club in Rajasthan started activities with the headquarters at Jaipur in 1953.

These flying clubs trained 104 'A' and 47 'B' pilots between January and June 1953.

The number of aircraft on charge on June 1, 1953 was 116, out of which 54 were serviceable and 62 unserviceable. Out of 116 aircraft 40 belonged to the Government and 76 to the clubs.

The number of pilots employed was 30, aircraft maintenance engineers 29, mechanics 82.

The aircraft flew 1274 hours in one month—May 1953.

There were two centrally subsidized gliding clubs on July 1, 1953—the Indian Gliding Association, Bombay; Delhi Gliding Club, New Delhi.

The number of gliders on charge on 1st June, 1953 was 8 all of which belonged to Government. The number of pilot instructors was two, and of operator-cum-mechanic one.

The number of hours flown by the Association in Bombay in May 1953 was 26 hours and 22 minutes.

It trained 17 pilots upto 'B' certificate, 3 pilots upto 'C' certificate, one pilot upto 'CC' certificate.

The total subsidy granted to flying and glider clubs in 1952-53 was Rs. 971,847.

The Government bought in all 151 training craft which they loaned to the flying and gliding clubs. Of these only 75 (Aug. 1, 1953) were in commission. The total cost of the 151 training craft was Rs. 7,239,315.

The Civil Aviation Training Centre at Allahabad opened in 1948 trains pilots, engineers, aerodrome control officers, radio operators and technicians.

AIR TRAINING

Facilities for training in flying, aircraft engineering, communications and air traffic control available at the Civil Aviation Training Centre, Allahabad comprises the following four wings, viz:—

(1) Flying School; (2) Aerodrome Officers' Training School; (3) Engineering School; (4) Communication School.

In addition a Repair and Overhaul Organisation is also attached to the Centre for carrying out repairs and overhaul of the Centre's aircraft.

At the Civil Aviation Training Centre at Allahabad (Jan to June, 1953):

20 trainees completed the pilot's ground training course; 16 the Dakota conversion course; 11 the aircraft maintenance engineers' course; 18 the air traffic control officers' course; 29 the aerodrome operators' course; 11 the radio technicians' refresher course, eight the radio technicians' advanced refresher course; 13 the radio operators' advanced refresher course; and 5 the radio technicians abinitio course at the Civil Aviation Training Centre, Allahabad.

At the end of June, 1953, 79 trainees were under training at the centre.

The Centre has acquired the reputation of being the best of its kind in the East.

AERONAUTICAL COMMUNICATION ORGANIZATION

This is a branch of the Civil Aviation Department organised in 1946.

The aeronautical communication stations provide facilities for air/ground communication, radio aid to navigation, point to point communications and Met broadcasts for the benefit of aviators.

For purposes of organization, India has been divided into four regions, each under the charge of a Controller of Communication, who is responsible for maintenance and operation of the communication stations in his region.

The communication organisation has the following ancillary units:—

The Radio Construction Unit; The Radio Development Unit; The Radio Stores Depot.

The new installations and major repairs to technical equipment are carried out by the Construction Unit. The Radio Development unit, which came into existence in January, 1948, is engaged in carrying out research and development work on problems pertaining to aeronautical communications. The Radio Stores

Depot is the central stores organization responsible for the stocking and distribution of all equipment and spares to the stations.

A Research and Development Branch was created in April 1946.

A Technical Centre has been established in New Delhi. Research and Development work concerning problems of aircraft design, construction, modification and repair, development of aircraft materials and processes, development and use of safety devices, analysis of technical problems of air transportation and, in general, such scientific and advanced technical work considered necessary for the promotion of civil aviation is carried out at this Centre.

The need for aircraft manufacturing was keenly felt immediately on the outbreak of the War and the Hindustan Aircraft Company was established in the year 1940. Aircraft, aero-materials, accessories and parts are now being manufactured in the country.

DEVELOPMENTS IN 1953

Night air services continued to operate satisfactorily during the period; 13,343 passengers, 524,156 lb. of freight and 1,564,396 lb. of mails were carried on the night services, giving a daily average of 74 passengers, 2,896 lb. of freight and 5,843 lb. of mails.

The Government of India granted a loan of Rs. 25 lakhs to Air India International Ltd. towards the purchase of two Super Constellation aircraft.

A provisional payment of Rs. 3 lakhs was made to Bharat Airways Ltd. as subsidy to cover the losses incurred by the company in the operation of its scheduled services on the route Calcutta-Singapore during October, 1951 to October, 1952.

Financial assistance to air companies was continued for the period January to December, 1952, at the rate of six annas per gallon of aviation fuel consumed on scheduled air operations.

A new concrete runway at Calcutta (Dum Dum) airport 7,000 feet long by 150 feet wide, with a paved overrun of 250 feet at each end was opened to traffic on March 1, 1953.

The work of extension of the east-west runway at Bombay (Santa Cruz) airport from 5,200 feet to 7,000 feet was completed and the runway opened to traffic on May 15, 1953.

Air traffic control facilities were provided at Imphal (Koirengle) and Pathankot aerodromes.

An aerodrome visual beacon with alternate green and white flashes was installed at Allahabad on February 2, 1953.

A land mark beacon was installed at Akola on March 2, 1953 and a mobile rotating beacon (aerial lighthouse) was put into commission at Raipur on April 4, 1953.

A rotating beacon with white flashes was installed at Coimbatore on June 9, 1953.

Sixteen new facilities were put into commission during the period under review.

An aeronautical tele-communication station was established at Balurghat aerodrome.

An automatic marconi AD 200 VHF/DF facility was installed at the aeronautical tele-communication station Nagpur and a high power MF beacon was installed at Mangalore.

The reporting beacon previously installed and operated at Kalna was withdrawn and was re-installed at Berhampore. This beacon will facilitate control of air traffic at Dum Dum airport.

Approach control facilities on VHF radio telephony channel were provided at Begumpet, Bhopal, Aurangabad, Jalpur, Amritsar, Bangalore, Madras, Cochin and Coimbatore.

In addition, a long range HF air ground radio telephony was provided at Bombay aerodrome, control VHF radio telephony at Bhavnagar and inter tower radio telephony at Mohanbari.

Radio navigation and communication facilities were installed at Madras airfield.

Emergency installations of aeronautical tele-communication and navigation facilities were carried out at Hatwa and Satna.

During the period under review, 13 major accidents occurred to Indian registered aircraft, of which one occurred outside India, in Nepal.

Out of these 13, two accidents related to aircraft engaged on scheduled passenger air services, two to aircraft engaged on scheduled freight air services, one to aircraft engaged in non-scheduled operations and the remaining eight to flying club and private aircraft.

Two of these accidents involved fatalities taking a toll of 21 lives.

Dakota conversion courses for 'B' licensed pilots were introduced at the Centre.

The budget estimates for the year 1952-53 under the two demands, Revenue and Capital pertaining to civil aviation are as follows:—

Revenue	Rs. 2,80,28,000
Capital	Rs. 1,50,00,000

India is a member of the International Civil Aviation Organisation and has been elected to its Council.

AIR AGREEMENT

India has entered into bilateral air agreements with the following 12 countries on the dates shown against each:—

U.S.A.	14-11-46
France	16-7-47
Sweden	21-5-48
Pakistan	23-6-48
Ceylon	21-12-48
Switzerland	24-6-49
Australia	11-7-49
The Philippines	20-10-49
Netherlands	24-5-51
U.K.	1-12-51
Afghanistan	26-1-52
Egypt	14-6-52

The Agreement with Sweden is not operative at present.

There are temporary air agreements with Italy, Thailand, Burma, Norway, Denmark, Iran, Iraq, Sweden, Nepal, Indonesia.

NATIONALIZATION

Authorized capital of the companies taken over	Rs. 214,071,429
Paid-up Capital	Rs. 69,733,549
Total staff	9,500

Govt. loan to Air India International at 4½ per cent interest Rs. 25 lakhs

Govt. loan to Deccan Airways at 4½ per cent interest Rs. 10.5 "

Financially, most of India's airlines were a miserable failure. Too many more air-operators than were warranted for the country's requirements; too many aeroplanes, far in excess of her present needs; duplication and overlapping of existing routes; paucity of both adequate and additional traffic potentially; inadequacy of unexplored or untapped new routes, both in India and the neighbouring countries; lack of general prosperity among the travelling public; rigid Government control on fares relating to passengers, air-freight, and postal mail; the specified routes on which to operate on the basis of a licence issued by the Air Transport Licensing Board of the Government of India's Directorate-General of Civil Aviation; and highly prohibitive costs of aviation fuel and oil were some of the contributing factors, leading to the incurrence of huge losses by Indian civil air transport operators.

Carriage of a major portion of the postal mail, passenger traffic, and air-freight by night air services deprived the day air operators of what was formerly their legitimate due.

Fares at present obtaining, in India, even for day services, are among the lowest in the world. Any excessive slashing down of the existing fare-structure is bound to be disastrous to the Indian air services. There is actually a strong case for an enhancement of the present fares, if India's nationalised airways are not to prove a drain on India's exchequer.

RAILWAYS

THE total route mileage of all the railways in India on April 14, 1952 was 34,119.44. The total electrified route mileage was 235.99.

Some railways are company-managed. The total route mileage of these railways on October 1, 1952 was 965.

The total capital at charge on March 31, 1952 was Rs 850.11 crores. On other than Government railways the capital at charge was Rs. 1.14 crores.

There are three kinds of gauges, broad (5 ft. 6 in.), metre (3 ft. 3½ in.) and narrow (2 ft. 6 in.). There is also a light gauge usually laid on the mountains (2 ft.). Examples of this last are the Matheran (Hill) Light Railway, and the Darjeeling-Himalayan. The longest line in this class is the Scindia State, 294 miles.

The fares are as follows :—

Air Conditioned Class	30 ples per mile
I Class	27 " " "
II Class	16 " " "
Inter Class	10.5 ples per mile (mail).
"	9 " " " (ordinary).
III Class	6 " " " (mail).
"	5 " " " (ordinary).

ZONAL ADMINISTRATION

The entire Government railway system is now regrouped into six administrations: the Southern Railway, the Western Railway, the Central Railway, the Northern Railway, the Eastern Railway and the North-Eastern Railway.

The headquarters of the Southern Railway are at Madras, of the Western Railway at Bombay, of the Central Railway also at Bombay, of the Northern Railway at Delhi, of the Eastern Railway at Calcutta, and of the North-Eastern at Gorakhpur.

There are 10 company railways: Barasat and Basirhat Light (Calcutta); Bukhtiarpur-Bihar Light (Patna); Barsi Light (Kurdawadi); Bombay Port Trust (Bombay); Calcutta Port Commissioners (Calcutta); Dehri Rohtas Light (Dalminagar); Madras Port Trust (Madras); Martin Burn Ltd. (Calcutta); McLeod and Co. (Calcutta).

Before the amalgamation there were 35 railway systems in India of which 22 were owned by the Indian Government.

These 22 were :—

Assam, Bengal Nagpur, Bombay Baroda and Central India, Bezpada, Dhone Kurnool, Darjeeling-Himalayan, East Indian, Eastern Punjab, Great Indian Peninsula, Madras and Southern Mahratha, Oudh Tirhut, South Indian, Bikaner State Railway, Kutch State Railway, Dholpur State Railway, Jaipur State Railway, Jodhpur Railway, Mysore State Railway, Nizam's State Railway, Rajasthan Railway, Saurashtra Railway, Scindia State Railway.

The chief administrations were the Assam Railway, the Bengal Nagpur Railway, the Bombay Baroda & Central India Railway, the East Indian Railway, the Punjab Railway, the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, the Madras and Southern Mahratha Railway, the Mysore State Railway, the H.E.H. Nizam's State Railway, the Oudh Tirhut Railway, the South Indian Railway and the Saurashtra Railway.

The highest administrative authority for the railways is the Railway Board.

The Indian Railway Conference Association, New Delhi, is a sort of clearing house for all railways.

The majority of the railways are still organized on a Departmental basis, though the general drift is towards the Divisional organization.

There are a number of Committees which have been associated with the Railway Administration: Standing Finance Committee, Central Advisory Council, Railway Rates Tribunal, Indian Railway Fuel Committee.

There are also a number of standardization Committees such as for bridges, structure, track, signalling and inter-locking, building, locomotive, carriage and wagon, electrical, specifications.

There are also Railway Users' Consultative Committees at the zonal, regional and national level.

There is a Railway Service Commission in Bombay and another in Calcutta.

A training college for railway officers and staff was opened at Baroda in January 1952.

In the budget for 1952-53 there was provision for a Railway Research and Testing Centre at Lucknow.

Some of the more important officials are given below :

Chairman and Member (Engineering), Railway Board, F. C. Badwar.

Chairman, Railway Conference Association, K. P. Mushran.

General Manager, Central Railway, H. P. Hira.

" " Eastern Railway, P. C. Mukerjee.

" " Northern Railway, K. B. Mathur.

" " North-Eastern Railway, G. Pande.

" " Southern Railway, T. A. Joseph.

The Capital budget for 1953-54 .. 79.61

The capital programme placed primary emphasis on rehabilitation but due consideration was given to the necessity for augmenting rolling stock, the construction of new lines, relieving bottlenecks and providing better passenger facilities.

Works was to commence on five new lines and seven other projects were to be surveyed.

The Barsi Light Railway was to be purchased.

Railway users were brought into closer contact with the administration at all levels with the establishment of Railway Users' Consultative Committees at the regional, zonal and national levels.

First class railway travel was abolished on October 1, 1953 on all trains except a few.

The ultimate objective, it was stated, was to have two classes, an upper and a lower besides air-conditioned accommodation.

Teachers of recognised schools became entitled to half concession fares on the railways for educational tours from April 1. Concession tickets to volunteers working on community projects were also issued from April, 1953.

An ad hoc tribunal was set up to deal with labour disputes that cannot be settled by discussion between the Railway Board and the Railwaymen's Federation.

It was announced by the Minister for Railways in the course of his speech introducing the budget for 1953-54 that indigenous production was able to meet the normal requirements of the railways of rails, wagons and coaches.

About 8,000 quarters were to be constructed for railway workers.

In 1952-53 the bill for labour welfare was Rs. 7 crores.

The following developmental projects were either completed or taken up during 1952-53:

Deesa-Gandhidham section of the Western Railway opened in October, 1952; Bijnor-Chandpur Siau section of the Northern Railway, restored and opened to traffic in November, 1952; Vasad-Kathana line on the Western Railway expected to be completed in 1953; Qullon-Ernakulam metre-gauge link on the Southern Railway commenced in December, 1952; and extension of Kalyan Power House on the Central Railway, at a cost of Rs. 3 crores, opened in December, 1952; work on the rail-cum-road bridge over the Ganga near Mokameh, was resumed.

The following new lines were taken in hand in 1953-54:

Khandwa-Hingoli link in Madhya Pradesh, 186 miles long with a total anticipated cost of Rs. 7.50 crores; rail connection from the Gau-Barabail area to the Manharpur-Bourkela section, in Bihar and Orissa, 31 miles long at an estimated cost of Rs. 3.5 crores; the Champa-Korba line in Madhya Pradesh, 22 miles long at an anticipated cost of Rs. 88 lakhs; the Gandhidham-Kandla link in Kutch, 7 miles long with an anticipated cost of Rs. 57 lakhs; the Gop-Katkola line in Saurashtra, 21 miles long at a cost of Rs. 34 lakhs; and conversion of the Tezpur-Balpara line, in Assam, on the North-Eastern Railway, from narrow-gauge to meter-gauge, 20 miles long at a cost of Rs. 40 lakhs.

The following seven projects were under survey:

The Deva-Dagaon line in Bombay; electrification of the Calcutta suburban section in West Bengal; the Mangalore-Hassan line in Madras and Mysore States; the rail connection to Etah, Uttar Pradesh; rail connection to Chandigarh, in the Punjab; the Tildanga-Malda branch in West Bengal; the Fatehpur-Churu line in Rajasthan.

ROLLING STOCK

The rolling stock programme for 1953-54 would cost Rs. 42 crores, of which Rs. 16.69 crores were for purchases from abroad.

At the Chittaranjan Locomotive Works already about 70 per cent of locomotive parts are manufactured.

It is expected that by the end of 1954 all except proprietary and some special parts will be manufactured in this country.

Till the end of 1952 the Works produced 49 locomotives.

The Tata Locomotive and Engineering Co. produces metre gauge locomotives. Till the end of January 1953 it produced 35.

When the two are in full production India will be self-sufficient in the matter of locomotive replacement.

About passenger coaches the Perambur factory will be able to produce 350 all-steel coaches when working at full capacity.

Wagons have been manufactured in India for 30 years.

LOCOMOTIVES

The country's requirements in locomotives is about 200 a year.

At present there are two factories which manufacture locomotives—the Chittaranjan Locomotive Works at Chittaranjan in West Bengal and the Tata Locomotive and Engineering Company. The former has an installed capacity of 120 locomotives a year, and the latter of 100.

Together, therefore, they will be able to meet the country's requirements when they go into full production. The Tata company which produces metre gauge locomotives works with the co-operation of the German firm of Krauss Maffel.

At present the out-turn from the Chittaranjan works is 60 per year.

Meanwhile the import programme has been as follows:

	Numbers	Value in Rs. lakhs
1948-49	149	4.54
1949-50	432	19.03
1950-51	220	8.79
1951-52	80	3.00
1952-53 (Est.)	207
1953-54	313	20.80

GOODS WAGONS

The normal annual requirements of Indian railways is about 6,000 wagons.

Wagons have been manufactured in India for about 30 years. At present wagons are built at the railway workshops and the four following firms: 1. Burn & Co., Howrah; 2. Braithwaite & Co., Calcutta, 3. Indian Standard Wagons Ltd., Burnpur, 4. Jessop & Co., Calcutta.

The four firms listed above have an installed capacity of 6,000 wagons a year so that normally it should be possible to meet India's requirements from internal production. The supply of raw materials, however, like steel and of manufactured parts like wheels and axles do not keep up to the demand.

The actual production in 1951-52 was 3,925 wagons.

The import schedule is as follows:

1951-52	2,469
1952-53	1,744
1953-54	5,460
1954-55	4,710
1955-56	4,710

PASSENGER COACHES

Passenger coaches have been built in this country for the last fifty years in railway workshops, though certain parts like wheels, axles, underframes and electrical equipment have had to be imported.

At present coaches are built besides the railway workshops at Hindustan Aircraft Ltd., and two private companies—Braithwaite & Co. Ltd. and Indian Standard Wagon Co. Ltd. The foundation of the workshop at Perambur in Madras for the manufacture of all-steel integral types of coaches has been laid.

The installed capacity is roughly as follows: the two private companies—250 bogies per annum; railway workshops—500 bogies.

The Hindustan Aircraft has plans to increase its capacity to build 100 to 180 bogie passenger coaches per year.

The Perambur workshop when it is in full production (1957) will have a capacity to build 300 to 350 all-steel integral type coaches per annum. It will cost about Rs. 4 crores, and will start production by 1955 and will produce about 50 coaches in the first year (1955-56).

The required replacements (both arrears as well as current) during the Plan period is estimated at 8,535. As against this it is estimated that over 5,000 units will be available.

Production of coaches and underframes has been as follows:

	Coaches	Underframes
1948-49	238	118
1949-50	337	1,540
1950-51	479	584
1951-56	1,380	not available

The import schedule has been as follows:

1952-53	274
1953-54	292
1954-55	315
1955-56	315

FIVE-YEAR PLAN

Total allotment . Rs 400.0 crores.

The most serious problem is that of renewal and the provision of new equipment.

The proportions of the over-age stock are somewhat as follows. By March 31, 1950 about 2,090 locomotives, 8,535 coaches, 47,533 wagons will reach the normal age of replacement.

The position about stationary equipment is just as grave. Present speeds are restricted over 2,000 miles of track, because of its weak condition.

As against this the supply position would be as follows:

Locomotives: Chittaranjan will produce 120 locomotives and 50 spare boilers per annum, and the Tata works will produce about 200 locomotives.

Coaches: The estimated indigenous output during the Plan period is 4,380. The coach factory at Perambur will not start working till 1955.

Wagons: About 30,000 will be produced during the Plan period.

About track, it is proposed to deal with 400 to 500 miles of track every year. Use will be made of indigenous supply. About 2.3 million wooden sleepers (cost Rs 3.9 crores), 8 lakhs of cast iron sleepers and 6 lakhs of steel sleepers will be purchased.

Provision has been made for creating two new depots for the creosoting of timber at Clutterbuckganj and Colimbature in addition to those already in existence at Dhillwan (Punjab) and Naharkatiya (Assam).

Provision has been made for the opening of new lines at a cost of Rs. 20 crores.

For the whole Plan period the sum allotted is Rs. 400, about Rs 80 crores a year. Out of this Rs 320 crores will be raised by the railways themselves and Rs 80 crores will be provided as a grant from the Central revenues.

ROADS

THE country's road system in 1950-51 may roughly be described as follows—

The position of extra-municipal roads metalled and unmetalled as on March 31, 1948 was as follows:—

Metalled				Unmetalled	Total
Bituminous	Concrete	Water-bound macadam	Total surfaced
10,711	763	78,634	90,108	158,806	248,914

The mileage of the national highways is 13,500. Out of this the four great trunk roads are 5,000 miles long.

The four great trunk roads stretching diagonally across the country form the framework with which most of the important subsidiary roads are linked. The most famous is the ancient marching route—known as the Grand Trunk Road—which stretches right across the northern part of the country from Delhi to Calcutta; the other three connect Calcutta with Madras, Madras with Bombay and Bombay with Delhi, and the four of them together account for about 5,000 out of the 90,110 miles of surfaced roads in the country.

These roads cannot be considered "all weather" roads according to modern standards. The Madras-Calcutta Road in particular is far from being bridged throughout its entire length.

As regards subsidiary roads, the best and most numerous are in South India. The worst served regions are Rajasthan and parts of the Punjab on the one hand, and Orissa and West Bengal on the other, the former owing to its aridity and sparse population, and the latter because of the numerous unbridged and mostly unbridgeable waterways which traverse it. In addition there are numerous other parts of the country, such as the lower Himalayas, which suffer from a dearth of communications owing to difficult terrain.

Besides surfaced roads, there is a very large mileage of "kutchas" roads amounting to approximately 160,000 miles, some of which are good for motor traffic during the dry weather.

The department in the Central Government which deals with the overall direction of the roads plan and co-ordination of provincial planning is the Roads Organization under the Ministry of Transport. The chief official is the Consulting Engineer for Roads.

It gives technical advice and arranges for the allocation of Central Road Fund reserves among the States.

DEVELOPMENT COMMITTEE

The Road Development Committee recommended the creation of a Road Development Account out of the proceeds of the Import and excise duties on motor spirit, whose unexpended balances should not lapse at the end of the financial year.

The resolution dealing with the disposal of the Road Development Account at present in force in India was passed by the Indian Parliament in 1950. Its main features may be described as follows. The special tax on petrol introduced in 1929 shall continue to be levied for road development, the proceeds of which, after retaining a reserve of 20 per cent for administration, research and special grants-in-aid, shall be allocated for expenditure in the different States in the ratio of the petrol consumption in the various areas. These sums may be spent on the construction, reconstruction or substantial improvement of roads and bridges including the cost of preparation of road schemes—but not for ordinary road upkeep or maintenance—on interest and amortization charges on road loans sanctioned hitherto by the Government of India and also on administration of State Boards of Communications and establishment connected with the control of motor transport.

The Government of India, laid down that at least 25 per cent of the State shares in the Road Fund should be used on Feeder Roads and that not more than 25 per cent can be used on roads which compete with the Railways.

With the levy of a surcharge on petrol, the share of the petrol duty available for the Road Fund was increased from 2 annas to 2½ annas per gallon with effect from October 1, 1931. Up to the end of March 1951 total receipts in the Central Road Fund since its inception were about Rs. 30½ crores and those in the Central Road Fund Reserve since its inception were about Rs. 7 crores.

On the administrative side roads except for the small mileage of National Highways described later are a State subject and may be divided into two main classes, State Roads under the Public Works Department and Local Roads in charge of local bodies.

India's road system is grossly inadequate for the country's needs and a comparison with other advanced countries will show how great is the leeway that has to be made.

For example, the road mileages per 100 square miles of area are 202 in the United Kingdom, 184 in France, 103 in the U.S.A., 95 in Germany, 89 in Italy and 70 in Ceylon. India's road mileage for the same area is 22, representing less than one-ninth of the U.K. and one-third of Ceylon.

NAGPUR PLAN

The Central Road Fund could, at best, increase the annual road expenditure by roughly 15 per cent. Following persistent representations from the Indian Roads and Transport Development Association of Bombay, the need for an extensive programme of road development was accepted by the Government of India.

In December 1943 the Chief Engineers of the various States met in conference at Nagpur and evolved a road plan based on the minimum needs of the country. Adopting as their objective the very modest proposition that no village in a well-developed agricultural area should remain more than 5 miles from a metalled road, the Chief Engineers recommended the increase of Indian Union's road mileage to 385,000 of which 290,000 miles would be motorable.

The net increase in road mileage under this Plan, now known as the Nagpur Plan works out at 50 per cent.

While the Government of India as well as the State Governments endorsed these recommendations in general terms, there was no general acceptance of a time-limit for the implementation of the plan.

However, five-year programmes for commencement from April 1947 and representing varying proportions of the Nagpur scheme were prepared by the States for their respective areas in 1945-46.

These Programmes, exclusive of National Highways were estimated to cost nearly Rs. 120 crores over the five-year period, the following being the allotments (in crores of rupees) proposed for the individual States: U.P. 30.72; W. Bengal 12.00; Bombay 20.80; Madras 20.77; Bihar 13.60; East Punjab 4.00; Madhya Pradesh 7.00; Assam (before detachment of part of Sylhet) 5.32 and Orissa 4.00.

The Programmes embraced the construction or improvement of 80,000 miles of roads as under:

State & District Roads.

Mileage improvement	33,393
Mileage, new construction	17,509

Village Roads.

New construction & improvement ..	30,093
-----------------------------------	--------

Some of the States, particularly Bombay and Madras, have since revised and reduced their 5-year programmes to roughly Rs. 8 crores each.

Progress in the implementation of the Nagpur Plan is however most disappointing. Owing first to shortage of material and later of funds Uttar Pradesh, the Punjab, Orissa and many other States had to abandon large portions of their plans.

The 5-year period covered by these plans ended on 31st March 1952 and inclusive of Parts B and C States, the total expenditure is estimated at Rs. 50 crores representing less than half of what the States planned to accomplish.

The Central Government, as part of their contribution towards post-war development accepted liability for the construction and maintenance of the National Highways with effect from 1st April 1947.

10,000 miles of highways are now being maintained by the Central Government.

The five-year plan for the development of National Highways was originally estimated to cost Rs. 50 crores but was reduced to Rs. 23½ crores subsequently. Although financed by the Centre, the actual execution of the work is carried out through the State P.W.Ds. But the total expenditure is now expected not to exceed Rs. 9 crores.

Out of about 1,080 miles of missing links in the National Highway System about 130 miles have since been constructed at a cost of Rs. 1.42 crores and 245 miles are under construction.

Fifteen major bridges have been constructed at a cost of about Rs. 2 crores and 47 more bridges estimated to cost Rs. 3.4 crores are under construction.

In addition 1,200 miles of highways have been improved and upgraded while work on 580 miles is at present in progress.

Total expenditure during 1947-48 to 1951-52 was Rs. 21.66 crores.

The expenditure of Rs. 9 crores on National Highways and Rs. 50 crores on other roads during the past few years works out at an average annual expenditure of Rs. 12 crores on road development.

At present nearly Rs. 13 crores is being spent in addition on Road Maintenance, making a total road expenditure of Rs. 25 crores.

As against this, the Governments at the Centre and in the States are now realizing a revenue of Rs. 45 crores annually from motor transport, as under :—

		Revenue, approx. 1950-52 Rs. In Crores			(Rs. in crores)

INLAND WATER-WAYS

IN pre-railway days inland navigation played an important role in the transport system of the country. The decline began with the construction of railways in 1855. While the railways received every assistance from the Government to expand, the water transport which was then only in its initial stages of mechanisation, and was thus not in a position to provide the security, safety, and speed comparable with the railways, was allowed to languish.

Almost simultaneously, it received another blow when big irrigation schemes were taken up and consequently large scale withdrawals of water from the already meagre supplies of the rivers were effected.

To add to these adverse circumstances there was no central co-ordinating authority to improve and maintain the water-ways and provide the appropriate navigational facilities as inland navigation has always been a provincial subject.

It has come to be recognised that the most rational way to deal with a river is to treat it as a unit from the source to the mouth irrespective of administrative boundaries. Also the utilisation of the water resources of a river should, as far as possible, be on a multi-purpose basis including irrigation, generation of hydro-electric power and navigation, in order to secure the most economic exploitation.

The present constitution, therefore, provides for the control of the Central Government on navigation on inter-State rivers and national water-ways. Besides, a Central Water and Power Commission has been set up to assist in the co-ordinated multi-purpose development of the water resources of the country.

It is consequently expected that inland navigation in the country will before long play its due role in the transport system of the country. Further, Government has set up a Ganga Brahmaputra Water Transport Board, which will co-ordinate and stimulate the navigational activities of the States of U.P., Bihar, West Bengal and Assam situated on this river system.

Looking back on the state of navigation on the main rivers about a hundred years ago, it is noticed that large steamers plied on the Brahmaputra upto Dibrugarh; on the Ganga as far as Gurmukteswar, over 700 miles above Patna, and Kanpur, en-route, presented the appearance of a large port, on the Yamuna as far as Agra; and on the Ghagra, only 30 years ago, a regular service was maintained upto Ayodhya, 200 miles upstream of its confluence with the River Ganga.

A number of canals constructed for irrigation included provision for navigation.

PRESENT POSITION

At present steamers ply regularly on the Brahmaputra river upto Dibrugarh but on the Ganga as far as Patna only with feeder services upto Buxar on the Ganga and Barhaj on the Ghagra.

There are other parts of the country where canal navigation is still active. In Andhra and Madras States for instance, the Godavari Canals, including the Dummagudan Canal, the Kistna Canals, the Buckingham Canal, the Kurnool-Cuddappah Canal, the West-Coast Canals and the Vedaranyam Canals are important highways for water-borne traffic.

The Godavari and Kistna Delta canals in Andhra are indeed the chief means of transport in that region and afford a cheap and ready mode of access to all markets.

The Buckingham Canal in Madras has played an important part in the trade of the country traversed by it, and in particular during the last war when the traffic was heavy it afforded considerable relief to the railways.

On the west coast the backwaters form the chief means of communication and transport.

In Orissa, too, there are some 200 miles of navigable canals in constant use.

Then there are the important water-ways of West Bengal, comprising besides the delta river system, also the canals around Calcutta.

The records of imports and exports into and from Calcutta show the extent to which the largest seaport in India depends upon its water-way communications. Post-partition figures show that 12 per cent of the trade of the port arrives and leaves by water-ways.

As by far the greater proportion of the water-borne traffic of the country is carried by the unorganised country-boats, reliable figures are not available as to the total ton-miles of traffic thus moved.

It has been estimated, however, that this would amount to only about one per cent of the total railway traffic of the country.

The approximate length of navigable water-ways at present in India is as follows:—Uttar Pradesh, 745 miles; Bihar, 715 miles; West Bengal, 777 miles; Assam, 920 miles; Orissa, 287 miles; Madras and Andhra, 1,700 miles; Total, 5,144 miles.

The above mileages are approximate and take into account only the main water-ways navigable by steamers and large country-boats. They do not include the numerous tidal creeks on the coasts which are not connected to an inland water-ways system.

Out of 5,144 miles of navigable water-ways 1,762 miles are navigated by steamers, details of which are given below:—

	Miles
River Ganga—Patna to Lalghola (Border)	315
Patna to Buxar (Feeder service)	100
River Ghagra—Confluence Ganga/Ghagra to Barhaj	97
River Hooghly—Calcutta to Sundarban (Border)	150
River Brahmaputra—Dibrugarh to Dhubri (Border)	400
(Feeder services on tributaries)	375
(Feeder service on Surma Valley)	85
River Bhagirathi—Calcutta to Ganga River (during rains only)	180
River Brahmaputra—Dibrugarh to Sadiya (during rains only)	60
Total	1,762

Statistics of water-borne traffic are not maintained in this country. Detailed figures are available only for traffic carried on the navigation canals, which are maintained for the purpose of assessing tolls.

The tonnage of goods carried on the canals are given below as available:—

Uttar Pradesh, 24,441 tons (1915-46); Bihar, 69,795 tons (1939-40); West Bengal, 1,273,870 tons (1938-39); 547,637 tons (1948-49) (Circular and New Cut Canals in Tollys Nullah only); Orissa, 185,947 tons (1948-49); Madras*, 1,493,751 tons (1947-48).

It is interesting to note that the two of the largest Steamer Companies, The India General Navigation and Railway Co., Ltd., and the River Steam Navigation Co., Ltd., who operate over 5,000 miles of the Ganga and Brahmaputra system of rivers in India and East Pakistan, and who carry about 75 per cent. of the total goods handled by power craft, carry about 2 million tons of goods and 10 million passengers per annum. (Separate figures for India and Pakistan are not available.)

FUTURE

Allotment under the Five-Year Plan—Rs. 0.10 crores.

Conservation of water resources on a multi-purpose basis and/or river training works or resuscitation of old ones offer the following potential new navigable water-ways.

1. Uttar Pradesh: (a) Revival of navigation of the Ganga river Patna-Buxar-Allahabad. (b) Revival of navigation on the Ghagra river upto Bahram Ghat.

2. Bihar: (a) Navigation on the Kosi river is included in the programme of the Kosi Dam Project. (b) Development of navigation on the Ganduk river. (c) Development of navigation on the Son river, feasible with the construction of the Rihand Dam.

3. West Bengal: (a) The construction of a navigation canal from Durgapur to the Hooghly river to connect the coal fields in West Bengal and Bihar with the port of Calcutta, is included in the programme of the Damodar Valley Project. (b) Resuscitation of the Bhagirathi route affording a direct and much shorter navigation connection from the port of Calcutta to Bihar and U.P. by the construction of a barrage on the Ganga river. This is being investigated under the Ganga barrage project.

4. Orissa: (a) Resuscitation of the Orissa coast canal to restore the connection between the Hooghly and Dhamra rivers. (b) The Mahanadi Valley Project provides for the navigation on the Mahanadi river upto Hirakud dam, about 300 miles from the sea.

5. Assam: The various tributaries of the Brahmaputra offer great scope for development of navigation.

6. Madhya Pradesh: (a) Provision for navigation of the Narmada river is aimed at in the investigations in progress on the Narmada Valley projects. (b) Conditions are favourable to obtain a navigation link between the east and west coasts via the Narmada river and the Jhikha-Son rivers or Bearma-Yamuna rivers.

7. Bombay: The construction of dams on the Narmada and Tapi rivers will provide navigational facilities on these rivers.

8. Andhra: Development of the Kistna, and Godavari rivers could also provide navigational facilities.

A priority list has been drawn up in accordance with which it is proposed to develop navigation. In the first stage it is proposed to extend navigation on the Ganga river above Patna as far as Allahabad.

Mr. Otto Popper an Inland Navigation Expert and former Member of the International Danube Commission, visited India on behalf of the E.C.A.F.E. in February 1950. In his report he suggested a scheme for better organisation and running of country-boat services.

The scheme visualises the registration of all country-boats with a carrying capacity of 10 tons or more and the issue of certificates of river worthiness, the provision of shallow draught tugs for towing the boats, the issue of transport documents for goods carried, etc.

The E.C.A.F.E. have recommended that the improvements suggested by Mr. Popper should be given effect to, and have proposed that a pilot project of shallow draught tugs towing country-boats and barges, operated under the auspices of the U.N. Technical Assistance Programme be initiated. The Government of India has approved of the planned project.

During the year 1951, the U.N. Technical Assistance Administration and E.C.A.F.E. organised a tour for the study of technological advances in inland water transport methods abroad. Accordingly a group of twelve members were drawn from India, Pakistan and other countries of the E.C.A.F.E. region, which made a tour of their own region, and Europe and U.S.A.

On completion of the tour, the group submitted to the U.N. a comprehensive report on the observations made.

* Includes Andhra.

PORTS

Allotment under Five-Year Plan . . . Rs. 33.09 crores.

For port facilities for oil refineries . . . Rs. 8 crores

There are five major ports in India.

For the rest, the ports declared open under the Ports Act are as follows. The figures in brackets give the number of working ports

Orissa 9 (3); Madras* 54 (30); Travancore-Cochin 9 (6); Bombay 87 (approx. 80); Saurashtra 60 (29); Kutch 7 (7); Total 226 (approx. 150).

The following are classed as major ports—Bombay, Calcutta, Cochin, Madras, and Vishakapatnam. They are directly under the Central Government. The rest are classed as Minor Ports and are under the administrative control of State Governments

Technically a Major Port (as defined by the Ports Technical Committee) is one which is capable of taking in ocean-going steamers with a registered tonnage of 4,000 or more and berth them along wharves

Mr. S. Nanjundiah, officer in charge of Vishakapatnam Port, who made a special survey of minor ports for the Government of India suggested the following further classification of Minor Ports: Intermediate Ports, Minor Ports and Sub-Ports. Ports which have handled one lakh tons or more of cargo should be Intermediate Ports; ports which have handled cargo of less than one lakh but more than 1,500 tons should be Minor Ports; the remaining ports should be Sub-Ports or Petty Ports.

INTERMEDIATE PORTS

According to this classification the Intermediate Ports will be as follows

In Andhra: Kakinada, Masulipatam.

In Madras: Cuddalore, Nagapattinam, Kozhikode (Calicut), Mangalore, Tuticorin

In Travancore-Cochin: Alleppey.

In Saurashtra: Bhavnagar, Vetawal, Porbander, Bedi, Navalakhli

In Kutch: Mandvi.

In Bombay: Okha, Broach, Ratnagiri, Karwar

The Minor Ports will be as follows:—

In Orissa: Chandbali, Puri, Gopalpur

In Andhra: Bhimlipatam

In Madras: Cillingapatam, Porto Novo, Pamban, Dhanushkodi, Ponnani, Badagara, Tellicherry, Cannanore, Kasargod, Malpe, Hungarikatta, Coondapur.

In Travancore-Cochin: Quilon

In Saurashtra: Mahuwa, Talaja, Victor, Jaffarabad, Sikra, Salaya, Jodiya, Nawabundar, Mangrol.

In Kutch: Mundra.

In Bombay: Gogha, Dholera, Kavi, Surat, Bulsar, Billimora, Navsari, Dahamu, Umergaon, Bassein, Vessawa, Ravanda, Bankot, Dhalhol, Devghad, Jalghod, Mora, Achra, Vengurla, Tadri, Ankola, Honavar, Vijaydurg, Bhalkal, Jaitapur, Malvan, Dwarka, Kodinar, Cambay, Nangaon, Rajpuri, Harnai, Dehej, Kalyan, Panvel, Karanja, Murud, Sadashivghad, Kumta, Beikeri.

PORT DEVELOPMENT

Among the recommendations of the Nanjundiah report (May 1951), are the following: 1. The existing Minor Ports should be classified into Intermediate, Minor and Sub-ports. 2. An early decision should be taken about the construction and use of small size steam ships for the coastal trade. 3. Country craft industry must be fostered. Ports should provide facilities for their laying up, repairs, etc. 4. A certain measure of uniformity in Port dues may be brought about.

Among the recommendations of the West Coast Major Port Development Committee (April 1948) are the following: 1. There is an immediate need for a major port in the area covered by Saurashtra and Kutch. 2. This major port should be at Kandla. 3. The existing ports in Saurashtra should be placed under one Port Commission.

Among the recommendations of the same Committee (July 1949) about a major port between Marignagao and Cochin are the following: 1. A deep-sea port for ships of large size and tonnage at all seasons of the year is necessary. 2. The port should be at Malpe. 3. A rail link should be provided from Malpe to the industrialized region of Mysore centred on Bhadravati. 4. The broad-gauge railway linking Madras and Mangalore should be extended to Malpe.

The Ministry of Transport has worked out a programme of development of the five major ports at an estimated cost of Rs. 29.27 crores. This sum is exclusive of an expenditure of Rs. 12.05 crores on the Kandla port and of Rs. 8 crores on the creation of port facilities for the oil refineries and of alternative facilities for the existing establishment on the Butcher Island. These figures are in addition to Rs. 4.90 crores spent in 1951-52 by the port authorities.

The Kandla port is expected to be completed by the beginning of 1956.

Towards the end of 1950, a National Harbour Board was set up in order to advise Government on port development.

LIGHTHOUSES

Though partition brought about a shrinkage of the coast-line under the charge of the Central Lighthouse Department, the subsequent Federal Financial Integration has increased its responsibilities. There are 120 lighthouses along a coast of 4,160 miles including Andaman Islands under the direct charge of this department. In addition there are "local" lighthouses maintained by the port authorities or the State Governments. The total number of lighthouses exceeds 1,700.

Under the Constitution, this is a Central responsibility.

Over the next five to seven years, the Lighthouse Department visualises a development expenditure of about Rs. 2.5 to 3.0 crores exclusive of the needs of Andaman and Nicobar Islands where aids of navigation hardly exist and for which plans have yet to be drawn up. A sum of Rs. 2 crores will be required during the period of the Five-Year Plan for the projects included in the Department's plan as well as for the purchase of one out of two lighthouse tenders required for catering to the needs of the east and west coasts.

Three new lighthouses at Dolphin's Nose (Vishakapatnam), Kollithotham (Travancore) and Chanka Islands (Gulf of Kutch) were erected. The construction of a new lighthouse at Bhalkal is in progress.

To cope with the growing expenditure, the Indian Lighthouse Act was amended in 1953 for raising the ceiling on light dues from As. 2 per ton to As. 4. For the present the rate has, however, been doubled from As. 1½ to As. 3.

BOMBAY

The Port of Bombay is over 75 square miles in extent.

The Bombay Port Trust, which was constituted by Government in 1873, is administered by a Chairman appointed by Government and a Board of 24 Trustees, 10 of whom are nominated by Government, 2 elected by the Bombay Chamber of Commerce, 6 by the Indian Merchants' Chamber, 1 by the Maharashtra Chamber of Commerce, 2 by the Municipal Corporation, 1 by the Millowners' Association, 1 by the Indian National Steamship Owners' Association, Bombay, and 1 by the East India Cotton Association Limited, Bombay.

The entire administration is subject to the provisions of the Bombay Port Trust Act, 1879.

The Harbour is about 12 miles long, 4 to 6 miles wide with a minimum of 32 feet at low water in the entrance fairway. Spring rise above datum is 14 feet 1 inch and the range between mean low and mean high water spring tides is 11 feet 6 inches so that the Port is well-endowed by Nature to accommodate deep-draught shipping.

Passenger Facilities.—Trans-oceanic passenger traffic is mostly dealt with at the Ballard Pier Station. Coastal and Harbour Passenger traffic is dealt with at the New Ferry Wharf.

The total number of overseas passengers embarking and disembarking at Bombay in 1950-51 exceeded 1,35,000 while the number of passengers carried by the coastal services was over 887,000.

Wet Docks.—There are three wet docks, the main features of which are as follows:—

	Number of Berths
Prince's Dock	9
Victoria Dock	11
Alexandra Dock	20 (plus 6 berths for ferry steamers)

The three Docks together have a water area of 10½ acres and about 6 miles of quays; extensive open storage and shed and warehouse accommodation for the reception and storage of goods, exists.

Dry Docks.—The main features of the two Dry Docks are as follows:—

Hughes Dry Dock	Divisible into two compartments so that 2 ships can be accommodated at a time.
Merewether Dry Dock

Bundars and Timber Ponds.—Beyond the Docks are the "bundars" or open wharves and basins, where coasting and country craft traffic and overside cargo from the docks and stream are handled. These bundars have an aggregate quayside of nearly 5 miles.

The bundar traffic is an important item in the trade of the Port, over 13½ lakh tons or roughly one-fifth of the total tonnage of the Port being handled annually over the bundar wharves.

Adjoining the bundars are the Timber Ponds covering an area of over 60 acres, where every facility for storage and handling of timber is provided.

Ballard Pier.—Is a 1,500 ft. extension of the harbour wall on the west side of the Alexandra Dock entrance lock and is the arrival and departure berth for the foreign mail steamers and other large passenger liners. The station building comprises three platforms for tourist and other trains, a handsome concourse with waiting and refreshment rooms and a spacious baggage and customs hall.

Bulk Oil Depots.—There are three groups of bulk oil installations, one each for liquid fuel and lubricating oil, kerosene oil, and petrol, all on land, aggregating 83 acres in extent, leased by the Port Trust.

Ample storage space is available within the Port area for grain (80 acres), cotton (127 acres, 1,000,000 bales), and manganese ore (30 acres, 300,000 tons). Large areas have also been reserved for the landing and storage of other commodities such as coal, bricks and tiles, building stones and iron.

*Includes Andhra.

Port Trust Railway

The Port maintains its own railway system which handles nearly 50 per cent of the rail-borne goods traffic of Bombay. Its yearly traffic to and from the trunk railways amounts to over 2,000,000 tons, and its local station-to-station traffic is approximately the same in volume. The principal commodities carried are cotton, grain and seeds, oil-cake, manganese ore, sugar, kerosene and other bulk oils, coal, charcoal and china clay.

Though only 7½ miles in actual length, it comprises over 130 miles of main lines and sidings all directly linked with the inter-railway exchange yard at Wadala, the various storage depots and the docks and wharves.

CALCUTTA

The Port of Calcutta is situated on the left bank of the River Hooghly which is formed by the uniting of the three off-takes from the parent River Ganges. The port is about 80 miles from the mouth of the river and 126 miles from the Western Channel Light Vessel at Sandheads. The Port is administered by a Port Commission with jurisdiction under the Calcutta Port Act from Budge Budge to Konnagar.

The chief exports from Calcutta are coal, tea, jute, gunnies, bone and bone-meal, skins, hemp, iron and steel manufactures, lac, oil other than petroleum, scrap ores, pig iron, hides and mica. The principal imports are salt, food-grains, machinery, hardware petroleum, asphalt, bitumen, metals and other articles.

The total tonnage of sea-borne traffic passing through the port during the year 1951-52 was 7,582,982 tons as compared with 7,501,490 tons during 1950-51. The total tonnage of exports during 1951-52 was 54,89,914 tons and the total tonnage of imports during the same year was 40,98,068 tons. The income of the Port during the financial year 1951-52 was Rs. 7,86,82,751.

The weight of cargo in tons handled in 1952-53 was 9,673,076. The number of passengers embarked and disembarked during the period is 22,027.

The receipts and expenditure for the period 1952-53 are Rs. 8,68,29,843 and Rs. 8,31,40,004 respectively.

Dry Docks.—Five dry docks, owned by the Port Commissioners, are available for the use of shipping, three in Kidderpore Docks and two in King George's Dock.

Jetties.—The Garden Reach Jetties consist of a coaling jetty for ships up to 460 feet in length and three jetties for ships up to 600 feet, the transit sheds are double storeyed. Calcutta jetties are situated on the riverside below Howrah Bridge. There are nine jetties with a total length of 4,735 feet, but only five of them are available for ocean-going steamers.

Wharves.—Petroleum Wharves at Budge are situated some 14 miles below the entrances to the docks.

Warehouses.—The Commissioners provide extensive warehouse accommodation consisting of two Tea Warehouses having a storage area of 304,000 sq. ft., a grain and seeds depot at Kantapukur comprising 37 sheds with a storage area of about 1,053,168 sq. ft., two sheds at Jhinerapuri with a storage area of 70,200 sq. ft., A and B Sheds at Kidderpore, and the Fairlie, Olive, Canning and Strand Warehouses situated close to the Calcutta Jetties with a total floor area of about 292,200 sq. ft. New extension to sale tea warehouse to provide additional space of 1,12,000 sq. ft. is under construction.

Coal.—There are at present six coaling berths at Kidderpore Dock No. 2 and one at Garden Reach Jetty.

Overall Capacity of Port.—Calcutta with the existing facilities has handled a sea-borne traffic of nearly 11 million tons a year without congestion or delay.

The total number of cargo boats licensed in the Port is 6,968, of which about 2,106 are steel lighters with a carrying capacity of about 130,825 tons.

The Port Trust Railway.—Communication between the various points in the Docks and Jetties including all the Commissioners' warehouses is maintained by the Commissioners' Railway which has 194.0.1 miles of permanent way and connects with the two main railway systems serving Calcutta. Goods can therefore be railed from any point on the Commissioners' premises to any part of India.

COCHIN

The Port of Cochin, one of the five major ports in India is a natural harbour lying on the direct route to Australia and the Far East from Europe. It is open for deep-water traffic in the worst monsoons and provides a splendid anchorage at all times of the year. Any ship passing through the Suez Canal can enter the port even in the roughest weather.

The Port consists of an extensive area of sheltered backwaters behind an opening, 440 yards wide.

The Cochin Harbour Railway is connected with the Broad Gauge system of the Southern Railway.

The entrance channel of the harbour is 450 ft. wide and about 4 miles long, buoyed on both sides according to regulations. The activities of the port are mainly centred in Willingdon Island which has been reclaimed from the backwaters by dredged soil from the inner channels.

Inside the harbour there are sixteen stream berths, one passenger berth, one coal berth and four wharf berths. Of the sixteen stream berths, one is a swinging berth capable of accommodating vessels upto 650 ft. overall in length and 28 ft. draft. There are three tanker berths in the Ernakulam channel, two of which can accommodate tankers of 575 ft. overall in length while the third one can take tankers of 600 ft. overall with a draft of 30 ft.

The deep water wharf which is 2,200 ft. long can accommodate at a time 4 vessels of 450 ft. in length.

The principal imports are foodgrains, mineral oils, coal, cashewnuts, hardware, metals, chemicals and provisions.

The principal exports are coir and coir products, tea, rubber, cashew kernels, ginger, pepper and spices.

Statistics showing the growth of the Port from 1948-49 to 1952-53.

1952-53	1,224,851	320,413	1,551,204

The total number of passengers embarked and disembarked in 1952-53 was 1,649. Receipts and Expenditure in the same period were Rs 69.41 lakhs and 64.74 lakhs.

The administration of the Port is in the hands of an Administrative officer working directly under the Ministry of Transport of the Government of India. He is assisted by an Advisory Committee consisting of the representatives of the Government of India, the Government of the State of Travancore-Cochin, and the local Chambers of Commerce and Municipalities.

MADRAS

The Madras Harbour is an artificial one formed by two arms projecting from a low, sandy coast.

The affairs of the Port are administered by a Board of Trustees which function under the Madras Port Trust Act. The Chairman is the Chief Executive Officer of the Board.

The Port is about 3/5 mile square (excluding boat basin, etc.) with an area of approximately 200 acres.

There is accommodation for 18 vessels inside the harbour, 9 at Moorings and 9 at Quays. The depth at moorings ranges from 28 ft. to 31 ft. 6" and at quays from 26 ft. to 30 ft. Pilotage is compulsory. There are no navigational difficulties and the Port is approached direct from the open sea.

The Income and Expenditure for the year 1951-52 were Rs 1,36,02,765 and Rs. 87,13,820 respectively.

The chief imports are coal and coke, foodgrains, mineral oils, metals, timber, textiles, building materials, cement, etc., Government stores, machinery, hardware, hides and skins, paper and stationery, tanning substances including wattle bark and chemical manures. Seeds and nuts, hides and skins, vegetables and provisions, textiles, turmeric, ores and tobacco are the principal exports.

The export of groundnut oil is also an important item and three oil tanks have been erected.

VISHAKAPATNAM

Vishakapatnam Harbour was created in order to supply an outlet for a large area of fertile country adjacent to the east coast of India, with considerable mineral resources and no alternative access to the outside world. In 1933, the harbour was first opened for sea-going vessels, and it now provides the following facilities:—

The harbour is provided with three quay berths, each 500 feet long, and equipped with portal electric cranes, transit sheds, and railway lines, both behind and on the quay-side of the transit sheds. In addition, two special coal bunkering berths, one R.C.C. jetty berth and one R.C.C. wharf, are provided. Four mooring berths are also provided, at which vessels are served by a fleet of lighters operated by the port. A timber jetty berth for bunkering fuel oil has been provided.

A graving dock with an entrance 60 feet 6 inches wide is provided. The port has a floating crane and can deal with lifts upto 50 ton capacity.

POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS

THE Indian Telegraph Department is the oldest Government-owned public utility in the world.

It is the second largest nationalized public utility in India, employing around 220,700 men and gazetted officers.

At the close of the year 1951-52,* there were 170,184 permanent and 49,526 temporary officials in the Department; 42,084 post offices and 180,731 miles of mail lines.

During the year 2,366 million articles including 85.6 million registered articles were posted, stamps worth Rs 21.7 crores (including service postage stamps worth Rs 1.8 crores) were sold; about 56 million of money orders of the total value of Rs 215 crores were issued, and about 2.9 million Indian Postal Orders to the value of Rs 103 lakhs were sold, a sum of Rs 37.8 crores was collected for tradesmen on V.P. articles, about 5.4 million insured articles valued at Rs 186 crores were handled.

Customs duty aggregating to about Rs 110 lakhs was realised on parcels and letters from abroad, pensions amounting to about Rs 2.5 crores was paid to Indian Military pensioners and about 2,100 pounds of quinine and substitutes of the total value of Rs 11 lakhs were sold to the public.

On 31st March, 1952, there were 4,445,926 Savings Bank accounts with a total balance of Rs 200 crores and 102,944 postal life insurance policies with an aggregate sum assured of Rs 23.2 crores.

There were about 113,949 miles of line including cable and 1,505,924 miles of wire including conductors on the 31st March 1952. The number of departmental telegraph offices were 78 while the number of combined Post and Telegraph offices rose from 1,634 to 3,653 in 1952.

The number of paid telegrams dealt with is shown by the following figures.—

		1951-52.
Inland	Private ..	21,578,264
	State ..	2,650,701
	Press ..	186,929
		1951-52.
Foreign	Private ..	4,616,918
	State ..	64,725
	Press ..	64,885
		29,162,422

The outturn of the workshops during 1951-52 represented a total value of Rs. 2,05,83,000.

The number of messages handled during the year 1951-52 by departmental wireless stations in India was nearly 575,000.

On 31st March 1952, there were 4,217 exchanges and 184,000 Telephones operated by the department and licensed systems. About 8.9 million trunk telephone calls were handled during the year 1951-52.

The total interest bearing capital outlay of the Indian Posts and Telegraphs Department upto the end of the year 1951-52 was over Rs. 56 crores. The receipts for the year ended 31st March 1952 amounted to Rs 38,80,76,566 and charge (including interest on capital outlay) to Rs 35,54,21,886, the result being a net gain of Rs 3,26,54,680.

For postal purposes, India is divided into ten circles, namely, West Bengal, Bihar, Bombay, Central, Madras, Punjab, Uttar Pradesh, Assam, Orissa and Delhi. Each of the first seven is in charge of a Postmaster-General and the Assam and Orissa Circles are controlled by a Director, Posts and Telegraphs. The Delhi circle is controlled by a Director of Postal Services. The Central Circle comprises roughly the Madhya Pradesh, Rajasthan, Madhya Bharat and Vindhya Pradesh talons.

AIR MAIL (INDIAN, FOREIGN)

Letters, Letter-cards, Post-cards and Money Orders are, as a general rule, sent by air wherever air transmission is available and is advantageous without payment of any special air surcharge. Packets and Parcels can be sent by air in the inland post and letters, post-cards and packets can be sent by air to all foreign countries for which an air mail service is available on payment of special air mail fee. Such articles can be registered. Insured letters are carried at present by air mail in the inland post only.

The inland air fee for packets is half anna for each tola or part thereof in addition to ordinary postage.

Registered and unregistered parcels can also be sent by air mail in the inland service.

The charges are 10 annas for every 20 tolas or fraction thereof inclusive of ordinary postage. A registration fee of 6 annas has to be paid in addition in the case of registered parcels.

Air Parcels may be sent to the following countries:—

Name of the country.	Postage, inclusive of air fee for the first pound.	Postage inclusive of air fee for each subsequent 4 oz. or part thereof.
	Rs. a. p.	Rs. a. p.

Indonesia ..	7 0 0	1 0 0
Switzerland ..	9 8 0	1 12 0
U.S.A. ..	15 8 0	3 8 0

The general regulations applicable to ordinary surface parcels, as regards dimensions, customs declarations, despatch notes, compensation and so on, apply to air parcels except that air parcels cannot be accepted for insurance, the same supplemental services as for surface parcels are available.

For Air Fees to Foreign Countries see the Post and Telegraph Guide.

A direct air parcel service was introduced from December 15, 1953 to Italy, British East Africa and Malaya on the same terms and conditions as are applicable to parcels sent to these countries by the surface route.

These terms and conditions regarding size and packing and other restrictions are shown in the Foreign Directory of the P. & T. Guide, 1952, edition.

The following are the rates of postage cum air fee for these countries :

Country	Postage cum air fee for the first pound.	Postage cum air fee for the subsequent 4 oz. or part thereof
Italy	Rs. a. p. 9 0 0	Rs. a. p. 1 10 0
East Africa	7 4 0	1 6 0
Malaya	5 12 0	1 0 0

Air parcels will be accepted up to a maximum weight of 11 lb.

Insured air parcels, however, are not for the present accepted (1953, December). Within this country, these parcels will be sent by the surface route only.

Air parcels for Italy and East Africa will be concentrated at Bombay and those for Malaya at Calcutta.

Air parcels for East Africa, namely, the provinces of Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika will be carried exclusively by Air India International Air Service operating from Bombay to Nairobi.

Assam and Kashmir

A cheap air mail service for parcels and registered newspapers providing for a limited air transmission between Calcutta and Gauhati or Silchar and vice versa, and surface transmission for the rest of the route is available. Such articles, in addition to the blue air mail label should bear a superscription in bold letters just below the air mail label.

"By air between— and — only."

The air fees which are payable in addition to ordinary postage are as follows :—

Registered Newspapers	3 pies for every 2½ tolas or fraction thereof in addition to ordinary postage.
Parcels	4½ annas for every 40 tolas or part thereof in addition to ordinary postage.

A similar service is available between Amritsar on the one hand and Srinagar or Jammu-Tawi on the other; the air surcharge being as follows :—

Registered Newspapers and Packets.	3 pies for every 2½ tolas or fraction thereof in addition to ordinary postage.
Parcels	3 annas for every 40 tolas or fraction thereof in addition to ordinary postage.

Air Letter Service

A light weight "Air Letter" service is available for writing to all countries served by the air mail. The postage rates are 3 annas to Ceylon, Pakistan and Portuguese India; 5 annas to Burma and to Afghanistan; 8 annas to the rest of Asia, to Europe, to Egypt and to East Africa; 10 annas to the rest of Africa and to Oceania (Australia, New Zealand, etc.) and 12 annas to North and South America. Special Air Letter forms in several denominations are available from Post Offices. Similar forms of private manufacture, bearing an indication that they have been approved by the Head of a Circle, can also be used, but they should be prepaid with the prescribed charge.

Air letters for Ceylon can be registered but cannot be insured, nor is any other facility such as express delivery available. Air letters for other countries cannot be registered or insured, nor is any other facility such as express delivery available.

Second-Class Mail

Printed papers, newspapers, business papers, sample packets, mixed packets and blind literature packets sent by air as second-class mail must conform to the general regulations for such packets set out in the Post & Telegraph Guide and should be clearly superscribed at the upper left hand corner of the cover or wrapper with the nature of the contents, e.g., Printed Papers, Business Papers, Sample Packets, etc., as the case may be. They must not contain anything in the nature of a current letter nor be sealed against inspection. The minimum charges of 4 annas applicable to Business Papers and to Mixed Packets containing Business Papers sent by surface route apply also to Business Papers, and Mixed Packets containing Business Papers sent by air mail. For second-class air mail to Ceylon, Pakistan and Portuguese India an air surcharge of 1½ annas per tola is chargeable in addition to the ordinary inland postage for Book, Pattern and Sample Packets.

The rate of postage including air fee per ½ oz. for second-class mail to the various destinations is 2½ annas (subject to a minimum charge of 4 annas for packets containing Business Papers) for Afghanistan and Burma, 4 annas for the rest of Asia and for Egypt, 5 annas for Europe and East Africa, 6 annas for the rest of Africa and for Oceania (Australia, New Zealand, etc.) and 8 annas for North and South America.

Senders of Greetings telegrams to or from offices in India may use their own phraseology in such telegrams on payment of 2 annas in addition to the charge appropriate to the class of message (Express or Ordinary).

These telegrams will be delivered in specially printed artistic forms and envelopes.

This DE LUXE service is not applicable to telegrams for Burma.

The sender of a DE LUXE telegram should write before the address the special instruction —LX— which will not be charged for.

Hindi and Indian Languages Telegrams

With the declaration of Hindi as the State language of India, transmission of telegrams in Hindi and other Indian languages in the Dev-anagiri script (Press and Private) was introduced with effect from 1st June 1949.

In this service, telegrams in Hindi and other Indian languages written in the Devanagiri script are transmitted by means of a special Hindi Morse Code devised by the Indian P. & T. Department. Greetings telegrams in standard texts in Hindi are also admitted.

It was made available at first in 1949 between Agra, Allahabad, Banaras, Gaya, Jabalpur, Kanpur, Lucknow, Nagpur and Patna. In 1950 it was extended to Ajmer, Bareilly, Indore, Jaipur, Muzaffarpur, New Delhi and Ranchi and in 1951 it was further extended to Belgaum, Bhusawal, Bombay, Calcutta, Poona and Sholapur.

The service is now available between the following 100 stations, viz. —

Ahmadnagar, Akola, Aligarh, Alwar, Ambala, Amroli, Arrah, Asansol, Ayodhya, Baheri, Bakhtiyarpur, Ballia, Barabanki, Baroda, Beawar, Berhampur (Bengal), Bhagalpur, Bharatpur, Bhavnagar, Bhopal, Bijapur, Bijnor, Bikaner, Broach, Burlapur, Chandauli, Chapra, Dahmanagar, Darbhanga, Dehra Dun, Delhi (M), Dhanbad, Dholpur, Dhond, Dholma, Etawah, Faisalabad, Faridpur, Fatehpur, Ferozabad, Gadag, Ghazipur, Ghazipur, Gondal, Gorakhpur, Gwalior, Hapur, Hardwar, Hathras, Hazaribagh, Hubli, Jaisalmer, Jamnagar, Jamshedpur, Jaunpur, Jhansi, Jodhpur, Karad, Katni, Khurja, Kolhapur, Mammad, Mathura, Meerut, Midnapore, Mirzapur, Moghal Sarai, Moradabad, Motihari, Naini Tal, Nasik, Orail, Pachmarhi, Pauri (Garhwal), Pilani, Pilibhit, Pratapgarh, Purulia, Raipur, Rajkot, Ramgarh (Bihar), Ratlam, Rewa, Roorkie (M), Sambhar Lake, Sandila, Sangli, Satara, Secunderabad, Seoni, Shahjahanpur, Shimla, Sonapur, Sultanpur, Surat, Surendranagar, Tundla, Ujjain, Unao, Wardha.

With effect from the 1st July 1950, Greetings telegrams were admitted in Hindi telegraph service. For this purpose, a selection is to be made from a list of 21 stock phrases. From the same date, telegrams in any Indian language (for instance, Gujarati, Bengali, etc.) provided they are written in the Devanagiri script, are accepted at all stations where the Hindi telegraph service exists. Telegraphic Money Orders in Hindi are also admitted from and to a number of those places in Uttar Pradesh and Bihar where the Hindi telegraph service is available.

With effect from the 1st January, 1953, abbreviated telegraphic addresses have been allowed to be registered in the Devanagiri script at stations where Hindi Telegraph Service is available.

Phonocom Service

"Phonocom Service" means an inland telegram written in certain Indian language and accepted at certain specified telegraph offices for transmission to destination over new telephone system. These telegrams are charged at inland express rates. "Phonocom Service" is at

The transmissions from Bombay are picked up by Buenos Aires and Rio De Janeiro.

BUDGET

The Five-Year Plan has allocated one crore of rupees for development

The plan covers modernising and expanding its existing Bombay and Delhi radio centres and opening similar centres at Calcutta and Madras.

At the end of the Plan there will be four independent foreign radio centres for India, namely Bombay, Delhi, Calcutta and Madras, which will normally work as complementary to one another.

A beginning has already been made by the establishment of a radio centre at Calcutta when a service was opened to London on March 12, 1953.

The revenue for the years 1952-53 and 1953-54 was estimated at 121 lakhs and 113 lakhs respectively.

The profit of the O.C.S. for the year 1952-53 was estimated at about 36 lakhs i.e. 36 per cent on the total Capital Outlay of Rs. one crore.

The table below shows the revised estimates for 1952-53 and the budget estimates for 1953-54 on the expense side.

Capital Budget	20,00,000	38,50,000

BROADCASTING

FOR several years limited broadcasting services were maintained by radio clubs in Calcutta, Bombay and Madras.

Although the transmitting sets employed by them were of very low power, the broadcasts were popular.

The clubs were assisted financially by a government contribution based upon the revenue from licence fees, but this did not suffice to cover the cost of the transmissions, and great credit is due to the members of those clubs for the sporting manner in which they provided additional funds and undertook the entire responsibility for the programmes.

After negotiations extending over several years, an Indian Broadcasting Company was granted a licence to establish broadcasting services upon lines similar to those of the British Broadcasting Corporation, and transmitting stations were erected at Bombay and Calcutta, the service from the former being inaugurated by the Viceroy in July 1927 and the latter by the then Governor of Bengal a month later.

These stations had each an aerial input of one and a half kilowatts, the same as that of the 2LO station in London, of which they were practically duplicates.

The programmes were so arranged that both Indian and European music were broadcast daily and the news bulletins and market and weather reports were read in two languages.

Owing to financial difficulties the Indian Broadcasting Company went into liquidation with effect from March 1, 1930.

Since then the Government of India have been controlling broadcasting in this country.

Government for this purpose formed an Indian State Broadcasting Service, now called All-India Radio, and instituted a Central Broadcasting Advisory Committee.

In 1934, Government felt justified in embarking on a policy of development and, as a first step, a sum of Rs. 2,50,000 was granted for a 20-kW mediumwave station to be established at Delhi.

This station was actually opened on January 1, 1936.

In the year 1936 a special fund of Rs. 40,00,000 was created for the development of broadcasting in India.

Orders for extensive new equipment for implementing the scheme of expansion were placed in January 1937.

It included 8 transmitters which were put into operation as follows:

Delhi 10-kW shortwave: December 16, 1937;
Bombay 10-kW shortwave: February 4, 1938; Lucknow 5-kW mediumwave: April 2, 1938; Delhi 5-kW shortwave: June 1, 1938; Madras 10-kW shortwave: June 16, 1938; Madras 0.2-kW mediumwave: June 16, 1938; Calcutta 10-kW shortwave: August 16, 1938; Tiruchirappalli 5-kW mediumwave: May 16, 1939.

In the year 1942, the Government of India decided to install a high power shortwave transmitter which would be capable of providing broadcasting service to foreign countries.

A 100-kW transmitter was opened on May 1, 1944 forming an important landmark in A.I.R.'s development programme.

Later at the request of the Government of the U.K. five shortwave transmitters including one 100-kW shortwave transmitter were installed as an urgent war measure. These were subsequently taken over by A.I.R.

ALL-INDIA RADIO

All-India Radio is a department of the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting, of the Government of India.

Its head is the Director-General, All-India Radio, whose office is located in Broadcasting House, Parliament Street, New Delhi.

Other officers at headquarters are: Chief Engineer, Deputy Directors-General, Deputy Chief Engineer, Director of Programmes, Director of Programme Planning, Director of Public Relations, Assistant Director of Listener Research, Deputy Director of Administration and Assistant Directors of Administration.

The stations transmit for about five to ten hours a day.

This is generally split up into three transmissions, morning, afternoon and evening.

Programmes are planned by Station Directors with the assistance of the Programme Executives and Programme Assistants. Details are worked out well in advance of their schedule dates and are published in the journals of All-India Radio.

Programmes are broadcast in 15 major Indian languages and in English.

Broadcasting House.—Probably the largest centre of broadcasting activity in the East, Broadcasting House was completed in 1948. Architecturally, it is one of Delhi's newest and most striking sights. It represents from the point of view of equipment, the latest practice in radio engineering.

With its air-conditioned studios, each with an individual acoustic pattern to suit every variety of sound reproduction, its control room—a model of scientific efficiency—its dramatic control panels and effects and echo rooms it constitutes a landmark in every sense of the word in the history of Indian broadcasting.

Research and Maintenance Departments.—These two departments are located in New Delhi.

The Research Department deals with all technical problems, concerning reception and transmission. Special studies are undertaken on ionospheric data and forecasting transmission conditions, field strengths of short and medium wave stations, atmospheric noise levels prevalent in various parts of India, studio and recording characteristics and development of cheap receivers.

The Department also maintains a field station at Todapur near Delhi where the frequencies of All-India Radio Stations are constantly checked.

The Maintenance Department handles problems which arise in the upkeep and day-to-day operation of the engineering equipment used by All-India Radio in addition to maintaining Central Stores Depot.

Radio Journals.—A.I.R. publishes programme journals in English (Indian Listener), Urdu (Awaz), Hindi (Sarang), Bengali (Betar Jagat), Tamil (Vanoli), Gujarati (Nabhvani) and Telugu (Vani).

The 'Indian Listener' is a weekly, and the rest are fortnightly.

Monitoring Office.—The Monitoring Service (Simla) keeps a round-the-clock watch on transmissions from all the main broadcasting systems of the world, monitors news commentaries and selected talks transmitted from those stations in English, in Indian languages and in some foreign languages, from as many as 30 different countries.

Public Relations.—For establishing and maintaining contact between All-India Radio and its listeners there is a Director of Public Relations at Headquarters and a Public Relations Officer attached to some stations.

Listener Research.—The primary purpose of Listener Research is to determine the listening habits and programme preferences of radio listeners by ascertaining from time to time their reactions to programmes broadcast.

This information is necessary for planning programmes calculated to have the maximum listening appeal.

Collection of authentic information on this subject is the task which the Listener Research Department of AIR has to fulfil.

Although Listener Research in this country is still in its infancy, a good deal of information on the listening audience and on trends of listening has already been collected and more light is constantly being shed on this absorbing subject.

For this purpose, contact with listeners is maintained through listeners' letters, press reactions, field surveys and questionnaire studies of listeners' preferences and reactions to programme broadcast.

By utilising all recognised methods of assessing listener reactions, AIR is trying its best to provide programmes suited to the needs of its listening audience.

Advisory Committees, established at the broadcasting centres in consultation with the State Governments, keep the Director-General, All-India Radio, in touch with local public opinion in the matter of programme construction and advise him on such matters.

BROADCAST PROGRAMMES

The following table shows the number of hours broadcast and the fees paid to the artistes:

Year	Hours	Fees
		Rs
1947 ..	36,364	not available
1950 ..	64,529	35,48,000
1951 ..	73,072	33,91,000
1952 ..	74,640	33,16,000
1953 ..	not available	34,76,000

Women's Programmes.—These are in the regional language and are broadcast from almost all the stations. They consist of music, features and talks.

Children's Programmes.—Wherever possible the children are divided into two or three age groups. The programme is conducted or compered by an elderly character known to the children. Another elderly person usually a woman is used to assist the comper.

Fables, stories from classics and musical items, form the content of the programmes, and listeners are encouraged to participate.

The programmes are conducted from all the stations, the time varying from 30 minutes to an hour.

In the rural broadcasts there is a children's day once a week.

School Broadcasts.—The school broadcasts are meant to supplement the regular curriculum of the school.

The children are divided into two or three age groups, and the talks, dialogues, features or musical items are in the mother-tongue, English, Hindi or Sanskrit.

History, geography and general science are the subjects generally covered.

The hours vary from station to station.

There are Educational Committees to advise the Station Director in the composition of the programme for the academic term, and these are announced in pamphlets for each term.

Occasionally students from a particular class are taken to the radio station to give a performance.

The idea is that students should listen to the broadcasts while at school in the company of their teachers.

Industrial Broadcasts.—Stations in such industrial towns like Bombay, Calcutta, Lucknow, Madras, Ahmedabad put out suitable programmes in the language of the local working class.

The programme contains dialogues, features and news reviews, all relating to workers and their organisations.

For recreation devotional music and popular songs are used.

Rural Broadcasts.—While the provision of programmes is a central responsibility, the provision of listening sets to the rural population is the responsibility of State Governments.

The composition of such programmes is arranged in consultation with the local agricultural and allied departments.

Supplementary or spare time occupations are suggested, and information is given on items like improved seed, new implements, sowing, crop and cattle pests and their remedies, and market rates of current agricultural produce.

Weather bulletins during the monsoon are a regular feature of the composite programme.

National Programmes.—On Saturday nights a concert of classical music, vocal or instrumental, Hindustani or Carnatic, is arranged at the Delhi studios in the presence of a selected gathering, and is relayed by all stations.

This is a national programme as all stations are included in the "hook up". It lasts about 90 minutes.

The object is to make the audiences more classical-music minded, and to give patronage to deserving artists.

The News Services Division occupies a wing of Broadcasting House in Delhi and puts out 72 news bulletins in 28 languages (15 Indian and 13 foreign) occupying about 14 hours daily.

All the news bulletins are prepared in the News Service Division and broadcast from the transmitters at Delhi set apart for news.

Each regional station relays the bulletins suitable for its listening areas.

A few minutes are set apart at each station for local announcements. This period accommodates news of purely local interest.

The Indian languages used in the Home Services are:

Assamese, Bengali, English, Gujarati, Hindi, Kanarese, Kashmiri, Malayalam, Marathi, Oriya, Punjabi, Sanskrit, Tamil, Telugu, Urdu and about 20 other dialects.

The broadcasts from the External Services Division consist of daily services to the Middle East, East & South Africa, West Indies, East Indies, South-East Asia and Europe.

The languages used are Hindi, Tamil, Gujarati, English, Burmese, Kuoyu, Cantonese, Indonesian, Pushtu, French, Swahili, Persian and Arabic.

All these are radiated from Delhi but they are distinct from the programmes of the Delhi (regional) station. Altogether 24 news bulletins a day in twelve languages—nine foreign and three Indian—are broadcast.

The total output of the External Services is 16 hr. and 45 mt. daily.

AIR STATIONS

At present there are 21 broadcasting stations. The following table gives the location, says when they were opened, and gives the medium wave-length which is permanent.

* These stations were taken over.

Below we give short notes on some of these stations :

Ahmedabad-Baroda.—These two stations serve the Gujarati-speaking area. There are broadcasts for villagers and for industrial workers from Ahmedabad. Occasionally items in Marathi are broadcast from Baroda.

Under the expansion scheme a 50 kW medium-wave transmitter will be installed in-between the two stations, and Baroda will be retained as a supplementary station.

Allahabad-Lucknow.—An experimental transmitter of the Allahabad University was the nucleus of the Allahabad station used as a supplementary to Lucknow.

The claims of Allahabad could not be ignored, particularly in the literary field.

Amritsar-Jullundur.—The necessity for these two stations was felt immediately after the Partition for the Punjabi-speaking population. As the capital is now located at Chandigarh Amritsar may be retained as a supplementary station.

A 50 kW transmitter (medium-wave) is earmarked for this area.

Bombay.—One of the earliest stations to start broadcasting (1927) Bombay has the highest number of licence holders, both in the State as a whole and in the area of the metropolises.

It is the most multi-lingual station in the AIR list, using 8 languages for broadcasting, including Konkani, Sanskrit and Urdu.

There are two sets of transmitters, A & B, with medium and short waves each.

There are plans for a 50 kW medium-wave transmitter to go into operation from Bombay.

Calcutta.—This is the first station to have a 50 kW medium-wave transmitter. As it is not burdened with the need for broadcasting in many languages, it has achieved good progress in technique, and can also train broadcasters to perform.

Cuttack.—As it is the capital of a State Cuttack has a pilot station.

The number of licence-holders in this State is the smallest in India.

Delhi.—As most of the present development of All India Radio took place during World War II, Delhi received a great deal of attention.

All the 100 kW and other short-wave transmitters and the centralised department of news, programme publicity, research and planning, external services, etc., came to be located in Delhi.

The weekly national programmes are arranged from Delhi for an all-India hook-up.

Talks of national importance are also broadcast from Delhi once a week (Wednesdays) for a similar nation-wide relay.

Dharwar.—This station was put up as part of the Eight Year Plan of radio expansion. It is a small pilot station with only a limited coverage; its running time also is short.

Gauhati.—The need to provide broadcast facilities for the N.E. Frontier districts was a factor in making Gauhati a station in the AIR link.

In the first instance it was a double station with Shillong, but now all transmitting is done by Gauhati. Its strategic position, proximity to Pakistan's Dacca station, and the necessity to provide entertainment to plantations, were the considerations that led to the early establishment of the station.

Hyderabad.—The central situation of this station holds immense possibilities for its development as a supplying station for the entire sub-continent. Nagpur is the only rival to Hyderabad in this respect.

Next to Bombay, Hyderabad is the one which is most multi-lingual in its coverage. English, Hindi, Urdu, Telugu, are languages commonly used, while Marathi and Kannada are not ignored.

Kozhikode-Trivandrum.—Callout (its former name) was chosen as the site when it was decided to have a station for the Malayalee speaking areas. With the taking over of the Trivandrum station where the University had a small pilot plant for broadcasting, it was found suitable to link the two stations for covering almost the same region.

Madras.—This is one of the earliest stations to have broadcasting services run by the Municipal Corporation.

It is multi-lingual. All the Dravidian languages, Tamil, Telugu, Kannada, Malayalam, are used by Madras besides English and occasionally Hindi.

Mysore.—The station has one short-wave and one medium-wave transmitter, and affords a good coverage.

It is likely that Bangalore, the other capital of Mysore, will have a 50 kW medium-wave transmitter and a supplementary studio.

The musical talent available in this region requires to be fully utilised and a powerful transmitter may be able to serve the entire peninsular audiences.

Nagpur.—Besides being the capital of M.P., it is centrally situated for all-India coverage. The transmitter originally erected was therefore replaced by a stronger one.

Patna.—This station was opened only because it was the capital of Bihar. The number of licence-holders in the area is small. There are not many large towns or cities in the State though the total population is large.

Delhi, Lucknow and Calcutta met the requirements of the population before Patna had a station. That is why Lucknow, Allahabad and Patna had for many months a common programme for the major part of their transmitting time.

Poona.—The claims of Poona for a station were ignored for a long time because of its proximity to Bombay.

It is proposed to replace the present transmitter with a more powerful one.

Tiruchirappalli.—In the heart of the Tamil speaking country Tiruchirappalli had an early start over all other similar cities. The quality of its musical programmes is very high, and many items are relayed by Madras and other stations in the State.

Vijayawada.—This station was established to meet the needs of the Telugu speaking population. It has obvious handicaps.

The University is at Waltair, and the capital of the Andhra State was for long a matter of speculation.

LICENCES

Broadcast receiver licences are issued at all head and sub-post offices at a fee of fifteen rupees per year, and cover the use of receiving sets throughout India.

Broadcast Receiver Licences are issued to Municipalities or other public bodies for the reproduction of broadcast programmes in public places by the Postmaster-General of the State.

A licence issued for this purpose covers the use of one wireless receiver and any number of loudspeakers at one place only but does not cover any external wiring erected outside the premises of the licensee.

A separate Broadcast Receiver Licence is, however, necessary in the case of clubs, institutions, messes, etc., for reproducing broadcast programmes at subscriptions, dances, concerts, bazaars, etc., to which the public are admitted.

This licence is also issued by the Postmaster-General at a fee of Rs. 50 and is valid for one year.

The receiver licence fees per year are as follows : Domestic, Rs. 15; Commercial, in shops, etc., Rs. 50; Community villages, Rs. 10; Dealers and salesmen, Rs. 15.

The growth of broadcast receiver licences at the end of each year (in January) beginning with 1937 is given below :

Year	Licences	Year	Licences	Year	Licences
1937	50,680	1943	176,061	1949	322,800
1938	64,480	1944	193,585	1950	396,400
1939	92,772	1945	202,829	1951	599,100
1940	119,417	1946	232,368	1952	473,759*
1941	147,121	1947	247,100	1953	587,169*
1942	165,675	1948	286,046

* Figures on a new basis.

It may be explained that licences expire in December and delay on the part of licence holders shows a fall in January. But the figures thereafter steadily rise.

The following table shows the number and the value of radio sets imported into India over a number of years :—

Year	Number	Value in Rs. lakhs
1939-40	43,684	61.28
1940-41	38,855	35.82
1941-42	52,416	41.73
1942-43	18,939	32.10
1943-44	5,384	6.53
1944-45	895	1.51
1945-46	5,082	7.04
1946-47	107,114	169.58
1947-48	192,172	288.40
1948-49	42,202	78.59
1949-50	43,355	71.06
1950-51	16,012	25.44
1951-52	29,121	—
1952-53	19,286	—

Ahmedabad, Calcutta, Jullundur, Allahabad and Bangalore.

Nagpur, Gauhati, Madras, Indore and Hyderabad will each have a medium-wave transmitter of medium power, while in Poona, Jaipur, Jodhpur, Gwalior and Rajkot medium-wave transmitters of low power are proposed to be installed.

Construction of studio buildings at Calcutta and Madras and the extension of Broadcasting House in New Delhi are also important features of the Plan.

Other stations are also proposed to be modernised with a view to handling a greater volume of broadcasts and improving the quality of production.

Additional facilities will also be available in all stations in respect of accommodation and recording.

PRODUCTION OF SETS

The installed capacity of factories manufacturing broadcast sets in India is 200,000 sets a year.

The following table shows the trend of production :—

Year	Sets
1947	3,036
1948	24,996
1949	16,836
1950	44,340
1951	61,800
1952	71,496
1953	47,000†

FIVE-YEAR PLAN

Total allotment : Rs. 3.52 crores.

Seven new broadcasting stations are to be established at Poona*, Rajkot, Gwalior, Indore, Jaipur, Jodhpur and Bangalore under the Five-Year Plan for development of broadcasting.

The Broadcasting expansion project, which is estimated to cost Rs. 3.52 crores on the capital side, also provides for equipment of the Bombay, Calcutta and Madras stations with a high power short-wave transmitter each for ensuring satisfactory inter-regional, national and external transmission.

It is also proposed to install medium-wave transmitters of high power, one each at Bombay,

Construction of additional studios close to Broadcasting House in New Delhi is to be undertaken in order to eliminate overcrowding in the existing studios, which affect adversely the quality of programmes and frequency of rehearsals.

The Five-Year Plan also provides for increased facilities in the Research Department of All India Radio, where problems connected with efficient broadcasting of programmes from both the acoustic and propagation points of view are studied.

The proposed staff training school is intended to enable the engineering staff of AIR to keep pace with rapidly developing broadcasting engineering technique.

* Opened in October 1953.

† For ten months ending October.

THE PRESS

ACCORDING to a Government estimate there were 6,762 newspapers and periodicals in India on April 1, 1952.

Dailies, 596 (70 English); Weeklies, 2,226 (261 English); Other periodicals, 3,940 (784 English).

According to the same authority the total circulation of dailies is about 2,000,000.

The following table gives a language-wise distribution of the language papers and periodicals on March 31, 1952:

ELECTRIC POWER DEVELOPMENT

THE aggregate generating capacity of the country has grown as follows (kWt):—

1900	1,130
1905	11,750
1910	31,947
1915	57,286
1920	130,009
1925	327,152
1930	598,140
1935	900,402
1940	1,208,422
1945	1,319,316
1950	1,712,515
1952	2,041,700

The total installed capacity at the end of 1952 was 2,041,700 kWt, of which a little over half a million kWt is water power.

The per capita consumption of electric power in India is ridiculously low. It is 9.2 kWt hours as against 986 in England, 1,470 in U.S.A., 3,518 in Canada, 1,944 in Switzerland, 3,099 in Norway and 2,000 in Sweden.

The production and sale of electric power from 1948 to 1952 was as follows (in million kWt):

	Generated	Sold
1948	4,800	3,700
1949	4,900	4,000
1950	5,100	4,200
1951	5,900	4,800
1952	6,200	5,000

An analysis of electric power consumption in million kWt is given below. The figure in brackets shows the percentage:

	1951	1952
Industrial power	3,050(64.0)	3,240(64.4)
Domestic consumption	580(12.2)	610(12.0)
Tramways and electric railways	330(6.9)	320(6.4)
Commercial light and small power	330(6.9)	350(6.9)
Public waterworks and sewage pumping	210(4.5)	230(4.6)
Irrigation and agricultural de-watering	200(4.1)	210(4.3)
Street lighting	70(1.4)	70(1.4)
TOTAL	4,800	5,000

INSTALLED CAPACITY

The installed capacity in 1950 according to source is as follows (kWt):

Steam plants (1,004,434); oil-gas plants (148,796); hydro plants (550,285).

Some individual industries have power-stations of their own. The numbers of installations and the installed capacity are as follows:

	No.	Capacity (kWt)
Iron and Steel	32	179,006
Cotton	153	96,320
Wool	5	3,233
Cement (primary)	17	93,655
Cement (secondary)	2	1,100
Collieries	114	68,755
Jute	32	44,783
Railways	101	44,308
Paper	14	37,750
Sugar	104	33,769
Aluminium (primary)	2	16,434
Ordnance factories	11	15,777
Copper (primary)	1	9,875
TOTAL	587	642,745

The number of installations and generating capacity for 1950 by ownership is as follows:

	No.	Capacity (kWt)
Government	201	609,953
Municipalities	19	17,402
Private companies	258	1,085,160
TOTAL	478	1,712,515

The number of installations in Jan. 1953 was a little over 610 (exclusive of railway, military stations).

The following statement shows the number of electrified towns and villages at the end of 1950:

Population	Number of towns	Number with electric supply	Percentage of towns with electric supply to total
Over 100,000	49	49	100.00
50,000 to 100,000	88	88	100.00
20,000 to 50,000	277	240	86.64
10,000 to 20,000	607	260	42.83
5,000 to 10,000	2,367	258	10.86
Below 5,000	559,062	2,792	0.50
TOTAL	562,450	3,687	0.66

It may be pointed out that six large cities—Bombay, Calcutta, Ahmedabad, Kanpur, Madras and Delhi account for 59 per cent of the country's installed capacity and 56 per cent of the generated energy.

The total number of consumers at the end of 1950 was 240,052.

The State-wise analyses as on Jan. 1, 1952 are as follows:

State	No. of stations	Installed capacity (kWt)	Energy generated (mln. kWt)	Energy sold (mln. kWt)	Capacity in Industrial Plants (kWt)	Capacity in railway plants (kWt)	Annual per capita consumption (kWt)

FIVE-YEAR PLAN

There are a little over 100 power projects in the Five-Year Plan.

The total cost of these will be about Rs. 782.5 crores.

The proposed expenditure during the Plan period will be about Rs. 511.8 crores.

The expenditure during 1954-55 will be Rs. 107 crores, and during 1955-56, Rs. 78 crores.

The addition to the installed capacity at the end of the Plan will be 1.07 million kWt.

The ultimate addition will be 1.96 million kWt.

The consumption of electricity in 1955-56 is expected to be of the following order (in million kWt): (See next column)

Industrial: 860; Domestic light and power: 860; Commercial light and power: 430; Industrial: 4,100; Irrigation: 332; Other purposes: 752.

Total: 6,474.

The three most important power projects now under construction are:

The Nangal power house, the power stations on the Damodar, and the Power House No. 1 on the Hirakud.

POWER PROJECTS

Statistical information about some of the major power projects under the Central Government are given below (power in thousand kilowatts):

There are also projects which are under different stages of investigation. These include Kosi (Nepal and Bihar), Tikarpara and Niraj (Orissa), Narmada, Tapli and Subarmati (Bombay and Madhya Pradesh), Indravati (Bastar), Sone, Rihand and Nayar (U.P.), Chambal (Rajasthan and Madhya Bharat), Dihang, Manas and Baraull (Assam).

The total power generation on these projects may be 10 million kilowatts.

The schemes under execution may be expected to be in commission during the next quinquennial period and a large portion of the schemes now under consideration may be completed in the next ten years.

The Central Government have enacted legislation, The Electricity (Supply) Act, 1948, with a view to bringing about proper rationalisation of the industry and to assist in the rapid electrification of the country.

The Act provides for the formation of Provincial Electricity Boards in the States which will take control of generation of electricity by all the licensees.

Madhya Pradesh and Delhi have set up such Boards.

It also provides for the creation of a Central Electricity Authority for exercising a close scrutiny of the work of the Provincial Boards and to advise them on all major power development schemes that may be taken up by the Boards from time to time.

This body was set up in 1950.

It is required to evolve a sound national policy, and co-ordinate the activities of the appropriate planning agencies.

It is to act as arbitrator in disputes between a State Government or a State Electricity Board and the licensees.

It has to carry out investigations and collect data about all sides of production and distribution of power.

The State Electricity Boards are required to rationalize supply and distribution, prepare and carry out new schemes, acquire existing stations and equipment, give bulk supplies of power to existing licensees, designate wherever necessary existing stations as controlled stations and direct licensees to achieve the maximum economy and efficiency in the operation of their undertakings.

BOMBAY

The greatest hydro-electric undertakings in the country are the three schemes developed and brought into operation by Tata Sons, Ltd., and continued under their management until 1929, when they were transferred to the management of the Tata Hydro-Electric Agencies, Ltd., in which Messrs. Tata Sons retained a substantial interest. These undertakings are:—

- The Tata Hydro-Electric Power Supply Company, Ltd. Supply started in 1915.
- The Andhra Valley Power Supply Company, Ltd. Supply started in 1922.
- The Tata Power Company, Ltd. Supply started in 1927.

These three Hydro-Electric stations together with the Chola Steam Station of the Central Railway supply a demand of nearly 285,000 kW in and around Bombay up to as far south as Poona.

Khopoli.—The hydraulic works of the Tata Hydro-Electric Power Supply Company are situated near Lonavla at the top of the Bhor Ghat. The monsoon rainfall is stored in three lakes, namely Lonavla, Walwan and Shiravta, from which it is conveyed in open masonry canals to the Forebay at Khandala and thence through steel pipes to the Power House at Khopoli at the foot of the Ghats, where the head at turbine nozzles is 1,725 feet or approximately 750 lb. per sq. inch. The capacity of the Power Station at Khopoli is 65,000 kW.

This scheme was formally opened by the Governor of Bombay on the 8th of February 1915.

Bhivpuri.—Investigations in 1917-18 led to the discovery of a site on the Andhra River just to the north of the Tata Hydro-Electric Supply Company's lakes, where additional power could be developed.

These investigations resulted in the formation of the Andhra Valley Power Supply Co. and the construction of the schemes, the principal features of which consist of a reservoir formed by a dam about 190 feet high, across the Andhra River and a tunnel 8,700 feet long driven through solid trap rock to the scarp of the Ghats, from which the water is taken in steel pipes 4,600 feet long to the turbines in the generating station at Bhivpuri. The head of water at turbine nozzles is 1,740 feet or approximately 750 lb. per sq. inch.

The electrical energy is transmitted to Bombay over a transmission line 56 miles long for augmenting the supply from Khopoli.

The present capacity of this station is 60,000 kW.

Bhira.—The Tata Power Company's scheme on the Nila-Mula River to the south-east of Bombay was investigated and developed along lines similar to the Andhra Valley scheme and has an installed capacity of 132,000 kW.

The power is transmitted to Bombay over a transmission line 76 miles long and is used to augment the supply of the two earlier companies to mills, factories and railways.

The Tata Hydro-Electric System, comprising the Tata Hydro-Electric Power Supply Company, the Andhra Valley Power Supply Company and the Tata Power Company, is operated as an integrated electric power system serving an area in the State of Bombay of more than 1,000 square miles.

It is the largest power system in the country having a fixed capital expenditure in excess of Rs. 16 crores and an annual output representing more than one-fourth of the total electricity production.

Electric service is rendered to the textile mills and other industries of Bombay and the suburban areas, to the railways for electric traction, to local authorities, and, in bulk for retail distribution, to the electrical undertakings supplying Greater Bombay, Poona and ten other localities within the area.

During the year 1952-53, the three hydro-stations and the railway thermal power station, which is connected to the system, together generated 1,486 million units of electric energy.

The transmission network of the system consists of 406 circuit miles of 100,000-volt lines and the distribution network of 106 circuit miles of 22,000-volt overhead as well as 101 miles of 22,000-volt and 116 miles of 6,800-volt underground cables.

Substantial additions to the transmission and distribution network are expected to be made during the next few years.

The interconnected transmission lines of the Railway add another 272 circuit miles to form the combined Tata Hydro-Railway Grid.

The rate for energy delivered to the Mills, Factories and Railways has, for several years shown a steady decrease and now averages 0.42 of an anna per unit, which compares favourably with that in any large commercial centre in the world.

The rates were increased by 12½ per cent for the first time in the history of the companies on account of all-round increasing costs.

The load development in the area served by the Tata Hydro-Electric System has exceeded the available capacity. The available power is distributed to the existing consumers by staggering of working days of the various industries.

By continuing to utilise the load staggering periods for essential machine maintenance and overhaul the system capability by mid 1954, not including the Bombay Government Plant, will just be equal to the then expected demand of about 289 MW.

Any load which can from now on be supplied is only that which can be taken up by the Bombay Government Plant now being commissioned into service.

Further development will have to await the Tatas Thermal Plant which is expected to go in service by 1957 and the supply from Koyna scheme which was inaugurated on January 16, 1954.

Grid Schemes

For the development of industries and agriculture in the State of Bombay, the Bombay Government has embarked on the provision of an electrical grid scheme somewhat on the lines of the British Grid. It is at present proposed to develop grid schemes area-wise in the different parts of the State which may be interconnected at a later stage.

In the State of Bombay, there are at present 123 licensees in operation. Most of the licensees operate in urban areas. Besides, there are 22 power stations owned and operated by the Bombay Government including those of the merged States.

The development programme under execution at present consists of: (1) North Gujarat Grid Scheme, (2) South Gujarat Grid Scheme, (3) the Jog-Karnatak Electric Grid Scheme, (4) Extension of the Chola Power Station of the Central Railway, (5) the Radhanagari Hydro-Electric Scheme, (6) Rural Electrification and Small Towns Schemes based on small Diesel stations or distribution of power purchased from the existing licensees.

Besides this, the Department is entrusted with the work of operation and maintenance of power houses in merged States which were owned and operated by the various former Indian States.

Co-ordinated Development

The former Government of Baroda was persuaded to abandon the scheme of establishment of steam station and to take power in bulk at Baroda, Petlad, Kalol, Navsari and Billimora from the Grid schemes for distribution within the State territory.

Negotiations were conducted with the Western Railway for the use of a common power system on a co-operative basis by the Railway for meeting its power requirements for traction purposes between Ahmedabad and Bombay and by the Bombay Government for supplying electric service to urban and rural population residing within the economic distance of the various substations en route.

When the Railway electrification scheme is decided on, it will be necessary further to develop more power at the generating stations in North Gujarat and South Gujarat areas and also the transmission systems.

Negotiations were also conducted with the Central Railway for the use of a common power system in the Nasik and Khandesh areas. However, due to financial stringency, the proposal for joint development in these areas has been dropped for the time being.

North Gujarat Scheme

Under this scheme power is being purchased in bulk from the power station of the Ahmedabad Electricity Company at Sabarmati and distributed to various load centres in the North Gujarat Area.

The scheme when completed will comprise about 70 miles of 66/110 kV line, 14 miles of 33 kV and 50 miles of 11 kV transmission lines and about 480 miles of distribution lines a receiving station at Sabarmati and 66/11 kV step-down transforming stations at Baroda, Nadiad, Anand, Barejadi and Petlad and 33/11 kV sub-stations at Kalol and many 11 kV/400-230 Volts sub-stations in various towns and villages to be served.

The Ahmedabad Electricity Company have constructed a new power station known as "B" station consisting of four 15,000 kW steam turbo sets negotiated by the Government with the Company in the year 1944-45.

In order to meet the ever growing requirements of power, the Government have negotiated with the Company for the establishment of a further new power station known as "C" station, initially consisting of three 15,000 kW sets orders for which have already been placed by the Company and the first set of which was expected to be in Commission early in 1954.

The ultimate capacity of this "C" station is estimated to be 120,000 kW.

The 66/110 kV transmission line between Ahmedabad and Baroda and 33 kV line between Ahmedabad and Kalol have been energised and supply commenced to Baroda, Nadiad, Anand, Dakor-Umreth, Petlad, Vallabh Vidya Nagar and Kalol licensees as well as to several industries.

The work of erecting 11 kV lines in rural areas and the laying of distribution lines in the villages is in progress. Supply has already commenced in several villages and is being gradually extended to other villages.

This scheme is estimated to cost approximately Rs. 208 lakhs.

The system demand established upto the end of 1953 was over 14,000 kW and the number of consumers served nearly 2,500.

South Gujarat Scheme

This scheme provides for the installation of a steam power station at Utran near Surat, initially comprising two turbo alternator sets of 7,500 kW each for supply of power in areas from Surat to Bulsar, and the construction of a 66 kV transmission line over a distance of about 33 miles from Surat to Billimora.

Supply under this scheme is already commenced and bulk power is at present being given to the Surat licensee as from November, 1952.

Power in bulk will now be supplied to the licensees and large industries at Navsari, Billimora, Bulsar, Rander and Kathor and to the rural loads in the areas between Surat and Bulsar as soon as the 66 kV-transmission system and further distribution lines are completed.

Additional demands for power continue to be received and one more 7,500 kW set with boilers and equipment is already about to be erected.

Provision of further capacity is under consideration.

The system demand upto end of 1953 was 4,300 kW.

The scheme inclusive of the third 7,500 kW is expected to cost Rs. 386 lakhs.

Other Schemes

For the isolated towns and rural areas which are beyond the economic reach of the major Grid schemes but offer good scope for development of cottage and small scale industries and agricultural pumping, Government have established small diesel stations or arranged to purchase power in bulk from the existing power stations of nearby licensees.

These small schemes are known as 'Nursery Schemes'.

The criteria adopted for selection of places for nursery development are that there should be (a) about 2,000 dwelling houses and (b) a reasonable magnitude of load of small scale and cottage industries and (or) agricultural pumping which could be operated by electricity so as to increase the productive and earning capacities of people in such areas.

A list of towns covered under the Nursery Scheme is given below :—

Division	District	Towns covered	Remarks
Northern	Surat	Ten villages in Bulsar Taluka.	Supply has already commenced; power in bulk is purchased from Bulsar licensee. These villages will be later supplied from the South Gujarat Grid Scheme.
Northern	Ahmedabad	1) Dholka 2) Dhanduka	Schemes are postponed due to financial stringency.
	East Khandesh	Dharangaon, Erandol and Parola.	Supply from the diesel power station is expected to commence in the first quarter of 1954.
	Sholapur	Akluj	Scheme is postponed due to financial stringency.
Central	Poona	Lonavla-Talegaon area.	Scheme is postponed due to financial stringency. Power will be purchased from Tatas.
	Satara (North)	21 villages in Satara Taluka.	Power in bulk is purchased from Satara licensee. Supply has already commenced.
	Satara (South)	Islampur-Peth.	Supply from the diesel power station has been commenced.
	Belgaum	Hukeri, Gokak, Chikoli, Konnur and Sankeshwar.	Supply from the diesel power station has already commenced.
	Belgaum	Bailhongal	Supply from the diesel power station is expected to commence in 1954-55.
Southern	Bijapur	Guledgud, Kamatigi.	Supply from the diesel power station has been commenced.
	Bijapur	Ilkal, Hungund, Amin-gad, Gudur and Sulbhavi.	Supply from the diesel power station is expected to commence in 1954-55.
	Dharwar	Gajendragad	Scheme is postponed due to financial stringency.
	Ratnagiri	1) Ratnagiri. 2) Vengurla. 3) Chiplun. 4) Malwan.	The supply from all the four diesel power stations has already commenced.

None of the schemes mentioned above can at present supply any large industrial load, but with the new Surat Steam Station it will be possible to supply power for industrial use under the Bulsar Taluka Electrification Scheme.

Jog Power.—The Mysore Government has to supply the Bombay Government with electric power upto 10,000 kW at Jog and 1,500 kW at Harihar. This power will be distributed in the Dandeli, Dharwar, Hubli and Gadag areas as well as in Byadgi, Haveri and Ranibennur.

The supply to the Harihar-Haveri section was expected to commence at the beginning of 1954 and the Jog-Hubli section by the end of 1954.

The scheme is estimated to cost Rs. 213 lakhs.

Koyna Project.—The first stage of development of the revised project as at present approved by Government now comprising storage of 36,045 m.c. ft. of water, behind the dam of 204.5 feet height above the river bed at Jalkawadi, sufficient to produce 240,000 kW of power.

The estimated cost of the dam, tunnel, necessary generating plant and transmission and transformation equipment for the first stage development is expected to be approximately Rs. 33 crores.

The foundation stone of this scheme was laid on January 16, 1954.

Initial supply of power from this Scheme is expected to be commenced six working seasons after the funds are allotted for the commencement of the work.

Kalinadi Project.—The final report indicates that 325,000 kW continuous is available in the Kalinadi Basin, distributed in four power stations. Initially the development of one power station at Supa, capable of supplying about 50,000 kW to the districts of Dharwar, Kanara, Belgaum and Bijapur is due for examination.

Bhatgar Hydro-Electric Project.—A demand of about 10,000 kW can be met from this source, provided the power station is linked up either with Koyna when and if developed or Tata system at Poona.

Bhandardara-Randha Electric Scheme.—A demand of 16,800 kW can be met from this source. In addition to this, a further 10,000 kW can be obtained during the monsoon. This power can be firm up by the establishment of a steam station of the installed capacity of 15,000 kW in this area.

Narbada River Project.—The Central Water Power, Irrigation and Navigation Commission are investigating the possibilities of power development by impounding the waters of the Narbada River in Gujarat. It is reported that at one of the Dam sites at Limbdil, 200,000 kW continuous power can be generated. This power when available will be utilised in Gujarat in place of the present thermal power.

Tapti (Tapti) Project.—Under this project, which was initially intended to be an irrigation scheme only, it is now proposed to also develop Hydel power with initial installed capacity of 24,000 kW the ultimate capacity being 216,000 kW. The work is being carried out by the Central Water-power Irrigation and Navigation Commission on behalf of the Bombay Government. The Tapti Hydel power when available will supply the power requirements of the South and the North Gujarat Electric Grid Schemes.

At present only the irrigation part of the project is being proceeded with because of financial stringency. Total cost: Rs. 6 crores.

Radhanagari.—The Radhanagari scheme is a multi-purpose project for irrigation, power generation and water supply and comprises construction of a dam, about 140 feet high above the deepest foundation across the Bhogavati River, about 32 miles from Kolhapur, and a power station with an installed capacity of 4,800 kW at Radhanagari in Kolhapur District.

The R.H.E. Scheme is expected to cost about Rs. 246 lakhs.

Hydro-Electric Supply to Kolhapur City was commenced from August 1952 and to Jaysingpur licensee from March 1953.

Besides the R.H.E. Project, the following work of the former Kolhapur State is under execution by the Grid Department.

(i) The Emergency Irrigation Diesel Power Station for supplying power for irrigation and industries. This power station is now interconnected with the Radhanagari Hydro-Electric Power House.

(ii) Conversion of D.C. to A.C. in the area taken over from the Kolhapur licensee.

The interconnected system, besides supplying power to Kolhapur City which is partly served by Government and partly by the Kolhapur Electric Supply, will supply power to the agricultural pumps along Bhogawati and Panchaganga rivers and to the licensees of Kolhapur, Ichalkaranji, Jaysingpur and Hupri.

Chola Steam Station.—In order to relieve the acute power shortage existing in the Bombay-Poona area since 1949, it was decided, in consultation with the Railway Board, to extend the Railway's power station at Chola by an additional installed capacity of 54,000 kW.

The scheme is expected to cost about Rs. 4 crores and will be operated as a part of the Tata-Central Railway Interconnected System.

The supply was expected to commence in the beginning of 1954.

In order that the Bombay-Poona area does not suffer from any further shortages of power till the large bulk supply from hydro power from the proposed Koyna Project become available, Government have granted a license to Tatas for setting up a steam thermal station of 100,000 kW capacity at Trombay with an initial capacity of about 50,000 kW.

MYSORE

The first Hydro-Electric scheme of any magnitude undertaken in the country or indeed in the East, was that on the Cavery River in Mysore State, which with its generating station transmission line and distributing system was inaugurated in 1902.

Sivasamudram.—The principal object of this scheme was the supply of power to the mining companies on the Kolar Gold Fields about 9 miles from Sivasamudram, the site of the generating station.

Since 1902 the supply of electrical energy from Sivasamudram has been provided for Bangalore and Mysore Cities and over 225 other towns and villages in the State.

The initial undertaking has constantly been expanded and its total normal capacity now stands at 83,000 H.P.

The first stage of the Project with an installed capacity of 48,000 kW was put into service with four units of 12,000 kW each on February 21, 1948.

The cost of this stage and that of all the civil engineering works for the second stage amount to Rs. 5.6 crores.

The work on the second stage is in progress now and with its completion, the total capacity of the station would be 20,000 kW. It consists of four more generator units of 18,000 kW each. This work is estimated to cost Rs. 2.65 crores.

The Jog Power plant supplies energy to the north and north-eastern parts of the State up to Mysore and Mandya, along Chikmagalur, Hassan, Holenarsipur and Belgola. It supplies power to Anantpur, Cudappah and Kurnool Districts of Andhra State.

To the Tungabhadra project, a block power of 2,000 kW is being supplied.

The State of Bombay receives upto 10,000 kW at the station itself and 1,500 kW at Harihar border.

To South Canara in Madras State, this plant supplies 6,000 kW and another 2,000 kW is being supplied to Coorg.

At present Mysore supplies electricity to over 500 towns and villages and to over 5,000 irrigation pumping units within the State limits.

The transmission system consists of over 900 route-miles of 78,000 and 37,500 volt lines with a total of 1,350 miles of circuits.

With the construction of the new transmission lines and on the generation of power at Jog, over 600 miles of 110 kV new transmission lines will be in service.

TRAVANCORE-COCHIN

Pallivasal.—The Pallivasal Hydro-Electric Scheme was sanctioned by the Government in 1931 and the work was taken up immediately afterwards. The first stage of development was completed by the beginning of 1940 and the supply was commenced in March 1940. The scheme utilises the water of the Mudrapuzha River diverted at Munnar through a tunnel 9 ft. by 8 in. and 10,200 ft. in length.

The second stage extension works of the Pallivasal Hydro-Electric Project are now in progress. Two additional sets each of 7,500 kW have so far been installed thus bringing the total installed capacity of the station to 28,500 kW.

With the completion of the Madupatty Dam in the upper reaches of the Mudrapuzha river, the installation of the sixth and the last 7,500 kW set and certain modification to the first three units in the power station, the installed capacity of the Pallivasal power station will be raised to 37,500 kW.

The total generation during 1951 was 170 million units. About 77.5 per cent of the power generated is used for industrial purposes and the rest for agricultural and domestic needs.

As a result of the negotiations with the Government of Madras, it has been possible to get an extra block of 3,000 kW of power from the Papanasam System.

Power up to 66,000 volts is available for transmission to plains.

The primary transmission network now consists of 434.14 route miles of 66 kV lines, 26 route-miles of 33 kV lines and 24 route miles of 22 kV lines and seven 66 kV sub-stations.

The distribution network consists of nearly 668 miles of 11 kV lines, 621 miles of 400/230 volt lines and 204 distribution centres.

The connected load is over 62,200 kW with a maximum peak load of about 28,500 kW.

Sengulam.—Two new projects have been taken for execution. The first of these, the Sengulam Hydro-Electric Project envisages the utilisation of the tail water discharged from the Pallivasal Power station over a head of 1,200 feet. The project is under execution and is estimated to cost Rs. 300 lakhs.

The various works connected with the project are well under way and the first unit in the Sengulam Power Station was commissioned by the beginning of 1952.

The Poringalkuthu Hydro-Electric Scheme will utilise the water of the Chalakudi river. In the first stage of the project which is now under execution the installed capacity will be 24,000 kW comprising three sets each rated at 8,000 kW. This Scheme was scheduled to be completed by the end of 1953.

MADRAS*

Madras now ranks next to Bombay in its hydro-electric power output. Three hydro-electric stations are now in operation. Besides extensions to the existing plants, two more stations are under construction.

An 'Electric Power Grid' has been in existence for over 20 years.

The grid in the south where it is well formed consists at present of three hydro-electric power stations, viz., those at Pykara, Mettur Papanasam and two thermal stations at Madras and Madurai.

A good portion of 13 districts from Chittoor to Tinnevely and Chingleput to Malabar is covered by the Grid. In the central and northern regions of the State the grid is yet to take shape.

The installed generating capacity under the Madras Grid totals 195,300 kW. It has about 5,100 miles of high tension line, operating at voltages from 11,000 to 111,000, and 4,000 miles of low tension distribution lines. There are 34 extra high tension sub-stations of 110 kV and 66 kV, and 44 of 33 and 22 kV with transformer capacity totalling 247,000 kVA and 1,766 distribution transformer stations with an aggregate capacity of 110,800 kVA.

The total connected load to the Grid is 468,750 kW.

A total of 1,960 towns and villages are receiving supply from the Grid.

There are over 274,000 consumers of all classes; 111,000 served directly by the department and 163,000 by licensees distributing Government power.

The total power generated amounts to over 680 million units representing more than 99 per cent of the total power output in the State.

The capital investment is over Rs. 21.7 crores and the revenue about Rs. 3.78 crores.

Madras leads all other States in India in rural electrification with 1,960 villages electrified of which about 1,100 received supply from the Grid, the rest from self-generating licensees. Nearly 16,700 pumps for lift irrigation and 1,800 rural industries are run on electricity with a connected load of 92,000 kW.

Pykara Scheme.—The scheme utilises the waters of the Pykara river which drains from the Nilgiri plateau having a catchment area of nearly 38 square miles and a fall of about 3,100 ft. The flow though perennial is very irregular and often drops to values around 20 cusecs during the dry season.

The estimated potential capacity of the full development is around 40,000 kW continuous.

The first stage of development was commenced at the end of 1929 and was completed at the end of 1932.

The present storage capacity is 1,886 m.c.ft.

Power is transmitted to Coimbatore, which is the main receiving station and also the chief load centre by means of a 50 mile double circuit 110 kV line.

The line is extended therefrom at 66 kV to Tiruppur, Erode, Udumalpet, Sembatti and Madurai.

At Erode and Madurai tie is established with the Mettur and Papanasam Systems respectively.

Power is now supplied from Pykara to Calicut and Cannanore through 66 kV lines.

This system has 1,722 miles of transmission lines of voltage ranging from 11,000 to 110,000 in service. There are nine extra high tension sub-stations with transforming capacity of 140,680 kVA and 734 distribution transformer stations with an aggregate capacity of about 41,600 kVA.

The final stage of the Pykara Project consisting of a second dam across the Pykara river to provide a storage of 2,000 m.c.ft. a new penstock, and two generating sets of 13,000 kW each at Pykara station is under execution.

This will not only meet the power deficiencies of Mettur and Papanasam stations during periods of unfavourable water conditions but will also meet the demands arising out of the large scale industrial and agricultural developments in the southern districts in the near future.

To supplement the output in the Hydro-Grid during water scarcity, an auxiliary steam station at Madurai with an initial capacity of 4,000 kW was completed and brought into operation in February 1951.

Mettur Scheme.—The Mettur Dam, one of the largest structures of its kind in the world is 176 ft. high and can impound a total of 93,500 m.c.ft. of water.

This storage is primarily for irrigation purposes but part of the water let down for irrigation is utilised to the best advantage for the generation of hydro-electric power.

Work on the initial installation with 3 units of 10,000 kW each was commenced in the latter part of 1935 and the station started operation in June 1937.

The operating head varies from 160 ft. at full reservoir level to a minimum of 60 ft. The average head is 135 ft.

Power is generated at 11,000 volts, 50 cycles, 3 phase and stepped up to 66,000 volts for transmission to various load centres. The voltage of transmission will shortly be raised to 110,000.

Power is transmitted to Singarapet in the north and Erode in the south (a total mileage of 100 miles) taking off from the power station.

At Erode the Mettur System is linked with Pykara network. Lines are extended in the north to Vellore, Tiruvannamalai and Villupuram and in the south to Trichinopoly, Tanjore and Nagapattanam.

Papanasam Scheme.—This is the third hydro-electric scheme to be undertaken by the Madras Government. The first stage of the scheme was started in 1938 and the station commenced operation in July 1944.

The Tambraparni river drops about 300 ft. over the picturesque Papanasam falls at the foot of the Western Ghats in Tinnevely District.

Six miles above the falls a reservoir of 5,500 m.c.ft. is formed by constructing a masonry dam 170 ft. above river bed and 800 ft. long. The gross head developed is 330 ft.

The transmission system extends to Tuticorin, Kollipatti and Madurai, and is linked with the Pykara Hydro-Electric System at Madurai.

Bulk power to the extent of 3,000 kW is being delivered to the Travancore-Cochin Union Government at the State borders near Shencottah.

The Five-Year Plan (including projects for Andhra) provides for (a) four new power houses at Machkund, Moyar, Nellore and Madurai; (b) extensions to five existing power houses—Pykara, Papanasam, Madras, Vijayavada and Visakhapatnam—and (c) 1650 miles of new high tension line.

In 1950-51 sanction was accorded to the Tungabhadra Hydro-Electric Project and a number of transmission and distribution extensions.

The installed capacity on the Andhra side will be 60,000 kW, on the Hyderabad side 110,000 kW.

The project was to be completed in 1953-54.

All these schemes will add 200,000 kW of extra generating capacity to the Grid. In other words, when the plan is completed, the existing generating capacity will have been doubled.

The estimated expenditure for the five years 1951-56 is Rs. 50.24 crores (includes expenditure for Andhra).

* includes Andhra.

† See below under Hyderabad.

Of the schemes included in the plan, the Nellore thermal station with a generating capacity of 5,000 kW was completed and brought into operation in October 1950. The Madurai thermal station had a 4,000 kW turbo set commissioned into service in February 1951. The Papanasam power house extension was completed with the addition of the fourth 7,000 kW unit.

The Moyar power house and Madras station first stage extensions were completed in 1952-53. The generating capacity of Vijayavada and Visakhapatnam thermal stations was increased by 6,000 and 3,000 kW respectively. The areas will ultimately be connected to the Machkund Hydro-Electric Station.

WEST BENGAL AND BIHAR

The Damodar Valley Project.—This is the most important development scheme serving West Bengal and Bihar jointly. Of the seven multi-purpose dams included in the entire Project, four form part of the First Phase Programme now under implementation. (Tilaiya and Malton on the Barakar, Panchet Hill on the Damodar, and a dam across the Konar.)

The Tilaiya dam was to be ready in 1952, the Konar dam in 1953, the Malton dam in 1954, and the Panchet Hill dam in 1955, when an irrigation barrage and 1,500 miles of canals and distributaries, of which 83 miles will be navigable, will likewise be finished.

A 150,000 kW thermal power station at Bokaro included in the First Phase Programme, has come into commercial operation.

The First Phase alone will provide perennial irrigation for one million acres, generate 126,000 kW hydro-electricity, and control floods up to 650,000 acres.

The extra foodgrains expected to be produced on completion of the First Phase are about 10 million maunds, yielding at present prices Rs. 30.48 crores annually. The estimated monetary value of the extra jute is Rs. 3.80 crores per year the sale proceeds per annum of the D.V.C. power has been calculated at Rs. 4.18 crores.

On the basis of prices prevailing in 1951, the revised cost estimates for the First Phase amount to Rs. 76* crores.

Mor Project.—The opening of the Mayurakshi canal in July 1951 marked the successful completion of an important phase in the Rs. 15½ crore Mor Project, one of the principal post-war development schemes in West Bengal. Besides irrigating an area of 600,000 acres, the project will provide about 4,000 kW of electric power annually. The necessary plant is already installed.

Kosi Project.—The most important scheme in Bihar is the Kosi Project now under investigation with the Central Waterpower, Irrigation and Navigation Commission. It will be a multi-purpose project for irrigation, drainage, reclamation of water-logged areas, malaria control, fish culture and recreation facilities.

The project comprises a dam, 750 feet high across the Chatra gorge in Nepal just above the temple of Baraha Kshetra, to store about 11 million acre feet of water, a power plant at the dam site capable of generating upto 1.8 million kW of power at 50 per cent load factor, a barrage in Nepal across the Kosi to control and stabilise the river channel, and to divert its supplies into two canals, one on either bank, for irrigating about a million acres in Nepal territory, and a second barrage near the Nepal-Bihar border with two canals on the left and one on the right bank, for irrigating over two million acres of land in Bihar.

The project is estimated to cost rupees 90 crores. The execution of the scheme is expected to take about ten years.

ORISSA

The unified development of Mahanadi Valley has been decided upon by the State of Orissa and is being executed through the Central Waterpower, Irrigation and Navigation Commission, Government of India.

It comprises three units namely the Hirakud Dam Project, the Tikarpara Dam Project and the Naraj Dam Project, each with its own canal system and hydro-electric power installations. The three units are capable of independent development and also of forming an integrated part of the basin wide plan.

Hirakud Dam Project.—This involves the construction of a dam—150 feet high and gross storage capacity of the reservoir 5.3 million acre feet—across the Mahanadi about nine miles upstream of the town of Sambalpur, gravity and lift canals on either side and two hydro-electric installations.

The project will provide irrigation to 1,004,953 acres of land, generate 350,000 kW and will also provide navigation facilities.

The whole scheme is estimated to cost rupees 92 crores and will earn an annual return of 4.29 per cent on the sum-at-charge.

The proposed expenditure under the Five-Year Plan is Rs. 61 crores.

The Hirakud Dam is now under construction. It is expected that water for irrigation will begin to flow in 1956.

Machkund Scheme.—The construction of the Machkund Hydro-Electric Scheme has been undertaken jointly by the States of Orissa and Andhra.

The Scheme will harness the Duduma water falls on the Machkund river which forms the boundary between Orissa and Andhra in that stretch. A gross head of 840 feet is available there and with the help of a storage reservoir, built to regulate the minimum flow, a power house of 100,000 kW can be installed.

The reservoir will be created by constructing a dam at Jalaput, some 18 miles above the falls, to a height of 134 feet above the bed of the river and it will impound 25,450 million cubic feet of water to supplement the river flow during dry season.

The cost of the scheme is estimated to be Rs. 931.79 lakhs, shared in the ratio of 70 : 30 by Andhra and Orissa respectively, and the power generated will be utilised by the States in that ratio in accordance with an agreement entered into between the States (originally Madras and Orissa).

Power from the project was to be available in 1953. It is transmitted by a 132 kV line to Berhampur via Jeypore and Rayagada and will be made available at present in Koraput and Ganjam Districts.

ASSAM

Assam possesses large potentials of hydro-power. It has roughly been estimated that it should be possible to generate upto four million kilowatts of continuous power in that State by developing eleven sites on different rivers. These projects would involve storage by construction of high dams involving a total reservoir capacity, during monsoon, of 68 million acre feet.

Most of these projects can be designed as multi-purpose schemes for power generation, perennial irrigation, extension and improvement of navigation and flood control.

The Government of India through the Central Waterpower, Irrigation and Navigation Commission has undertaken the investigation of two multi-purpose hydro-electric schemes, i.e., the Dihang and the Manas.

The site of the proposed dam and the reservoir will lie within Bhutan territory.

Air survey of the site has been completed. Economic statistics for 43 villages in the river basin have also been collected and land classification and soil survey for 147 villages have been made. A silt laboratory has also been established.

Rs. 1,71,722 were spent on this work up to 1952.

The State Government has established a small office for purposes of investigation of small rivers and streams for generation of electrical power for local needs.

In one scheme namely the Umtru hydro-electric scheme, the work of collection of data has been completed and now the work of the detailed estimate and design of a power station of 8,000 kW is in progress.

Three 2,000 kW sets are to be installed initially and a fourth to be added at a later date.

The tribal areas near the foot-hills of the Naga, Garo and the Lushai Hills offer possibilities for the installation of small hydro-electric stations for the development of cottage industries.

KASHMIR

As the country-side in Kashmir abounds in small streams and channels, it is considered more feasible to build up small power stations for electrifying suburbs than laying and maintaining long transmission lines over sparsely populated areas.

The headworks of the Jhelum power installation is situated six and a half miles from the power house at Mohora and the main connection between the two is a timber flume. These works and the forebay at the delivery end of the flume have a capacity for carrying water sufficient for the ultimate generation of 20,000 electrical horse-power.

The power house is of sufficient capacity to allow of 15,000 kW generating plant being installed within it. Two transmission lines run side by side as far as Baramulla, 21 miles from Mohora at which point one terminates. The other continues to Srinagar, further 34 miles.

At present it supplies power to Srinagar, Baramulla, Sopore and other villages nearby.

A new hydro-electric-cum-irrigation scheme with the ultimate capacity of 18,000 kW by harnessing the Sindh river at Ganderbal has been taken in hand. The scheme is in progress and is expected to be completed within two or three years.

At Pahalgam a small hydro-electric station of about 186.5-kW exists for the convenience of the visitors there.

The Jammu power house employs four generating sets with a total capacity of 1,125 kW, driven by water turbines.

The necessity for augmenting the power supply in the Jammu area being urgent, a steam turbine driven generating plant of 1,500 kW capacity has been installed at Miran Sahib and connected with Jammu by a 6,000 volt line.

The present supply being inadequate and unreliable the Kashmir Government has been allowed to purchase from the Government of the Punjab about 1,500 kW from Jogindernagar Power Station at an estimated cost of Rs. 23.8 lakhs. This scheme was expected to be completed in 1953.

Schemes pertaining to two hydro-electric power stations at Khirum and Udhampur are under survey.

A small Hydro-Electric installation was set up at Bandipore, a town 40 miles to the north-west of Srinagar, in 1951, by utilising a small irrigation channel emanating from River Madhmali, with a head of 25 feet.

Its present capacity is 30 kW; it might be supplemented by another set of 30 kW.

* Later estimate Rs. 77.8 crores.

The outstanding feature of this small scheme is that it has been financed entirely by the local co-operative stores and the electric light in the locality is supplied on a co-operative system.

UTTAR PRADESH

Ganga Canal Hydro-Electric Grid.—This system supplies power at attractive rates for domestic, industrial and agricultural purposes to 14 districts in the west of the State and to Shahdara in Delhi. Seven of the ten falls available for electrification have been developed and there is a steam power station at Chandausi and Hariduanj with an installed capacity of 19,000 kW.

The Grid has in all 38,000 kW of installed capacity.

A new hydro-electric station at Mohammadpur with an installed capacity of 10,500 kW is under construction. At Hariduanj steam station an additional power plant is also under erection which will raise the installed capacity of the station from 10,000 kW to 20,000 kW. It will supply some 93 towns with current for light and fans and minor industries, energy for irrigation pumping from tube-wells and open wells.

The Ganga Valley State Tube-well Scheme comprises about 2,800 tube-wells, covering the districts of Moradabad, Bijnor, Budaut, Muzaffarnagar, Saharanpur, Meerut, Bulandshahr, Aligarh and Etah, introducing irrigation on the volumetric system over approximately one million acres hitherto without any source of irrigation.

The supply of cheap power from some 2,300 sub-stations is already having an important bearing on the economic disposal of crops and the development of minor industries in the urban centres and rural areas.

Sarda Canal Hydro-Electric Scheme.—This is one of the major schemes the Uttar Pradesh Government have in hand at present. It is proposed to combine into a single drop a number of existing drops on the existing Sarda Canal between its mile 7 and mile 20 and to install a power station near Khatima about 9 miles from Banbassa, the headworks of the Sarda Canal.

The power house will generate 41,400 kW out of which 23,000 kW will be firm power. The cost of construction of the power station including plant, about 12 miles long tail race channel and allied works, is estimated to be Rs. 7 crores approximately.

This project will supply electric power to the Kumaon, Rohilkhand and Oudh divisions for domestic, agricultural and industrial purposes. It will also augment the power supply of the existing Ganga Hydrel Grid.

Pathri Power Station Project.—This will add an installed capacity of 20,400 kW, out of which 8,500 kW will be firm power, on the Ganga Hydro-electric Grid by the construction of a power house on a by-pass power channel at Bahadradab on the Main Ganga Canal.

The project is under construction and is expected to cost approximately Rs. 2.6 crores.

There are several other schemes under consideration, the more important of them being the Pipri Dam and Power Station Project estimated to cost over 29 crores of rupees—Rs. 19.25 crores for dams and Rs. 10 crores for transmission lines—the Yamuna Hydro-Electric Project estimated to cost rupees 21 crores, the Nayar Dam Project estimated to cost rupees 21 crores and the Ramganga Project at a cost of some 22 crores of rupees.

PUNJAB

Bhakra Nangal Project.—The completion of this will turn the Punjab into a regular granary and make it a highly industrialized State. The project is now under construction.

The most important feature of the project is the construction of the 680 feet high Bhakra Dam on the river Sutlej, forming a reservoir with a live capacity of 5,725 million acre feet.

The 90-feet Nangal Dam which is also under construction on the same river about eight miles downstream of the Bhakra Dam will provide necessary storage to smoothen out the diurnal variations in releases from Bhakra Plant and a diversion for the Nangal Hydrel Canal which takes off just above this dam.

The Nangal hydrel canal is designed for a capacity of over 12,500 cusecs, and three power houses, two of which having a head of 98 feet each are under construction on this canal.

The Nangal Dam is quite complete and it is expected that the first two generating sets at Power House I would be ready in 1954-55. Thus it would be possible to commence commercial supply of electricity from this power house by the end of 1952. Power House II was also expected to be ready for commercial supply of power by the end of 1952.

The firm power potential of the project works out to 400,000 kW at 100 per cent factor.

This power will be utilised in the States of the Punjab, Pepsu, Himachal Pradesh, Delhi and Rajasthan.

New irrigation canals of an aggregate capacity of 15,400 cusecs, i.e., Bhakra main line which takes off from the Nangal canal, Bist Donb Canal which takes off at Rupar, and Sidhwan which takes off from the existing Sirhind Canal, are all under construction and will command an area of 6.5 million acres in the States of the Punjab, Pepsu, and Rajasthan, out of which 1.6 million acres is at present virgin waste land.

The annual irrigation expected is 3.6 million acres which will yield 1.13 million tons of food grains and 800,000 bales of cotton.

The project is estimated to cost Rs. 156 crores. The costs chargeable to the irrigation and hydro-electric portions works out to a ratio of 3 to 5.

The proposed expenditure during the Plan period is Rs. 100 crores.

The whole project including the dams and canals is programmed to be completed by 1957-58.

Mangla Scheme.—This project provides for the generation of 10,000 kW of hydro-electric power at Mangla near the Irrigation Branch Head Works on the Upper Jhelum Canal from a head of 30 ft. and minimum flow of approx. 5,000 cusecs in the head reach of the canal. It also provides for the linking of this power station by a double circuit 132 kV line with the 132 kV Grid sub-station at Jhelum which would be constructed under the Rasul Hydrel Scheme.

The hydro-electric works at Jogindranagar on the Uhl River have now five machines all of which can run during the summer. They can supplement the supply of power from the Mangla during the summer, while during the winter the Mangla scheme makes good the deficiency of the Uhl River Scheme.

These two schemes are therefore primarily meant to supplement each other during the low water periods at the respective power stations, thus ensuring a constant supply of additional power all throughout the year. The schemes are estimated to cost Rs. 99.52 lakhs.

Uhl or Mandi.—Situated on a spur of the Dauladhar Range at elevations ranging between 6,000 and 4,000 feet above sea-level, and connected by means of a tunnel over 15,000 ft. long, are the works of what is known as the Uhl River Hydro-Electric or Mandi Scheme which is now operated by the Punjab P.W.D. Electricity Branch.

Due to the extensive nature of the construction works, it was found necessary to build two small temporary hydro-electric power stations one at Dhelu near Shanar and the other at Thujl near the headworks at Brot which were linked together to constitute a combined installed capacity of 1,440 kW.

Shanar Power Station.—The initial installed capacity of Shanar Power Station is 48,000 kW. From the Shanar Power Station energy generated at 11,000 volts is stepped up to 132,000 volts which is the highest voltage adopted for this purpose in the country.

This station supplies sub-stations at Kangra, Pathankhot, Dhariwal and Amritsar.

A single circuit line also runs from Amritsar to Jullundur and is continued at 33 kV to serve Goraya and Ludhiana sub-stations.

From these various sub-stations lines radiate to supply between them the Amritsar Municipality and the Jullundur Electric Supply Co. and also to Kapurthala at two points.

HYDERABAD

Nizamsagar Power Station.—The Nizamsagar Reservoir, located on the Manjira river, is now supplying water for irrigation to a large area.

The discharge into the irrigation channel is being used to generate up to 15,000 kW of power. The bulk of the power will be stepped up to 66,000 volts for transmission to Hyderabad city where an immediate demand exists.

Devanoor Scheme.—Above the Nizamsagar reservoir, the Manjira river makes a wide loop and, by building a dam near Devanoor village it is possible to obtain a head of approximately 375 feet total. The flow will be approximately 1,200 cusecs perennial and power will be developed at two stations along the canal.

The total amount of power available from Devanoor will be approximately 40,000 kW perennial, and this is one of the few schemes available to supply continuous power.

Tungabhadra Schemes.—In conjunction with the Tungabhadra irrigation scheme it is possible to generate over 160,000 kW of hydro power at a number of stations along the canal system.

Plans for a station to accommodate five units of 7,500 kW capacity have been prepared.

At Sivapur, about 10 miles down the irrigation canal, a dam is being constructed. At this dam there is a fall of 80 feet and it is proposed to install three units of 10,000 kW capacity in a station which will be controlled from No. 1 Power Station.

Below Sivapur, there will be another reservoir at Timmapur, where the irrigation requirements can be dropped through 80 feet thus generating about 10,000 kW.

Above this point the canal has been designed for a capacity of 7,000 cusecs, so that power can be generated from this surplus water. The power available will be about 50,000 kW seasonal.

At Ipra, near Raichur, a further power station can be installed with a capacity of about 10,000 kW.

Krishna Schemes.—Two power schemes have been investigated on the Krishna river, one in the upper reaches above the junction with the Tungabhadra and one in the lower reaches where it passes through a range of hills near Devanorkonda.

The upper Krishna will give a capacity of approximately 50,000 kW and the lower station at the lower Krishna about 100,000 kW.

Godavari Scheme.—Apart from these sources, power will be generated on a large scale under the Godavari Valley Development. The Godavari main project will have eleven power sites, large and small. These are at (1) Kawalguda site 45,000 kW, (2) North Bank Canal Developments (four in number) 60,000 kW, (3) South Bank Canal Development (two in number) 40,000 kW, and (4) South Power Branch Development (four in number) 30,000 kW.

The total amount of power generated at these places will be 175,000 kW.

The Godavari Thermal Power Station at Ramagundam forms a part of the larger industrial development of the valley which is rich in natural mineral resources.

The total expenditure up to date is Rs. 12.2 millions on machinery and civil works.

The power station at Hyderabad is to be expanded at a cost of Rs. 5.00 millions so as to raise its capacity to 26,000 kW.

Singareni Collieries supply electricity, through a 33,000 kW transmission line, as a temporary measure to Khammamet, Dornakal, Garla and Mahbulabad.

The hydro-thermal grid system will in course of time electrify the remotest corners of the State.

BHOPAL

To generate electric power badly needed to help industries develop in Bhopal, the Government of Bhopal have prepared for the sanction of the Government of India the Kolar Nadi Hydro-Electric-cum-Irrigation Project, estimated to cost rupees four crores.

A storage reservoir to be constructed across the Kolar Nadi, a tributary of the Narmada, will have a storage capacity of about 390,000 acre feet. The water stored during rains will be utilised, at first, for generating 16,500 kW of electric power. The tail water will be picked up lower down and utilised for irrigating 96,000 acres of land.

RAJASTHAN

The Jawai River Irrigation-cum-Hydro-Electric Project in Jodhpur Division was taken in hand as early as in 1946. Work is in full swing and is expected to be soon completed.

The reservoir across the river Jawai has a capacity of 0.17 million acre feet and besides irrigating some 110,000 acres, will supply water for two generating stations, 1,570 kW maximum output at the canal head and 2,530 kW maximum output at the canal tail where a drop of 92 feet occurs.

The cost of the scheme is estimated at 3.24 crores of rupees.

The Chambal Irrigation and Hydel Development Project (Madhya Bharat and Rajasthan) aims at harnessing the Chambal for irrigation, hydro-electric generation and flood control by the construction of three dams and one barrage for the benefit of both Madhya Bharat and Rajasthan States.

A dam 100 feet high will be constructed near Chaurisgarh Fort with a storage capacity of 7 million acre feet. Hydro-power to the extent of 28,000 kW to 38,000 kW at 100 per cent load factor will be developed, and the area to be irrigated will be 40,000 acres.

The second dam, 100 feet high near Rawatbhata with a storage capacity of 1.3 million acre feet, will develop 30,000 kW to 40,000 kW power at 100 per cent load factor and will provide irrigation facilities for an area of 10,000 acres.

The third dam 145 feet high will be located near Gaperath and will develop 30,000 kW to 40,000 kW power at 100 per cent load factor.

Total power : about 100,000 kW.

The barrage will be located near Goanari village and the canal taking off therefrom will irrigate one million acres.

The total cost of the scheme is Rs. 38 crores.

The work on the project was started in October 1948.

INSURANCE

INDIAN Insurance encountered a particularly difficult period in the year 1952. The restrictions of bank credit, extreme stringency in the money market, consumers' resistance, and depressing advices from foreign markets, all combined to create a situation akin to depression. There was thus an all round fall in the premium income in all departments in 1952.

It was felt that in the stress of keen competition in business, insurers were not strictly adhering in practice to the spirit of the Insurance Act. Two sets of Regulations called "Code of Conduct", have therefore been evolved one for life offices and the other for general insurers, to help establish better practice in procuring business, strictly in accord with the provisions of the Law. The purport of these Codes is to regulate the business terms and relationship between the insurance offices and their field-workers. As these codes are drawn up by the insurers themselves in consultation with one another and self-imposed, they are helping the Trade to bring about a healthier atmosphere in their business practice.

The Code for the General Insurers came into force on 15th February 1952 and the Code for Life Insurers on 1st January 1953.

Though the Employees State Insurance Act was passed in 1948, and the Employees' State Insurance Corporation was also formed in that year to administer the Health Insurance Scheme, it took over four years to put the scheme into effect. It was to start with introduced in Delhi and Kanpur regions first offering the benefits of health insurance to over one lakh of industrial workers. This took place on the 24th of February 1952. It was extended to the Punjab on the 17th of May 1953.

It is proposed to introduce the Scheme by stages at different industrial centres in India, so that by April 1954, it will cover all places in the Union with a concentration of employees of over 5,000. When fully implemented, it will give a cover to nearly 20 lakhs of industrial workers.

The rate of income-tax applicable to Insurance Companies which was raised to about 65 pacs in the rupee in 1951, has continued at that figure. In assessing taxable income on the basis of "income less expenses", the maximum limit for the allowable expenses for life offices, is 15 per cent of the Renewal Premiums and such percentage of the First Years' Premiums as is obtained by multiplying the term in years of the corresponding policies by $\frac{7}{8}$ subject to a maximum of 90 per cent. A strong representation has been made to the Finance Ministry from the Trade to accept the limits permitted by the Insurance Rules Nos. 17D and 17E, as the limits for the allowable expenses. In assessing taxable income on the basis of valuation surplus, the portion of the surplus distributed among the policy holders that would be exempted from income-tax, has been raised from one-half to two-thirds. The Select Committee in its Report on the Income-tax Amendment Bill which was before the House of the People, recommended that this ratio should be further raised from two-thirds to four-fifths.

Co-operative Insurance Societies are not liable to income-tax, as per Section 60 of the Income-tax Act. Mutual Life Insurance Offices are now agitating for similar concession and have made a representation to the Taxation Enquiry Commission on the plea that the structure of Mutual Insurers and Co-operative Insurers are in essence and principle almost the same.

DISTRIBUTION OF COMPANIES

The total number of insurers registered under the Insurance Act, 1938, up to 7th October, 1952 was 324 of which 222 insurers were Indian insurers and 102 were non-Indian insurers.

Of the 222 Indian Insurers, 90 had their head offices in Bombay State, 49 in West Bengal, 32 in Madras State, 19 in Delhi State, 5 each in Punjab and Uttar Pradesh, 8 in Saurashtra, 3 in Hyderabad, 2 each in Mysore, Orissa and Rajasthan, and one each in Ajmer-Merwara, Assam, Bihar, Madhya Bharat and Madhya Pradesh.

Of the 102 non-Indian insurers 66 (including one insurer holding standing contracts with Lloyd's) were constituted in the United Kingdom, 17 in the British Dominions and Colonies, 9 in the United States of America, 3 in Switzerland, 2 each in Pakistan and Africa, and one each in France, Italy and Java.

Most of the Indian insurers carry on life insurance business only. They are 115 in number, and of the remaining 107 Indian insurers, 48 carry on life business along with other insurance business, and 59 carry on insurance business other than life. Of the Indian insurers, 40 are either Mutual Insurance Companies or Co-operative Insurance Societies. Further there are a few pension funds, mostly connected with Government services, and the Postal Insurance Fund which are exempt from the operation of the Insurance Act.

As regards non-Indian insurers, most of them carry on insurance business other than life, 4 carry on life business only, and 13 carry on life business along with other insurance business.

LIFE INSURANCE BUSINESS

The total net new life insurance business effected in India during the year 1951 amounted to 474,000 policies insuring a sum of Rs. 13,292 lakhs and having an annual renewal premium of Rs. 7.34 crores, of which the new business done by Indian insurers amounted to 452,000 policies insuring a sum of Rs. 116.46 crores and having a yearly renewal premium income of Rs. 6.34 crores. The new life business effected by non-Indian insurers amounted to 22,000 policies insuring a sum of Rs. 16.46 crores and having a yearly renewal premium income of 0.96 crores.

The average sum insured per policy under the new policies issued in India by Indian insurers was Rs. 2,575 and under those issued by non-Indian insurers about Rs. 7,332.

The total net life insurance business effected in India and remaining in force at the end of 1951 amounted to 3,414,000 policies insuring a total sum of Rs. 792.94 crores including bonus additions and having an annual premium income of Rs. 39.74 crores. Of this the share of Indian insurers is represented by 3,179,000 policies insuring a sum of Rs. 677.02 crores and having an annual premium income of Rs. 33.32 crores. The share of non-Indian insurers is represented by 235,000 policies insuring a sum of Rs. 115.92 crores and having an annual premium income of Rs. 6.42 crores.

Some Indian Life Offices have been operating outside India also. The total new sums insured by these offices outside India in 1951 amounted to 17,000 policies insuring Rs. 7.08 crores. The total business remaining in force at the end of 1951 amounted to 214,000 policies insuring Rs. 49.94 crores and having an annual premium income of Rs. 2.42 crores.

The following table shows the New Sums Insured by Indian Life Offices, the Average Sum Insured per policy and the Total Sums Insured in force at the end of the year:—

NON-LIFE BUSINESS

The premium income in 1951 of insurers doing fire and other classes of business showed an increase over that in 1950.

The net premium income of all insurers under insurance business other than life insurance during 1951 was Rs. 18.35 crores (Rs. 16.63 crores in 1950) of which the Indian Insurers' share was Rs. 13.09 crores and that of the non-Indian Insurers Rs. 5.26 crores. The total amount was composed of Rs. 9.39 crores from Fire, Rs. 4.11 crores from Marine, and Rs. 4.85 crores from Miscellaneous Insurance business.

The Indian Insurers received Rs. 7.12 crores from Fire, Rs. 2.48 crores from Marine, and Rs. 3.49 crores from Miscellaneous Insurance business.

The expense ratio for Fire, Marine, Miscellaneous were 20, 23 and 27 per cent respectively in 1951 as against 24, 24 and 27 per cent respectively in 1950. Commission ratios in 1951, were 13, 5 and 15 respectively as against 24, 11 and 17. This all round decrease in 1951 is apparently the effect of the Insurance (Amendment) Act, 1950.

Some Indian Insurers who transact fire, marine and miscellaneous insurance business also operate outside India. These insurers had a net premium income of Rs. 6.32 crores in 1951 as against Rs. 4.84 crores in 1950 and Rs. 3.94 crores in 1949.

ASSETS OF INSURERS

The assets of all the Indian Insurers amounted to Rs. 249.82 crores on 31st December 1951, which were held invested in :—

PROVIDENT INSURANCE SOCIETIES

On September 30, 1952 there were in existence 81 Provident Societies. Of these 30 were in West Bengal, 21 in Bombay State, 14 in Madras, the rest distributed over the other States.

The total new business effected by the societies during the year 1951 amounted to 13,877 policies insuring a sum of Rs. 1,06,94,900. The premium income received during the year on these policies amounted to Rs. 3,69,400. The business in force at the end of the year amounted to 63,097 policies, insuring a total sum of Rs. 3,46,88,700 including bonuses.

The total life insurance fund of these societies at the end of 1951 amounted to Rs. 85,57,000.

The net rate of interest realized on mean life funds of the societies in the year was 3.56 per cent, and the total expenses of management expressed as a percentage of the premium income was 39.2.

INSURANCE AGENTS

Insurance agents constitute an important pillar of the insurance structure. The rapid increase in their number during the last few years, as indicated by the table below, naturally raises the question whether the growth has kept within healthy limits or whether the evil of overcrowding is present in this profession as well.

Year.	1947	1948	1949	1950	1951
Number of Agents.	174,169	170,016	180,787	172,936	177,164

Of the 126,691 licences issued in 1951, 64,200 were fresh and 62,491 were renewals.

With the amendment of Section 42 of the Act, which came into force as from September 1, 1950 licences will be issued for a period of three years as against one year which was the practice followed till then. The fees for fresh licences as well as for renewals have been increased to Rs. 5.

Sec. 42A enjoins employers of insurance agents (Principal, Chief, Special) to be registered. Certificates are issued to them, renewable annually. During 1951, the number of certificates issued, to Principal Agents were 892 fresh and 418 renewal; to Chief Agents, 601 fresh and 43 renewal; to Special Agents, 9,860 fresh and 526 renewals.

(For population of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes in individual States see under Population.)

These classes include 779 Scheduled Castes, 215 Scheduled Tribes and 198 nomadic tribes besides a number of unspecified groups.

The new Constitution provides for special safeguards for the Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes and Backward Classes.

The President has defined by means of an order who the Scheduled Castes and Tribes are. A similar list of Backward Classes has to await the detailed findings of the Backward Classes Commission.

For the Scheduled Castes the safeguards take the form, broadly speaking, of reservation of seats in the lower Houses of the legislature and of vacancies in Government services. For the Scheduled Tribes there is a sort of autonomy in parts of Assam, Tribal Councils to watch their interests in some States, while in other States Ministers have been appointed to take charge of Tribal affairs. There are also special grants to be used exclusively for uplift work.

All these special provisions may come up for review by a Commission appointed by the President at any time within ten years after the commencement of the new Constitution. Meanwhile there is an official with the Central Government who is to report to the President from time to time on the working of these provisions.

As regards Backward Classes a Commission has been appointed to enquire into their condition.

The Commission consists of:

Kakasabai Kalkar (Chairman), N. S. Kalkolkar, M. P. (Bombay), Bheeka Bhat, M. P. (Rajasthan), Shivalal Singh Chaurasia (U. P.), Rajeshwar Patel, M. P. (Bihar), Abdul Quaiyum Ansari, M. L. A. (Bihar), Lala Jagan Nath (Punjab), Harappa (Mysore), Alma Singh Namdhari, M. P. (West Bengal), Arunangshu Dey (West Bengal: member-secretary).

The functions of the Commission are to determine the criteria on the basis of which any particular section can be described as socially or educationally backward, to prepare a list of such Backward Classes for the whole of India, to examine the condition and difficulties of such classes and make specific recommendations (including financial) for their removal.

There is at present a scheme for the award of scholarships to post-matric students.

During 1951-52 a sum of Rs. 8.25 lakhs was sanctioned. Out of this 1,410 scholarships were granted.

A sum of Rs. 3 lakhs was sanctioned for the Scheduled Tribes.

UNTOUCHABILITY CAMPAIGN

The Central Government has sought the assistance of three non-official organizations—Harijan Sewak Sangh, Bharatiya Depressed Classes League, Scheduled Castes Federation—to conduct an anti-untouchability campaign throughout the country.

The Central Government made available Rs. 50 lakhs from the 1953-54 budget allocation to the three organizations, and also to individual States for the eradication of untouchability through approved non-official bodies. All these funds are to be used solely for propaganda against untouchability.

The organizations to whom grants are made are required to raise voluntary contributions at least to the extent of 20 per cent of the amount allotted to them.

On December 30, 1953 the Government of India published a Bill entitled "The Untouchability (offences) Act, 1953". The Bill was to be introduced in the budget session of Parliament in 1954.

It makes the practice of untouchability and enforcement of any disability arising therefrom a cognizable offence punishable with imprisonment upto six months, or fine upto Rs. 500, or both.

It is meant to apply to the whole of India except Jammu and Kashmir and to all communities and not Hindus alone.

In addition to the normal penalties prescribed in the Bill, the court may also cancel or suspend any licence in respect of any profession, trade, calling or employment when an offence is committed under this law during the course of such profession, trade, calling or employment.

Whoever takes any part in the excommunication or imposition of any disability on, any person who refused to practise untouchability or does any act in furtherance of the objects of this new law will also be guilty of an offence.

Under the new law, every place of public worship will be open to every untouchable for worship and for the performance of any religious service or for offering prayers therein in the same manner and to the same extent as it is open to any other person belonging to the same religious denomination or to the same section thereof as the untouchable.

Every such untouchable will be entitled to bathe in, or use the waters of any sacred tank, spring or water-course in the same manner and to the same extent as other persons belonging to the same religious denomination or any section thereof as the untouchables are entitled to.

With regard to removal of social disabilities on untouchables, the Bill provides that no untouchable should on ground only that he is an untouchable be subject to any disability, liability, restriction or condition with regard to access to any shop, public restaurant, hotel or any place of public entertainment or use of river, well, etc., road, passage, etc., or the use of or access to any public conveyance licensed to ply or hire by any authority constituted under any law.

Untouchables will not be refused admission to hospitals, dispensaries, educational institutions or hostels attached to them established or maintained for the benefit of the public, on the ground that they are untouchables.

No person should refuse to sell any goods or refuse to render any service in the ordinary course of business to any untouchable on the ground only that he is an untouchable.

PENALTIES

The clause relating to penalties says that whoever prevents an untouchable from exercising any right conferred by this Act or molests, obstructs or attempts to cause obstruction to an untouchable in the exercise of any such right will be punishable with imprisonment which may extend to six months or with fine which may extend to Rs. 500 or with both.

Provision is also made for the award of a similar punishment to those persons who deny to others the rights to which they are entitled or are a party to the excommunication or imposition of any other disability on others on the ground that they have refused to practise untouchability or have done any act in furtherance of the objects of this Act.

Whoever abets an offence under this section will be liable to the punishment provided for the offence.

If the person committing an offence under this Act is a company, every person, who at the time the offence was committed was in charge of, and was responsible to, the company for the conduct of the business of the company, as well as the company, will be deemed to be guilty of the offence and will be liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly.

This will not, however, render a person to punishment if he proves that the offence was committed without his knowledge or that he exercised all due diligence to prevent the commission of such offence.

Where an offence under this Act has been committed by a company and is attributable to any neglect on the part of any director or manager, secretary or other officer then the officer will also be deemed to be guilty of that offence and will be liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly.

If a person who is convicted for an offence under this Act holds a licence in respect of any profession, trade or employment in relation to which the offence is committed, the court trying the offence may, without prejudice to any other penalty to which such person may be liable, direct that the licence should stand cancelled or be suspended for such period as the court may deem fit.

Where the manager or trustee of a place of public worship which is in receipt of a grant of land or money from the Government is convicted of an offence under this Act the Government may, if in its opinion the circumstances of the case warrant such a course, direct the suspension or resumption of the whole or any part of such grant.

The provisions of this Act will have effect notwithstanding anything inconsistent therewith contained in any other law for the time being in force, or any custom or usage.

A member of a Scheduled Caste who has been converted from the Hindu religion to any other religion, notwithstanding such conversion, will be deemed to be an "untouchable" for the purposes of this Act.

An untouchable means a member of a Scheduled Caste as defined in clause 24 of Article 366 of the Constitution, and includes any other person who by custom or usage is regarded as an "untouchable" by any community or section thereof.

Vindhya Pradesh : The U. P. (Removal of Social Disabilities) Act, 1947 extended to the State—not cognizable.

Such of the above Acts as are not shown as 'not cognizable' are cognizable.

REPORT FOR 1952-53

Such legislation to penalize the practice of untouchability, both for the sake of uniformity and to cover those States where there is no such law, was, in fact, recommended by the Commissioner for Scheduled Castes and Tribes, Mr. L. M. Srikant, in his report for 1952 to Parliament.

Untouchability, though forbidden under Article 17 of the Constitution, still persists especially in the rural areas of the country, says the report.

The only States which could be said to be free from the "curse" of untouchability are Assam, Manipur and Tripura.

In West Bengal, too, though the Scheduled Castes are considered officially low, they are not regarded as "untouchables".

Legislative measures taken by the States for the removal of untouchability have not proved very effective.

Where untouchability has not been made a cognizable offence, the reason for the ineffectual nature of legislation is obvious. But even where it is made cognizable legislation has not been of any material help to those for whose benefit it was enacted.

Being economically dependent upon non-Scheduled Castes, the Scheduled Castes have not the courage to break social barriers.

The total eradication of untouchability will take a little time.

The problem of Scheduled Tribes is different from and not as complicated as that of the Scheduled Castes since there is no deep-rooted prejudice against them in society.

After referring to special representation given to Anglo-Indians in Legislatures, the report observes that reservations have been made for them in the railways, customs, postal and telegraph services.

There is, however, a shortage of Anglo-Indians for reserved posts, because of the non-availability of candidates of the requisite qualifications and the new lower scales prescribed. Steps have been taken to recruit more Anglo-Indians.

No complaint, however, was received in this regard.

Special grants for the education of the Anglo-Indian community were also continued by the Central and State Governments.

The report suggests the provision of necessary facilities to the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes for housing, supply of drinking water, security of land tenure, debt redemption, development of cottage industries, improvement of sanitation, provision of free legal aid and representation in local bodies, panchayats, etc.

While dealing with the living conditions of 'the lowest of the low' the report says that 'in cities and towns civic consciousness is so dormant that Corporations, municipalities and district boards, etc., are very reluctant in providing even the primary amenities of life like decent housing, lighting, water supply, etc. to their migrant, Bhangi and Mahat Harijan employees'.

Large items of expenditure are swallowed up in the construction of luxurious roads and lighting arrangements while the Harijan employee has been relegated to the background under the pretext of financial stringency.

Some of these local bodies do not treat them fairly in the matter of decent conditions of service e.g., maternity leave and permanency of service.

ORIGIN

It was during the Round Table Conference held in London, before the 1935 Government of India Act was finally drafted, that Dr. Ambedkar suggested the term "Scheduled Caste" for all those depressed class people who were not only backward socially, economically and politically but who also suffered from the social disabilities derived from untouchability.

The Government of India (Provincial Legislative Assembly) Orders, 1936 give a list of officially recognized Scheduled Castes.

The aboriginal tribes which were termed Animists in the census of 1911, Forest and Hill Tribes in the census of 1921, Primitive Tribes in the census of 1931 and Backward Tribes in the 13th Schedule of Government of India (Provincial Legislative Assembly) Order, 1936 and finally Tribals in the census of 1941 are now called Scheduled Tribes according to the new Constitution.

It is comparatively easy to define a Scheduled Caste as its distinguishing feature is untouchability but it is more difficult to lay down a uniform criterion for a Scheduled Tribe.

The main object of listing these Castes and Tribes separately in the Government of India Act of 1935 and the present Constitution was to give them special political representation and educational and other facilities.

Every State has a list of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes for the granting of educational and other facilities. But for political representation the list contained in the Schedule 13 of the Government of India Act (Provincial Legislative Assembly) Orders, 1936 was followed by all the States so far as Provincial Assemblies and Councils were concerned.

The Indian States, prior to the advent of Independence, however, had lists which were haphazardly compiled.

So, when the new Constitution was on the anvil, it was decided that a thorough-going list for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes should be prepared.

SAFEGUARDS

The Constitution of India has laid down certain safeguards for Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes and Backward Classes or the weaker sections of the people.

In a chapter on Fundamental Rights, under Articles 15, 16 and 17, it has been stated that the State shall not discriminate between any citizens on ground of religion, race, caste, sex or place of birth. This does not prevent the State, however, from framing rules for the reservation of seats in the legislature or of appointments in the public services in favour of any class which is not adequately represented.

Similarly, under Article 19, the right to freedom is circumscribed by authorising the State to place reasonable restrictions for the protection of the interests of Scheduled Tribes.

Under the directive principles of policy, under part I, Article 46 of the Constitution, it is said that the State should promote the educational, economic and political interests of the weaker section of the people and in particular the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes and protect them from social injustice and all forms of exploitation.

Under Article 17 untouchability is abolished and its practice in any form forbidden.

Article 25 empowers the State to throw open Hindu religious institutions of a public character.

Article 29 provides that no citizen can be denied admission into any educational institution maintained by the State or aided by it on grounds of religion, race, caste or language.

It has been laid down under Article 164, that in the States of Bihar, Madhya Pradesh and Orissa, there should be a Minister in charge of Tribal Welfare who may, in addition, be in charge of the welfare of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes or any other work of allied nature while in the Part B State of Madhya Bharat there will similarly be a Minister in charge of Tribal Welfare who may, in addition, be in charge of the welfare of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes or any other work of allied interest.

The Vth and VIIIth Schedules of the Constitution under Article 244 also provide for the administration and control of Schedule areas and Scheduled Tribes and of Tribal areas in Assam by providing Tribe Advisory Councils for Tribal areas.

For the promotion of the welfare of Scheduled Tribes and Schedule areas, provision has been made under Article 275 for grants-in-aid to be paid out of the Consolidated Fund of India for such schemes of development as may be undertaken by the States with the approval of the Government of India for raising the administration of the Schedule areas of the State to the same level as that of the other areas of the State.

Special provision for grants-in-aid has been made in the case of Assam.

Tribes Advisory Councils have been set up in Bihar, Madhya Pradesh, Madras and Orissa.

In the Tribal areas in Assam, District or Regional Councils have to be set up for each autonomous region. Three-fourths of the members have to be elected on a basis of adult franchise.

REPRESENTATION IN LEGISLATURES

Seats are reserved in the House of the People under Article 330 and 332 for Scheduled Castes and for Scheduled Tribes including the Tribal areas and autonomous districts of Assam.

The number of seats reserved in any State bears the same proportion to the total number of seats allotted to that State in the House of the People as the population of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes in the State or the part of the State bears to the total population of the State.

Similarly in the Legislative Assembly of every State seats are reserved.

The reservation of seats in the House of the People and Legislative Assemblies will cease to have effect on the expiration of a period of ten years from the commencement of the Constitution.

The representation of the Anglo-Indian community in the House of the People and in the Legislative Assemblies of the States by nomination will also cease after ten years.

Under these provisions 72 seats in the House of the People and 477 in the States Legislatures have been reserved for the Scheduled Castes, and 26 seats in the House of the People and 192 in the State Legislatures for the Tribes.

The claims of members of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes should be taken into consideration according to Article 335 in the making of appointments to services and posts in connection with the affairs of the Union or of a State consistently with the maintenance of the efficiency of the administration.

In order to investigate all matters regarding these safeguards for Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes, Backward Classes and Anglo-Indians, provision has been made in the Constitution under Article 338 for the appointment of a special officer for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes who is required to report to the President upon the working of these safeguards at such intervals as the President may direct and the President will cause all such reports to be laid before each House of Parliament.

Articles 339 and 340 provide for the appointment of a Commission by the President any time within the expiration of ten years from the commencement of the Constitution to report on the administration of Schedule areas and the welfare of Scheduled Tribes in the States of Parts A and B.

The same Articles also provide for the appointment of a Commission to investigate the conditions of socially and educationally backward classes and the difficulties under which they labour and to make recommendations as to the steps to be taken to remove such difficulties and to improve their conditions, and the grants that should be made for this purpose by the Union or any State.

Now for the purposes of preparing a list of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes it has been laid down under Articles 339, 341 and 342 that the President, in consultation with the Governor or Rajpramukh of the State, by public notification should specify the castes, races or tribes to be deemed as Scheduled Castes and specify the Scheduled Tribes to be deemed as Scheduled Tribes.

Parliament alone may, by law, include or exclude from this list Scheduled Tribes and Scheduled Castes. The notification of such lists by the President cannot be varied by any subsequent notifications.

This was done through the following orders: The Constitution (Scheduled Castes) Order, 1950; the Constitution (Scheduled Castes) (Part C States) Order, 1951; the Constitution (Scheduled Tribes) Order, 1950; the Constitution (Scheduled Tribes) (Part C States) Order, 1951.

A note may also be added on the results of the general elections.

Of the 98 seats allotted to the Scheduled Castes and Tribes in the House of the People the Congress won 74 seats, the Scheduled Castes Federation 2, the Communists 2, the Akali Party 2, and the Socialist Party (now P.S.P.) 3. Fifteen others were elected either through local parties or as independents.

In the States Assemblies of the 669 total seats for the Scheduled Castes and Tribes the Congress won 461 seats, the Socialists 19, K.M.P.P. 15, Communists 19, Scheduled Castes Federation 14, Akalis 8. The rest of the 133 seats were won by local parties and independents.

(For an analysis for each State see under General Elections).

SCHEDULED CASTES

The main problem of Scheduled Castes is the social disabilities based on untouchability which is deep-rooted in the structure of Hindu society.

Legislative measures making untouchability a cognizable offence and enjoining entry into common Hindu temples have been enacted in Part A States as the Removal of Social Disabilities Act and the Temple Entry Act (pp. 294, 295).

They have been applied to some of the Part B States as well where the Scheduled Castes are badly treated. For instance, there are some Part B and Part C States where they are not allowed to put on shoes, ride on horseback or put on the more expensive type of clothes or silver and gold ornaments, while in many places the Scheduled Castes are not allowed to draw water from the well. Inter-caste dining or inter-caste marriages are out of question.

Propaganda by non-official agencies like the Harijan Sewak Sangh and the Congress has softened down the custom and the habit of untouchability to a considerable extent. Legislative measures helped in keeping up the tempo of the propaganda. Ultimately, it will be propaganda and the public opinion created by it that will put an end to untouchability of every kind.

As a result of scholarships and other privileges granted to them the Scheduled Castes are coming into their own and are supplying leadership for the community. There are, for instance, Ministers in Cabinets and Members of Parliament from Scheduled Castes.

Similarly, in the Government services they are beginning to make headway and some have reached the upper ranks of services.

The worst sufferers are those members of Scheduled Castes who are at the bottom of the social order and are considered as untouchables even among untouchables, castes like Bhangia, Mehtars, Valmikis and Mangs, and so on. That is to say those who are mainly engaged as scavengers or sweepers or in the so-called unclean work of removing dead animals, etc.

It is very difficult to persuade these people to take to education or lead a decent life and also to provide them with decent houses. The period of ten years stipulated in the Constitution may not be long enough to educate them socially and raise them to the level of the other sections of society.

SCHEDULED TRIBES

The Scheduled Tribes live in remote forest regions, chiefly in Bombay, Madhya Pradesh, Bihar, Orissa, West Bengal and Assam.

Different Scheduled Tribes belong to different strata of culture and have different habits, customs and modes of life. The main characteristics which are common to all Scheduled Tribes are, isolation from other communities, primitive life, belief in sorcery and black magic, nomadic habits, and love of drink and dance. It is mostly on hill tops, or valleys or forest areas that the Scheduled Tribes have their habitation.

They have been neglected both by Government and society in general who have, nevertheless, exploited them and, ultimately driven them into the forest regions of the country. The problem is, therefore, quite different from that of the Scheduled Castes.

The foreign Christian Missionaries have tried to improve their lot by starting missions among them as a result of which some leaders like Mr. Jajpal Singh, M.P., have come forward and qualified themselves for membership of Parliament.

There are very few educated or socially conscious people among the Scheduled Tribes who can take their due share in the work of State Assemblies, much less in Government services.

It was very recently that non-official organisations have sprung up in the country for doing ameliorative work among them at the instance of the late Shri Thakkar Bapa who had organised Associations in some States with the help of grants from different State Governments.

It is only the beginning, and there is enormous uphill work to be done before they can catch up with the rest of society. Without adequate support in men and money it is doubtful if this work can be accomplished within a period of ten years stipulated in the Constitution.

In this connection the Bharatiya Adajati Sevak Sangh to which all other institutions doing tribal welfare work are affiliated is doing much useful work.

Backward classes can be listed after the findings of the Backward Classes Commission are available. It will not be easy to list these people as the general condition of the majority of the people in India is also backward, educationally and economically. It will, therefore, be very difficult for the State to provide adequate funds for the improvement of these classes.

From the point of view of the existing production the Tribal area in Assam can be divided into three distinct categories. These are: (1) an area of about 2,000 square miles with a population of 60,000 which is self-sufficient or has even surplus production; (2) an area of 3,700 square miles with a population of 100,000 which has average production; and (3) the balance of about 34,000 square miles with a population of 538,000 which is a deficit area.

At present paddy forms the major crop of the area and it is also the staple food of the people so long as it is available. Millet and maize are next in importance and are grown extensively in the region. Wheat and barley are grown only in some localised areas where climatic conditions are favourable. Next to cereals, the tribal people are accustomed to root crops such as kachru, sweet potato and yams which are cultivated. They are also found in wild condition.

FIVE-YEAR PLAN

The total allotment is Rs. 28.9 crores.

In addition there are Rs. 9 crores by way of grants by the Central Government under Article 271 (1), and Rs. 3 crores for the tribal people in the North-East Frontier Agency.

The foremost needs of the Harijans are housing and education. During the period of the plan the States and the Centre will spend Rs. 10 crores and 4 crores respectively for the amelioration of the condition of the Harijans.

The tribal areas are to be developed. Here the emphasis will be on roads and water supply. The people will be assisted to take to settled methods of agriculture in preference to shifting cultivation. Among diseases that are to be combated are malaria, skin diseases, leprosy, trachoma and elephantiasis.

The nomadic tribes hitherto treated as criminals are to be weaned away from anti-social behaviour and re-absorbed into normal life.

A five-year development plan for the tribal areas of Assam (8 lakhs of people living in an area of 40,000 sq. miles) estimated to cost Rs. 3 crores, was also drawn up by the Planning Commission.

A major portion of this expenditure, nearly Rs. 1.35 crores, would be spent on development of roads.

It is proposed to spend Rs. 65 lakhs on medical facilities and public health, Rs. 48 lakhs on education, Rs. 32 lakhs on agriculture and Rs. 20 lakhs on forests.

Rs. 83.5 lakhs will be required to implement the first stage of two years.

In the road development programme, it is planned to build nearly 1,400 miles of road in the Mishimi Hills, Abor Hills, Subansiri area, Sela Sub-Agency, Tirap Hills and Naga Hills.

This programme will be co-ordinated with another for strategic roads.

Development of medical and public health services includes opening of 10 hospitals and 30 dispensaries, education and training of students, appointment of malaria and vaccination staff and supply of drugs and medical instruments. It also includes the establishment of a leper colony.

Expenditure on education includes opening of primary and secondary schools, both of the middle and high standard, and also vocational training schools. Emphasis is laid on the establishment of technical schools which are proposed to be opened in each of the six subdivisions in the area.

On agricultural development, the major programme covers the introduction of permanent cultivation in the form of both terrace and wet rice cultivation. Introduction of new and commercial cash crops, supply of improved varieties of seeds, training of agriculturists in improved manurial and cultural practices; supply of tools and implements form other important aspects of the programme.

The existing sericultural activity in the area has to be promoted, and the plan makes a provision for setting up a fully equipped central farm at Pasighat. In view of the future possibilities of sericulture among the tribal people, it is also considered necessary to provide for demonstration and seed-supply centres in the area.

The Planning Commission has allotted one Development Block to this area to be developed on the lines of the general pattern of Community Projects which will be implemented in various parts of the country.

CENTRAL GOVERNMENT GRANTS

The following statement shows the ceilings for grants-in-aid fixed by the Government of India for the State Governments for welfare schemes for the Scheduled Castes, the Scheduled Tribes and Backward Classes for the year 1953-54.

Up to September 1952, Rs 11·33 crores were sanctioned to 1 70 lakh displaced persons from West Pakistan. Of this, Rs 10·79 crores were actually paid to 1 65 lakh displaced persons.
A sum of Rs 4 24 crores was sanctioned for the displaced persons in the east.

Education

The Government of India were expected to spend Rs. 17 lakhs during 1953-54 on grants to disrupted educational institutions from West Pakistan.

On direct assistance to students, Rs. 73 lakhs were to be spent in the shape of grants, stipends and freeships.

Rs. 7 lakhs were to be spent on schools and colleges in the townships of Delhi, Faridabad and Rajpura.

Upto the end of March 1953 the Central Government had spent Rs 5 crores on the education of displaced children.

It is estimated that 400,000 students have benefited from the scheme.

A sum of Rs. 1·70 crores has been provided for the financial years 1953-54 to 1955-56.

There were 31 regular centres where persons were given technical or vocational training. Some of these were under the Central Government. Others under the State Government.

About 44,600 persons had been trained upto the end of September 1952, 39,600 from West Pakistan and 5,000 from East.

About 11,900 persons were under training; 9,900 from West Pakistan and 2,000 from East.

In the centres run by the Ministry of Rehabilitation 8,400 persons had been trained, and 1,700 were receiving training.

Ten townships planned and executed as part of rehabilitation of displaced persons are as follows (number in brackets denotes target population): Faridabad (Punjab) (40,000), Gandhidham (Kutch) (75,000), Rajpura (PEPSU) (15,000), Nilokheri (Punjab) (10,000), Tripuri (PEPSU) (8,000), Sardarnagar (30,000), Uthmanagar (Bombay) (130,000), Govindpur, also called Modinagar (U.P.) (30,000), Hastinapur (U.P.) (10,000), Chandigarh (Punjab) (80,000).

Townships planned: Kuberanagar (Bombay) (30,000), Partapnagar (Rajasthan) (20,000), Habra Balgachi (West Bengal) (40,000), Fulia (West Bengal) (5,000).

Relief

Total number of persons receiving dole from the Government ..	1·41 lakhs

Permanent and semi-permanent liabilities ..	0 76 ..
Kashmiris in Yole camps ..	0·06 ..
Maintenance allowance
Monthly allowance paid ..	Rs 4 00 lakhs
Number of recipients ..	0 16 lakhs

There are about 76,000 unattached women and children, including old and infirm persons. They are being cared for in homes, camps and infirmaries.

The Ministry of Rehabilitation grant maintenance allowances to widows, unattached women, minors, or such other persons as are unable to earn a living.

This allowance is granted according to a prescribed scale up to a maximum of Rs 100 per month.

The number of unattached women and children and aged and infirm persons and their dependents from West Pakistan resettled in destitute homes and infirmaries was 24,740 on September 30, 1952.

The number from East Pakistan admitted into various destitute homes was 10,206.

The grand total so admitted was 34,946.

The number of persons from West Pakistan not so admitted but receiving gratuities from Government was 12,980.

Camps for displaced persons from West Pakistan have now been closed down.

In West Bengal, dispersal from relief camps still continues. Owing to the rise in the influx of Hindus from East Pakistan, the population in these camps increased to nearly 50,000 by the end of September 1952.

COMPENSATION

In November 1953 the Government of India published its scheme for compensation to five priority categories as follows:

(a) Widows, old and infirm persons in receipt of maintenance allowance; (b) inmates of women's homes and infirmaries; (c) widows who have verified claims in their own names; (d) persons living in certain Government-built townships and colonies; (e) residents of mud hut colonies in the Punjab.

The townships and colonies referred to in category (d) are:

Ulhas Nagar (Kalyan), Sardarnagar (Ahmedabad), Pimpri (Poona), Valivada (Kolhapur), Warashia (Baroda), Malaviya Nagar, Kalkaji and Tilak Nagar (Delhi), Katni (Tilda), Chakarbhata (Bilaspur), Mana (Raipur), Jaripatka (Nagpur), Rajpura, Tripuri (PEPSU), Modinagar, Hastinapur (Meerut), Naini (Allahabad), Ramnagar (Roorkee), Premnagar (Dehra Dun), Alambagh (Lucknow), Govindnagar (Kanpur), Nilokheri (Faridabad), Balragarh (Bhopal) and Gandhidham (Kutch).

Special treatment is given to the inmates of homes and infirmaries to ensure their proper rehabilitation after they have left the homes.

The payment of the interim compensation will also begin with these displaced persons for the same reason.

In the case of these persons the rehabilitation grants will be higher.

For instance, an ordinary priority claimant with a claim of Rs. 2,000 will, under the above table, receive a total payment of Rs. 1,200. But in the case of an inmate of a home or infirmity with a similar claim, the total payment will be Rs. 1,800. This will be made up of Rs. 400 as interim compensation and Rs. 1,400 as rehabilitation grant.

In the case of claims higher than Rs. 5,000, the inmates of homes and infirmaries will receive rehabilitation grants which will be approximately 37.5 per cent more.

Amounts so far paid to displaced persons as maintenance allowance will not be deducted from the interim compensation now due to them.

The following is the scale of the assessed values of urban claims, compensation, rehabilitation grants and the total compensation (in rupees) respectively to be paid under the scheme :-

1,000	200	400	600

45,000	7,787	N/A	7,787
50,000	8,000	N/A	8,000

(and over).

There were 10,30,000 property sheets to be verified. Out of these 9,73,113 or 94.5 per cent were verified upto September 1952.

According to the decision taken at the Indo-Pakistan Conference held at New Delhi in April, 1949, Central Claims Organizations were set up in the two countries for the rapid disposal of claims for pensions, provident funds, and leave salaries of government servants and of the States and local bodies, who had migrated from Pakistan to India.

The Indian Central Claims Organization arranges provisional payments to certain categories of displaced persons under the Indo-Pakistan Scheme of Provisional Payment of Pensions and Provident Fund and the Government of India's own interim relief scheme.

The Union Ministry of Rehabilitation has appointed three Regional Settlement Commissioners to work in connection with the payment of compensation to displaced persons, and the allotment of evacuee lands to non-Punjabis and person of non-Punjab extraction having claims for agricultural lands.

REHABILITATION FINANCE CORPORATION

The net amount of loans sanctioned by the Administration upto the end of August 1953 was Rs. 11 crores.

The number of parties to whom loans were sanctioned was over 13,500.

Till the end of June over Rs. 6.23 crores had been disbursed to more than 8,000 applicants.

Of the total amount of Rs. 95 lakhs due on instalments repayable by displaced persons till June 30, 1953 only a little over 48 per cent had been recovered.

In October 1953 the Government of India issued an Ordinance by which the total funds at the disposal of the Administration was increased from Rs. 10 crores to Rs. 14.5 crores.

Of this total Rs. 12.5 crores were to be available for grant of loans directly to displaced persons, and the balance for reimbursement of losses to scheduled banks in respect of loans guaranteed by the Administration.

The Ordinance enables the Government to undertake full guarantee for the losses suffered by the scheduled banks against the 50 per cent provided in the previous Act.

The Ordinance also extends the period of repayment of loans from 10 to 15 years.

Loan Applications up to September 30, 1952 are as follows :—
